NORWICH TOWN

At a meeting of the Association of Railway Executives, held in Chicago, December 7th, Stanley J. Strong of Richmond Hill, N. Y., a member of the executive committee was elected secretary and treasurer of the association.

The general office of the association formerly located at 61 Broadway, New York city, is being moved to Washington, D. C., where in the future Mr. Strong's office will be located. Mr. Strong with his wife are soon to take up their residence in Washington. Mr. Strong is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strong of 15 West Town street. Last September Mr. and Mrs. Strong were visitors in Norwich Town over Labor day.

The annual meeting of the First Congregational church corporation, was held Thursday evening in the chapel, following the weekly prayer service. Casper K. Bailey, the retiring chairman of the trustees, called for the warning or notice of the meeting, which was read by the clerk, Dwight W. Avery. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, followed by the reports of treasurer and other officers, which also were approved. The treasurer's report showed all bills paid and a balance of over $200 in the treasury.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of D. W. Avery as clerk; Frank S. Avery treasurer; Herbert L. Yerrington, as trustee for the three year term. Mr. Yerrington was elected a member of the board of trustees, to succeed Casper K. Bailey, whose term of three years has expired; and who was not eligible to re-election by provision of the constitution.

Through the efficient management of the trustees, the church has been very prosperous and has come through each year without a deficit. Besides Mr. Yerrington, the board of trustees comprises Clyde M. Beebe and Frank E. Sterry.

Other improvements made during the year, the north side of the church has been shingled; the parsonage has been painted and gas steam radiators have been installed in the chapel parlor.

During the meeting an interesting letter was read, expressing the sentiment of the parish toward the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, and his family, all of which have rendered such wonderful support to the church in their many ways of rendering willing service. A pleasant feature in connection with this, and to show appreciation, announcement was made of a substantial increase in the pastor's salary.

It was the sense of the meeting that the church hold services for the next few weeks in the chapel, on account of scarcity of coal.

Sunday evening, in the Congregational chapel, the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, will be held at 7 o'clock. This meeting which is open to all interested, will be in charge of the missionary committee. There is to be a lecture and stereopticon slides on The Far Flung Line.

The Piedmont quartette of Piedmont college, Demorest, Ga., having suspended studies for a whole college year, and which is touring the north giving concerts, will be entertained in homes of the First Congregational parish, while in Norwich. The quartette representing this missionary college in the south was heard with pleasure by Norwich Town members of this parish, while attending the state conference of Congregational church, held several weeks ago in Bristol.

Rev. Richard R. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church is to have charge of the Sheltering Arms service on Sunday afternoon.

Henry Cook of the fourth grade at West Town street school, Miss Jennie McNamara, teacher, was neither absent or tardy during the fallterm.

A minister's voice may fill the church without filling the pews.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, Jan. 19—Pool operations in special stocks furnished the impetus for the early advance in today's stock market, gains being substantially reduced or wiped out towards the close on a large volume of profit taking sales. Irregular price changes, largely within fractional limits, characterized the closing quotations.

Abundance of money available for credit aided speculators for the advance in boosting the prices of their favorites. Professional short interests again tested the market by selling certain stocks freely around the end of the first hour, but they abandoned their efforts when their offerings failed to halt the advance in other quarters.

Wall street received a thrill late today when it was discovered that a circular letter received by several stock exchange houses bearing the alleged signature of Samuel Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive company, and denying certain favorable reports concerning the company's business which have been current in the financial district, was a forgery. The letter, obviously sent out for stock market purposes, caused some selling of the stock on the part of those who are first believed in its authenticity. It got down as low as 132 7-8 but rallied later to 133 5-8 where it was off only 3-8 on the day. Stock exchange authorities are conducting an investigation.

The widest fluctuations occurred in special stocks, Beechnut Packing, Kelsey Wheel, Eastman Kodak, Lorillard and U. S. Cast Iron were some of the individual strong spots, the gains running from 2 to 4 points. Famous players was depressed 2 1-4 points and Stewart-Warner speedometer 3 3-4.

Sloss Sheffield shares were strong in reflection of the improvement in the pig iron market and rumors of a possible purchase of some of its properties by Henry Ford. The common gained 3 points and the preferred 3 3-4. Other steels yielded to profit taking, U. S. Steel common, Republic and Bethlehem closing at slight fractional losses while the early gain in Gulf states were reduced to a small fraction.

A sudden burst of activity in the railroad group featured the late dealings, gains of 1 to 2 points being registered by Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern preferred, Great Northern preferred, Illinois Central, New Orleans, Texas & Mexico and "Katy" common and preferred. It was under this exhibition of strength that most of the profit taking in other quarters was conducted. The oils were hard hit in the final selling movement, losses of a point or more being sustained by Standard oils of California and New Jersey and Houston while the Pan American issues declined fractionally.

Call money held at 4 per cent throughout the day. The time money market was moderately active with some 30 day loans being arranged at 4 1-4 per cent, and some 60 and 90 day loans at 4 1-2. Plenty of money is offered by bankers at 4 3-4 for the longer maturities but brokers continue to bid 4 1-2. The Commercial Paper rates remain the same, the bulk of the business being done at 4 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were firmer. Demand sterling crossed $4.66 1-2 for a net gain of 1 1-2 cents while the French Belgian and Italian rates showed moderate improvement. German marks were unchanged at .0056 cents as against yesterday's low of .0052 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 19.—Cessation of the liquidation in French and Belgian bonds, which held steady around yesterday's closing levels, and a brisk upward movement in some of the speculative railroad mortgages imparted a much stronger tone to prices in today's bond market.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 19—Foresight that the Capper bill to provide augmented farm credits would pass the senate this afternoon helped to lift prices in the wheat market today, but subsequently the advance was lost as a result of selling to realize profits. The close was easy at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8c lower with May 1.13 1-2 to 1.13 5-8 and July 1.13 to 1.13 1-8. Corn finished 1-4c to 1-2c a 5-8c down, oats off 1-8 to 3-4 and provisions unchanged to 20c higher.

New courage began to show itself strongly on the bull side of the wheat market after word had been circulated that without doubt the Capper bill was to be voted on today and that the success of the measure was practically assured so far as the senate was involved. Firmness of Liverpool quotations and the fact that foreign exchange rates were higher tended also to inspire fresh confidence on the part of buyers, and so likewise did indications of good sized export business in progress, notably the purchae of 500,000 bushels of durums.

An apparent extension of the dry sea area of the domestic winter crop belt attracted considerable notice as a further bullish influence, adverse conditions being reported from parts of Illinois, Indiana and Nebraska, as well as from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. On the price bulges, however, during the last hour in particular the selling became more and more general, with final values the lowest of the day, except for the September delivery.

Trade in corn and oats lacked volume. Fluctuations were narrow and for the most part reflected changes in the wheat market.

Provisions advanced with hogs and owing to a rise in the lard market at Liverpool.

BEAUTY PARLOR

WOMAN'S SECRET CHARM!

Our new discovery, the LEMON BLEACH PACK, does wonders for the skin. As this clay dries it gently draws out every impurity from the stifled pores, allowing them to breathe. Every blemish is taken up into the clay, leaving the skin charmingly white and clear.

SENATOR GIBBS WILL PRESENT RAILROAD BILL

A bill to amend section 3,514 of the public acts of 1917, regulating the hours of service of telegraph operators and train despatchers will be introduced into the senate by Senator Herman J. Gibbs of Norwich, providing that train crews shall not be required to work more than nine hours. Senator Gibbs said that it did not seem fair that telegraph operators and despatchers should only be required to work nine hours, or twelve hours where there is only one at a station, while the train crews have a maximum day of 16 hours under the federal Adamson law.

Senator Gibbs will also introduce a bill prohibiting train crews receiving train orders over the telephone and making it necessary for all train orders to be transmitted to train crews through stations where there are telegraph operators. He said that it is necessary for a man to pass a rigid examination in order to qualify to handle train despatches as a telegrapher or train despatcher, but now telephone booths have been installed on switches and sidings and orders are sent to train crews that way. He said that in Oregon, where the telephone system was in use, several accidents resulted through members of train crews failing to understand orders and the public service commission in that state has forbidden the practice.

EVANSTON UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR TRACES TO MONTVILLE ANCESTRY

PROF. CHARLES B. ATWELL.

One of the notable men of Evanston, Ill., and one who has had the longest term as a member of the staff of Northwestern University, is Prof. Charles Beach Atwell, whose ancestors were identified prominently with the early history of the towns of New London and Montville, Conn. Since 1891 he has been professor of botany at Northwestern.

This university, originally a Methodist foundation, while located in Evanston, a city of 40,000 suburban to Chicago, has a number of its departments in the latter city.

In its College of Liberal Arts—the Evanston department—are about 3,000 students, the total of students in Chicago and Evanston aggregating seven or eight thousand. The Evanston college buildings are located on Lake Michigan. W. E. Scott is college president and the university colors are purple and white.

Prof. Atwell, widely recognized as an authority on Botany, has 260 in his classes this year. He has three assistant professors, besides seven assistants in the laboratory.

He was born April 11, 1856, at Theresa, N. Y., the eldest of the three sons of Joseph Atwell and Mary Beach. His ancestor, Benjamin Atwell, king's constable, was prominent in New London, Conn., about 1663. The latter's son, also Benjamin Atwell, lived in New London, as did his son, Joseph, farmer. The fourth in descent, Ensign Benjamin Atwell, moved in 1806, to land purchased at Montville from the Mohegan Indian tribe. His son, Joseph, also resided in Montville. Joseph Atwell's son, James, itinerant preacher, moved to Central New York state, settling at Pharsalia, near Cazenovia.

The Reverend James' son, Joseph, born in 1822, at Pharsalia, went to reside in Theresa, N. Y. (the original French settlement, Therese) and here his three sons, Charles, Joseph and William, were born.

Charles Beach Atwell was graduated in 1875 from Watertown, N. Y., high school, won his Ph. B. at Syracuse university in 1879 and his Ph. M. in 1881. He taught in Louville, N. Y. Academy, 1879-80 and in Evanston, Ill., Academy later, also serving as superintendent of schools in Evanston, until elected a member of the university faculty, 1891.

Professor Atwell's mother was Mary Beach, born in southern New York, although her family had come from Stratford, Conn. His wife was Mary Josephine Kellogg, born in Watertown, N. Y., but whose ancestors settled Hadley, Mass. There is Eastern Connecticut for the fact that Mrs. Atwell's grandmother was Presinda Huntington, who married Joseph Kimball, of Tolland, Conn.

Professor and Mrs. Atwell have four children and three grandchildren.

Although Prof. Atwell's best known literary work is his Record of Northwestern Alumni, affecting fifteen or sixteen thousand individuals, he has written much on matters botanical, also collaborated with Henry Baker, of Montville, when the later was writing his History of the Town of Montville.

The Atwells have a charming home in Evanston, and both are greatly beloved among townspeople, faculty and the student body at the university.

A woman always expects some relative she never heard of to die and leave her a lot of money.

PROTEST STATE COAL THAT CONNECTICUT RECEIVES

A resolution emphatically protesting to the State Fuel Administrator against the large quantity of slate and refuse mixed with some coal which is being sold by middle men in Connecticut and recommending that immediate steps be taken to prevent further shipments into this state, was unanimously adopted by the Board of Directors of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce at a meeting held Wednesday afternoon at the Hotel Taft, New Haven. The coal question was discussed at some length by the Directors who were of the opinion that the extreme shortage of coal did not necessitate fuel being sold containing slate and refuse. The states of Pennsylvania and New York have already enacted legislation which prevents the sale of coal containing slate and refuse and compelling coal producers to sell only fuel that contains a high percentage of coal.

The Directors approved a bill which is to be introduced into the General Assembly, which would tend to lessen the theft of motor vehicles. This bill provides that upon registration of owners are to be given a certificate of title and provides transfer of the title in the case of the sale or conditional sale of the vehicle.

A resolution viewing with distinct pride and deep appreciation the services of Charles J. Bennett of the State Highway Department who is to resign to enter private business, and hoping that means may be devised whereby his valuable technical knowledge may continue at least, in an advisary capacity, was adopted by the directors.

By unanimous vote the directors accepted the report of the General Welfare committee which recommended that the Chamber of Commerce of Connecticut opposed the creation of a federal department of education with a Secretary in the President's cabinet, and which is now before Congress and known as the Towner-Sterling bill. This matter came before the directors upon a referendum from the United States Chamber of Commerce which contained a majority and minority report, the majority oposing the enactment of a law of this kind. The report of the General Welfare Committee which stated that the "Committee is not opposed to the principle of federal aid to education, but believe that any appropriations should be carefully safeguarded" was approved by the directors.

The Sheppard-Towner bill which provides for the promotion of welfare and hygiene of maternity and infancy on the principle of federal aid was tabled by the directors for further consideration.

A Child Labor bill which provides that children cannot leave Grammar school for work until they have completed the eighth grade or are sixteen years of age was referred to the legislatice committee of the chamber for action by them.

The directors authorized the appointment of a committee to take up with the manufacturers, in business interests of the State of Connecticut, the advisability of modifying the present immigration law so as to allow a larger immigration of unskilled laborers to man the agricultural and manufacturing industries of the country and solve the acute shortage of common labor which seriously menaces the prosperity of the population.

The directors referred to the legislative committee a suggestion that legislation be enacted by this General Assembly providing that automobile owners, upon registration, shall file with the motor vehicle commissioner, a certificate of financial ability or an insurance policy. Statistics show that 66 2-3 per cent. of automobile owners in Connecticut do not own property, and because of this cannot pay claims arising out of accident or other matters incidetal to the automobile.

The directors viewed with favor any movement which would tend to standardize fire hose couplings. The legislative committee was instructed to investigate and act.

RUHR VALLEY SEETHES WITH EXCITEMENT GENERAL STRIKE OF MINERS SET FOR TODAY; FRENCH TROOPS AT STRATEGIC POINTS

French Officials Announce Readiness to Ruthlessly Repress Opposition, Should Necessity Arise—Secession of the Rhineland Province From the Reich Was Openly Discussed at a Meeting of Separatist Party—Railroad Men at Dortmun, Langendreer and Bochum Have Declared a Strike—An American Protectorate Over the Ruhr is Being Discussed in Bourse Circles.

(By the Associated Press)

The German miners in the Ruhr have thrown down their tools, refusing to work on the mining operations under French control, or until the mine directors and owners now under arrest are released.

A general strike of the miners will go into effect Monday, and this is likely to be followed by a strike of the railroad workers, which may extend to all sections of German labor.

Sunday was a quiet day in the Ruhr, but beneath the calm there was French and Belgian determination to force through their measures, and German determination to oppose the occupation by a complete cessation of work and what is known as "passive resistance," for which may develop many more active times unless some sort of settlement is reached.

Fritz Thiessen and his colleagues, the leading industrialists in the Ruhr, will be placed on trial immediately for their refusal to obey the orders of the economic commission. The penalties imposed upon them may be the measure of the retaliatory action by the Germans.

Berlin still insists that German action is entirely passive, but an ultimatum has been delivered to the workmen in the Ruhr that they must refuse to haul coal or bring it to the surface under pain of severe penalties. At the same time Berlin is discussing the possibility of exacting indemnification for the present invasion of the Ruhr.

M. Barthou will present before the reparation commission Monday a new French plan relating to a moratorium for Germany.

The separatist party discussed at Aix-la-Chappell, without Belgian or German interference, the secession of the Rhine provinces from the Reich.

WOULD HAVE AMERICAN PROTECTORATE OVER RUHR

Berlin, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—An American protectorate over the Ruhr mining sector as a compromise alternative to the present French invasion, is being proposed in Bourse circles which believe that such a settlement would save the Westphalian coal area from French control.

In support of the proposition that the United States assume such an administrative mandate, it is argued that the German government is prepared to ask the Allies for passports to enable the chief of a special commission, assisted by experts, to go to Paris, according to the German view, there to initiate the organization of a separate Rhenish industrial monopoly which would be bound to develop competition with American and British industries.

These proposals in this sense are said now being made to German industrialists at the point of the bayonet, says Die Zeit, the industrialists' organ. The proposals, however, it adds, have been contemptuously rejected by the German leaders. The newspaper nevertheless, believes that the situation has reached a stage where American and British industrial and financial interests cannot afford to view French "aggrandizements" in the Ruhr with complete indifference.

TODAY FRANCE REPORTS TO REPARATIONS COMMISSION

Paris, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Premier Poincare, together with his colleagues in the cabinet who are especially interested in reparations, and Louis Dubois, president of the reparations commission, this morning put the finishing touches to the French plan which M. Barthou will present to the reparations commission tomorrow when it begins consideration of the reply the commission is to make to Germany's request for a moratorium on her payments.

M. Poincare's plan, as presented to the recent premiers conference forms the basis of the suggestions which M. Barthou will make to the commission. The plan will be modified slightly by the incorporation of some ideas submitted by Benito Mussolini, the Italian premier, instead of an absolute moratorium provision the plan will provide for an interior loan by Germany, guaranteed by the heads of German industry, for 3,000,000,000 gold marks, 500,000,000 of which will be devoted to stabilization of the mark and the remainder to go to the allies for reparations.

All previous propositions of the allies and of the reparations commission for the reorganization of German finances will be reaffirmed. The whole plan is to be subordinated to the pre-requisite abandonment by the German government of all resistance to French action in the Ruhr valley of elsewhere in occupied territory under the treaty of Versailles.

It is understood on good authority that M. Barthou, first of all, will say to the commission that it is useless to consider a moratorium to Germany on payments under the Versailles treaty if the German government repudiates the treaty or refuses to accept application of its terms; that if Germany will withdraw her opposition to the measures which the treaty authorizes, then it will be possible to consider giving her a two-year partial moratorium.

The conditions M. Barthou will propose are practically these: Thorough reorganization of German finances on lines laid down by the reparations commission, involving complete cessation of discount of treasury bonds by the reichsbank and the stoppage of the exit of capital from the country; balancing of the budget and the stabilization of the mark. Supervision of all these measures is to be freely granted to the committee of guarantees.

M. Barthou will demand about the same guarantees as those France already is seizing in the Ruhr valley and the Rhineland; control of the distribution of coal by an allied commission; collection of a coal tax and an export tax on products shipped out of the Ruhr valley and the Rhineland in foreign money, with control of exportations through a system of licenses to be issued by the allies, and seizure of customs duties collected in the Rhineland and the Ruhr on imports.

It is not expected that M. Barthou will propose any additional measures in consequence of Germany's resistance to France's activities in the Ruhr, since the appliation of penalties is the province of governments, rather than the reparation commission; but he will hold that the reparations commission may properly call the attention of the German government to the fact that discussion of modifications of the Versailles treaty are of no use if Germany is determined to disregard the terms of the treaty. In any case he will insist that the failure of Germany to carry out the provisions of a partial moratorium shall be considered as a further default.

GERMANY DOES NOT FEAR IMMEDIATE COAL SHORTAGE

Berlin, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Unless the production of coal in the Ruhr comes to a sudden and complete halt, an immediate shortage of fuel for domestic and industrial consumption is not being feared in official quarters.

Only fifty per cent. of the Ruhr output heretofore has been consigned to other parts of Germany, where present stocks are estimated to be sufficient to meet early requirements. The Lignite fields of middle Germany, which during the past year have been subjected to increasing exploitation through improved mining conditions are now working overtime to meet the influx of orders resulting from the occupation of the Ruhr, while the Upper Silesian output continues to show steady gains, the product for the second week of January approximating 20,000 tons, which fas nearly reached almost entirely inside Germany.

English coal is now arriving at Hamburg and Stettin in increased qualities, but German buyers express doubt of their ability to meet indefinitely the higher price for the foreign product. If the Ruhr succeeds in stopping the deliveries to uncontrolled Germany on the scale maintained during the past ten days, the internal situation may be spared serious complications, although the coal experts continue to lay stress on the danger of widespread unemployment in the event of the coal shortage should become actively acute.

TALK OF PROCLAIMING A RHINELAND REPUBLIC

Aix-La-Chapelle, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The secession of the Rhineland provinces from the reich was openly discussed at a meeting of the separatist party here today. The meeting was presided over by Leo Deckers, righthand man of Dr. Dorten. Neither the Belgian nor the German authorities interfered.

Dusseldorf, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Dr. Borten, leader of the separatist party, in the Rhineland provinces, is reported to hav arrived here this morning and to have had conferences with prominent members of the cession party for the purpose of proclaiming a Rhineland republic.

The French authorities profess to have no knowledge of dorten's whereabouts; they will not interfere with his activities in the event of his appearance in Dusseldorf in behalf of the principle of "the right of peoples to given themselves."

NO BUSINESS RELATIONS WITH FRANCE OR BELGIUM

Berlin, Jan. 21 (By the A. P.)—Minister of Finance Hermes has issued an order forbidding the payment of customs and coal tax and export dues to any account other than German.

The association of German iron and steel industrials has decided to carry on no business relations with France or Belgium as long as the occupation of the Ruhr continues.

FRENCH ORDER EXPULSION OF HERR LIENEWEDER

Duesseldorf, Jan. 21.—In addition to deporting Count Von Roedern, chief German representative in the Wiesbaden district, the French authorities have ordered the expulsion of Herr Lieneweder, director of the Duesseldorf branch of the reichsbank for failure to obey the instructions of the economic mission.

10,000 MINERS NOT TO REPORT FOR WORK TODAY

Recklinghausen, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The miners and workers in the coke ovens, which are state property and which were requisioned Friday, have informed the French that they will not report for work tomorrow. The number 10,000.

BOCHUM RAILROAD MEN HAVE DECLARED STRIKE

Dortmund, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The railroad men declared a strike at noon today. All passenger and freight traffic has ceased in the region of Dorthmund, Langendreer and Bochum.

The service is normal in other parts of the Ruhr.

Nationalist demonstrations took place in Dortmund today, and the city was decreed "a danger zone" by the French, allied and neutral nationals in the Ruhr were warned to keep away from Dortmund. They were informed that they would enter the city on their own responsibility.

French troops were ready to interfere in the event of clashes between the nationalists and the communists.

TO PROTEST ARREST OF INDUSTRIAL LEADERS

Berlin, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The German charge d'affaires at Paris has been instructed to protest to the French government the arrest of Herr Thyssen and the other German industrial leaders and to demand their immediate release and full satisfaction. He has further been ordered to enter a protest in the case of the shooting of the German Workman Kowalski at Langendreer on January 19.

150 ITALIAN AND CZECH WORKMEN HELD UP

Berlin, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Despatches from Munich report that 150 Italian and Czech workmen, believed to be bound for the Ruhr area as strikebreakers, have been held up in Munich and not permitted to proceed to their destination.

70,000 PAPER MARKS FOR 20-MARK GOLD PIECE

Berlin, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—The reichsbank has fixed the purchase of the twenty-mark gold piece for the present week at 70,000 paper marks.

LAUSANNE CONFERENCE ENTERING THIRD MONTH

Lausanne, Jan. 21 (By the A. P.)—The third month of the Near East conference will be ushered in tomorrow, thus making it one of the longest diplomatic gatherings on record, after Versailles. Certainly there will be no fourth month, for everybody, even the more indolently inclined Turks, realizes that there must soon come an end one way or the other.

Some indications of impatience and possible separation as between the English and the French have happily not passed into acts, and there is no evidence tonight that the disagreement over German reparations will be permitted to develop into a break between those two countries on general Near Eastern problems.

Unanimity of views between France, England and Italy appears to have been attained through M. Bompard's visit to Paris, which had to do with the minimum the allies would accept from the Turks on financial and economic questions. The destiny of the disputed Mosul oil territory may be decided at Tuesday's meeting, and hopes have not been abandoned that Mosul may be referred to some arbitral tribunal.

50-ROOM CASTLE ON RHINE IS FOR SALE FOR $1,000

Coblenz Jan. 21 (By the A. P.).—A fine fifty-room castle on the Rhine, opposite Coblenz, together with its furnishings and fifteen acres of vineyards, is advertised for sale for $1,000. F. Mochau of Chicago, an army official, who will depart with the American troops, has just bought his wife's father a farewell present of an apartment house at Mayence consisting of six three-room apartments and a plot of land, for $65.

An American army officer a year ago ordered a hunting rifle, then valued at $100. Yesterday the rifle was delivered to him and he paid the mark equivalent for it, or thirty cents in American money.

TURKEY PROTESTS THE CONCENTRATION OF GREEKS

Constantinople, Jan. 21.—The Turkish government has handed the allied high commission a note protesting against Greek military concentrations in western Thrace. The note says that if Greece is left free to continued violations of the Mudania convention Turkey reserves liberty of action.

Lynch of Atlanta, Ga., is the head, has been taken over by the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, it was announced tonight by Famous Players.

Murders in Newport Disclosed by Fire

Firemen Find Bodies of James A. Frazier McLeish and His Wife—Skulls Battered.

Newport, R. I., Jan. 21.—With skulls battered in as if by a hammer, the bodies of James A. Frazier McLeish and his wife Madeline, were discovered by firemen today when a blaze swept their home on the summer estate of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fitz Simons of this city and New York. Police expressed the belief that the murderer after killing the couple set fire to the house.

McLeish was employed as a gardener by the Fitz Simons' and the lodge occupied by his wife and himself was near the entrance to the estate. The woman's body, badly burned, was found in bed. McLeish was discovered by the firemen in the bathroom. The belief that the couple had been trapped by fire and burned to death was upset by medical examination which revealed the condition of the skulls.

Police took a negro found near the burning lodge into custody shortly after the discovery of the crime. He was grilled but police were unable to connect him with the murders. Efforts were being made to have him give an account of his movements previous to the slayings.

The fire was discovered by a passerby who turned in an alarm but by the time the firemen arrived the house was a mass of flames. Battling their way into the lodge the firemen found Mrs. McLeish's body. A moment later they came upon her husband lying dead in the adjoining bathroom.

Both McLeish and his wife were natives of Newport and so far as police were able to determine, had no enemies. McLeish was about 30 years old and wounded veteran of the World war.

The lodge was half a mile from the Fitz Simmons mansion which with the extensive estate, is regarded as one of the show places of Newport.

The negro was later freed by Chief of Police John S. Tobin after he had established an alibi.

DRUGGIST SUICIDES IN HOTEL IN STAMFORD

Stamford, Jan. 21.—Thomas A. Fogarty, well known druggist, and a former student at Yale, was found dead today in the bath room of his suite at a local hotel with partly empty bottle of poison lying near him. Dr. G. H. Noxon, medical examiner, from Darien, said that death was due to an over-dose of poison.

Friends of Fogarty said that he had been despondent because of all health. He was 41 years old, and had been employed by various large drug companies during the past 20 years. Recently he gave up his position in Stam to work as sales agent for a Western firm.

Fogarty was a member of the class of 1903 of Yale college, but was never graduated, leaving in 1901.

He leaves a brother and sister.

GREEK PRINCES STROLL ON BROOKLYN BRIDGE

New York, Jan. 21.—Two princes strolled, arm in arm, on Brooklyn bridge today. Prince Andrew, brother of the late King Constantine of Greece, walked across the span with his brother, Prince Christopher. Although they refused to admit their identity, they were recognized by several of their countrymen. After viewing the East river from the bridge, they walked through city hall park and then up Broadway to Madison square, where they took a Fifth avenue bus. One prince carried a cane and the other an umbrella. Their monocles had been discarded for the day.

Affairs in Europe Restrain Markets

Obstacles to Business Recovery in U. S. Which Will Not be Easy to Overcome.

New York, Jan. 20.—While the unsettled foreign situation continues to have a restraining effect on business in the stock market and his been utilized by bear interests for drives on prices, domestic conditions are still the dominant influence in the determination of quoted values. Opinion is quite general in the financial community, however, that the European situation is "loaded with dynamite" and that until it is cleared up the road to further business recovery in this country is filled with obstacles, not all of which will be easy to overcome.

Perhaps the most sensational development of the week was the collapse of German exchange, marks falling to the extreme low record of .0042 cents, or approximately 33,800 to the American dollar. This represented a depreciation of more than 50 per cent. in the quoted value of th ecurrency within a week. Other exchanges also were weak, sterling yielding in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the British debt mission to reach a definite agreement with the Americans before its departure, and French francs losing ground on the belief that France's attempt to collect reparations by force will be unsuccessful.

The bond market provided two interesting developments, another flood of new offerings, including the $150,000,000 Anaconda issues, bringing this year's total to approximately $750,000,000; and the heavy liquidation of French and Belgian bonds, nearly a dozen of which sold at their lowest prices in all time.

The money market continues easy with an abundance of credit available for stock market and commercial purposes.

Speaking from the pulpit of the Fifth Avenue church in which he has been rector for thirty years, Dr. Grant failed to retract a single one of the sentiments which caused Bishop Manning's action and led churchmen to discuss the probability of a trial for heresy. Instead of retracting, Dr. Grant repeated:

SUNDAY WAS UNUSUALLY QUIET IN HARRISON, ARK.

Harrison, Ark., Jan. 21 (By the A. P.).—The first Sunday in Harrison since the armed invasion of converts from along the Missouri and North Arkansas railroad, which began Monday, was one of unusual quiet, and the forebodings that started this community for nearly a week gave way to quiet and seeming normalcy.

Alleged strike sympathizers, who fled during the activities of the last week, began to return today. Friendliness marked their return. Neither shooting nor bitterness was apparent.

The "tolerance edict" was rescinded, but the two sides are said to be quietly shaping their "next move." Harrison apparently, however, is not apprehensive as to what it may be.

Little is heard of the investigation to be made by the Arkansas legislature. Citizens accept it as a matter of course.

Luke E. Hart, supreme advocate, stated after a meeting of the supreme officers today that the money had been deposited in banks in El Paso, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

Thousands of copies of the alleged fake oath are being distributed in Texas, Mr. Hart said, and the money was offered in efforts to drive the circulators into the open or to cover, and to promote better feeling between Catholics and non-Catholics, especially in the south. He declared a conviction for criminal libel was obtained last week in a San Francisco court against a circulator of the false oath.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN

21 Church Street Telephone 1261

The board of assessors of the town of Windham, consisting of John R. Pickett, James P. Mustard and Joseph H. Gendreau have been working hard and expect that the tabulation and arranging of their lists on the 1922 grand list of the town will be completed by the end of the present month at which time it will be turned over to the board of relief. After the board of relief have made the necessary changes, if any, the lists will be handed to the town clerk who will then prepare the abstract for the collector.

The next process is a special meeting called by the board of selectmen to vte on a tax rate on the grand list. The board of assessors state that the grand list for 1922 will show an increase over the previous year grand list, but they will state the amount as yet. The tax list of automobiles, however, will probably show a depreciation on account of the drop in prices of the new cars bought within the past year and the depreciation in value of the cars already listed in 1921. Although the building of dwelling houses will add to the amount of the grand list, there has been no building of manufacturing plants or additions during 1922.

In 1921 the grand list of the town totalled $16,622,334 and $15,059,652, of that amount was taxable property in the city of Willimantic while the remainder, $11,562,732 was held by 2,535 resident owners and 208 non-resident owners in the "Windhams."

In his quadrennial report State Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett stated that town meetings and assessors are not authorized by law to exempt real estate from taxation for the purpose of inducing industries to settle in their towns, but that regardless of that fact, property to the value of $2,631,001 had been unlawfully exempted in the state and that amount included Windham which had the largest amount of property exempt in this manner and which totalled $652,137.

For many years it has been the custom in the town of Windham to vote at a town meeting to grant exemptions to new concerns for a period of ten years and in the end this exemption proves the cause of a swelling in the grand list totels. This has proven a wise idea as the incoming of new concerns has caused extensive building of dwellings and the consentaneous increasing of land values, besides which the many accurate points which have been established will themselves come into the grand list within a few years when their ten year exemption will be up.

Another depletion in the grand list total is the exemption by law of federal, state, town, city and church property which amounts to ver $2,000,000 in the town of Windham and is divided up as follows: Town property, $391,900; state, $503,000; city, $48,800; federal $75,000; and church property, $728,840, $503,500 of which is that of Roman Catholic churches and $225,340 Protestant church property.

Still further an added exemption is made for ex-army and ex-navy men on certain amounts of real estate, and other taxes. This number on the last list was 145 for a total of $101,825. The total amount of exemption by a vote o fthe town to manufacturers is $652,137.

A novel system of storing coal is being installed by the A. Sussman Coal company of Jackson place. The structure being built has all the appearances of a farm silo built of concrete slabs 30 by 12 inches.

Two such silos are under construction, each silo to be forty feet high, and eighteen feet in diameter and to hld 200 tons of coal. The concrete slabs are reenforced with steel bands placed eighteen inches apart.

A pit is to be constructed on the siding opposite the silos and by opening the bottom of a coal car and setting a bucket conveyor, which will pass over a truck hopper, into motion. 40 tons of coal can be unloaded and placed into the silo in one hour. Only one man will be required to tend to the work of unloading and no extra help will be required to load the delivery wagons and tracks as that work is also done automatically. The coal is thoroughly screened in less than one minute, as it leaves the silo and is conveyed into the waiting truck, by means of a slide.

Mr. Sussman stated that he chose to erect this practically new invention when he found that his limited space on Jackson place interfered with carrying on his successful business which he has built up within three years. A Norwich company is installing the new system.

The Hartford Courant had the following article in Friday's issue:

At the regular meeting of the trustees of the Security Trust company Wednesday last, the resignations of the two officers were presented, to take effect before the merger of this company with the United States bank and the Fidelity Trust company. Charles Edward Prior resigned as vice president and Charles Edward Prior, Jr., as secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Prior, Jr., is understood, desires to take a period of rest after many years of close application to responsible tasks.

Mr. Prior, Jr., has not stated his plans for the future, but he is also understood to desire a vacation before taking up new business activities. Both men have been connected with the Security Trust company for many years, and have been important factors in its steady growth and prosperity.

The trustees accepted their resignations with regret in a resolution recognizing their valuable services and deploring the fact that the United States Security Trust company would not have their assistance in positions which they were so well qualified to fill.

This news will be of interest to Jewett City people.

The two borough committees who are empowered to fill any vacancies on the ticket for the election today (Monday) will meet this morning and fill the vacancy on both tickets caused by Dr. Sweet's death with other candidates' names. Every voter should do their duty and go to the polls, especially under these peculiar circumstances. It wa impossible to say Sunday who will accept the nominations for warden.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Years Are Like Toys

Years are like children's toys—they come and go—
Are new, then old; bring happiness or woe.
They come to us, all rosy-hued and gay,
One scratch—and years, like toys, are thrown away.

Good Resolutions, made as New Year comes,
We publish to the world with beat of drums.
Our virtues we parade with jassied horns—
The Old Years battered trumpet Virtue scorns.

Our friends, who know us better than we think,
Smile at our music, whisper as they wink:
"He beats his Drum of Good Resolve—but wait—
'Tve heard him beat with guste great!"

Thus while they prattle gayly of our noise
They, too, are playing with their New Year toys.
Their new Red Wagons may be made of steel,
But paint, you know, won't mend a broken wheel.

Our Good Resolves are Jack-in-boxes, too;
They are so full of vigor when they're new,
But after we have played with them awhile
The spring gets weak—then to the Discard's pile!

The moral's plain—when, the New Years dawn,
We find the Old Year's Toys all broken, gone;
Let's take of Toys of New Resolve and make Them last—by gentler handling they won't break!

The Donkey

When fishes flew and forests walked
And figs grew up thorn,
Some innocent when the moon was blood
Then surely I was born:

With monstrous head and sickening cry
And ears like errant wings
The devil's walking parody
On all four-footed things.

The tattered outlaw of the earth,
Of ancient crooked will;
Scorn, scourge, deride me; I am dumb,
I keep my secret still.

Fools! For I also had my hour;
One far fierce hour and sweet:
There was a shout about my ears,
And palms before my feet

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

Some of the Wide-Awakes are not following the Wide-Awake rules which appear at the top of this column, and as a result the mails have brought to Uncle Jed in the past two or three weeks a number of letters which he finds rather difficult to read. In fact some of the letters can't be read at all and several of Uncle Jed's little boy and girl friends have been disappointed when their letters do not appear on the Wide-Awake page.

Perhaps these little boys and girls havent noticed the five rules at the top of this column so Uncle Jed is going to explain the rules so that all the Wide-Awakes will understand them. The first of the five rules asks the Wide-Awakes to write plainly, on one side of the paper and to number the pages of their letters. Some of the boys and girls write on both sides of the paper and forgot to number the pages.

The next rule asks the writers to use pen and ink instead of pencil. Pencil writing is very often faint and indistinct. The third rule asks the Wide-Awakes to keep their letters within 250 words, and as the rule says, short and pointed articles are given preference in the awarding of the prize books.

Rule number 4 asks the writers to send in only original stories. That means that Uncle Jed does not wish boys and girls to send in stories copied from books. The last rule is an important one. It says, write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the letter.

Recently Uncle Jed received in the mail two letters, both excellently written, but the writers had forgotten to sign their names and addresses. One letter was a prize winner, but as Uncle Jed did not know who the writer was he could not place the name in the prize list. So don't forget to sign your name, age and address.

Neatness and punctuation count a whole lot in awarding the prizes. A short letter, neatly and plainly written, will win a prize book where a long letter, poorly written, won't get in the prize list. There are numerous subjects for Wide-Awake letters. Stories of birthday parties, hikes, incidents that happen at home or in school, descriptions of journeys and places you have visited, stories of pets, cats, dogs, horses, etc., all make good subjects for letters.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Why I Like Winter

Dear Uncle Jed: One reason why I like winter is the cold. I like to wear my new coat, and slide down hill. There is fun in skating and skiing also. I wish it would snow, about two feet so I could go on my skis. I like to see it snow. Summer is no good because it is too hot. I go down hill fast with my skis when there is snow. The other day I went down a little hill. There was a horse rake at the bottom. I was going fast and I couldn't stop, and I reached the shafts of the horse rake before I could steer out. The point of the ski got caught in the shaft and broke it right off.

Most people like spring better, but I like winter best. The trees are pretty, the icicles hanging from the roofs, and the stones peeking out of the snow which look like little hills.

I have to get up a big woodpile for winter to keep the fire going, and keep us warm, and cook by. Winter is no good for riding in an automobile. The city people don't like winter.

A Winter Storm

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a while ago we had a big snow fall. It caused a lot of trouble. I went down to Rudds to sleep. I got all covered in snow. I went downstairs and got warm. Then I went to bed. Next morning my brother Tony got up and started for home. But the lady downstairs called him, and told him we could eat our breakfast there, so we did.

After breakfast Annie went to see if the teacher was coming. She was and Frank and Tony went out in the road. Then the teacher came up. Tony hollered "Give me a ride." A team stopped and they went to school.

Wants to Visit New Orleans

Dear Uncle Jed: The other day I saw a book of views along the Sunset route of the Southern Pacific railroad. The one that interested me the most were the Alamo and the Mostodon Barge.

The Mostodon Barge carries the trains across the Mississippi. The train goes on the barge in two sections and the barge is towed across the river.

The engine is carried over, too, and when the barge gets to the other side the two sections are coupled together and the train speeds to New Orleans or west, whichever way it is bound for.

I would like to ride on the Sunset route some day and get off and see the Alami and I would also like to see Canal street in New Orleans.

A Day On the Ice.

Dear Uncle Jed: One bright morning some friends and I went skating. The pond on which we skate is a short distance from our homes. When I got there I put on my skates. I sat down for a while watching the crowds of boys and girls skate.

Some were just learning and it was very interesting to watch them. Then I joined a crowd of girls. We played games such as tag, snap the whip and many enjoyable games. I fell when playing snap the whip, but did not hurt myself. Then another girl and I skated up the pond. I began to feel very thirsty. So we decided to go up to Cold spring and get a drink.

We finally reached it. I satisfied my thirst so we skated further up. We saw some men fishing. Some of them had good luck while others didn't fare so well. We enjoyed ourselves watching them fish for a long time. The time flew very quickly. As we were going home we saw a little girl on the ice crying. She said she had sprained her ankle so we helped her home. Then I went home having enjoyed myself very much. I hope all the Wide-Awakes have many good times on the ice this year.

A Christmas Surprise.

Dear Uncle Jed: Long ago there lived in Texas three children without their mother or father. The oldest child was twelve years old. The other two were twins, seven years old. They lived in a small shed of some wealthy people.

One day near Christmas friends and relatives of the family came. When they came, one of the party was roaming around the yard and happened to drop into the shed. She asked the children many questions. Then she left them.

The day before Christmas she called again on the children. This time she brought with her a large basket. Before she left she said, "Come over to the house tomorrow morning." The children opened the basket. There a sure surprise awaited them. In it were clothes for the children, warm blankets, and a hearty meal.

The next morning they were dressed in clothes from the basket and walked over to the house. They rang the bell. The maid showed them into the hall. A large tree shone with glory. They were to be a part of the family. Can you imagine how happy they were?

My Visit to Italy.

Dear Uncle Jed: I will tell you about my visit in Italy. Being interested in war work I enlisted as a social worker and was soon sent to Italy. I started from New York, March 21, 1921, and arrived at Italy March 30th, 1921. The name of the steamer I sailed on was the Majestic." It was a very large steamship and there were a great many people on it. On the way I became acquainted with a girl who was also a social worker and she was going to the same place I was going.

Arriving at Italy both my companion and I took a room for ourself at the Young Women's Christian Association in Naples. Being very tired from our journey we had supper and then went to bed. The next morning we hired a guide to take us to the different parts of Naples. While I was in Rome I happened to come across a little boy sorely in need of clothes and a good meal. After helping him as best I could I took him to his home. There I first saw what misery was.

Going in, the only furniture I saw was a table on three legs, two chairs, one with a back and the other without. In one corner stood an old iron bed, on the bed was a straw pillow, and a dirty blanket to cover themselves with. In the opposite corner stood an old cabinet with some broken dishes in it. After seeing this I quickly went to the nearest grocery store and ordered a basket of the most needful things to eat. As it was growing dark I told the grocery man to have it sent to the poor woman and her son. I then went back to my room at Naples where I had left my friend.

Many of the people in Italy are very poor. The Italian people raise most of their own food. Some of the products of southern Italy are oranges, lemons, figs and olives. Grapes from the central part and wheat, flax and silk from the northern part.

As I had one more week to stay in Italy I thought I would like to go to Venice. My companion had yet to stay in Naples another two weeks. I decided to go alone. Having heard so much about gondolins I decided to try one. While sailing along the canal a lovely breeze sprang up. I thought I was in Paradise. The next thing I did was to go to see the shipyards. After seeing the shipyards I looked at my watch and saw it was time to return to my lodging.

The next day I started to pack as it was time to return to the United States. After packing I went to the ticket office to find out what time my boat would leave for New York. Finding it would leave at 10 o'clock the next morning I had my trunks sent to the pier. As the ship was leaving shore I happened to turn around and, there to my surprise was my companion whom I met earlier in my trip. Our trip was a very pleasant one.

Winter.

Dear Uncle Jed: It was Thursday afternoon that the snow began to fall hard. After school I went home and got my shoes all wet. I changed so I would not get sick and then wouldn't be able to go to school for a long time. When I got home from school I was covered all over with the snow flakes. I shook the snow flakes off and went into the house.

The next morning the snow was over my shoes. When Tony started from his house on the hill my mother called him to the house and told him not to go home in such weather, Tony went upstairs to call Sophia and Frank to come down and stay. Joseph and John went, but Frank, Sophia and Tony stayed down here.

In some places the snow was over my knees. It was very hard walking the first day after the snow storm. Saturday afternoon my sister and I were fighting with snowballs. After an hour we went out again but we didn't fight with snowballs any more that afternoon.

Sunday was a nice day. Monday morning when I got up it was hailing very hard. I thought I surely would be late for school but to my surprise I came early. After the hailing stopped it started to rain. I had to go home for my dinner. Before I got home I was wet. But I went to school in the afternoon. We finished our lessons about two o'clock so the teacher let us go home.

I was all wet when I got home. I had to take off my shoes and let them dry by the fire. It is a little slippery. I didn't know it and when I first went out of the house I nearly fell down.

My Christmas Tree.

Dear Uncle Jed: A week before Christmas my brother and I went out in the woods and got a nice Christmas tree. We brought it home and decorated it up in the parlor. The next morning I ran down stairs and went in the parlor. I saw presents on the tree and candy in boxes. I hope all the Wide-Awakes had as nice a Christmas as I did.

The New Year.

Dear Uncle Jed: As we are beginning a new year I thought it would be a good time to write a letter to the Wide-Awake circle. I read the letters every week and enjoyed them very much. I suppose that a good many of the Wide-Awake members made good resolutions for the New Year, which I hope they will be able to keep.

We did not have a very pleasant New Year's day as far as the weather was concerned. I hope every one enjoyed themselves as I did.

It was my sister's birthday. She was six years old. We all gave her a little present. She also had a birthday cake with candles on it.

The snow is very deep here from the bad storm Wednesday night. I would like to go out very much and have fun in the snow. But that is impossible just now, as I have to stay in the house since before Christmas. But hope to be able to be out and going to school again soon, as I do not like to miss school. I will close for this time.

An Outcast's Story.

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell the Wide-Awakes about a man who was adrift in the world.

One day in January I was startled by a knock at the kitchen door. On opening it, I beheld a man about 60 years of age. His face was thin and haggard and there was a look of wistfulness in his mild blue eyes as he asked for something to eat.

I asked him to come in, and placed a chair near the fireside, where he could warm his benumbed fingers. I then prepared a substantial breakfast which I set on a small table before him.

When he had finished, he turned to me and said: "Perhaps you would care to hear a little about my life?"

I nodded my head, for I was interested in him. He then told his story. "My parents were wealthy, and, being an only child, I was very much petted. When 21, I fell into bad company and brought disgrace over my parents. My parents soon died and I wasted all the money I had. Today I am an outcast in the world."

He thanked me, but refused shelter, and went his way.

A Lost Cat.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the cat I lost. One day as I was calling for my pet cat it did not come as usual. I went back of the house and called but it did not come. I made up my mind that I would go and look for it.

I went out in the woods, calling for my cat, but it did not come. After a while I decided to give up looking for it. When I got home I told my father. He said he would get me another cat. He got me a cat which I like as well as the cat I lost.

My Visit to Boston.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell about my visit to Boston. On the way I saw many interesting things. I stopped at Roxbury. Then I went to Franklin park. I saw many birds that came from North America, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia. There were storks, ostriches and peacocks. I also saw elephants, tigers, camels, zebras and a hippopotamus, and many other animals.

I wish all the Wide-Awakes could have the privilege of seeing this beautiful park and the interesting things that were in it.

The Blue Birds' Christmas Tree.

Dear Uncle Jed: Our Blue Bird club, of which I am the leader, held a Christmas tree party on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 28. Nine of the girls were present.

When they came I had the doors closed of the room where the Christmas tree was. One of the Camp Fire Girls was dressed as Santa Claus and she was standing by the tree when we came in.

Each girl brought a present and a name was written on it and hung on the tree. I gave each of them a bracelet and I had dressed a lot of lollypops as dolls and hung them on, one for each girl. The girls drew numbers for the last two things.

Before Santa took off the presents some of the girls spoke, some sang and I read a story. Then we had the Christmas tree. I was very much surprised and pleased to be presented a box of lovely writing paper from my Blue Birds.

After we had looked at our presents and each one had told what else they had gotten before, we went out into the other room, where we saw something that (as two of my girls said), "looked so pretty when we opened the door."

A large table was set and in the center were three large candles and by each plate was a cupcake and on it a small candle. Each girl had a chocolate pig and two candies on a wire which looked like cherries. We had biscuit, cupcakes, chocolate and popcorn balls.

They all went home saying that they had had a lovely time.

In Our School.

Dear Uncle Jed: We are studying about the Revolutionary war. About all the generals who were so famous during the Revolutionary war. The fifth grade is studying the poem of "The Concord Hymn."

Our teacher made a chart and put all our names on it for the best teeth and I have four stars for best teeth. The one that has 15 stars gets a big star; but the one who gets stars all across the chart gets a prize.

For geography, we have a "Country Outline." We are studying about South America.

The school bought a stereoscope and 300 pictures to study history, geography and all our lessons of the day. Each room has a stereoscope.

We have new singing books. They are very pretty. They are the third singing book. I am a soprano. I am in the back seat for singing. The back seat is the best singer, so I am a good singer. I am the head one.

We have the banner for best attendance.

About the Ledges.

Dear Uncle Jed: On one place on our farm there are some low cliffs about 50 feet high. We call them "The Ledges." In the front they drop about 50 feet to the ground, which is thickly covered with rocks and young trees. On the ground below the ledge is a small cave formed by three flat rocks with the opening near the top. In back they meet the wooded land of another man's farm. On each side and on the back you can get upon them. The top of them is about 100 feet wide.

In autumn you can see the car track winding along to Willimantic and the brook. Its course can be traced far up through the swamps by the scarlet leaves on the maple trees.

How I Spent Christmas.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you a story of how I spent Christmas. On Christmas eve I went with my parents and sister to the Sprague hall, where the Sunday school gave an entertainment, which was very good. The scene on the stage represented the interior of a home which, of course, had a fireplace. Santa Claus came down the chimney and distributed many presents. I received a pair of skates, a box of chocolates and books. I got home about 10 o'clock.

Then I hung up my stocking and got into bed. When I awoke in the morning I found my stocking full of good things, fruit, nuts, candy and some money. In the front room, where pa had fixed up a Christmas tree, I found a pair of rubber boots, a train set, harmonica and a box of handkerchiefs. I think Santa Claus was rather generous to me this year, and I hope he was to everyone else.

I had a good Christmas dinner, I rather think I had too much plum pudding, as I felt sleepy for the rest of the day, and when night came I soon fell asleep contented that I had had a very good Christmas.

Wishing all Bulletin readers a bright and prosperous New Year.

JAMES HALLAS, Age 9.

Christmas Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: Christmas morning I got up very early. I went down stairs to see what Santa had left in the night. I went to my stocking first and then I went to the Christmas tree. Under the Christmas tree I found a watch and chain, a lot of books, a pair of boots and some good games. In my stocking I found a box of chocolates, some nuts, an orange, an apple, and a banana.

I run upstairs to wake my sister. My father got up and came down stairs and made the fire. Then we had breakfast. After breakfast I got my sled and skates and went on the pond. I fell down many times but I never hurt myself.

After a while I got tired of skating so I took off my skates and sat down on my sled and watched the boys and girls play snap the whip and many other games.

I went home and read a while, then I had dinner. I had a very good dinner. After dinner I went to the show. I enjoyed it very much. As soon as the show was over I came home and had supper. After supper I read a while, then I went to bed.

I had a very good time.

Wants to Go Fishing.

Dear Uncle Jed: I went skating last Sunday and I love it very much. I broke my skates and I have fixed them again.

We have a list of good teeth in our room at school. I've got four stars for cleaning my teeth. The one that has the most stars gets a prize for it. So I am trying to win it. I love to clean my teeth because it is fun. John likes it, too, so we will grow up with good teeth. I will be glad when summer comes so that we can go fishing.

Wants to be Lumber Man.

Dear Uncle Jed: My father is a lumber man and he has a sawmill way up in Union, 25 miles from here. He goes there nearly every day. I love to go to the mill with him, to see the men make lumber.

First they cut down the big trees, and then they load the logs on the sleds and the horses draw them to the mill where the man that runs the big saw, cuts them into switch ties, ties, boards, and all kinds of lumber. Then it is drawn by trailers and trucks to Abington station, fourteen miles away and loaded into cars. Sometimes I ride down to the station with the men and it is great fun.

Some of the men live in shanties near the mill so as to be near in case of fire. Some day I hope to be a lumberman just like my father.

My Pet Dove.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my pet dove. It is gray and white. I first saw it on the barn after a big storm. It seems to like us here. He came down and ate out of my hand. He comes to our back door to be fed. He was out there today with our dog and two cats. They like each other but think the cats would eat him if they could catch him.

The Old Storekeeper.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once upon a time there was an old man who lost his wife. Ever since he kept a small store for a living. He sold all kinds of food, vegetables and fruit. Everyone liked the old man very much. Everyone who knew him walked two miles to help the old man by buying groceries.

He sold groceries for three years and he got money enough to make big a nice home. About a week after he bought a nice place in the city. One day he went for a walk along the river side. He met another old man. They both started to talk to each other for about fifteen minutes and both started off together, and were never seen nor heard of from that time.

Her Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: Trimmy, my pet, is a large dog. He is a trained bird dog and can do a few tricks. As he is twelve or more years old now he can not do the tricks he used to three or four years ago. He has a good place to sleep in, but most nights, whether it is warm or cold, he prefers to sleep on our back doorstep.

Trimmy is slightly deaf, but he can understand me by signs. Years ago he could hear teams and autos half a mile away. He barks at everyone who comes up the road, but sometimes they are far past our house before he knows it. He is not chained up, but is allowed to run around wherever he pleases.

The Seven Sons.

Dear Uncle Jed: A farmer had seven sons who could never agree. He had often told them how foolish it was to quarrel with one another, but they kept on and did not listen to his words. One day he called them before him and showed them a bundle of sticks tied tightly together. "See which of you can break this bundle," he said.

Each one took the bundle in his hands and tried his best to break it, but it was so strong that they could not even bend it. At last they gave it back to their father and said: "We cannot break it."

Then he untied the bundle and gave a single stick to each of his sons.

"Now see what you can do," he said.

Each one broke his stick with great ease.

"My sons," said the farmer, "you may learn a lesson from these sticks. If you will only stand together, you will be strong; but if each one stands by himself, you will be weak and easily mastered."

HOW TO SLEEP ON A BARE FLOOR

IT is more a matter of SLEEP, than of bed or board.

Some people can sleep sitting up, standing up, even while walking.

Many people can't sleep in the softest of downy beds; and all of us suffer occasionally from nerve-racking, wearing, tiring, wakefulness at night.

There is always a reason for sleeplessness. Usually, it is a "sour" stomach, a liver that has "lain down" on the job, congested bowels, or biliousness.

Then, just before retiring, take Beecham's Pills. They soothe an uneasy stomach, encourage the organs of digestion and elimination to natural activity, and assure restful sleep no matter what!

BARBER ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF FILLMORE FOR BOWLING MATCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, January 21. — Frank Barber of the Casino alleys of this place has accepted the challenge of Fillmore of Norwich to roll a 20-game series, total pin fall to count, during February. Here is a bowling event that is certain to arouse the widest interest among the followers of this popular winter sport.

It is understood that February 13 and 15 are the dates selected for the match. Ten games are to be rolled in Danielson and ten games in Norwich. As the match is for a purse of $300 the assurance is that the very best that Fillmore and Barber can give will be shown during the series.

Barber is rated one of the fastest duck pin bowlers in the state and the fans here will back him to win from the Norwich man, who also is a high class roller. The match events will pack the Casino alleys here with bowlers from all of the surrounding territory. When Barber goes to Norwich to roll a large number of his admirers from this section will be on hand to pull for him to win.

PERRY MEETS TUCKER AT DANIELSON TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, January 21.—Followers of the boxing game have a big treat coming to them Tuesday evening of this week when the Casino Amusement company of Danielson stages three star bouts at the town hall.

In the feature event Al Perry of New Bedford is to meet Tommy Tucker of Worcester in a 12-round go. Tucker has been substituted for Johnny Lucas of Fitchburg, who was injured while training to box here. Tucker is a remarkably fast man and measures up to Lucas' high standard. In going against Al Perry he will meet the fastest boy that New Bedford has produced in many years. Perry has fought such boys as Bobby Dyson, Frankie Fay, Marty Collins, Paul Demers, Frankie Jerome, Spencer Gardner, Joe Currie and others. Perry is a whirlwind in action and never disappoints his admirers.

The 8-round bout the card announces between Sailor Andre of Framingham and Huney Gil Warner of Hartford, at 155 pounds should furnish a cycle of action. Sailor Andre is one of the cleverest boys the navy has turned out from its boxing rings in years. While he was with the Pacific coast fleet he fought numberless battles with some of the fastest men in the navy and made a great reputation for himself. His opponent, Huney Gil Warner, is well thought of over Hartford way, where he is well known and a big attraction every time he is matched.

A nifty first number is promised in the bout between Willie Conners and Young Coster, 120 boys. Conners hails from the western end of the state, his home being in Greenwich. He is rated a comer in his class and is the boy who put Kid Lewis to the mat for the count a few months ago. Coster is New Bedford's bantamweight flash, always up and coming, and a very fast boy.

Tuesday night's bout at the Town hall are to be held under the provisions of the state boxing commission, so the fans are assured that everything will be run off in highly satisfactory manner. The seating arrangement is excellent and provides accommodations for several hundred fans.

JOHNNY WILSON TO FIGHT FOR MOVIES

His antagonist, according to present plans, will be none other than Kenneth Harlan, idol of the feminine theatregoer, who is training for the struggle more energetically than has any real contender for pugilistic honors in many years.

When B. P. Schulberg decided to convert April Showers into a screen story he decided that the role of the fictitious ring champion depicted in the tale should be taken by a man who knew the business of the ring. So it was agreed that a world's champion actually should be given the part.

Johnny Wilson was found at his home near Boston with a telegraphic offer from Tom Forman, who is directing the latest Al Lichtman production. The hard hitting battler has been in semi-retirement since his failure to agree with the New York Boxing commission concerning a certain contractual difference. This difference, it was agreed, would in no way prevent Johnny from donning the gloves for the camera. In fact, it has been suggested that this return may prove an excellent forerunner of the official comeback that Johnny has been planning for months.

Meanwhile, Harlan, who will be Wilson's ring antagonist, is in training with "Kid" McCoy and "Doc" Leach Cross, who already have groomed six pounds off the screen player and declare that he will at least convince Wilson that he has been in a fight.

Y SENIORS HAVE EASY TIME WITH WILLINGTON

The Y seniors gained another victory Saturday night when they won from the Willington Y team by the score of 44 to 17. A fast preliminary game which required an extra period was played between the Y seconds and a New London team. The locals winning.

THOUGH COUE WAS AN AUTOMOBILE MECHANIC

George Madden tells us a good one about Prof. Coue. The other day George was looking over his sporting goods when the door opened and a seedy individual with felt boots and straw still sticking to his whiskers eased in.

"Hey, Bub, says the individual, 'have ye got that book by the French professor named Coue called 'Auto Suggestions?'"

George informed his guest that he did not have the book on the news stand.

"Well, says the individual, 'have ye got any other good book on automobile mechanics? I bought a flivver the other day and the derped thing won't run, and though I might be able to find out what was the trouble in the book 'Auto Suggestions'."

WESTERN GOLFERS BELIEVE IN LINKS FOR EVERYONE

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Charles O. Pfeil of Memphis, new president of the Western Golf association today announced that he would follow up the sentiment expressed at the annual meeting of the organization for the promotion of pro rata golf plans, so that every person in the United States might have a golf course available for play at least once a week at nominal cost.

Definite plans to further the building of such links will be formulated at the earliest possible moment. Statistics presented at the meeting of the association showed that during the last ten years, despite the interference of the war, golf courses in America had virtually trebled until there were now some 2,500 links extant.

BIG FIELD ENTERED FOR ICE CHAMPIONSHIP

Chicago, Jan. 21—One of the largest fields of speed skaters ever gathered on the ice will compete in the national outdoor championship tournament here January 26, 27 and 28, it was announced today. It will be the first time the national event has been held here.

About sixty skaters will take part in the tournament and Chicago with five champions leads the list of representatives. At the top is Willie Steinmetz, winner of the international outdoor championship at Lake Placid, N. Y., last year as well as the diamond medal trophy at Saranac Lake, N. Y. Others include Roy McWhirter, winner of the boys' national outdoor championship at Plattsburgh, N. Y., Harry Kaskey, western champion last year and Eddie Reed, who won championship honors in the east last year.

Mrs. Rose Johnson Edman, former international and national title holder and winner of the western championship last year, will enter the women's event in an attempt to regain her crown from Miss Gladys Robinson of Toronto, Canada.

Charles Jewtraw, middle Atlantic champion, who smashed several records in the east early this season will represent Lake Placid in the senior men's races and Charlie Gorman, Canadian national champion who will represent St. John.

LIEN WINS WINTER SPORTS EVENT AT GARY

Chicago, Jan. 21—Harry Lien of Chicago, who came to this country from Norway a few months ago, thrilled 30,000 spectators at Cary, Ill., near here, today, by carrying away first honors in the international ski tournament of the Norge Ski club. His longest leap on the artificial slide constructed from snow shipped in from Minnesota and Canada, was 144 feet but he made three perfect jumps and piled up 316 2-3 points.

John Olsen of Eau Claire, Wis., was second with a jump of 138 feet, while Karl Nilsen, of the Norge club here, came third with a jump of 137 feet.

Karl Nilsen, captain of the Norse team was first in the class A events with a jump of 136 feet and 304 points.

NAVY NOT TO ROW IN POUGHKEEPSIE RACE

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 21.—Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, superintendent of the Naval academy, announced emphatically today that the navy crew would not take part in the Poughkeepsie regatta this year. The objection raised by naval authorities is that, owing to the race being held June 23, it necessitates the oarsmen losing a considerable portion of the summer practice cruise, and in many cases the same youths would lose it two or more summers.

The navy has won the regatta for the last two years, each time lowering the course record.

STEINMETZ WINS ICE EVENT AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 21.—William Steinmetz, international outdoor champ, won the championship derby for the blue ribbon diamond medal in the Chicago Tribune's annual silver skates derby, beating Roy McWhirter, national amateur champion, by a wide margin. Wanderers Want Game

The Baltic Wanderers want a game with some fast team for next Wednesday night at Baltic as the team play the State Hospital team next Wednesday but, according to reports the club has thrown up the sponge, the Wanderers are playing in Stonington next Friday night and on February 3d are playing in Westerly.

In the preliminary game the Emps from the Y. M. C. A. took Bantams into camp to the tune of 25 to 20. Donnegan was the star who scored six field baskets and three foul baskets for the winners. The lineup:

AMERICA TO BE WELL REPRESENTED BY WOMEN ATHLETES IN EUROPE

New York, Jan. 21.—While the United States may encounter difficulty in mustering its best amateur forces against the men for the invasion of England this season, women stars promise to be well represented in an effort to carry the heights of British golf championship. Both men and women's title events abroad are scheduled in May. The former at Deal and the latter at Somerset.

Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., who captured the National Golf championship last year for the first time, has announced her intention of adding the laurels held by Miss Joyce Wethered, conqueror of Miss Cecil Leitch. Miss Collet is assured of at least one able associate in Miss Edith Cummings, of Chicago, who is now abroad.

Several other women golf experts are expected to accompany the champions, possibly including Miss Alexa Stirling of New York and Atlanta, former queen of American links. Added interest will be centered in the women's tournament if Miss Leitch, who has been forced into idleness for practically a year because of an injury to her wrist, stages a comeback which she is said to be planning.

The fact that three of America's foremost amateur stars now are in college and probably will not be able to absent themselves from their studies for an extended trip in the spring has thrown somewhat of a damper on plans for the team which will go abroad for the walker matches as well as the amateur tournament.

These players are Jess Sweetser, of Yale, the national title holder; Bobby Jones, spectacular Atlantan, who is at Harvard; and Rudy Knepper, of Sioux City, Iowa, a Princeton student. In addition, Robert A. Gardner, of Chicago, and W. C. Fownes, of Pittsburgh, both former champions, may be prevented from joining the invaders through business reasons.

Unless some of these stars are able to re-arrange their plans it is likely that the United States will have to depend chiefly upon younger players, inexperienced in international competition.

The field of ineligibles among better known stars is limited, otherwise, to a mere handful, including Chick Evans, of Chicago, Jess Guilford and Francis Ouimet both of Boston; Max Marston, of Philadelphia; and Harrison R. Johnston, of St. Paul. It is probable that several of these too, would have difficulty in joining the foreign forces.

It is to be presumed, however, that the United States Golf Association, in reaching its decision to send a team abroad, had some assurances that it would be able to muster a representative group. J. F. Byers, of Pittsburgh, president of the U. S. G. A., is expected to name soon the international team captain and upon the latter's shoulders will rest the task of marshaling the personnel.

WANDERERS SWAMP WESTERLY SOLDIERS IN ONE-SIDED GAME

Friday night on the Baltic gym surface the Baltic Wanderers, in a one-sided game, defeated the 349th Co. team of Westerly by the score of 47 to 13. The Westerly team never had a lookin as the Wanderers in the first half played rings around the visitors and made the score 21 to 7. After this the game was a regular procession. The crowd was one of the smallest of the season. The Wanderers, who have tried to give Baltic a good basketball team, do not get the support to keep the club going and are losing money. The manager hopes the fans take notice and turn out in large numbers for the next game. The Wanderers were to

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Ted Lewis asserts that he, and not Joe Beckett, is entitled to a return match with Georges Carpentier.

The Original Celtics, New York's great basketball team, has started what promises to be another winning season.

The Princeton hockey team is following in the footsteps of the Tigers' 1922 football eleven in the matter of winning victories.

Leo Houck, the veteran battler, is boxing instructor at Penn State College, where he has 150 students in his squad.

Champion Jimmy Blouin is bowling true to form this winter and so far he's found no trouble in retaining his title.

It is said that American boxers in England are being knocked so hard by Joey Fox that bouts for the Yankees are few and far between.

Babe Ruth, who is spending the winter on his farm at South Sudbury, Mass., says he is 15 pounds lighter than he was a year ago.

With so many heavyweights in the limelight it looks to be the right time for elimination bouts to determine who's who among the aspirants for Dempsey's title.

That the Futurity Stakes of 1925 carrying an entry fee of $10, should have received 1,516 entries as against 1,558 for the Pimlico Futurity, where there is no financial obligation until the day of the race, speaks well for the breeders of the United States and Canada.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY MARKET

New York, Jan. 20.—Selling of the speculative industrial favorites by traders who felt that the foreign situation was too critical for them to remain on the long side over the week-end imparted a reactionary trend to most stocks although a few specialties, notably the merchandising shares, made some good gains.

The reaction in industrials was accentuated by the heavy liquidation of the Pan-American issues which followed announcement of a new $25,000,000 issue of 7 per cent, preferred stock and an increase of from $150,000,000 to $205,000,000 in the "B" common. Pan-American A got down below 86 for a net loss of 2 1-8 points and the "B" was off 1 3-8 on the day. The other oils also were inclined to ease, California Petroleum breaking 1 3-4 points and most of the other active issues showing fractional declines. Marland, however, was strong, closing nearly 2 points higher.

The so-called leaders, U. S. Steel common, Baldwin and Studebaker, all closed fractionally lower, most of the selling representing profit taking on the part of recent buyers.

Among the merchandising specialties to move to higher ground were R. H. Macy & Company, which established a new high at 71 1-2, and closed a point below that figure for a net gain of 1 1-2 points; Van Raalte Silk, up 1; and Gimbel Bros. common and preferred, up fractionally. Woolworth and May Department stores advanced with the rest, but sold off again at the close.

Timken Roller Bearing and Owens Bottle, up 1 and 1 5-8, respectively, each established new peak prices, buying based on reports of exceptionally good current earnings. One hundred shares of Atlantic refining sold at $145 each, or $15 above the previous sale.

There were a few conspicuous weak spots, notably Pressed Steel Car common and preferred, which were off 3 3-4 and 4 points, respectively. Marine preferred sold at 39 1-2, its lowest point since 1921, rallying at the close to 4 3-8 for a net loss of 7-8.

Foreign Exchanges yielded in response to selling pressure resulting from the receipt of disquieting cable dispatches from Europe. Demand Sterling got back to $4.66 and French francs broke nearly 20 points to below 6.50, as compared with last week's high of 6.30 cents and the extreme low of 6.17 cents established last November. Belgian francs and Italian lire also were depressed, while German marks were quited at .0051 cents, as compared with .0056 last night and the extreme low of .0042 established earlier in the week.

The weekly clearing house statement showed decreases of $953,000 in loans, discounts and investments; $5,852,000 in cash in own vaults and $4,177,000 in reserve of members banks in the Federal Reserve Bank. Net demand deposits decreased $138,479,000 and time deposits increased $43,574,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $543,384,000, leaving an excess reserve of $17,136,440, an increase of $12,042,820 over last week.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 20.—Prices moved within narrow limits in today's bond dealings. A recovery of nearly a point each in Czecho-Slovakian 8's and Norwegian 8's and losses of approximately a point each in Republic of Chile 8's of 1941, and Rio de Janeiro 8's were the outstanding developments in the foreign groups. Liberties 3 1-2's and U. S. Government first 4 1-4's each yielded 8 cents on $100, but the other issues in that group showed only nominal changes.

St. Paul General 4 1-2's advanced 1 1-4 points and the Convertible 5's, Frisco Income 6's and Northern Pacific 4's rose 1-2 each, while Chesapeake & Ohio Convertible 5's and Erie issues lost ground. Except for a loss of 7-8 in American Sugar 6's, the changes in the industrial list were slight.

Knighthood Draws Capacity Crowds at the Broadway Theatre.

The largest line of eager theatregoers ever witnessed in Norwich was seen clamoring to get into the Broadway theatre last evening where When Knighthood Was in Flower had its premiere showing. The management wishes to apologize to the hundreds who were turned away and trusts that they will have an opportunity to see this gigantic twelve-act photoplay before it leaves the city. It is advisable to come as early as possible, thereby making certain of a good seat.

Who says women have not a sense of humor?

They say "It takes a thief to catch a thief," and by the same token it takes a woman to catch a woman in the subtle little tricks which are used to outwit a man. That's why women who see the Paramount-Cosmopolitan production, When Knighthood Was in Flower, starring Marion Davies, will chuckle with enjoyment in certain scenes where the men are silent.

These feminine outbursts of merriment come at various times when Marion Davies, as Princess Mary Tudor, uses the strategy known to all the sisters of Eve in order to cajole her stubborn brother, King Henry VIII. Mary's adroit appeal to Henry's vanity when she wants him to release Charles Brandon, whom she loves; her clever trick of remaining in bed when the French ambassador calls and shocking King Henry by pretending she is about to jump out scantily clad—these and similar incidents unite the women of the audience in a common bond of understanding and amusement.

When Knighthood Was in Flower, which is now showing at the Davis theatre, is a great "woman picture." Not only are the costumes wonderful, but it tells one of the most magnificent love stories ever screened. From start to finish, there is a succession of beautiful and bewildering scenes, enlivened by a swift-moving action that thrills every spectator.

The supporting cast is of stellar calibre. Lyn Harding, a celebrated English actor, is seen as Henry VIII, while Forrest Stanley, a popular leading man familiar to Paramount audiences, has the role of Charles Brandon. Pedro de Cordoba has the part of the Duke of Buckingham. The rich costumes are an important feature of this imposing picture creation.

Gloria Swanson, Star, Discusses French Supremacy in Dress.

A spirit of adventure in dress is the thing that holds the fashion supremacy of Paris. American women still lack that disregard of current vogues that has made the French women an irresistible pioneer along hitherto untraveled paths of feminine costuming.

Such are impressions gained by Gloria Swanson, Paramount star, following a recent trip to Europe. Called "the best dressed woman in America," Miss Swanson's comments add considerable to the long-standing discussion as to the pros and cons of the unbroken French control of feminine dress.

"American women have a fine sense of individuality, of adaptation. They will take a fashion, change and alter it until by the time it goes its way around the United States it is something altogether different and often decidedly more striking than the original. But the American woman is slow to originate. She will not start a new vogue until she has heard that someone high up in the social whirl has done something similar.

"Your Parisienne, however, is not bothered by such inhibitions. If she decides she looks better without stockings—off they go—and if others wish to follow it is all right with her. The origin of Parisian styles is by no means confined to the social elite. They may start with a stenographer or the wife of a shopkeeper.

"In only one part of American life does one find the Parisian 'fair for taking a chance,' for sending out a new fashion to stand or fall before the American public. Even the films, however, are but pioneers in the field of originality in dress and undoubtedly it will be some time before the supremacy of Paris is seriously assailed.

Miss Swanson is wearing in her new Paramount picture, The Impossible Mrs. Bellew, which comes to the Strand theatre today, an interesting assortment of new up-to-the-minute Parisian styles which she brought back to Hollywood direct from Paris.

A Mermaid comedy and a Selznick News make this a very enjoyable offering.

Breed Theatre.

Last night at the Breed theatre the audience saw one of the greatest photoplays of the year ushered into this amusement palace. It was Silver Wings, a William Fox presentation, featuring Mary Carr, the famous player of Over the Hill.

Here is a simple picture that is as significant as anything the cinema has developed to date. In its intense and vital meaning, it is as profound as Hamlet, and in its visible manifestations it is too far above the vast majority of motion pictures. It has comedy relief, dramatic suspense, action and consistency and it can safely be said that its fundamental message is as great a work of fiction as anything emanating from Ibsen, Shaw or Conrad. Once in a lifetime, may come to an observer of the stage or motion picture a work so fraught with possibilities in radical human teaching as this seven reel photoplay that came to the Breed.

In social precept the picture is years ahead of the times, although the times are moving forward in this direction at a dizzy rate of speed. From the analytical and sincere people it ought to evoke something illuminating. The plot is simple. It concerns itself with a spoiled boy and a doting mother, but it is a remorseless dissection of the terrific consequences of family favoritism. It is primarily a story of mother love and maternal sacrifice and of wrenching family ruin and desolation. Translated into terms of real life, this story is an epochal revelation of human possibilities in the home.

The utter sincerity of the picture cannot be questioned. It touches human experience at every turn. Perhaps there is noth

CUTTING TROLLEY FARES.

Consistent with the policy which it has adhered to is the confirmation by the Connecticut company that the trolley fares in the state are to be reduced ten per cent as the result of improved patronage and certain improvements which the company has been able to make in the way of decreased expense. It cannot pass without notice that the reduction is voluntary on the part of the company.

A ten per cent reduction in trolley fares doesn't bring back the five-cent rate. It is, however, a change in the right direction and cannot fail to appeal to those who patronize such transportation lines that improved conditions are resulting to their benefit.

With the trolley lines getting the patronage under the existing rate of fare that will permit them to meet expenses and pay off something on their indebtedness as well as meet their taxes, the company is sticking to its statement that reductions would be made as soon as conditions warranted, and the gradual reduction in the fares comes at a time, it will be noticed, when the cost of certain other things are inclined in the other direction.

The three rides for a quarter rate gave the public the benefit of better conditions and where it was possible to get twelve rides for a dollar under that rate it will be possible under the rate effective the first of April to get the twelve rides for 90 cents.

All changes of this kind even though small, are bound to be appreciated by the traveling public. The lower rate indicates better conditions for the company and holds out the promise that better service and still lower fares can be anticipated in keeping with the business done. The gradual getting back to the five-cent fare avoids the mistake of making greater reductions than conditions and volume of business warrant.

A SUMMER CAPITAL.

The feelings of Maine in regard to having the president designate that state for the summer capital will be shared by all other states which could offer attractions during the summer months, and yet there can be no surprise that those who have talked the matter over with the president have found he is not interested in the Maine proposition.

Fixing on a summer capital is something which a president must do from year to year in accord with conditions and desires. The idea of establishing a permanent summer capital is one not likely to be seriously entertained. No president is going to take that responsibility regardless of the provisions which a generous Maryland resident made in his will for such a purpose. What would suit one would not suit another, and what might be desirable one summer might not be the next. It could hardly be expected that a president would be restricted to a summer capital which did not please his taste.

President Harding may have a liking for Maine or a restful place in some other state. President Wilson was favorably inclined at times to New Hampshire and New Jersey, while President Taft liked Massachusetts as did President Cleveland whose summer home was on Buzzard's Bay.

Just how much use a president can make of a summer capital depends upon the conditions at Washington. There are delightful points not far distant from Washington and it is possible that the individual who left a substantial sum for such a purpose intended that the summer capital would be nearby. It isn't likely that the president will take the responsibility of selecting a point in that vicinity any more than he is disposed to select one in Maine. The summer capital has been a movable point in the past and it is likely to continue to be such in the future. Presidents are likely to go in the summer time where they can find the desired rest and recreation depending of course on the conditions that prevail.

GUARDING THE HEALTH.

Perhaps the agreement whereby the Greeks who are in Asia Minor and the Turks who are in Greece will be repatriated is the best solution of the existing situation in the near east. It is going to remove these people from the racial animosities that cannot always be curbed and which in the case of the Turk there seems no desire to stop. It is nevertheless going to cause great confusion, great trouble and tremendous responsibilities. It is going to mean tearing these people from such footholds as they have in their present homes and endeavoring to get them happily established somewhere else. It would be different if all were physically fit, young and anxious to make the change. But that is not the case.

Those who flod from the Turks are going to be thrown upon the resources of Greece and they will come as pitiful figures. They have been obliged to undergo all kinds of hardships, scanty food and frightful living conditions, while the whole situation has been right for the development and spread of the worst kinds of disease.

[illegible] thought [illegible]

[illegible] Greece [illegible] concerned over the plague possibilities which such repatriation will develop, and that they are engaged in taking the necessary precautions to prevent deplorable health conditions.

Wise are the leaders to act promptly. Prevention is far preferable to attempting a cure. Inasmuch as the hundreds of thousands are coming back it is proper that it should be seen, even though they are Greeks, that they are not bringing to the country a series of plagues as the result of the conditions to which they have been subjected by the Turks. Where such transfers take place precaution ought to be obligatory. Certainly the next best thing is being done for Greece when carefully guarded health lines are established.

CONNECTICUT WOOL PRODUCTION.

Sheep raising in Connecticut is far from being what it was some years ago. Nevertheless there are those who are convinced that it is a profitable industry and such examples as some of the sheep breeders set are certainly worthy of the closest attention of those owners of land who might profitably add this line of endeavor to their others, and thus increase the returns they get from their acres.

Regardless of such drawbacks as exist in sheep husbandry, there are those who have been governed by the influence of the association of sheep breeders to join hands in the disposition of their wool and when it is realized that from the 250 in this pool there were 28,000 pounds of wool turned over to manufacturers, resulting in 6,000 yards of cloth and 600 yards of blankets, it is plainly shown what can be done with the proper effort. This doesn't represent the entire wool production of the state, but it indicates a response to that frequently heard demand for more of the Connecticut grown wool.

Whatever efforts have been put forth in this direction should serve as an incentive to others. The example is certainly a worthy one, and the fact that it is obtainable ought to create an increased market for Connecticut woolens.

When the farmers engaged in this business declare that it was financially profitable it shows that such production is worth while, but when they go further and point out that through such business they have been able to make money from acres that were otherwise practically useless they put their finger on one of the important points in connection with a large acreage of Connecticut land.

The idea of getting the land to produce at a profit should be the aim. If it is impossible to do so through other methods the example of the sheep raisers ought not to be overlooked. While the possibilities of getting more from the farm land are being studied attention cannot very well be turned away from the opportunities presented in sheep raising. It should encourage Connecticut to greater rather than smaller efforts in this direction.

DR. GRANT'S CASE.

When Bishop Manning of the Episcopal church gave notice to Dr. Percy S. Grant of the Church of the Ascension, New York city, that he should recant, resign or stand a trial for heresy, it was no more than was anticipated. Dr. Grant himself could hardly have expected anything else. He must have realized that he was stirring up trouble within the church of which he is a member and priest. He knew that he was voicing views that were contrary to the established views of that church and contrary to the vows he took as a minister of that church.

When he takes the position that a man going into the pulpit has got to feel as free as Voltaire he isn't likely to have many quarrels with him provided he enters a pulpit where such views are approved, but when he undertakes to overstep and go contrary to constitution and laws of his church, and undertakes that harmful boring from within that others have assumed responsibility for in other organizations he can expect nothing different than the situation has brought forth.

When his views run so counter to the established views of his church the bishop is right in believing that it is time for him to get out. He doesn't require him to change his views, unless he expects to stay in. If he cares for the freedom of Voltaire in the pulpit he should make sure that he gets into a pulpit that grants that freedom. At present he is bound by the vows of the Episcopal church and preaches something else.

Dr. Grant has got the action from the bishop which it would seem his acts had sought for some time.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Brush a pie over with sweet milk before baking if you would have it shiny and brown.

All the time spent in hunting for kitchen tools is wasted. There should be a place for every article, and it should be put in its place when it is not in use.

Lamb should be basted constantly while roasting if you would obtain the best flavor from it.

The quickest way to mop up a puddle of water on the kitchen floor or linoleum is to first moisten the mop itself. It is twice as absorbent as an absolutely dry mop cloth.

A double boiler with a sticky lining from cooked oatmeal or cornstarch pudding cleans quickest after being soaked in plenty of cold water and then scraped with a double-sided brush on a handle. Potatoes are quickly cleaned also with this same kind of a brush.

If a boiled pudding breaks put it together as well as possible and coat it with sauce.

A tablespoon of freshly made coffee added to an apple pie just before baking will give it a most delicious flavor.

When making pastry, always mix up a little more than is required for immediate use. Tartlet cases keep well in a tin for use another day.

Soak dusters overnight in a pail of soapsuds to which a tablespoon of ammonia has been added. Wash in the morning in warm water.

The best kind of vessel in which to boil vinegar is an ordinary copper preserving pan. Failing this, a strong enamelled or aluminum pot will serve.

When stoning raisins keep a basin of warm water at hand and dip the stones into it. By keeping the thumb and forefinger wet with hot water the stones are easier to remove.

When cutting cake which is iced, put your knife in boiling water for a few seconds. You will then be able to cut without the icing breaking.

SAVING THE FATS.

Save water in which corned beef is cooked, let cool overnight, skim off all fat which rises on top and use for making pie crust, dark cake or mix with lard to fry doughnuts. Use less salt if fat is saved from salt meat. If used for doughnuts put fat in kettle a half hour before mixing the dough and cook over slow heat cook out any water which may be in fat, add other drippings of lard and clarify all with a pinch of ginger put into hot fat.

When roasting pork pour off part cupful of fat to save for lard before making gravy.

PROPER LIGHTING.

To be comfortable and practical during the evening hours, the home should be equipped with a variety of lamps to meet the particular needs.

The fact that one does not want the same kind of lighting at all times becomes an important item in the selection and arrangement of fixtures, for, while a soft, mellow glow is desirable for conversational purposes, it is usually insufficient for reading or other close work. The living room should therefore be furnished with both types of lamps.

Proper illumination of this room will do much toward keeping the family together in the evening, for it makes it possible for several people to do their different work in comfort.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Babies' heads often ache when they are cutting their teeth, and a soft, folded cloth dipped in warm water and placed about the head is very soothing.

Help to keep your figure graceful and supple by taking a little exercise regularly. One of the cheapest and best beautifiers is skipping.

A good complexion comes from sensible diet, fresh air and cleanliness. Muddy, spotty complexions which worry their owners can easily be cured by a strict attention to diet and plenty of exercise.

Take care of your hands. Well kept hands are the hallmark of the dainty girl. Always remember to push back the cuticle round your nails after washing, and manicure them carefully once a week.

For a hair curling fluid take: Borax, 3 oz.; gum arabic, 1 dr.; hot water, 2 pt.; spirit of camphor, 2 1-2 fl. oz. Dissolve the borax and the gum in hot water and when nearly cool add the spirit of camphor. On retiring at night wet the hair with the above liquid.

COMPLEXIONS IN WINTER.

Many a woman whose skin is soft, moist and fine in warm weather notices that her complexion suffers from dry scaliness as soon as winter comes. It is necessary then that she should keep the cutaneous surface of her complexion well oiled. Sometimes it is wise to do away with the use of soap and warm water, cleansing the skin with a cold cream. Certainly a warm facial tubbing should never be indulged in just before one is going out into a cold atmosphere or just after coming in. Using cold cream and powder before exposure to the wintry elements is an excellent idea for the reason that the combination acts as a barrier or protection to cutting winds and zero weather.

A CONVENIENT PAPER HOLDER.

Newspapers are frequently a source of great untidiness in a room. After the hasty breakfast perusal, they are strewn about on chairs and tables, and shifted from pillar to post by the busy housewife, until she has time to enjoy their contents later in the day.

Quite an effective and handy paper holder can be made out of a large rush bag. The bag can be hung on a brass-headed nail at the side of the fireplace, or it may be sewn or hooked on to the back of an armchair.

The handle of the bag can be covered with ribbon or raffia twisted round and round, while the front of the bag should be decorated with raffia in an "allover" pattern of flowers.

Only one handle of the bag need be hooked on to the nail, the other can hang loosely so that papers may be dropped in without trouble.

The side of the bag nearest the wall should be stiffened to keep it in shape and position. A narrow strip of cardboard sewn along the top edge, reaching to within an inch of each end, will have the desired effect.

TO REMOVE CREASES.

Most creases will come out of clothes if they are aired in front of the fire, but with bad cases crumpled frocks should be arranged on a rack in the bathroom and the bath filled with boiling water. The steam will take out all unsightly lines, but don't forget to air your wardrobe in front of a fire afterwards, for it will be a little damp. Silver or gold tissue should, of course, be spared this treatment.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Chiffon handkerchiefs in bright all-over designs are knotted about the wrist and worn with formal dance frocks.

Huge clasps and buckles of rhinestones fasten collars and are worn at one side of evening wraps.

Metal lace dresses, over [illegible]

NECKWEAR FOR SPRING.

In neckwear, matched sets of lingeries collar and cuffs, with deep bertbas in net, in lace or in organdie stand out as the leading features for spring. Plaited stocks on the clerical order also are featured, and are being brought out for wear with the new square cut neck finish.

Numerous matched sets consisting of wide collars with gauntlet cuffs made of plain linen, of embroidered net, or of organdie, lace trimmed and embroidered with metal, are shown.

A certain revival of interest in the Ascot stock in pique is to be noted. These are indorsed by several of the leading model makers for wear with the severe type of tailored suits.

In general, separate neckwear when worn at all, is in white or in deep ecru tints. No demand at all is registered for colored neckwear.

NEWEST IN BLOUSES.

No girl could fail to be delighted with a new blouse, especially if it is one whose neckline, peasant sleeves and embroidered monogram proclaim it's the newest.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

Semi-made white muslin aprons are cross-stitched in pink, blue and green across the pockets and in front, and have the neck and sleeves outlined in cross stitching.

One of the shops is selling black sateen aprons that look like dresses. They are trimmed with patches of bright cretonne and are gay little affairs.

A most attractive centerpiece is stamped to be cross-stitched in dark blue.

For the guest bathroom there are charming little towels of colored linen trimmed with reticelli lace.

Semi-made rompers well made and well cut have patchwork rabbits or building blocks for pockets.

If the hooks and eyes are always coming off just try buttonholing them on. That is, instead of sewing over and over use the ordinary buttonhole stitch or loop it. It takes little, if any longer to do, and time is saved, because hooks and eyes are on to stay.

WAYS TO MAKE USE OF RIBBON

Scrap books, telephone directories and magazine covers made of cardboard covered with silk or wide ribbon, with a brocaded ribbon decoration, add a touch to the room. The making of these covers is simple and the decorative scheme easy to achieve, for the brocaded ribbons come in so many designs, colors, shades and tones. One very attractive silk cover was of black silk. Running up the outer side, leaving a black edge in good proportion, was a Persian striped ribbon. The binding was of the brocaded ribbon to match, but much wider, forming not only the binding but extending on the book itself to form the balancing trip.

KEEP CORNERS DOWN.

Cover four small weights with material matching the couch cover as nearly as possible. Sew one in each corner on the wrong side. If the ends of the cover are hemmed, slip the weights in the hem and catch with a few stitches. The weights that are used in coat corners are excellent for this purpose.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Mrs. Carrie Barrett is the new mayor of Union Gap, Wash.

Among the fisher folk no woman is allowed to whistle or bad luck will surely follow.

The process of lace-making was invented at St. Annaberg, in Saxony, by Barbara Uttman in 1561.

Mrs. Adelaide Fries of Winston-Salem is the first woman to be honored with the presidency of the North Carolina Literary and Historical society, one of the oldest societies of its kind in the country.

No matter whether at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, Balmoral, or Sandringham, Queen Mary acts as her own housekeeper and scarcely a day passes when she does not pay a visit to the royal kitchen and household offices.

If the leather strap or cord of the umbrella shows signs of wear, an excellent strap can be made by taking two thicknesses of grosgrain ribbon and sewing both edges together, making a strap five inches long. This requires 20 inches of ribbon. Sewing this on to a circle of ribbon which ties tightly around the handle of the umbrella.

There are many ways of making the lingerie straps which keep the various types of underwear in place in the dresser drawer. The simplest and most effective of all are those that are made Val lace edge, and a buckle which is run through the width of the ribbon, permitting one end to draw through, so that the length of the strap can be adjusted.

FOR SAVING SALT.

After the ice cream has been frozen empty the ice and salt into a sack and when the ice has melted the salt will remain to be used again.

FOR FRUIT PIES.

When making a pie the juice from the fruit very often soaks through the undercrust and spoils the appearance of it. This can be prevented by brushing the crust over with the white of an egg.

RECIPES.

Angel Food Cake: Beat the whites of eight eggs until frothy; add to them one teaspoon cream of tartar and continue beating until stiff, then add one cup of sugar very gradually, beating constantly. Mix together three-quarters cup of flour and one-third teaspoon salt and fold these into the egg-whites. Last add three-quarters teaspoon of vanilla and turn into an unbuttered angel cake pan. Bake 45 minutes (possibly 50) in a moderate oven. After it has risen and begins to brown, cover it with a buttered piece of paper.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

Wives of Famous Men

Beatrice Portinari, Wife of Dante.

Famed in literature and history, held up to generation after generation as the model of all that is pure and divine in human passion, is the love of the great Italian poet, Dante, for the beautiful Beatrice Portinari. Scarcely a paragraph has ever reached the public eye regarding Gemmande, that patient, calm and noble woman who was Dante's wife. Surprisingly few people are aware that he ever had a wife, yet his domestic life was of the most pleasant, and his children numbered seven.

But poets must eat, unpoetical as this may be to think about, and Dante, for all his divine inspiration, was a mortal man. It was less than two years after the death of Beatrice, which had so stricken the poet that he became "a thing wild and savage to look upon," that he had sufficiently recovered to marry Gemme, as she was affectionately called.

Little is known of Gemma, save that she was the daughter of a Florentine neighbor, a man of power in the community, who was involved in the old war between the Guelphs and the Ghibellines. In the "Vita Nuova," his poem celebrating Beatrice, whom he loved even after her marriage, Gemma is referred to as the lady sitting full of pity at her window, and comforting Dante in his sorrow. Her role of comforter evidently was a wise one, for although the poet fell ill after the death of his beloved Beatrice, time healed the wound and the patient Gemmande became his wife.

Their married life was chiefly conspicuous for its uneventfulness. Gemma made a good wife, having all the qualities needed to be the constant companion of a temperamental poet, and ruling the poet's household with a gentle firm hand. Her calm, dignity, intelligence are spoke of rather than any great beauty, but there is every indication that their marriage was a success.

When Dante was exiled from the native land, Gemma remained in Florence with her children, and was a source of great comfort and peace to him as long as she lived.

Stories That Recall Others

Time For Rejoicing.

Uncle George had been visiting at the home of little Tommie. He had been there almost a week when, one morning, he announced his intention of going home. Little Tommie showed interest.

"Are you going home today?" he inquired.

"Yes," Uncle George answered and began to frame an excuse for Tommie to "be a man and not cry."

Instead of crying, little Tommie danced.

"Goodie, goodie," he cried, "now it is time for me to be glad."

COULD NOT SLEEP OR EAT FOR DAYS

WINCARNIS Was the Only Thing That Seemed to Do Mrs. Hueston Good

"Before taking Wincarnis, I was completely run down. My nerves were in an awful state. I also had indigestion so badly that gas would form around my heart, causing it to palpitate. I could neither eat nor sleep for days at a time. I took a small bottle of Wincarnis and it seemed to do me good, so I bought a large one and within a week I began to feel much better. I started to sleep and eat much better, and my nerves quieted down. After taking three bottles, I felt better than I had for years. Wincarnis is certainly a wonderful tonic."

RAISED $6,341 AT MASS MEETING FOR PALESTINE FOUNDATION FUND

DR. JOSEPH SILVERMAN

Norwich Zion district opened its 1923 campaign for the Palestine Foundation fund (Keren Hayesod) with a mass meeting Sunday evening in the Community house on Church street where an audience of over 400 pledged $6,341 towards the $18,000 which is the Norwich quota.

Of the amount pledged, $939 was paid in cash at the meeting and arrangements were made whereby a check for $5,000 will be forwarded at once to national headquarters.

Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, general chairman of the executive committee, presided, introducing as the principal speaker of the evening Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanuel, New York city.

Rabbi Silverman Speaks.

My hope for the future in Palestine, said Dr. Silverman, is to see the Temple of Solomon rebuilt in Palestine, to see a large synagogue within, a church for Christians, a Mosque for Mohammedans, and a hall wherein the League of Nations will assemble to outline the peace policies of the world.

"Look upon this flag I hold in my hand. It is the American flag. To some it would seem to be only a piece of bunting, a bit of silk. To us it means something and when we look upon that flag there is a stirring within us, it stands for something real, something genuine. Why does it affect us so? I tell you it is because the flag represents for you, liberty, independence, and rights of living, liberty, and happiness.

"You boys and girls born in this country, this is your flag, it will always be your flag, it is my flag. My father came to this country when he was 18 years old and I was born beneath the flag of freedom. My grandfather was a Russian and was murdered in that country. My father came to America, he studied in night school, loved America and became a thorough American. When his five children were born, each was wrapped in the American flag soon after birth, the flag was placed on our cradles, the first thing we saw when we awoke in the morning was our beloved American flag. He taught us to love the flag and told us for what it stood, liberty and freedom, equal rights. He taught us on holidays to hand out our flag and each one of us had our own flag to cherish and love. I was brought up that way, and I love that flag and love that for which it stands.

"Because of what that flag means we love it, cherish and revere it, we take off our hats to it, and think it beautiful. America is a great country, it has 110,000,000 people, all independent. The country is made up of 48 states each independent, yet bound together for mutual protection. This union means interstate commerce, interstate traffic, freedom of education, freedom of arts, literature, philosophy, all these for every race, nationality and religion.

"That flag represents a reality, look back to the Pilgrims; they left England because of religious persecution and finally came to this country, suffered, worked, gave their lives and through the centuries have given us this country that we might be free to live in peace and security.

"Now (holding up the Zionist flag) look upon this flag. This stands for a hope, the ambition of the Jewish race for the past 200 years, to own a homeland of their own. This flag is the symbol of all that Israel stands for. Tonight we are gathered to make this symbol of hope, a symbol of reality and make it a flag that will stand with our beautiful Star Spangled Banner, representing world free dom, liberty and justice, to make that flag as great in this world as our beloved American flag.

"Today the Zionist flag is spit upon, trampled upon, scorned, it is our duty as Jews to make it honored, revered, protected as is the American flag.

"I am proud I am a Jew, equally proud as I am that I am an American, but never before was I so proud of being a Jew as now, for before us is the opportunity to make the Jewish name honored, and respected by all the world.

"It has been well said that all the world loves a lover, because the world does but it is equally true that the world loves a patriot, even the enemy respects the patriot. When the World war came and we cheered the soldiers as they marched by, we honored them for their bravery because we knew that 10 per cent. were never to return home.

"Some of our own people have said you can only be patriotic to one country. For this belief I feel sorry for them. In the war we who went the length and breadth of the land did not appeal to commercialism, we appealed for patriotism, to aid the fellow men in distress, being oppressed. This is what the country responded to. Today there is the same opportunity for the Jews in America.

"Thank God, for America, we Jews in this country have no need of Palestine but we can be patriots to America and yet reach out and aid our suffering brethren in other countries, and this will never prevent us from answering the call of our country in time of war, answering the bugle calls, or the proclamation of the president of our country.

"Palestine must mean to the Jew three things, people, home, God and humanity. This must be known to the world so that the words, "I am a Jew," mean these things.

"What is Palistine? It is more than a strip of land, it is the cradle of the Jewish people, the cradle of our religion. As men we love the cradle in which we were rocked as a babe. Is it not equally just to love the cradle of our forefathers, and if it needs repairs, make them, and bring Palestine back to its former glory, to make it the joy of all Israel and the blessing of humanity?

"We don't need Palestine for ourselves, but others in Europe need it for a home, for they are persecuted. Call them back to the promised land where education, science and religion shall have freedom, equal rights to all creeds, and nationalities."

Other speakers on the programme were Dr. Simon Rothenberg of New York, and Isaac Carmel of Hartford, state director of the Palestine movement, both of whom spoke urging the local Jewry to keep up the faith with their brothers in Palestine.

Pledges Received.

When the speaking was over, pledges were called for and the young women on the platform with typewriters and an adding machine kept the records of the amounts.

Among the larger pledges were the following: Beckenstein & Taylor, $1,000; Rabbi Barnett Davidson, $500; Michael Levine, $600; Aaron Gordon, $300; Harry M. Land, $300; Norwich Chapter of Hadassah, $500; M. I. Silverman $238; Rubin Alexander $100; Solomon Bros., $200; A. Cramer, $100; P. Strom & Sons, $160; Kadesh Bros. $200; David Gordon, Charles M. Gordon, Max Hanover, S. Kadish, Levine Bros., and Abner Schwartz $100 each; Louis Atkind $75, Sussman & Silverberg, E. R. Siff, A. Ableman, M. Thune, Isaac Segal and M. Titansky $50 each.

The visiting speakers were met in New London by a committee which escorted them to this city, where they were entertained at supper before the meeting at the home of Chairman Rosenberg, 40 Greene avenue.

After the meeting the visiting speakers were entertained at the home of Samuel Taylor, 219 Broadway.

Dr. Nathan Ratnoff of New York, who had been expected to be a speaker, was detained in New York by his duties as head physician at the Jewish maternity hospital.

TROLLEY FARE CUT IS VOLUNTARY, SAYS STORRS

Following the announcement by the public utilities commission that a reduction of 10 per cent. in trolley fares would become effective early in the spring, Lucius S. Storrs, president of the trolley company, issued a statement Saturday night to the effect that the reduction was entirely voluntary on the part of the company. The action was approved at a meeting of the board of directors and it was decided that the new rate of two fares for 15 cents would become effective on April 1. The new rate will take in only such cities in which transfer privileges are desirable, which does not include Bridgeport or South Norwalk, where a five cent fare exists without the transfer privilege.

The reduction, Mr. Storrs said, is due to an improvement in the financial condition brought about by increased patronage, coupled with a slight reduction in operating expenses and continued relief from severe jitney competition. This is the second voluntary reduction made by the trolley company and has been fully approved by the public utilities commission.

Regarding the five cent fare existing in Bridgeport and a portion of South Norwalk, it is indicated that this will continue so long as the patrons appear to want a continuation of the present system, which carries a patron only to the center of the city for a five cent fare.

In an interview, C. C. Elwell, the New Haven member of the commission, said that any city which desired the five cent system in use in Bridgeport could have it but it seems that it is not desired except in Bridgeport and South Norwalk.

The reduction was decided upon at a meeting of the directors of the company held on Jan. 13. The announcement was delayed because of the absence of two of the directors and it became necessary to obtain their approval before it could be made public. When the matter was brought to the attention of the commissioners it was approved by them after a discussion.

In his announcement Mr. Storrs makes the declaration that the reduction will amount to about 10 per cent., through the purchase of 12 tokens for 90 cents at the company's offices or agents, or two for 15 cents from conductors. He concludes by stating that the new rate will not go into effect until April 1 because of the excessive cost of operating and the handling of snow during the winter months.

"This action," said President Storrs, "is taken in anticipation that operating costs will not increase and in the expectation that the reduction will result in the increased use of the trolley cars."

SAID TO BE ROBBER OF WESTERLY BANK

Louis P. Merriam, wanted in Boston, Lynn, Washington and other places, who was captured by a Pinkerton detective in New York Thursday is said to be one of the three men who robbed the Industrial Trust Co. in Westerly of $790 in a daylight robbery last August. His picture published in a Boston paper Thursday is identical with a photograph held by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of Westerly as that of one of the three men who raided the Westerly bank.

If the evil in men is visible it is an easy matter to overlook all the good.

PROPOSE LICENSE FOR REAL ESTATE MEN

A real estate licensing bill will be reintroduced into the general assembly this week by Senator Macdonald. This bill would make it obligatory for every person in the real estate business to be licensed under a state commission. The bill was introduced into the legislature at the last session, and after meeting the approval of the judiciary committee and successfully passing through the house was killed in the senate. It is advocated by the national association of real estate boards, the members of which by law are allowed to style themselves "realtors." Fourteen states have adopted similar measures. An important fact bearing upon the bill is that the supreme court in Washington declared it constitutional on Nov. 13 last, when the issue was raised with respect to the Tennessee law. Previous to that time the enemies of the bill had contended that it deprived them of rights "without due process of law."

As the realtors state the case, the bill is intended to raise the ethics of the real estate business from a class with the proverbial horse dealers into a class where it can call itself a profession. They say that it would require every real estate dealer to maintain a certain level of probity in his deals, whereas at present any swindler can carry on his shady practices unrestrained. They point out that for a man to write an insurance policy he must meet the requirements of a state commission, and ask why a real estate broker should not be obliged to do likewise.

The supporters of the bill emphasize the fact that the proposed state commission would in no sense be limited in giving out licenses to members of the real estate boards or realtors. Anyone who could meet the requirements of the state examiner and paid the nominal license fee would be allowed to carry on business.

The bill consists of 12 sections. It differs from the final draft of the bill of two years ago in only one particular; the state commission instead of consisting of three real estate brokers of long experience (as in the bill of 1921) should consist of two real estate men of experience and one member of the bar.

ARRIVES IN LONDON ON WAY TO CEYLON

Word has been received here of the arrival in England of Dr. and Mrs. William J. Jameson, who are on their way to Ceylon, where Dr. Jameson will be a medical missionary at Jaffna under the auspices of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions.

His wife, whose maiden name was Gladys Thompson, is the daughter of the late Rev. John Thompson, a former pastor of the Norwich Town Methodist church. He was for over 40 years a member of the New England Southern conference, serving a number of churches in the conference.

Mrs. Jameson is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy and of Simmons college, Boston, where she received a B. S. degree. She responded to the call of the Red Cross in the World war and spent 16 months in the service. Since then she has been engaged in hospital work as buyer and dietitian at Ellis hospital, Schenectady, N. Y., where Dr. Jameson was interne. They were married in October, 1921.

Dr. and Mrs. Jameson are to remain in London for several months, where he will study tropical medicines in preparation for his work in Ceylon. At Jaffna there has been no western doctor for nine years to do work among the native population and there is no doctor to do surgery. His work will be for the most part of a surgical nature.

Born in Schenectady, Dr. Jameson received his early education in the public schools, graduating from the high school in the class of 1916. He entered Union college in the pre-medical course in the class of 1920, and graduated from Albany Medical college in 1921. While in college he was a member of the Nu Sigma Nu medical fraternity, and throughout his college course maintained a high standing in his studies. Until recently Dr. Jameson was closely associated with and active in promoting Y. M. C. A. work, and other work among boys of the city. He is a member of the Pilgrim Congregational church, in which he has been an active religious worker for a number of years.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 1.—President Thomas F. McMahon, of the United Textile Workers of America, at a mass meeting of textile workers here tonight declared that in ten days three organizers would proceed to the south to begin the work of unionizing cotton mill workers there. FOUND BODY OF EGYPTIAN PRINCESS 4,000 YEARS OLD

Luxor, Egypt, Jan. 20 (By the A. P.)—Interest in the tomb of former King Tutenkhamun was temporarily diverted today through the discovery by the American archaeologists of the body of an Egyptian princess 4,000 years old, and apparently one of the beauties of the first Theban dynasty which flourished 3,150 years before Christ.

The bosom and neck of the princess are delicately tattooed with small bluish symbols and traceries emblematic of her caste. The body is marvelously preserved. The hair and teeth are intact. Slight indentations on the neck, wrists, fingers and ankles indicate that the princess wore necklaces, bracelets and rings in her death sleep, which were stolen when vandals desecrated her tomb.

The body appears to have been that of a slender and statuesque, but immature girl. It is believed she died at an early age. There is a long mark across the stomach, evidently inflicted with a hot iron. This has inclined the medical experts to believe the princess succumbed to an organic disease, which in ancient times was treated by violent counter-irritants. The body will be sent to the Cairo medical laboratory for a pathological examination.

SENATE TO DISCUSS EUROPEAN SITUATION

Washington, Jan. 21.—America's part in European affairs, especially the reparations tangle, is promised renewed discussion, with action possible, in the senate this week.

A new move, probably tomorrow, looking to the recall of Roland W. Boyden, and other unofficial American representatives on the reparation commission, is under consideration by Senator Johnson of California, a republican "irreconcilable." While several other senators had speeches in preparation.

Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, is expecting to speak soon on his resolution before the foreign relations committee proposing appointment of official American representative on the reparation commission.

He has withheld any comment while the resolution has been before the committee, but the general senate debate predicted is expected to bring the Arkansas senator into the discussion.

Further information from Secretary Hughes regarding the work of the Boyden commission is to be given to the foreign relations committee for its use in considering the Robinson resolution. This data, it is believed, will be received before the week end.

TO DISCONTINUE FINEST RIDING SCHOOL IN WORLD

Coblenz, Jan. 21 (By the A. P.)—What is considered probably the finest riding school in the world will be discontinued when the American army stables at Coblenz are emptied by the sale of the horses or their shipment home. The American forces in Germany, under the encouragement of Major General Henry T. Allen, the commander, during their stay here organized riding teams which are said to be superior to any in the United States. These teams have won more than fifty per cent of first prizes in events in which they have contested.

The horses represent the last of the animals of the American forces, particularly of the old Third division. This division had more than 20,000 animals, many of which have been sold to Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Two hundred and seventy-three horses and 143 mules, will be auctioned off here.

The training arena in Coblenz will be taken over by the French.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Among the meanest tricks imaginable Sunday was that of hiring a public service cars to take you somewhere—it mattered little where. Any car owner that ventured out for a fare with his machine was practically certain to take more out of it than he took in in cash.

The roads were in the most frightful condition of the winter. Even within the limits of the borough cars bounded and dove from one side of the street to the other, slid around and slipped sidewise and did every other stunt that any old-time driver ever heard of—and a few that were not regularly listed.

This wall due to the fact that the long delayed January thaw arrived on the wings of a strong southerly wind late Saturday night and brought with it a downpour of rain that quickly turned every street into a quagmire and every sidewalk into a polished rink walk intended to stand the unwary on their nethermost ends.

Up to late Sunday afternoon it was difficult for the average observer to decide whether in the final analysis the thaw would help traveling conditions or make them worse. The going promised to be better on the state highways, but off these routes, even on borough streets, deep ruts and slush set up a combination that will mean another kind of experating going if the thaw is followed by another freeze.

Public service car drivers were in some cases refusing fares on Sunday when trips offered them would take their machines off the state highways. Rivers rose higher and higher in this territory during Sunday indicating that at least some of the great quantities of snow accumulated during the present month had been turned to water and had started on it way to tidewater.

Miss Laura Jacobs motored down to Providence early Sunday evening for a dinner party at the Biltmore hotel, where with a traveling companion and a number of friends a few hours were happily spent before Miss Jacobs left on a midnight train for New York—the first leg of a journey that is to take her around the world.

Miss Jacobs will sail today from New York on the Empress of France for a journey that will occupy five months. The steamship will go south to Panama, thence through the canal and northward along the lower coast to San Francisco.

In early February the vessel will sail for the Far East and the itinerary will take the travelers, 700 in number, to Japan, India, the Straits Settlements and various European countries. Returning the party will complete their sea voyage at Quebec. Miss Jacobs is expected to return here about mid-June.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Foley, 45, died Sunday morning at her home in Elmville after a long illness. Miss Foley was born in Danielson, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Foley, and the greater part of her life had been spent in the town of Killingly. Miss Foley is survived by her father, a brother, Charles, born of Illinois and a sister, Mrs. John D. Sullivan of New Britain, also by nephews, George Sullivan, and a niece, Hazel Sullivan, both of New Britain.

Mrs. Rosanna Eaton, 67, wife of Henry Eaton, died Saturday at their home on Pine Hill road in the town of Thompson. Mrs. Eaton had been in poor health for some time and her death came as a result of an attack of heart failure. She is survived by her husband.

Ira Shippee, 77, died Saturday at his home in Goodyear, where he had been a resident for many years. Mr. Shippee was born in Foster, but had lived the greater part of his life in this town and for years was engaged as a salesman for H. C. Atwood who was one of the owners and the agent of the Wauregansville Manufacturing company. Mr. Shippee is survived by his wife and by a son, Norman.

Danielson being a well regulated community and composed of people who hold themselves in real restraint, refrained on Sunday in face of dire predictions from interfering in any way with two carloads of hard coal that were set off a northbound freight train Sunday morning in the local yard because the coal cars developed hot boxes undoubtedly from ponderings over what the public as a whole is moaning about a coal shortage. The cars are destined for some point to the north, but this is a mere incident in which new here will be interested in view of the fact that the coal is not intended for Danielson.

Mrs. Fannie Evelyn Mason, 58, wife of Fred L. Mason of Bolleuville, died Sunday morning at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam, where she was a medical patient. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker A. F. Wood and brought to his rooms in Danielson.

Mrs. Mason was born in Killingly, a daughter of Stephen M. and Abby (Blanchard) Tripp, and had spent her life in this town. She leaves her husband and eleven children—Mrs. Bertha Cook, Bailleville; Leon Mason, Woonsocket; Mrs. Evelyn Stone, Danielson, Mrs. Blanche Lane, Bailleville; Fred Mason, Poquetanuck; Mrs. Florence Russell, Attawaugan; Susan, Ruth, Ethel, George and Linden, at home.

Mrs. Mason also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Harvey Nelson of Danielson and Mrs. Alvin Johnson of Putnam, and four brothers, Lewis Tripp of Springfield, Thomas Tripp of Providence, Leroy Tripp of Putnam and Charles Tripp, of Eastford.

Road crews continued to battle up to 9 o'clock Saturday night with the accumulation of snow on the state highways all through this territory and were well entitled to the rest that came to them after their wearying labors of the week. The trucks engaged in pushing plows at work on the highways have been hard put to it to stand up under the strain of the winter's work—as a period of endeavor about as trying as any in the history of state highway winter work in this section.

Miss Emma F. Pilling will have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon.

Boxing fans have one of the big events of the winter coming for them Tuesday evening when one of a group of boxing exhibitions will be staged in their interest.

It is likely that the grand list now being completed by the assessors of the town of Killingly will show a smaller total than that grand list completed a year ago. This is forecasted by lower assessments on motor vehicles, which have shrunk in value during the year and because the number of cows in the town is smaller by a very considerable number than when the lists were filed in the fall of 1921.

While this may be as much a free advertisement as a news item it at least is of public interest that members of a Vegetable Growers' association in a nearby town are offering good eating potatoes at a dollar a bushel just now.

Mrs. Charles M. Smith of Hawkins street will have members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting this (Monday) afternoon.

Killingly High school students and supporters of the school's athletic teams were delighted with the victory of the basketball team over the second team of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, 21 to 20, Friday yevening in an unusually close game.

On Saturday morning the temperature at 5 a. m. as shown by a recording instrument at Woodward's store was exactly zero. A rapid rise in temperature brought the mercury up to 38 degrees by night.

Those who braved the walking to get to church on Sunday in many instances came home with wet feet from wadding through slushes that were higher than shoe tops.

Mrs. Ethel Richmond has practically recovered from an illness that has kept her confined to her home for more than a week.

A musical comedy troupe that has been playing at the Orpheum theatre completed its engagement Saturday evening, and a very successful one.

George O. Wetherall died Sunday evening at his home on Furnace street. Mr. Wetherall was a native of Pomfret, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Wetherall, and would have been 70 years old in February. He had lived all of his life here. He leaves four sisters, Mrs. Amelia Young, Mrs. Jennie Humphrey, Mrs. Ella Woodworth, and Miss Josephine Wetherall.

PUTNAM

The first duties of Charles M. Letters of this city, the newly appointed game warden, have been made somewhat strenuous on account of the heavy snows. It is a part of the game warden's duties in protecting game birds to see that they are fed when on account of snow or ice their regular feeding places are not available. To do this means long, tiresome journeys into the wild country of Windham county, laden with a heavy sack of grain. This feed is sprinkled about and then covered with brush to protect it as well as may be from other snowfalls.

The birds are not long in discovering that a good Samaritan has passed by, leaving a life sustaining diet for them. Unless such feeding is done, many birds are winter killed. It is well remembered that a few years ago quail became almost extinct in this section on account of a severe winter. For a number of seasons there was a voluntary protection of quail by all hunters who refrained from shooting them in order that they might propogate. They are now to be found in greater numbers on account of this sportsmanlike effort of the real hunters. In regard to the proposed bill to raise the length of the trout that may be taken from ponds and streams from six to seven inches, the new game warden who, by the way, is a lifelong hunter, fisher and trapper during every spare hour in season, is decidedly in favor of it. In the first place, he states that a six inch trout when dressed for the frying pan, is a tiny morsel indeed. If left for a year it will spawn and help in this way to propogate its species and will be a livelier, gamier and a larger fish, more suitable as a food when its length has increased an added inch. Mr. Letters has not as yet appointed his assistants.

At a special session of the city court at 11 o'clock Saturday morning Joseph J. Dupuis of New Bedford, a truck driver for the Interstate Trucking company, was arraigned before Judge Geissler, charged with failing to turn to the right to allow another vehicle to pass. The affair was said to have occurred near the Grove street cemetery in Putnam on the evening of Dec. 8th. Complaint was made to the state police by William Bernard of Danielson. Mr. Bernard testified that he was proceeding towards Danielson about 5 o'clock in the evening and met the truck coming toward him. He expected that the driver would turn out to give him half the road, but as the truck kept on its course he, the witness, was obliged to turn into a snowbank in the gutter. He stopped and got the number of the truck and then reported the matter. The driver said he was not a regular driver for the company. He said he was driving that day but was in Norwich at the time that the incident complained of occurred. In view of the conflicting evidence, a continuance was granted at the request of the prosecuting attorney and an endeavor will be made to check up the truck in more detail.

At the postponed quarterly meeting of the woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital it was decided to hold the annual Valentine tea Feb. 15th in Odd Fellows' hall for the benefit of the hut we hope and the hospital." It was also voted to purchase two beds for the new addition, $80 complete. The Valentine tea is a means that the women's board takes every year in raising money for the needs of the hospital. The affair is in commemoration of the late Day Kimball, in whose memory the hospital is perpetuated. The board of women of eastern Windham county raises a considerable sum yearly which is applied to the immediate needs of the hospital. This year it was decided to devote a part of the fund raised from the Valentine tea toward the nurses' home so badly needed by the association.

At present the nurses are housed in the main building. This utilizes space that might be devoted to patients when the hospital is crowded, and it also gives the nurses no means of intercourse while off duty. If a suitable home can be provided it will make the local hospital more attractive to nurses and might be the means of procuring nurses easier when this is necessary to fill vacancies occurring from time to time.

Regardless of the heavy snow, some local ice dealers are getting in their yearly supply. This may only be done by scraping the ponds, which entails a great deal of extra work. A Pomfret firm that supplies a part of Putnam are among the dealers that are now cutting after scraping their pond. While doing this a pair of horses being used on the scraper broke through thin ice invisible on account of the blanket of snow which covered it. After their plunge into the cold water, all that was visible of the animals was their noses. One of the animals was taken out without difficulty but a great deal of effort was needed in getting out the second horse. Both animals were taken care of at once and neither suffered from the effects of the accident.

The B. P. Bloxics won the first of a series of five games in a pitch tournament with Knights of Columbus. Won by the score of 298 to 244. The next game will be played in the K. of C. rooms Wednesday evening. Thomas Hudson is the manager of the K. of C. team and B. Inderdohnen is managing the B. F. Horie team.

The body of George Evans who died in Norwich Tuesday was brought to Mystic Thursday afternoon for burial in Fishtown cemetery. The deceased was the son of the late George and Augusta (Alexander) Evans and was born in Mystic 55 years ago. He is survived by a sister Mrs. Albert Latham of Hamden, and a brother, Louis Evans of New Britain.

Mrs. Blunt who has been making an extended visit with Mrs. George N. Lewis has gone to Brooklyn to reside.

Eldwod D. Lathrop was a visitor in Yantic recently.

Henry Marino is entertaining his brothers from New York.

Mrs. Latham Packer is confined to her home by illness.

The funeral services of Mrs. Phoebe E. Grinnell, were held at the home of Mrs. Fish, on the New London road Saturday afternoon at 2.30 p. m. Rev. J. G. Sborn, pastor of the Baptist church officiated. Interment was in Elm Grove cemetery.

CHESTNUT HILL

The farmers have of late been engaged in cutting ice. The work has been unusually hard this season on account of the snow, which weighs down the ice, causing water to rise upon the surface.

The mercury dropped to below zero several times last week. Thursday was the coldest, being 10 degrees below zero very early in the morning.

It is about two weeks since an automobile has been seen on the roads near the local station. A pair of horses and sled has taken the place of the milk truck for the present.

Edward W. Stiles, who has been in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, for the past two weeks, is rapidly recovering from an operation for appendicitis and expects to return to his home soon.

Elisha F. Tucker, who is in his 90th year, has been seriously ill for over a week, but for a day or two has been resting more comfortably. His granddaughter, Mrs. Jessie Killourey, of Mansfield training school, has been assisting in caring for Mr. Tucker the past week.

Mrs. Roma Jensen is spending the week end in Putnam.

Miss Frazier has been the guest of Miss Abbie Goodrich during the fall and winter. She returned to New York a short time ago, accompanied by Mrs. Annie Goodrich, who with her little daughter Thelma is visiting in New York city.

HANKS HILL

Myron Boglisch and his sister were members of a sleigh ride party to Willimantic Tuesday evening.

Wayland Ide was in Gurleyville Friday.

Many a man's phenomenal success is a surprise to himself.

in such cases made and provided."

The resolution charged that Dr. Grant had "cast reproach on the sanctity of holy matrimony; had made statements tending to the encouragement of the violation of the ordination vows of the clergy; had denied the Divinity of Jesus Christ, and the Christian faith as contained in the apostles' creed."

Even the aisles of the Church of the Ascension, one of the fashionable places of worship of the metropolis, were crowded during Dr. Grant's sermon. The divorced wife of the millionaire W. E. D. Stokes, Mrs. Phillip Lydig, fiancee of Dr. Grant, sat in the first pew. Dr. Grant announced his engagement several months ago, despite the canons of the Episcopal church against the remarriage of those divorced.

An hour before the services were to begin the entrance to the church was blocked, with some who were curious, some who were members of the regular congregation, and some who were of apparently unorthodox tendencies. Police kept near the door. One woman fainted.

The close of Dr. Grant's sermon brought a sudden silence, then great burst of applause. Silent spots, sprinkled in the spaces of the church, marked the pews of those less enthusiastic, or perhaps antagonistic. The applause ceased for a moment, then was renewed as forcibly as before. Dr. Grant hesitated, and left the pulpit.

"Jesus Christ was perfectly human," Dr. Grant explained in affirming his disbelief in the portion of Episcopal doctrine concerning Christ's life. "Whatever we say to Him must be in accord with His humanity. I chose to take my interpretation of Christ from His companions, and not from St. Augustine or the latter-day theologians; and surely it is the teaching of Matthew, Mark, and Luke that Christ on earth did not have the power of God. Moreover the story of a virgin birth was not the teaching of the early church."

In allusion to present day church organization Dr. Grant said:

"Do you want an American church of freedom rather than a church of authority? You can have it. Do you want an unshackled clergy? You can have it. Ministers have the opportunity, and the time, to read and learn. Do you want to know all they can find out, or do you want it hidden from you?"

"Do you want a church silenced by sinister financial power? This church, every Sunday night, is dark, where once it was as crowded as this."

The latter reference was unmistakably to the closing of the Sunday night "forums," inaugurated by Dr. Grant, and abolished upon the suggestion of superiors because of the charge that "liberty" doctrines had been expounded within the church walls.

Dr. Grant made no direct reference to Bishop Manning, who spent the day in New Haven, Conn., where he delivered a sermon. The rector, however, referred indirectly to the reports that a trial for heresy was imminent if he did not retract, saying:

"Dr. Briggs, who was tried for heresy and put out of the Presbyterian church a told me one day, fifteen years later, that his judges, in those fifteen years, had changed their ideas, and then themselves held the heresies for which he had been put out of the church."

"Mental growth," Dr. Grant continued "is getting rid of ideas that are not good for one, and supplanting them with ideas that are. Anyone who stops that process is blackjacking his soul. We don't want a religion that has too large an overhead charge. If out of 365 days in the year, a man's religion demands 200 for religious ceremonials and similar affairs, that is too large an overhead."

"Transactions of the miraculous are unnecessary to religion. Accordingly many clergymen refuse to have all the splendor of Christianity made dark and difficult by stories which do not accord with our scientific knowledge. When fellowship with the religious reformer and leader who claimed he was "the way, the truth, and the light" and whose words and deeds bore out his statement . . . when such association can only be secured in official church organization by belief in facts and theories which no college faculty in the country would possibly O. K., then religion is made a clinging to outward forms which takes the heart out of what should be perpetual inspiration."

"I am interested in a religion which will not waste so much time as mine has done," Dr. Grant said. "A great deal of my mature life has been spent in getting rid of what I was taught in my youth."

Nearing the end of his sermon, the congregation still remarkably attentive, Dr. Grant said, as if in summary of the controversy:

"La Follette, Borah and Johnson are members of the same party as Henry Cabot Lodge. Their interpretation is different from his. But who can say that the party, or any other party, is not enriched by those who go far along the interpretative side; the living side; the side that tries to meet the requirements of the facts of life today, rather than the letter which may have been handed down from a remote past."

After the service Dr. Grant said that his sermon was not to be considered a "formal" reply to Bishop Manning. He explained that this would be made by letter. He declined to characterize his sermon further.

BISHOP MANNING'S TOPIC LOYALTY TO JESUS CHRIST

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 21. — "Be thou faithful unto death," from revelation 2:10 was the text chosen by Bishop William T. Manning, of the diocese of New York, preaching in Woolsey Hall here today on "Loyalty," his first public utterance since his recent letter to the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension in New York, calling upon him to recant doctrines which he expressed in a sermon last Sunday.

Bishop Manning made no reference to Dr. Grant, who at the same hour in New York, was restating views which had called for the bishop's letter to him.

Bishop Manning, speaking with great earnestness, touched upon loyalty to Jesus Christ as his final point, saying: "And last, loyalty must be centered up in its fullest and truest and highest expression, in our loyalty to Jesus Christ. What we need is more clear thinking about that. We should have more loyalty to Christ, with our minds as well as with our hearts and emotions. Unless we give Him loyalty with our minds, He will grow unreal to us.

"The one real hope for our own land, and the future of the world, lies in our loyalty to Jesus Christ, and if we are loyal to Him in our minds, as well as in our hearts and souls, all other loyalties will follow."

In opening his sermon, Bishop Manning said: "We are living in a time of many new questions and problems and influences. We meet situations which leave us often uncertain and confused. It isn't strange that some of those about us seem sometimes to have lost their way a little."

After illustrating phases of loyalty to country and to law, Bishop Manning said: "Loyalty also includes faithfulness to the law of God, as He has revealed it to us, in His progressive revelations to mankind, which we call the Bible.

"There is today a widespread revolt against the Christian standards of morals and against the Christian standard of truth.

"I hear people say sometimes: 'I am going to live my own life. I am not going to be ruled by these conventions. I am going to have my own independence, my own self-expression.' This may be all right if you mean the right thing by it, but if you mean the wrong thing by it, it may be the devil itself."

Maintaining that man should live according to the spirit and law of God, Bishop Manning spoke of loyalty to the church as an essential, saying: "Loyalty includes loyalty to that unique institution which we call the church in its highest and fullest significance. Religion is the only foundation for life, individual or national. Religion is the only foundation for morals. Faith in God, recognition of His law—that is the thing that gives us our knowledge of right and wrong."

Bishop Manning also said that selfishness often grew from a desire to live without regard for God or man and, in touching on the Fascista movement in Italy said: "I sometimes think we need a Fascista movement in the intellectual and spiritual life here in our own land."

FIND MICHAEL BRASSIL'S BODY ON BANK OF BROOK AT YANTIC

A party of little girls playing near the Yantic bridge marking the boundary line between Norwich and Franklin, Sunday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, discovered a body lying partly submerged in the river and notified men in the village of their find. An investigation disclosed that the dead man was Michael Brassil of Meeting House Hill, Franklin, who had been missing from his home since January 10th.

Medical Examiner Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve was called and after examining the body gave permission to remove it to Hourigan Brothers undertaking parlors. The body when found was frozen solid, giving evidence that it had been there for some time and little could be discovered from an examination Sunday. Another examination is to take place today (Monday) when it is believed that the cause of death can be established. Medical Examiner Glidersleeve said Sunday night that as far as he could learn Sunday from examination death was due to exposure, but that a second examination might lead to the discovery of another cause.

Several peculiar things in connection with the death of Mr. Brassil have lead relatives and some friends to believe that death was not due to accidental exposure.

It is stated that Mr. Brassil who was 78 years of age would find it impossible to walk from his home to the place where his body was discovered. They also claim that he could not have walked from his home without this being noticed by friends living nearby. In fact, they point out, there seems to be a break of over 10 days, when nothing is known of his wanderings, or how he came to reach the Yantic bridge.

A nephew of Mr. Brassil speaking Sunday afternoon said that he believed there was something lacking in the story of how Mr. Brassil came to his death. When the body was discovered the head and upper part of the body was under water. Where the body lay had evidently been flooded only since the rain of Saturday, the place having been dry ground previously, thus ending any possibility of drowning. Another peculiar circumstance was that the body lay face up and the coat worn by Mr. Brassil was drawn up over his head.

These and several other points lead them to believe that there might have been foul play; however, another theory is that Mr. Brassil had a shock and fell over the railing of the bridge to the ground below, this in a way accounting for the position of the coat tails, over his head.

If sufficient reasons can be shown for an inquest one will be held, otherwise the finding of the coroner and medical examiner of death through exposure will stand.

Mr. Brassil was born in Ireland 78 years ago, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Brassil. When but 17 years old he came to America with his parents and lived in the west for about 10 years, then returning to Norwich. For years he worked in various places in Norwich or in Windham. About 6 years ago he bought his home on Meeting House Hill, Franklin and lived there until January 10th when he disappeared.

He was unmarried and is survived by one brother, John Brassil of Franklin and several nephews and nieces.

REAL WINTER WEATHER HANDICAPS STORRS HENS

For the eleventh weeks of the egg laying contest at Storrs the hens produced 2331 eggs or a yield of 33.3 per cent. Apparently the hens do not like the kind of weather that we have had during the past week for they laid 381 eggs less than they did the preceding week, however, they produced 136 eggs more than last year for the same period and 382 eggs more than the eight year average for the eleventh week's production. Lady Anderson's White Wyandottes from Harrold, England were an easy first for the week with 52 eggs. A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Fernside Farm, Foxboro, Mass., was second with 45 eggs. A pen of White Wyandottes entered by Frank P. Matteson of Davisville, R. I., was third with 43 eggs. A pen of Barred Rocks owned by G. B. Treadwell, Spencer, Mass.; Woodbridge Orchards' pen of White Wyandottes from Woodbridge, Conn.; a pen of White Leghorns entered by Ernest H. Scott, Farmington, Conn.; a New York pen of White Leghorns owned by A. P. Robinson of Calverton and Hilltop Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Suffield, Conn., all tied for third place with a production of 38 eggs each.

Took Turpentine by Mistake.

Mrs. Grace Kelsey Barry of 26 Seventh street, took turpentine by mistake Friday afternoon at her home, thinking it to be nerve medicine she had been accustomed to use. Immediately on discovering her mistake Dr. E. J. Brophy was summoned and she was taken to the Backus hospital. Latest reports are that Mrs. Barry is improved and that there seems to be no danger from effects of the turpentine.

POST OFFICE WAS BUSY WITH WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

These have been busy days for Postmaster John P. Murphy and his assistants, but it is now believed that the greater part of the work incident to the maturing 1918 issue of war savings stamps is over. Postmaster Murphy expresses his appreciation of the consideration shown by the hundreds of people who have presented their stamps for redemption. A noticeable lack of coperation on their part would have made the work of adjustment very much harder.

In a statement received from F. C. Ayres, director, savings division, First Federal Reserve district, it is declared that during December treasury savings certificates to the amount of nearly $1,500,000 were either sold or exchanged for war savings stamps in New England, and this amount our own post office yielded $4,000.

Postmaster Murphy states that it is human nature to wish to see the money which has been tied up in war savings stamps for the past five years, but now that his patrons have received it he hopes that its reinvestment in treasury savings certificates will be favorably considered, not only because of the absolute safety with good interest rate which is obtained, but for the assistance which this cooperation will give to the government in financing its wartime obligations.

WOULD CLEAN UP SOME WORST MOSQUITO AREAS

"No radical changes are contemplated in the Connecticut anti-mosquito laws by the so-called 'mosquito-bill' which has been introduced into the general assembly," said Doctor Edward H. Jenkins, director of the State Agricultural Experiment Station, at New Haven Saturday. "In fact, there are only two slight alterations asked from the text of the present anti-mosquito statutes of Connecticut.

"The first allows the director to appoint deputies to carry out the provisions of existing statutes and declares that the provisions of the present statutes shall be carried out from both voluntary contributions and funds appropriated by the state. Some of the draining of the areas is now down by voluntary contribution, although these funds are far from adequate.

"The second change from existing statutes asserts that, when the funds have been provided, the director of the Agricultural Experiment Station may order the work done. Unless these two slight alterations of the statutes, the mosquito extermination policy of Connecticut, as asserted years ago, can be carried out much more effectively.

"The station asks only $50,000 to clean up some of the most dangerous areas of the state."

CIVIL WAR VETERAN IS 99 YEARS OLD

Oliver Nason, the oldest Civil war veteran in New London and probably in the state of Connecticut, celebrated his 99th birthday anniversary Thursday at his dwelling, 13 Cedar street.

Mr. Nason was born in New London in 1824, the son of Eunice Waldon of Montville and Oliver Nason of Massachusetts. When he was 19 years old he married Elizabeth Howard, daughter of John Howard of Horse Lane. Elder Swan performed the ceremony. Mrs. Nason died in Ledyard 28 years ago. Mr. Nason was a ship's carpenter by trade and was first employed by a ship-builder in Shaw's Cove.

He served as a private in Co. I, Twenty-sixth Connecticut Volunteers and as the result of hip wounds received during the siege of Port Hudson on May 24, 1863, he has never been able to walk alone more than a few steps, without the aid of a cane.

Despite his advanced years this venerable old veteran is as chipper as a youth 18 years old in spirit, if not in body. He enjoys living as much as his grandchildren. His beard and hair, which are snowy white, have not been cut since 1865.

HIGH PRAISE GIVEN FOR FONTAINE'S SINGING

Of the appearance of Henry La Fontaine of this city on the program of the New London K. of C. Frolic last week, the New London Day said:

The production is a very free verse sort of an affair with a splendid purple patch in the singing of Henry La Fontaine. Possessed of an amazingly arresting voice of compelling tone, which colors all its touches, and which in its lyrical moments has notes of gold and an unforgetable quality, Mr. LaFontaine proved a rare addition to the program, and deserves a pre-eminence of mention for he was incomparable to anything else offered. He had all the fine points of style, mastery, presence, ease, position, appearance and control; and as he took the stage one turned with confidence and expectancy to the offering at hand. This expectancy was amply rewarded for Mr. La Fontaine's performance completely fulfilled the promise made. In local production his voice has been rarely, if ever matched.

DR. J. B. SWEET, FAMOUS BONESETTER, IS DEAD

Dr. John Byron Sweet, the noted bonesetter and well known citizen of New London county, died at 5:50 Sunday morning at his home on Brown avenue, Jewett City. He had been critically ill since Tuesday, death being caused by multiple neuritis.

He was a descendant of one of the oldest families of New England, and was the seventh son of a seventh son, a fact of which he often spoke. For more than 270 years the Sweet family has been gifted with peculiar skill in bonesetting, so great that the fame of Dr. Sweet in his own locality equals that of any foreign specialist. His reputation was not confined to the New England states, although the greater number of his difficult operations and work have been done there, but he was well known also the world over.

Dr. Sweet was born May 16, 1854, in Franklin, Conn., the son of Dr. Stephen and Phebe Heath Sweet. He was educated in the local district schools and in Willimantic. He was reared to the practical work of the farm, and was early taught the principles of bonesetting by his skilled father, Dr. Stephen Sweet. He was an adept at 9 years of age. After leaving the farm he lived in Norwich until 1890, with the exception of one year spent at Central Village. The year of 1890 he went to Griswold and combined agricultural and professional work on the farm where he lived until after his wife's death several months ago, when he moved to his home on Brown avenue, in Jewett City. He had an office in Norwich and at one time in Putnam. No man ever lived a more strenuous life than he. Days without number in connection with the demands made upon him in his profession has he kept up his systematic policies of modern farming. He was a live wire of the most approved sort. It was never too early or too late for him to take an hour's recreation at breaking a pair of unruly steers, stopping in between to set a broken arm or leg, and then take up the steer job again where he left off. He was interested in town affairs, and was its democratic representative for a term, 1911-1912. He served as assessor 13 years. He was a creamery director, a member of Reliance lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F., and Undaunted lodge, No. 34, K. of P.

He was twice married. His first wife was Elizabeth Rogers of Franklin, who died in 1889. Two children were born to them—Stephen, who died several years ago, and a daughter, Mrs. Herman Learned of Versailles. His second wife was Mrs. Mary Rathburn Lord, who died a year ago. He leaves his daughter and two grandchildren, Byron and Frances Sweet. Dr. Sweet possessed a genial disposition and made hosts of friends everywhere. His death is a great loss to his profession.

He is survived by a daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Learned of Versailles, and two grandchildren, W. Byron Sweet, a pupil at Norwich Free Academy, and Frances Sweet, a student at Riverside grammar school. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Stella Sweet Perkins of Westbrook, Conn., and Mrs. Clara Home of New London. His son, Stephen Sweet, died two years ago, and the young man's wife has been the home-maker for Dr. Sweet since his own wife's death a year ago, giving him the most devoted care, especially in his illness. William Lord is a stepson. Last summer Dr. Sweet engaged Merton Bughee as his chauffeur and during the last few days the young man has scarcely left his side, doing everything in his power to aid the doctor.

Today (Monday) is the borough election in Jewett City and Dr. Sweet's name appears on both republican and democratic tickets as warden, a situation which is probably without parallel.

Girls talk of what they will do when married, and married women talk of what they did when single.

DAIRYMAN'S ANNUAL TO MEET AT HARTFORD

One of the principal features of the Connecticut Winter Exposition to be held in the State Armory at Hartford, January 23rd to 27th, inclusive, will be the educational exhibit of the Connecticut Dairymen's Association, covering over one thousand square feet, the largest and most unique of its kind ever known in this state. The many processes of making the various dairy products will be shown and explained to the public in detail.

In connection with the Winter Exposition, also the Connecticut Dairymen's Association will hold its forty-second annual convention on January 23rd and 24th.

The convention will open at 11 a. m. on Tuesday with remarks by its president, Joseph W. Alsop of Avon. His remarks will be followed by an address on "Milk Advertising" by Robert W. Balderson of Philadelphia.

At the afternoon session, which opens at 1:30, the Hon. George McKerron of Pewaukee, Wisconsin, will deliver an address on the subject "Does Dairying Pay?"

The annual business meeting will be held on Wednesday morning at 10:30 when the election of officers and reports will be attended to. This will be followed by an address by Professor A. R. Merrill of the Connecticut Agricultural College on "Dairy Problems of the Present".

At the final session of the convention Wednesday afternoon, President Charles L. Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural College will speak on matters pertaining to his institution. He will be followed by Professor V. A. Rice, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. The concluding address will be delivered by the Hon. George M. McSherrow, whose topic will be "Thirty-five Years of Dairy Progress."

It was voted to hold the next annual meeting in Norwich.

LAFAYETTE COUNCIL HAS ITS OFFICERS INSTALLED

William Wehlan and A. Paquette, both of Marlboro, Mass., officiated as president and master of ceremonies, respectively, at the installation of officers of Lafayette council, No. 207, St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, at a special meeting held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Elks' hall with an attendance of 350.

The following were the officers installed: president, Joseph E. Rochette; vice president, Henry S. Gaucher; secretary, J. B. Caron; assistant secretary, Eugene Sabourin; treasurer, F. H. Pihler; financial secretary, L. Gladue; master of ceremonies, Napoleon Beaudoin; auditors, Miss Yvonne Sabourin, Miss Josephine Sabourin, guards, A. E. Ravenelle and Joseph Jodin.

Chaplain Desrosiers and Rev. Henri Chagnon of Taftville were speakers at the meeting and the music for the installation was by the Peerless orchestra.

An enjoyable entertainment following the installation exercises. It consisted of selections by the orchestra, solos by Mrs. George H. Roberts, accompanied by Hugh Kinder, a comedy monologue by Mr. Harpin of Baltic and a declamation by Miss Rose Columbe of Baltic.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

STATE ASSOCIATION BACKS LICENSE FOR FISHERMEN

Robert B. Chappell of New London, county game warden, was elected president of the Connecticut Association of Fish and Game clubs by the 30 delegates attending the annual meeting at Bridgeport Friday.

The complete list of officers elected included:

President—Robert B. Chappell, New London.

Vice-President—Dr. James J. Conran, Torrington.

Secretary-Treasurer — A. Joseph Williamson, Bridgeport.

Legislative Committee—W. W. Ives, Norwich, Chairman; W. F. Sweet, of South Norwalk, Karl Kulle, Suffield; E. W. House, Glastonbury; E. H. Bailey, Danbury.

Considerable time was given over to the discussion of desirable legislation and the Connecticut association went on record as favoring a bill that would require all males over 16 years of age, who desire to fish in the inland waters of the state, take out a license to so engage. The proposal was unanimously approved and like action was taken on the plan to substitute a salary system for the warden service, instead of the fee system now in effect.

The association will recommend a change in the closed season on bass from Nov. 1, to June 30, instead of from May 1 to June 30. The legal length would be ten instead of eight inches under the bill.

Superintendent Titcomb of the state fish and game commission was a speaker and the meeting discussed the re-codification of the fish and game laws.

In attendance from Norwich were W. W. Ives, C. V. Pendleton and L. M. Young.

ADOPT SMALL PIG AT UNITED METAL FACTORY

"Pigs is pigs" but when a tiny one that would only tip the scales for about 15 pounds tries to "hog" the whole trolley track something must be done.

Evidently "Tom" Murphy believed this to be true for he took a small pig that blocked the track of the 6.15 o'clock trolley for New London, Saturday morning at Thamesville, and carried it to the United Metal Manufacturing plant. The porker was adopted by the employes in the furnace room and a warm bed made for it. Later in the day two quarts of milk were bought for the guest and the men at the mill although they have taken a liking to their protege are looking for the owner of the pig, which up until Sunday night had refused to squeal on its owner.

RED MEN TRIBE HAD GREAT SACHEM VISITOR

The regular meeting of Mohegan Tribe, No. 64, I. O. R. M., was held last week at Steiner's Hall with Sachem Joseph A. George in charge. The regular routine business was transacted and reports of committees acted upon.

District Great Sachem Benjamin Rose of New London, Sachem Crane of New London and several other chiefs of the New London Tribe were present and spoke briefly to the tribe. District Great Sachem Rose then called upon five members and raised three to the post of braves and two to the post of warriors.

Senior Sagamore George Farrell who has been appointed degree master announced that he had appointed the officers of the degree team and would be ready to work the adoption degree on a class of candidates during the first meeting in March.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments served.

REPRESENTATIVE O'LEARY WILL QUALIFY FOR OFFICE

Reports current in the capitol at Hartford that William W. O'Leary, one of the two Norwich representatives to the general assembly, did not intend to qualify and would not serve were declared by Mr. O'Leary Sunday night to be without foundation.

Representative O'Leary stated that he should probably put in an appearance at Hartford this week, but that so far he had been unable to attend any of the legislative sessions because of special pressure of business in his work as overseer at the Thamesville plant of the American Woolen company. The mill had been called upon to take a general inventory and there had been the transfer of a quantity of material from the Thamesville paper mill to another location, so that he had not been able to get away for the time being, but he said he intended to qualify as representative and to be present at the sessions at Hartford.

POETRY

TRUTH WE CANNOT PROVE.

I trust I have not wasted breath;
I think we are not wholly brain,
Magnetic mockeries; not in vain
Like Paul with beasts, I fought with Death;

Not only cunning casts in clay:
Let Science prove we are, and then
What matters Science unto men,
At least to me? I would not stay.

Let him, the wiser man who springs
Hereafter, up from childhood shape
His action like the greater ape,
But I was born to other things.

O living will that shalt endure
When all that seems shall suffer shock,
Rise in the spiritual rock
Flow through our deeds and make them pure.

That we may lift from out the dust
A voice as unto him that hears
A sound of better spheres
The one that yearns upon knee and trust

With faith like these—if faith be proved
The truths that never can be proved
Oh! let us close with Him we loved
And all we love, from out the void.

—From Tennyson's In Memoriam

SOMEWHERE, I KNOW.

Somewhere, I know, the sky at this bright hour
Is brighter than the best effort of the Flings to a mellow color against
Somewhere I know one frail and wistful flower
Breathes to my heart more of the magic power
And pain of loveliness than all the
That shower
Leaving the
Somewhere, I know, there is an island
Of splendor best
Like blossom in an eternal
Somewhere I know there shines for me the
Of ultimate beauty, and may I thither climb
On the pale ladder of one immortal

Wherever the air is stagnant the injury from frost is found to be the most marked.

FRENCH HAVE REQUISITIONED NEARLY 200,000 TONS COAL

Trainloads of Fuel Have Been Started for France, Manned by French Crews—France Has Been Buying More Than a Million Tons of Coal Monthly From England—There is No Evidence of Disturbance or Excitement in Essen—At Dortmund the Whole District is Peaceful—German and French Both Claim Advantage in Economic Battle.

[illegible] this morning throughout [illegible] where the seizures of the [illegible] mines occurred last week the correspondent found all the plants [illegible] Hörst, Buer, Langenbochum, [illegible] Gelsenkirchen and Gelsenkirchen [illegible] built at work although in [illegible] instances inquiries revealed that the loaded coal cars were climbing the mine shafts from the pits at [illegible] more frequently than usual. Numerous [illegible] visited were occupied [illegible] troops having been removed during the past two days.

At one of the Buer mines, when the correspondent asked to see the directorate he was referred to the workers' council. The councillors present were [illegible] hardy, clear eyed, outspoken miners, averaging about 55 years in age. They gesticulated emphatically with their [illegible] calloused hands in declaring that bread was absolutely essential for the miners' homes, and that the men would continue to work [illegible] mine directors were arrested but that the moment a French or Belgian soldier set foot in the place to stand guard all the wheels would stop turning.

There was no evidence of disturbance, excitement or troop movements in the section about here visited by the correspondent. It is reported in [illegible] quarters that the French have already brought a number of railway men from Lorraine to [illegible] the [illegible] signal towers, and the German railwaymen are likely to take [illegible]

GERMANS AND FRENCH BOTH CLAIM ADVANTAGE

Dusseldorf, Jan. 22 (By the A. P.).—The Germans and French are both claiming the advantage in today's [illegible] in the economic battle which has been in progress here for the past [illegible] days. The Germans hold that the strike of the miners is a complete success, but the French declare [illegible] the order for a general strike has [illegible] the miners, many [illegible] although they did not [illegible] to work in the morning, went down into the pits later in the day.

The Associated Press correspondent visited the mines at Altenessen, which is in the suburbs of Essen, and found practically the entire force at work. Coal was coming to the surface in quantities averaging between 30 and 40 per cent. of the regular output.

The railways are running on decreased schedule, about 40 per cent. of the trains having been called. The railway service is normal both in Essen and Duesseldorf, while the steel and iron trades are as yet undisturbed.

Telegraph and postal rates have been raised and the railway fares doubled. The new costs [illegible] marks per word to [illegible] to London and 500 to Paris. While the postal rate on a letter from [illegible] to Paris is 150 marks.

The reopening of the Duesseldorf [illegible] the Reichsbank is regarded with great satisfaction by the French, as it will ward off for the present the crisis in paper marks and postpone the necessity of the French issuing new Ruhr currency.

Despite Berlin's announcement that the government would no longer send marks to the occupied area, funds have been coming in regularly in a semi-clandestine manner, and the French have been taking the greatest care not to interfere.

COAL INCREASES COST OF LIVING IN FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 22.—(By the A. P.)—A general increase in the cost of living in France is foreseen by the coal experts as a result of the present uncertainty surrounding coal production in the Ruhr valley. While the experts are confident the French engineers backed by the army, will eventually succeed in obtaining the necessary coal from Germany, it is admitted that the difficulty and delays of the present situation are forcing French industries to make heavy purchases abroad at adverse exchange rates.

Foreign buying of coal on a daily increasing scale is becoming more and more vital to industry, since there is but a fifteen day reserve of coal in the whole country for business purposes. The railways and the public services, such as the gas and electric plants and the street and underground rail lines, are better off than the private industries, as they have supplies good for forty-five to sixty days on hand.

France today is buying more than one million tons of coal monthly from England at the price of twenty-six to twenty-eight shilling the ton.

The fundamental need of France in the way of reparations is coal, because the destruction by the German army during the war of virtually the entire coal fields of the north made the country largely dependent upon German and other outside sources for its coal supply. It is declared that French industry today is laboring under the disadvantage of a serious shortage of coal, due to the failure of Germany to fulfill her coal deliveries scheduled for the year, and this shortage, coupe with the greatly increased cost of coal abroad due to foreign buying, is expected to cause a serious rise in living costs.

The same situation applies to France's coke needs. The consumption of coke in France is about 700,000 tons monthly. Germany, under the reparations decision, was required to deliver 410,000 tons monthly, but only delivered 330,000 tons monthly last year, forcing France to buy the balance in Holland and Czecho-Slovakia at unfavorable exchange rates.

With the production of coke equally as uncertain as the delivery of coal in the Ruhr, France may have to buy the greater part of her requirements in foreign countries, thereby contributing materially to the rise in the cost of living.

A further difficulty in the coke situation is the fact that, if the ovens in the Ruhr are allowed to cool, as is possible in view of the threatened strikes, from three to six months must elapse before these ovens can be brought back to their normal production.

A clear indication of the effect German's "passive resistance" is having on the coal production is contained in the fact that, since the French went into the Ruhr, eleven days ago, only about one-fourth of the normal tonnage previously received has been taken out of that territory by the French engineers.

Of this amount but little has actually reached French industries, owing to transport and other delays.

In order to meet reparation demands the Ruhr must produce about 30,000 tons daily, seven days a week. Already the deficit from the Ruhr has caused French business to place largely increased orders in England.

Just how greatly France depends upon outside sources for its most vital needs is evidenced by the production and consumption figures. The present consumption is between sixty-five and seventy million tons a year. The present production in France is about thirty million tons. It was conceivably more than forty million tons before the war. France, under the treaty of Versailles, receives about eight million tons from the Sarre valley yearly.

The reparations commission fixed coal deliveries from Germany last year at thirteen million tons, but the deliveries amounted to only nin million. About twelve million tons were imported from England last year, leaving a deficit of from five to ten million, which is causing a reduction in the production of French industries.

Before the war France exported between eighteen and twenty million tons of coal. The return of Alsace-Lorraine, largely increased French needs for coal because of the totally inadequate supply in these two provinces with which to keep the metallurgical industry going.

French experts, therefore, see in the present situation a big advantage for England and serious difficulty for France until the French assure production of Ruhr coal.

GERAN INDUSTRIALISTS TO BE COURTARTIALED

Coblenz, Jan. 22 (By the A. P.).—The courtmartial of Fritz Thyssen and the six other industrialists brought here from the Ruhr valley, where they were arrested for refusing to obey the orders of the French, will take place in the new courthouse in the center of Mayence at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The accused men are being treated as political prisoners, Dr. Frederick Grimm, one of the defense lawyers, declared this evening that no matter what sentence is passed on the seven men, resistance of the French would continue. It is expected that the trial will not take up more than one day.

DORTMUND PEACEFUL; STRIKE HAS ENDED

London, Jan. 22.—An official French statement issued at Dortmund, according to Reuters Essen correspondent, asserts that the strike is ended and that the whole district is peaceful, but strikes are threatened in the state mines at Speier. Governor Henckelberg of Speier and the government official as Wiesbaden have both been expelled for refusal to transmit French orders.

FRENCH HAVE REQUISITIONED NEARLY 200,000 TONS OF COAL

Dusseldorf, Jan. 22.—The French today resumed their confiscations of coal, and trainloads of the fuel have been started for France, manned by French crews, by way of Coblenz and Treves.

The total amount of coal requisitioned now amounts to nearly 200,000 tons.

TROOP TRANSPORT HAS ARRIVED AT ANTWERP

Antwerp, Jan. 22 (By the A. P.).—The United States transport St. Mihiel, which is to carry home the remaining forces on the Rhine, arrived in Antwerp this morning. Embarkation of the men's baggage was immediately commenced under the direction of Captain John Bigger, Q. M. C., who expressed great satisfaction at the arrangements allowing direct transfer from the train to the steamer.

The troops, to the number of 900, under Colonel Walter T. Bates, commander of the Eighth infantry, are expected to arrive from Coblenz Thursday morning. The families of the officers and men are mostly due on Wednesday.

The arrangements, while excellent for rapid loading of the transport, make any public manifestation almost impossible, owing to the distance of the pier from the city and the fact that access is only possible to automobiles and carriages.

FRENCH HAVE RESCINDED A DEPORTATION ORDER

London, Jan. 22.—A Reuter despatch from Cologne says a French deportation order against Herr Von Lazenauer, chief collector of custims of Cologne, and president of the local finance office, was withdrawn at the instance of the British authorities.

A despatch to the Times from Essen asserts that great concern is felt in British military and official circles in cologne, owing to the French having ordered the expulsion of German finance officials in Cologne. The despatch says the expulsions cannot be effected owing to the stubborn attitude of the Germans.

The correspondent declares a prolongation of the present situation is regarded as impossible if the British are to stay in Cologne. Either the British must acquiesce fully in the French plans and sanctions or must withdraw the British troops. It is added by the correspondent that he has learned the British commander has decided to permit no further arrests or expulsions of German officials until he has received instructions from London, which are being urgently requested owing to the critical situation.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

New Aviation Policy

London, Jan. 22.—As the result of remarkable developments recently in aircraft construction, says the Central News today, government experts are preparing an entirely new aviation policy which is to be submitted to the cabinet soon, so that the increased expenditure involved may be included in the next budget.

ARE LIKELY TO AGREE ON COAL WAGE SCALE TODAY

New York, Jan. 22.—(By the A. P.)—Union leaders declared tonight they expected "soon"—possibly tomorrow—to sign a new wage contract covering the Tri-State competitive field, and thus remove all possibility of a bituminous coal strike after April 1.

Mine operators of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, with whom the labor men have been in conference here since last Wednesday, were not so optimistic. An agreement might be reached tomorrow, they said, but the signing of the contract might be delayed for days or even weeks, up to the very date, more than two months hence, when the existing contract expires.

The only official statement from the conference chamber today, made by John L. Lewis, president of The United Mine Workers of America, are concurred in by Phil. H. Penna, Indiana operator and joint chairman of the negotiations, was:

"The sub-committee (miners and operators), which has been conferring since Saturday on terms for a contract acceptable to both sides is making progress, and may have somethin gto report tomorrow."

Sponsors for the statement declined to indicate what points were being discussed; to reveal what demands had been made by the miners; or to disclose what counter proposals, if any, the operators offered. Other members of the sub-committee confined themselves to predictions that the new contract would be for one year, instead of two years as sought by the miners.

What concessions the operators offer to gain the union's consent to a one-year agreement were kept within the shroud of secrecy which has enveloped the negotiations.

Two reasons were advanced tonight by representatives of both sides for a possible delay in signing the contract, after an understandings was reached as to its ultimate provisions. They are:

1—Both the United Mine Workers of America and the operators concerned in the negotiations are timid about signing on the dotted line without assurances from the administration that they will not be held in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, both factions being under indictment in Indiana for alleged violation of the law in their last contract. The contemplated contract might even be sent to Washington for approval before it was signed, it was reported.

2—Signature would cause an immediate weakening of the "spot" coal market, eliminating any prospect for certain "spot" coal operators to profit in a market stimulated by an impending strike.

The real conflict in the negotiations is said to lie between two classes of operators; those whose output is contracted for, and to whom fluctuating markets mean little; and those who produce for the "spot" market.

LIEUT. GOV. OF OHIO WAS MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 22—Lieutenant Governor Karl Bloom, democrat of Bowling Green, Ohio, was reported mysteriously missing today. He was inaugurated lieutenant governor on January 8th and presided over the senate that day.

[illegible] to Balance the [illegible]'t Budget June 30

Excess of Expenditures Over Receipts Has Been Reduced to About $250,000,000.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Renewed hope was expressed today by high treasury officials that the government budget for this fiscal year would practically be balanced by June 30, when the next twelve months' period will begin. The excess of anticipated expenditures over estimated receipts for the year has now been reduced to approximately $250,000,000, and the belief prevails among treasury officials that that deficit will virtually be wiped out by the administration's economy program.

The optimism of the treasury, however, is not fully shared by budget officers who, while saying that the deficit will be much reduced, regard the chances of its being balanced by the end of the year as improbable. The budget bureau feels that great progress has been made in cutting the deficit from $698,000,000 last July 1 to the present figure, but said today they failed to see where further reductions of consequence were probable before June 30.

Attention was called by treasury officials to the collection of back taxes, for which a drive is being made, explaining that, whereas they had estimated receipts of $300,000,000 for the twelve months from this source, they are now confident that the receipts may reach nearly $400,000,000. Collections from June 30 to Sept. 30 last were about $78,000,000, and for the last quarter of the year back taxes were paid in to the amount of $87,000,000. Commissioner Blair had estimated an average monthly collection of $25,000,000, but the first six months of the fiscal year showed, it was said, that the collections for the year would exceed average materially.

Unofficial figures, although regarded as practically complete, show that the back tax collections for the first two weeks of January amounted to $31,000,000, or $6,000,000 more than had been estimated as the receipts for the entire thirty days' period. This figure, with a study of back tax collections previous to June 30 of last year, was said to warrant the statement that further increases may be expected and that for the twelve months will carry nearly to $400,000,000.

Increased receipts from customs under the new tariff law already have been shown, and officials believe there will be a continued upward trend in receipts from that source to help them in balancing the nation's budget.

All indications, according to government officials, point to a steady and continued flow of imports, which means that the customs collections for the fiscal year will greatly exceed the amount estimated last June.

Against these increases in anticipated receipts, budget officers made known that the sales of war department surplus property had brought only $86,000,000 instead of $97,000,000 as had been expected. Treasury officials explained that their expressions of optimism were based entirely "on what we see" and may have to be changed should unexpected appropriations by congress be made immediately available. No reports have reached the treasury that such appropriations, or at least any of importance, are under consideration.

MAGGIE CLINE, VAUDEVILLE ACTRESS, SERIOUS, ILL.

Red Bank, N. J., Jan. 22.—Maggie Cline, who won her way into the hearts of American theatre-goers a quarter of a century ago with her song, "Throw 'em Down McCluskey," is seriously ill at her home here.

While members of her immediate family declined today to discuss the condition of the old time vaudeville actress, it was understood by her friends that little hope was held for her recovery.

The "Irish Queen of the Stage" has been ill several months, suffering from erysipelas. Within the last four weeks her condition has grown more and more serious and physicians from New York and Philadelphia were summoned.

Miss Cline was one of the first of a colony of theatrical folk to settle in Red Bank about twenty years ago, and her friends number almost the entire population.

To those who called, the former actress sent a message saying she was fighting for her life and fighting hard, and that although it might be her last fight she would not give up until the end.

"Down Went McGinty," describing McGinty's wager with Pat McCann that McCann could not carry him to the top of a stone wall, was one of the songs she made famous.

But probably her greatest song hit was "Throw 'em Down, McClusky," that classic reciting the grudge between McClusky and McCracken, a braggart who dared not fight and finally supplied a negro as his substitute.

Nearly thirty years ago, when vaudeville was called "variety" and when Tony Pastor's theatre was the leading house of its kind, Maggie Cline was at the peak of her career. She was billed as "The Irish Queen" and her specialty was character songs. Many a song that was whistled on the streets in those days was sung first by Maggie Cline.

She was born in Portland, Me., and when she was twelve her family moved to Haverhill, Mass. At the age of sixteen she ran away to go on the stage. She went to Boston and got a job in the "March of the Amazons" in the famous old Howard Athenaeum in the North End. She eventually attracted Tony Pastor's attention, and once she had sung for him her future was assured.

Senator McKellar was also defeated in his attempt to strike out all provisions for passenger automobiles for government officials.

Borah Attacks French Policy in the Ruhr

Denounces It as "Ruthless Militarism" and as "Offensive Against Humanity."

Washington, Jan. 22.—French policy in the Ruhr was attacked as "ruthless militarism," a violation of the armistice terms and the treaty of Versailles and an "offense against humanity" in a statement issued tonight by Senator Borah, of Idaho, a republican member of the senate foreign relations committee. Senator Borah also criticized the state department in what he said was its policy of silence and inactivity and declared the United States should at least declare its attitude by formally protesting against the French policy.

"This is a situation," said Senator Borah, "in which the United States cannot with honor remain silent.

"The first duty of a nation is to protect its life when assailed and its highest honor and glory in victory is to be just to a fallen foe. It is this rule which distinguishes the savage from the civilized nation.

"It was American principles announced by President Wilson upon which the armistice was signed and it was upon these principles that Germany laid down her arms.

"It was our soldiers that made possible the defeat and disarming of Germany.

"According to these announcements and principles we declared officially and many times that with the German people, as a people, we had no quarrel but a feeling of sympathy and friendship. In other words, we furnished the soldiers, the principles upon which the armistice was based which resulted in disarming and rendering Germany helpless, and we also made definite and certain pledges as to the treatment of Germany. After all that taken place and at a time when Germany has been disarmed, and rendered powerless, her territory is invaded, military rule is established, and in addition to that, great financial and economic loss to our own people.

"Even before the invasion took place this government had been advised by its own representatives that great suffering must obtain in Germany throughout the winter and that thousands of women and children must die of starvation. The action of France accentuated that condition.

"In other words we see the German people turned over to the most destructive and ruthless method of militarism, of arbitrary power, and we do not so much even as record our protest. Certainly we cannot be silent under such circumstances. We should, when we saw this thing coming—and it has been perfectly apparent for months that it was coming—have called a conference and sought through honorable and peaceful methods to avoid this crisis—to adjust the economic problems involved—which would have also given us an opportunity to make clear and positive our views upon such a policy as now obtains. But this we declined to do.

"We did not even, as a matter of fact, suggest to France in a way that France felt bound to take notice, any plan whatever. We remained silent and inactive and without a policy or a program when the interest of humanity and the most vital economic interests of our own people called for us to make a pronounced and unmistakable effort to the powers concerned into a conference for adjustment of the questions unsolved. But certainly it ought not to be permitted for the world to look upon us as conniving at this program by our silence. It is wholly different from a case in which we had had no part in the war or in the conflict. We should declare our attitude, our position, and make our protest—this is the very least we can do and we should do very much more.

"The action of France is in my judgment without authority under the Versailles treaty. It is a defiance of international order and peace. It is an offense against humanity. What she is doing will not bring compensation but it will bring supreme suffering, not only to the Germans but to the people throughout Europe and incalculable loss to our own people."

REV. GRANT ASKS TIME TO DRAFT FORMAL REPLY

New York, Jan. 22.—The Reverend Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, late today wrote Bishop William T. Manning asking for further time in which to prepare his formal reply to the bishop's demand that he publicly avow belief in the Divinity of Christ or resign from the ministry.

Dr. Grant reiterated in a sermon yesterday his disbelief in this tenet of the church, first publicly expressed a week ago, and pleaded for an "unshackled clergy," thus leading his friends to a strengthened conviction that he would force the issue of a trial for heresy.

His letter to Bishop Manning this evening read as follows:

"My Dear Bishop Manning. I received Friday night your personal letter, which you had also sent to the newspapers.

"Saturday and Sundays were very busy days with matters that could not be postponed; fand today, Monday, I have had to be away from my desk most of the time.

"I shall have to ask you, therefore, to suffer a few days to pass before my formal reply is placed in your hands."

RUM FLEET IS ASSUMING THE PROPORTIONS OF AN ARMADA

Fleet Off New Jersey Coast is Estimated at From 25 to 50 Vessels—Ship Officers Report That They Are Well Armed—Drifting Around Like Ducks, Ringing Bells, Blowing Horns and Firing Guns to Designate Their Positions—Another Effort is to be Made to Establish a Twelve Mile Limit.

New York, Jan. 22.—Substitution of a twelve-mile limit for the three-mile line now drawn by international law has been recommended to Washington as a means of combatting the rum fleet off the New Jersey coast.

This recommendation, it was announced today, was an outgrowth of the conference Saturday between Acting Collector of the Port Stuart and prohibition enforcement authorities.

The theory that extension of the customs limit would check smuggling was based, prohibition agents said, on belief that the small boats running liquor from the rum fleet to shore would find it dangerous to ply far from shore.

Officials admitted that they did not expect an immediate ruling on this point, because the supreme court now was considering a similar question in connection with the search of foreign vessels bringing liquor into American waters.

Officials were concerned today over the discovery off Sandy Hook of the Cruiser H. She was believed to be carrying a cargo of liquor formerly in the hold of the British sloop Grace and Edna, which was captured last May eight miles off the New Jersey coast and later released on protest of the British government. The Grace and Edna, which was put under a $20,000 bond, was found to be unseaworthy and her cargo said to be worth $75,000 was transferred to the Cruiser H to be taken to St. Pierre and Miquelon.

The rum fleet off the coast is taking on the proportions of an armada and is well armed according to officers of two vessels which arrived today. The captain of the Roquelle which arrived from Sierra Leona, Africa, estimated the fleet at from 25 to 50 vessels.

Captnin Ernest Clarke of the Orbita saw a continuous line of rum runners extended from Fire Island to Ambrose Channel lightship, while Second Officer Martin declared he had seen nothing but rum boats. The Orbita was delayed five hours picking her way through the fleet.

"The rum boats were drifting around like a lot of ducks," Martin said. "There was a heavy fog when we passed Fire Island at 3 o'clock this morning and from then until 4 o'clock we passed Ambrose lightship my heart was in my mouth.

"They were ringing bells, blowing horns and firing guns to give us their positions. It was like New Year's night on Broadway, only more so. I slowed down to half speed when I found what the situation was, but once I had to order full speed astern and throw my helm hard over to keep from cutting a steamer in half."

75 ARRESTS MADE FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

Gary, Ind., Jan. 22—Eight officials and three former officials of Gary and Lake county were arrested here today by federal officers on warrants charging them with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Seventy-five persons in all, federal officers said, would be arrested in Gary and Lake county on capiases issued by the federal court at Indianapolis, charging violation of the liquor laws.

Among those arrested today were Mayor Roswell O. Johnson of this city; Dwight Kinder, prosecuting attorney of Lake county; Sheriff William H. Olds, William Dunne, judge of the Gary City court; Pete Person, constable; Andy Wytow; Nathan Potts and John Mullen, police officers; Clyde Hunter, former prosecuting attorney of Lake county; Lewis Barnes, sheriff and Charles J. Clemens, formerly a justice of the peace.

Three attorneys, Fred Seabright, Elias Lucas and Bryan Narcowich also were arrested. A number of citizens who are said by federal officials to have been engaged in the running and selling of Liquor also were arrested.

The alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law was revealed in federal court at Indianapolis last year, when a number of alleged violators of the law were sent to prison by federal Judge A. B. Anderson, development of the case resulted from information produced at this trial and grand jury investigations since that time.

Mayor Johnson declined to comment on his arest other than to say he was not worried. He gave the federal agents possession of his office to use as headquarters while they are here serving the capiases, and placed the Gary police department at their disposal in rounding up the indicted persons.

It is charged that the defendants, said to be members of a liquor ring, entered into a conspiracy to have members of the alleged ring elected and appointed to local and county offices, and that the conspiracy extended to the hindering and delaying of justice in the courts. The city judge, the indictment sets out, was not to impose necessary penalties on violators of the prohibition law.

A system was employed by the defendants, it is charged, whereby special judges were appointed in city court, so that attorneys for defendants could act as judges in each others' case to the end that no just penalty was meted out.

The conspiracy extended also, the indictments set forth, to procuring the release of prisoners from jail by having jail sentences instead of state prison sentences, so that the serving of sentences could be shortened.

KLAN RESPONSIBLE FOR MOREHOUSE OUTRAGES

Bastrop, La., Jan. 22—(By the A. P.)—From twenty-five to fifty arrests on charges ranging from murder to assault and battery will result from the state's open hearing into the activities of marked bands in Morehouse Parish, according to Attorney General A. V. Coco, in charge of the investigation.

"The investigation has reached the stage where it is a settled fact that the Ku Klux Klan is responsible for disorder and lawlessness in the Parish bordering on revolution, and culminating in the murder of Watt Daniel and T. E. Richard," the attorney general said today. He added that it also had been developed at the hearing that a super-government virtually had supplanted the constituted authorities.

Watt Daniel and T. E. Richard were halted on the Mer Rouge highway two miles from Bastrop on August 24 by a band of masked men and were never seen alive again, their mutilated bodies being found in Lake La Fourche on December 22.

The attorney general had been quoted as stating that the Ku Klux Klan in the Parish would be indicted as an organization. Upon his return here this afternoon from a conference with Governor Parker at Baton Rouge, however, he explained that the organization itself would not be indicted but that true bills against its officers and members could be found.

The hearing lagged today because of a heavy rain and windstorm which made highways in the parish almost impassable and prevented many witnesses from appearing.

EARTHQUAKE FELT ON NORTHERN PACIFIC COAST

San Francisco, Jan. 22.—An earthquake estimated by observers at the University of Nevada to have centered sixty miles north of Reno, Nev., was felt in many sections of the northern Pacific coast region early today.

No serious damage was reported, although a landslide which delayed traffic on a small railroad in Nevada was attributed to the tremors, as was a leak which developed in a large gas tank at Willows, Cal.

Clocks were stopped in Reno, Sacramento, Cal., and a number of northern California towns. Dishes and windows were rattled and the needles of the seismographs at the University of Nevada and University of California were thrown off the recording drums.

The trio, charged with having criminally received stolen property taken from laundries, were held under $5,000 bond each.

A total of eleven indictments, charging arson and larceny, have been returned thus far.

WOMAN ANARCHIST KILLS PARIS NEWSPAPER MAN

Paris, Jan. 22.—(By The A. P.)—Germaine Berthon, 20-year-old woman anarchist, entered the office of a royalist newspaper today and fired two shots killing Marius Plateau, one of the officers of the paper. She then turned the weapon on herself and was taken to the hospital with a wound in the breast.

The woman anarchist visited the offices of L'Action Francaise the same evening, and left a leter saying she had been a prisoner in St. Lazare prison at the same time as Madame Bernain De Raviai, who was under arrest on a charge of communicating with the enemy during the war as an accomplice of Ex-Deputy Paul Meunier, now dead.

Mlle. Berthon said she had served in prison as maid to Madame De Raviai and had revelations to make, and for this reason she was readily received this afternoon when she returned, as L'Action Francaise has campaigned bitterly against Madame De Raviai and Meunier.

She had been some minutes in Plateau's office when five shots were fired. Plateau staggered from the room into the corridor, saying, "I must have two bullets in me."

As a mater of fact all five bullets fired at him had found their mark. The sixth had been fired by the assain into her own breast.

As she was being taken to a hospital Mlle. Berthon told the doctor she regretted that she had been unable to get at Leon Daudet.

Plateau was seriously wounded during the World war and underwent an operation for tephining.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
26 Church Street Telephone 1021

The police and fire committees of the common council, with the mayor of the city and the heads of the two departments mentioned have started on a campaign for the purpose of bringing about improvements and putting into effect certain rules which have been dormant for some time. Their view is for more efficiency in the police and fire departments of the city.

The starting point of the movement was seen Monday morning in the form of two printed notices set in dark mourning frames, 10 by 12 inches, which read "No Loitering." One is set in the patrolmen's room which is designated by the police committee to be used for the patrolmen only, and the other notice is hung up in the office of Chief Daniel J. Killourey and with the same reading designates that office for the carrying on of police business only, by order of the police committee.

One member of the police committee stated that the action appeared rather stringent and business-like but that according to Rule 18 of the police station was not a community house and that it had been made so in the past by people lounging around the rooms at all times and especially before and after police court in the morning.

It is planned to hold a meeting of the police committee, mayor, chief of police, lieutenant and all members of the department to discuss the best method of having a more efficient department. One matter which has been overlooked and which will be suggested at that meeting is the establishment of a school of instruction for the police department.

An effort will be made to equalize the efficiency of the local department to that of departments in larger cities. The following aldermen comprise the police committee: Alderman William S. Jackson, chairman, Alderman George W. Hickey and Alderman Edgar W. Jacobs.

The fire committee, Mayor Gates, Chief James J. Tighe and the board of engineers, have also held a joint meeting and talked over matters concerning the fire department. The extension of the present fire district was the main subject discussed. The present boundaries are the centers of Main, High, Valley and Jackson streets. The meeting agreed that the boundaries should include Main and Union streets to a point along Milk street and back to Jackson street and to the present line on Valley street. The new territory on the east will include Jackson place, Valley street extension and the Natchaug school and St. Joseph's church property.

The western extension will include Valley street as far as the center of Mansfield avenue and the southerly extension between the westerly and easterl ylimits of the proposed extension as far as the Willimantic river. A resolution to this effect was adopted and will be presented at the next meeting of the board of aldermen. The meeting also voted to adopt a building code as in other cities and to prohibit the parking of automobiles on Bank street, between Meadow and Main streets, at all times. The present limit of parking automobiles on that section is ten minutes. An order will be given to the chief of police to have that order strictly enforced. The fire committee consists of Alderman William E. Jackson, chairman, Alderman Louis J. Flynn and Alderman Edgar W. Jacobs.

A wedding occurred Monday morning at 9 o'clock when George Raymond Downes, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Downes of Central Falls, R. I., and Miss Margaret Mary Rose Tighe, daughter of Fire Chief and Mrs. James Joseph Tighe of 189 Jackson street, were married in St. Joseph's rectory by Rev. O. S. Beaumeister. James Murray Tighe, a brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Gertrude Downes, a sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. The parents of the bride and groom were also present at the ceremony.

After the wedding a breakfast was served in the dining hall of the Hotel Hooker. The tables were arranged in a circle around the bridal table on which was a large wedding cake. An excellent and varied menu was served.

Relatives and friends who were present at the breakfast were from Central Falls, Pawtucket, Webster, Mass., New Haven, New London, Long Island and New York city.

The bridal couple left at noon for their honeymoon trip which will be spent in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Upon their return they will reside in Pawtucket, where the groom is employed. Mr. and Mrs. Downes received numerous beautiful and valuable gifts, including checks, cut glass, linen, silver, money and aluminum.

The groom is a graduate of the Central Falls high school. Mrs. Downes is a graduate of St. Joseph's Parochial school and up to recently was a buyer in the employ of the H. C. Murray Company. She is very well known and popular in this city.

After the breakfast the party adjourned to the home of the bride's parents on Jackson street where they enjoyed a social and were pleasingly entertained by vocal solos rendered by John Downes and John H. Collins.

Andrew Matsack, 21 years of age, died at St. Joseph's hospital Saturday evening. The deceased was born in Webster, Pa., Oct. 30, 1901, the son of Michael and Mary Harolin Matsack and up to his recent illness was employed at the plant of the Holland Manufacturing company in this city. Besides his parents who reside in Warrenville, he leaves six brothers, Michael, George, Stephen, John, Joseph and Paul Matsack of Warrenville and three sisters, Mary, Annie and Elizabeth of Warrenville.

Dr. Keating is a native of Manchester and overseas in France with both the Willimantic and Manchester companies of the 102nd infantry. Captain Keating delivered a stirring address which was heartily applauded by the Manchester Y D men, many of whom had been born when the doctor was there to locate in this city.

Contractor Louis W. Ives who has charge of the cutting and harvesting of the city's supply of ice for the municipal plant in Mansfield, stated that he was hopeful of having the ice houses filled by Tuesday but Sunday's rain left a deep slush on the ice which prevented work Monday. Three of the houses are filled and the remaining two are half full of ice from last winter. The ice crop this year averages fifteen inches in thickness.

There have been a good many violations of the law in this section and the court will make the penalty heavy enough so that there will not be any profit in the business.

The first sentence handed out by Judge Heald Monday morning was a fine of $400 with costs of $22.95 to George Pucek of Stafford street. It was Pucek's second offense and there were two counts against him, one of selling and one of manufacturing. State Policemen Harmon, Caron and Kelsey raided Pucek's place Sunday afternoon and secured one 15-gallon still and one 5-gallon still and about 15 gallons of moonshine. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Charming Star Makes Hit in "The Impossible Mrs. Bellew" at the Strand.

Gloria Swanson not only upheld the claim that she is the best dressed woman on the screen, at the Strand theatre last evening, but she showed a greater depth of emotion than has characterized any of her formed initial presentation of her new Paramount photoplay. The Impossible Mrs. Bellew, which, adapted from a novel by David Lisle, was given in most forceful direction by Sam Wood.

It will be recalled that Miss Swanson went to Paris recently for the purpose of purchasing gowns for use inher forthcoming Paramount productions, and it is evident that the picture presented last evening bore the first fruits of this trip. At all events, it was the most lavishly-dressed picture seen here in many months.

Conrad Nagel is quite effective as leading man in the role of a young novelist, who alone believed in "Mrs. Bellew" while Robert Cain does a striking piece of work as the despicable husband. The two Moore brothers Pat and Mickey appear as "Lance Bellew" as he was at two different ages, and both are all that one usually expects of them. thers that stand out in a splendid cast are Herbert Standing, June Elvidge, Richard Dayne and Helen Dunbar.

A fine Mermaid comedy and Selznick news were also enjoyed.

"Lorna Done Coming"

Heralded by critics throughout the country as Maurice Tourneur's greatest masterpiece, and a thrilling dramatic spectacle of unrivaled beauty, "Lorna Doone" will open at the Strand theater on Thursday.

Tourneur's fictionization of Blackmore's famous novel has attracted world-wide attention and for once the critics have forgotten to complain that "the picture is nothing like the book," hile the novel has been decided condensed in the film version, all the main dramatic episodes which have made the book a "best-seller" i n three generations have been retained and the spirit of the times has been faithfully reproduced.

For the fan unfamiliar with the novel, "Lorna Doone" offers an evening of exciting entertainment for the love story works out to a triumphant ending only after tremendous conflicts in which life itself is the stake. A spectacular fight in which one man matches his wits against the strength of a whole band of outlaws, and the burning of the 'Doone' village after a bloody battle are "thrillers" that would satisfy anyone.

Madge Bellamy, endeared to the public by her splendid work in Thos. H. Ince's "Hail the Women" plays the title role. With r beauty and undeniable charm, she should be ideal in the part of the gentle "captive maid of Exmor." Johon Bowers, one of the biggest men physically of the screen, has been appropriately cast for the role of "John Ridd." Lorna's lover who was the strongest man in Devonshire." Frank Keenan plays the regal old outlaw chief, "Sir Ensor Doone," with Donald McDonald as the villainous "Carver Doone," who meets such a horrible death in a quagmire.

Star of When Knighthood Was in Flower Makes Own Clothes

Taking one of the latest styled patterns for a dress and adroitly altering it to suit her own personality, is a gift possessed by Marion Davies, star of the Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture, When Knighthod Was in Flower, which after causing a sensation over the country, now at the Broadway theatre. Miss Davies believes in following the mandates of Paris to a certain extent, but she does not believe in being such a slave to style that all a woman's personality is blotted out.

"Be individual," she says. "Study the styles and then yourself and if the style does not become you, modify it to suit yourself. In that way you will achieve distinction in dress."

Miss Davies spends her spare time when not working in her coming productions, in designing and making her own clothes. She first studies some up-to-the-minute fashion magazine, selects a pattern, then modifies it to suit her own tastes.

"Any girl can do as much if she will just take the trouble to study her own stuyle.

Some short subjects are also included with this super-attraction. The show starts, matinees at 2.15; evening at 7.45. Doors open, matinee 1.45; and evening 6.45. Be sure and come early.

Breed Theatre

The screen production "Silver Wings" now showing at the Breed theatre is much in contrast to the hurry of Broadway and the lure of white lights. In fact it is something new and decidedly different with an appeal for the proverbial T. B. M., the flapper, the widow, the bachelor, the mother and dad, and all other humans desiring a bit of wholesome refreshment.

Mary Carr—if you haven't seen her you have a treat in store for you—again scores in the role of mother. The children of the cast are not bothered with stiffly starched waists and patent-leather shoes or are they rowdies. They are the kind that the world loves. Then they grow up and the boy who has been showered with the mother's affection becomes a regular villain and he deserves a wallop in the jaw. The Pathe news news completes the bill.

"ALMOST READY TO LEAVE"

POSSIBILITY OF A DEMPSEY-WILLS BOUT IS NOW GETTING VERY REMOTE

New York, Jan. 22.—On the eve of Jack Dempsey's arrival in the east to discuss what promises to be an active campaign for the heavyweight championship next summer, it became definitely established today that Tex Rickard's efforts to match the champion with Willard, Wills or Firpo would be futile. Wills has sunk to the level of obscurity, while Floyd Johnson, Jess Willard and Luis Firpo have stepped into the heavyweight limelight.

Wills' challenge and forfeit, posted with the New York State Athletic commission, for a bout with Dempsey still holds good. But William Muldoon, chairman of the commission declared today there seemed little likelihood of the contest being arranged.

"The Dempsey-Wills contest is hanging fire," Mr. Muldoon said, because no promoter wants to undertake it. As far as the principals are concerned, I believe both are ready to go through with a match any time it can be arranged."

Tex Rickard, who declared that he would insist on attempting to stage Dempsey-Wills contest before June 1, now is understood practically to have cancelled any plans he had made to promote it for the Polo Grounds, although he did for the bout last fall, but he is not likely to renew it for the coming outdoor season.

Canada, which was considered as a possible site last year, has registered official disapproval to a match in the dominion, largely because of its mixed character. Boxing solons in New York and New Jersey where Boyle's Thirty Acres would offer a desirable location would not, it is believed, put obstacles in the way of the bout, but it is apparent, nevertheless, that it has been placed in the discard.

With Wills shelved as an opponent, Dempsey faces a field of contenders composed of the man from whom he took the title in 1919 and several promising newcomers. Present indications are that he will engage in at least two bouts during the outdoor season one with Willard, probably on June 30 at Boyle's Thirty Acres, and another with either Johnson or Firpo probably in September. His opponent for a second bout will depend upon the outcome of an elimination series two of which, between Bill Brennan and Firpo, and Tom Gibbons and Johnson, are carded for March.

Gibbons may bound as a contender despite the fact that his formal challenge last week was rejected by the New York State Athletic commission on the ground that the St. Paul boxer was too light for the champion. His chances of meeting Dempsey will depend largely upon the outcome of his bout with Johnson, who recently impressed ring followers by the decisive beating he administered to Tom Gibbons at Madison Square Garden.

Dempsey is expected to reach New York either tomorrow or Wednesday pending upon whether he takes part in a benefit show at Toledo, tomorrow. His manager, Jack Kearns, will follow shortly afterward for a conference with Rickard which is expected to result in a definite programme of action for the champion.

BRENNAN AND FIRPO ARE MATCHED FOR MARCH 12TH

New York, Jan. 22.—Arrangements for a heavyweight boxing match at Madison Square Garden March 12 between Bill Brennan and Luis Firpo, South American champion, were completed today when Leo Flynn, the Chicagoan's manager, signed a contract for the bout.

Promoter Tex Rickard previously had received tabled acceptances of his terms for the contest from Firpo. The latter is expected to leave Buenos Aires about February 1 for the United States to train for the Brennan bout. The South American has been promised a championship bout with Jack Dempsey within six months if he defeats Brennan.

CROWD SHOWS DISAPPROVAL OF GREB AS HE WINS SLOW FIGHT FROM SHADE

Jersey City, Jan. 22.—Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, successfully defended his American light heavyweight boxing championship tonight against Billy Shade of California, in a scheduled 12 round bout which went the limit.

Greb won the majority of the rounds but was booed continually by the crowd after the fifth round because of the lightness of his attack. The bout was fast but neither man produced a stinging punch and both left the ring unblemished.

The champion used his peculiar "windmill" style, missing often, but even so he invariably landed several blows to the Californian's one. Shade was aggressive in spots and willing to exchange in the puffy rallies, but the hitting power of both contenders drew derision from the spectators.

FRONT ELEVATION OF NEW PASNIK BLOCK

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN [illegible]

Work is soon to be started on an apartment house to be erected on West street on the property formerly owned by the Chelsea Boat club by Alexander M. Pasnik. The new building will be located on the vacant lot between the railroad tracks and the old Troland property and will be a three story brick building with basement.

The building will be of muresque brick with granite trim and, will be approximately 50x50 feet. On the ground floor will be four stores approximately 11x53 feet all with plate glass fronts and modernly equipped interior. There will be eight modern apartments on the two floors above, each apartment being of three and four rooms each with a private bath for each apartment.

The interior finish will be in hardwood and plaster. The floors will be of hardwood and the trim will also be in this material. Another feature of the building will be the most modern heating arrangement which is to be installed. The heating plan is the new gas heated hot water radiator which guarantees as much or little heat as the tenant desires, according to his own individual wishes. The lighting system is also to be of the most modern type.

In the rear will be verandas for each apartment with an outside stairway. The contract has been awarded to William S. Spencer, formerly with the H. Wales Lines Co. The plumbing contract has been awarded to Johnson and Nolan. The plans for the apartment house are by Chandler and Palmer.

Work has already been started on the remodeling of the old Chelsea Boat club quarters which were recently purchased by Mr. Pasnik. The building is being remodeled into an open-air dancing pavilion and lodge room. The dancing pavilion will be located on the ground floor and can be closed in for dancing in the winter time and can also be steam-heated if desired. On the second floor will be located the large lodge room with convenient ante-rooms and other facilities. Mell and Barry have the contract and work has already been started, and will be completed in time for the coming out-door season.

Notable progress has been made on the Disco building the past week. The exterior brick work is practically completed and work is being rushed along on the interior work.

NEW LONDON.

A local architect has plans in course of preparation for extensive alterations and additions to the building located on Bank street, owned by James Malroano. The front will be extended out to the line, providing two new stores. Each will require plate glass set in copper, metal ceilings and extensive interior work. The construction of the addition will be of brick.

Work is well along on the remodeling of the garage building on Truman street, by Antonio Grippo, it now being ready for the interior trim. The work consists of converting the former garage building into apartments.

Louis Labchansky has broken ground at 53 Pequot avenue for a garage which he will erect for himself. It is to be of wood, one story high, 30x180 feet, with a concrete floor and paperoid roof. There will be 13 stalls to be used for auto storage. The cost will be approximately $3,500.

Now that five of the men indicted for the murder have been acquitted following a prolonged [illegible] indication of what an [illegible] from the other cases that [illegible] tried there, and [illegible] some [illegible] murders that there will be no punishment for those who [illegible] responsible for the deaths of their fellowmen just because they were [illegible] a work when others were not.

The outcome [illegible] will cause no surprise to many. It has been realized that if conditions in that community were such as to make possible the murders, and the horrible treatment of the dying as they laid in the street, it could hardly be expected that a community which showed no disposition to insist upon the punishment of the guilty would insist upon any other course when the tardy attempt to deal with the situation came from the outside.

Above all there are disclosed conditions in that mining center that indicate the impossibility of law and order getting recognition. Leadership in behalf of certain interests can go to any lengths and escape the penalty. It apears to be a community that is a law unto itself much like many of the sections where lynching is resorted to without any plausible excuse.

Herrin has gone through the motions of attempting to administer justice but no penalty has been applied for the atrocious murders, and from the indications it doesn't appear likely.

POLLUTION OF STREAMS.

The pollution of state streams has been going on for such a long time that it would require a revolutionary change to overcome it. As cities have developed the pollution has increased until it is recognized that it is a question of reducing it rather than eliminating it that must be faced. There may be an opportunity for overcoming some of it and preventing a further increase, and that is apparently the purpose of the special commission that has been wrestling with the investigation under appointment by the legislature.

According to the findings of the commission the division of the state into sanitary districts is recommended. This would permit of the respective watersheds dealing with their own problems, something that would be more feasible than attempting to deal with the various conditions of the entire state.

There can be no question but what it is desirable to overcome as far as possible, the detrimental features that come from the pollution of streams. To a certain extent the streams can take care of sewage and other polluting material, but when the amount of waste material dumped into them is greater than they can handle without making sewers of the rivers the cost of placing a reasonable check upon such conditions must be recognized.

Public health is entitled to reasonable consideration of this problem. Streams which fish cannot live, or streams which make shell fish unfit for food cannot be regarded as meeting these requirements.

Stream pollution is of course bound to increase unless some steps are taken to prevent it. The recommendations of the commission, made up of men who are qualified to give sound advice as the result of their investigations, should get that attention which the importance of the matter calls for. Perhaps action has been accepted in time to permit of the "step in time saving nine," but necessity through early attention dealing with present conditions will be much easier than trying to meet them some years hence.

RAIDING THE GULLIBLE.

When information is given to the country that investors in fraudulent oil stocks lost a total of $600,000,000 during the past year, it represents easy picking for some people and hard losing for a much greater number. It is a repetition of the same old story that is told each year of the glowing promises that are made by fascinating literature or hypnotic salesmen; which cause people to give up their hard earned dollars regardless of the advice of their friends and the experience of others to the contrary.

Despite of the fabulous sums that have been lost in such cases, the fake promoter still finds it possible to do business. Not only does he have to overcome the familiar experience of many in every community, but he is also obliged to circumvent the laws that have been enacted to make his work more difficult. They concoct methods of evading the postal laws and they even manage to do business in those states which have established so-called "Blue sky" laws, where dealers in stocks must submit to regulation.

The answer is of course perfectly plain. Those who have the money that interests the fakirs are not able to hold onto it against the chances for great riches that are pictured. They swallow the statements of the fakir unquestioned. They fail to inquire as to the safety of their proposed action. They entrust their last dollar with strangers when they would not leave it unguarded in the hands of friends. It indicates greater faith for a time being in crooks than in the efforts of the authorities and friends to afford proper protection.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"China must unify." Surely china must stick together or go into the ashbarrel.

The man on the corner the first hundred years the tax dodger should have much trouble.

There is a considerable part of the population that can sympathize with President Harding, ill with a grip cold.

It is necessary to admit that the drivers of the rural deliveries are deserving of much sympathy these days.

One woman says Coue has cured her of a buzzing in her head. Wonder what effect he would have on bats in a belfry?

From what one captain has to say about them that rum running fleet must be as thick and bothersome as Jersey mosquitoes.

Those trolley lines that have suspended operations are skipping the heavy expense connected with keeping the snow off the rails.

Let us hope President Harding will continue to make such progress that the Coue formula will correctly apply to his wrestle with the grippe.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Jan. 22.—Already plans are being made by both parties for senate and house floor leadership during the 68th congress. But the angle in which both parties find themselves through factional differences and the outgoing of some of the strongest men on both sides of the aisle has led present leaders to believe future leaders and policies should be determined as soon as possible and not wait till the eleventh hour, or a possible sudden call for an extra session.

In the senate the republicans have the advantage and in the house the condition is reversed. There will be some opposition to the re-election of Senator Lodge as floor leader but it will come entirely from radical and newly elected members of that body, and it is not expected such opposition will be sufficient to prevent his re-election by a big majority, should he be willing to again take up the arduous task of piloting the majority party. On the democratic side there will be a change of leadership, as Senator Underwood of Alabama declines to serve again. The contest between the radicals and conservatives has settled down to Senator Simmons and Senator Robinson. Simmons is experienced, quiet, conservative and strong; Robinson is aggressive, sharp-tongued and always in fighting trim. At this moment it looks as if the radicals and shell shock troops, of which Harrison, Caraway and Heflin are in the front rank, would win out and land Robinson.

In the house the floor leadership is the bone of contention over which the conservatives, the radicals and the farm bloc men are even now in a hot fight. Longworth of Ohio, Graham of Illinois, and Anderson of Minnesota are the only avowed candidates, to succeed Mondell, who goes out under defeat for the senate for which office he retired voluntarily from the house last November.

Longworth has the support of New England as he more nearly represents the New England view point than does Graham, who is running a close second, if not neck and neck. It is a merry row and if it waxes so hot that the farm bloc element seems to be in the lead the east may put up a candidate for republican floor leadership of the house of representatives for the 68th congress in the person of Congressman John Q. Tilson of New Haven, according to corridor comment today.

Tilson is one of the recognized leaders of the house, an expert parliamentarian, a man who has the confidence and good will of members of both parties, [illegible] Tilson is capable of holding fast to his convictions but does so in a way that stirs up no antagonisms. Even men who differ with [illegible] never lose his temper and can [illegible] in the circumstances such as [illegible] Watch he is presiding over the house as he is often selected to do in the absence of the speaker.

Tilson is a "good party man" but not an extremist.

With the fight over floor leadership growing hotter each day between Longworth of Ohio, Graham of Illinois and Anderson of Minnesota, an avowed candidate, the name of Tilson has been brought to the front as a man who would be acceptable to many members if he would consent to enter the race. This Tilson declines to do. He is unquestionably in a "receptive mood" but believes party harmony is of more consequence than personal preference, and will not stir up still further difference if he can help it. Tilson was born in Tennessee but came to Connecticut in his youth.

The great drawback against Tilson's possible candidacy is the fact that he comes from the New England section, which already holds many of the most important positions in congress and federal offices. But argue Tilson's friends, Connecticut has not been recognized in these selections, and turning down Tilson on account of New England affiliation ought not to be considered.

Since the passage of the woman citizenship bill so-called, under which women marrying foreigners do not lose their citizenship and foreign women marrying American men must submit to naturalization laws, hundreds of women find themselves without a country, to which they can pin their badge of citizenship.

These are the women who have married American men but who are themselves citizens of other countries. Or rather, they were citizens of other countries at the time of their marriage. Now their own country refuses to recognize longer as citizens and the United States refuses to make them citizens till they have complied with the naturalization laws. They are classed as aliens until such laws indeed them to citizenship. The immigration bureau is crowded with requests for special privileges covering such cases and is at its wits end how to meet them.

An American woman marrying a foreigner, according to Mrs. Rogers bill, did not lose her citizenship as long as she remained in this country, so she isn't worrying much. But her foreign sister who married an American don't know where she belongs. While the American woman can have her pudding and eat it, too, that is if we regard the American husband as the pudding, her foreign sister has lost her own citizenship and not gained one here. She must wait one year before she can get recognition from this country as one of its own people. The only objection raised to what seems a very just law is that the homecoming of Americans bring foreign wives is coupled with a good many vexations. The problem of admitting the new wife after the quota from her country has been filled is one of the hardest nuts for the bureau to crack.

But what are the soldiers going to do with these wives and numerous kids they have acquired during the long years spent overseas as a part of the American forces? Uncle Sam is going to do his best to find some way out of the dilemma and get these wives into this country, but the details have not yet been agreed on and the complete plan evolved.

Connecticut has been in the foreground of congressional affairs the past week. Over in the senate it was Senator McLean, chairman of the committee on banking and currency who steered through the senate the farm credits bill; over in the house it was Congressman John Q. Tilson of New Haven who presided over the turbulent session that marked the passage of the army appropriation bill. Stormy scenes marked the debate and Tilson was kept constantly on the alert with rulings that meant the passage or defeat of many important amendments. "Had a pretty hard working week, didn't you?" was asked Col. Tilson a few minutes after the bill had passed and he came down from the chair and took his seat with his colleagues. "Yes," said Tilson, with a broad smile. There were times when I felt I was facing 'a Roman populace' as I ruled against those men who were determined to press through certain matters under circumstances which all former rulings and precedents were against." And no wonder the Colonel felt that way, for the 435 men whom he faced were not easy to handle or convince, yet when the bill passed and even during the heated debate, Tilson held them well in hand, for he has their full confidence as an able and fair presiding officer.

There is an epidemic of grip here that has affected the president, several members of the cabinet, and struck deep into the ranks of senate and house. But it is not of a serious type thus far, and the Washington physicians state that it has no semblance to the flu epidemic of several years ago.

Since some one offered to donate a site for a summer white house the president has been flooded with letters and telegrams offering sites all over the country. Maine took the matter very seriously and the Maine delegation, acting on the request of the Portland Chamber of Commerce took up the matter with President Harding last week. They found, however, that the president is of the opinion that a summer white house beyond a reasonable motor distance of Washington is not feasible and he did not give them any encouragement regarding the Maine project, even if congress should make appropriations for such a movement. Some years ago President Wilson spent the summer in New Hampshire, but even though it was "an off year" so far as pressing business was concerned it was found very inconvenient and expensive to move and properly house the large number of attaches necessary to carry on the executive business. Former presidents used near by residences whether in the cooler suburbs of Washington, or nearby in the Virginia hills, as a temporary relief from Washington's intense heat, but even then they lost much of the comfort afforded by modern cooling appliances that have been installed in the white house, and for the past few years presidents have made no change, beyond brief trips to Maine or New Hampshire, of such short duration that no clerical or secretarial force went with them. They were practically week end trips. This is likely to continue, as congress would hardly act on a summer white house plan unless urged to do so by the president.

LUXURY TESTS

"My idea of luxury," admitted the girl who had just unfolded a handkerchief and found three holes in it, "is to be able to walk into a store and buy at once in one breath, two dozen handkerchiefs—not a measly three, or an extravagant one to piece out! If I live to be 99 I shall never forget the awe which overspread me at hearing a woman mention casually that she had just finished laundering sixty-three handkerchiefs. She said she never dared send her handkerchiefs to the laundress because they were too expensive to be lost or roughly treated, so she just stuffed them in a bag till it puffed out and then did them herself.

For days I went around visioning a shower of five dozen filmy, initialed, exclusive kerchiefs and I turned so green with envy that everybody said it must be my liver! Of course, it would be entirely possible for me to purchase two, even three, dozen handkerchiefs and still have enough money left to live on—but it is just one of these things you don't do! No more than buying two pair of shoes alike at once because by alternating them they will wear longer!"

"Well," confessed the girl who was optimistically trying to mend a run in a black stocking so it would not show, "if it comes to that, my notion of plutocratic wealth is ordering one's silk hosiery by the twelve pairs! Instead of saying, 'Well, if I put off getting that hat for another week I can stop in at the sale and buy a pair of stockings silk clear to the top,' it would inspire me with a love for all humanity if I could step to the telephone and industrially call up my favorite clerk, saying casually, 'Oh, yes, Miss Jones—I want a dozen pairs of the $3 black stockings I always get—yes, in addition to the half dozen silk and wool sports hosiery!'

"I could wear the same dress a year happily if I knew there was a drawerful of fresh hosiery unpolluted by darning thread! It would afford me that moral support necessary if one would be proud and haughty with herself and the world. When everybody wore lisle thread I did not feel that way in the least. One pair darned was just as good in effect as another pair whole.

"I suppose it is something about the devastating and degenerating effect of luxury in the form of silk upon the character. If you feel luxurious you shudder at pin-pricks. No matter how dressed up I am, if there are darns in my stockings I cringe around through life. I am not what I seem, and besides one may be run over and lose one's shoe and then the tall, handsome stranger, who performs the rescue will be fatally alienated by the sight of a hasty darn, sometimes when I'm in a hurry I just run a thread around and draw the hole together, you know, if it isn't too big!"

"The first thing I'd do with a million dollars," confided the slim creature who had just returned from a railway trip, "would be to buy a private car and get an engraved order permitting me to hitch it onto any old train I happened to fancy. There was one hitched on to us that we waited two hours at the Gap and it made me late for the family dinner I was going to! And every once in a while I could see one of those women who make you instantly conscious of every defect in your toilet, your face, your family connections, the way you eat artichokes.

"Just as impressive as that! Just as perfect! Wearing the sort of hat they wouldn't show you in the shops in a thousand years! Nothing makes me so furious when I am hunting a hat as to realize that back in the last drawer or secluded on the top shelf are a few creations kept for these pet customers. 'I'm afraid we've nothing to suit you,' yawns Clara 'Vere de Vere, who has been languidly waiting upon you. 'No, I've shown you everything, really!' But the private car is the first step and that's what I shall have—"

"I'll lend you six handkerchiefs and Sally no doubt will contribute a pair of her silk stockings for you to wear when you ride in it," kindly promised the first girl, unfolding a letter. "By the way, the landlord has raised the rent on us—this just came! We'll feel ever so luxurious when we send the check once a month!"—Chicago News.

Rosina Wheeler, Wife of Bulwer-Lytton-Husband, She First Helped Him Left Nothing Untried.

When two temperamentalists sign a life contract it is almost inevitable that its term will not be long in the breaking. A marriage which fell into this class was that of Edward Bulwer, Lord Lytton, famous author of the immortal "Last Days of Pompeii," and Rosina Wheeler, brilliant and satirical beauty of the early 19th century.

The writer first saw his future wife at a literary tea party, when he and his mother were equally fascinated by her striking beauty. He sought her acquaintance and they were married in 1827, despite the protests of Bulwer's friends, who realized that the couple were temperamentally to much alike to successfully live together. The more they tried to convince him that Miss Wheeler was unfit to be "the wife of a man of his exacting disposition and nervous sensitive temperament," the more determined he became to marry her.

But they were right, as he soon was to learn. Brilliant she was, without a doubt, fully as clever as her husband. In fact many contemporaries of the Bulwers insisted that she helped him more than a little in some of his best works. Her intellectual attainments, however, were more than nullified by her virulent tongue. Thackeray has said of her that she was like that character described by Addison, who appeared either angel or devil, according as it happened to be either light or shadow in which she was seen.

Not long after their marriage came the inevitable separation, and with it a period of the bitterest acrimony. Bulwer, anxious to obtain divorce, set over her a close and lengthy espionage, but he was unable to find any grounds. Her method of replying to his persecution was to write and have published a volume called "A Blighted Life," in which she set forth in great detail his "false, cunning, cruel and unscrupulous treatment.

Even this did not appease her wrath nor sothe her inflamed soul. When some time later her husband presented himself as a candidate for parliament, Lady Lytton waited until he had made a speech to a large crowd, when she rushed upon the platform and harangued them bitterly and coarsely, revealing their entire domestic wreck.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir William Treloar, who expresses the opinion that "it must be a dreadful thing to become a millionaire," is a former lord mayor of London and a conspicuous figure in business and civic affairs in the British metropolis. He was born eighty years ago and after graduating from King's college he joined his father in business. In course of time he became sole proprietor of the famous linoleum, carpet and mat business, whose warehouses are a conspicuous feature of Ludgate Hill, not far from St. Paul's Cathedral. Sir William entered municipal life in 1882 as a member of the common council, became alderman in 1892 and lord mayor in 1907. He might have become a millionaire long ago, had he not chosen to devote the major portion of his income to charitable purposes. He is noted for his devotion to the suffering children of London and especially the little cripples of the Ragged School Union, for whose benefit he organized each year a great distribution of Christmas hampers.

Stories That Recall Others

She Knew Where She Stood

A widely known speaker had been called by a church worker to speak at the entertainment at her church.

"I really can't," she demurred, "I have to leave the city."

She thought of another speaker and mentioned her name.

"Oh, I did try her," came back the answer. "You were to have been her substitute."

COMMUNISTS TO BRING CHARGES AGAINST BURNS

Washington, Jan. 22.—Counsel for the twenty-one alleged communists recently arrested at Bridgman, Mich., announced today that they would seek to have William J. Burns, chief of the department of justice investigation bureau, cited for contempt of court because of his refusal to answer certain questions asked him today regarding the collection of evidence against the accused men.

The questions to which Mr. Burns refused to make answer were asked by Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the alleged communists, in the course of the preparation of depositions here for use in the case in Michigan. Mr. Burns declared he had been advised by Attorney General Daugherty not to reply to such interrogations, and would do so only if compelled by the courts.

Mr. Walsh said his attempt to have the investigation bureau head declared in contempt would be made in the District of Columbia court tomorrow.

After an unsuccessful effort to question R. M. Whitney of the American Defense society relative to documents he said he had seen purporting to have come from the communists, Mr. Walsh announced he would institute contempt proceedings against Mr. Whitney tomorrow also. John D. Harris, chief of the division of accounts, department of justice, who refused to answer certain questions will be cited similarly, Mr. Walsh added.

It is not impossible for a thin man to make a stout denial.

POETRY

THE LIGHT OF STARS.

The night is come, but not too soon;
And sinking silently,
All silently, the little moon
Drops down behind the sky.

There is no light in earth or heaven
But the cold light of stars;
And the first watch of night is given
To the red planet Mars.

Is it the tender star of love?
The star of love and dreams?
Oh, no! from that blue tent above
A hero's armor gleams.

And earnest thoughts within me rise
When I behold afar,
Suspended in the evening skies,
The shield of that red star.

O star of strength! I see thee stand
And smile upon my pain;
Thou beckonest with thy mailed hand,
And I am strong again.

Within my breast there is no light
But the cold light of stars;
I give the first watch of the night
To the red planet Mars.

The star of the unconquered will,
He rises in my breast,
Serene and resolute and still
And calm and self-possessed.

And thou too, whoso'er thou art,
That readest this brief psalm,
As one by one thy hopes depart,
Be resolute and calm.

Oh, fear not in a world like this,
And thou shalt know ere long,
Know how sublime a thing it is
To suffer and be strong.

—H. W. Longfellow.

REFLECTIONS.

If one might dream in harvest time
Of joys that haunt the spring,
Or charm into the sunset hour
The tints the mornings bring;
Could one beguile from mountain heights,
Aged with eternal snow,
The rose-gleam of the early dawn,
To haunt the vales below;
If one might to the greening woods,
Where birds sang all day long,
Lure back into the withered boughs
The glory of their song;
Why, then, the golden joys of youth,
The fruits of Autumn won,
Might gild anew maturer days
In life's descendig sun.
E'en so awhile, tho' drifting down
Toward the Western sea,
I gather up fond memories
In eyes that smile on me.

Carbons of high grade are, it is said obtained from tar by a Swedish process. The powdered carbon is pressed to form electric light carbons, or larger sizes for electro-chemical work. The method is based on the fact that finely divided carbon makes up a large percentage of tar and is what gives the black color, this being due to the carbon particles suspended in an otherwise dense and transparent yellowish brown liquid.

OBITUARY

Leo Kronig.

Following a short but serious illness with diabetes, Leo Kronig, one of the best known young business men of the city, died Monday morning at 2 o'clock in his apartments at the Wauregan house. Although he had suffered with this ailment for some time, it did not become serious until Tuesday of last week, Mr. Kronig was then in New York and when he was taken ill he immediately returned to Norwich where everything possible was done to save his life but to no avail.

Mr. Kronig was born in Norwich, May 13, 1885, the son of Bettie and the late Samuel Kronig. He received his early education in local schools, and after attending the Norwich Free Academy took a course in a business school in New York city. After the completion of his studies he entered the business of his father in The Manhattan, known all over eastern Connecticut. He worked unceasingly in the interests of the business and a few years later was taken into partnership by his father.

Mr. Kronig was married in New York March 25, 1919, to Miss Rae Jacobi by Rev. Dr Joseph Silverman, rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanuel, New York city. A coincidence was that Dr. Silverman was in Norwich Sunday evening speaking in the interests of the Palestine Fund, and was at the bedside of Mr. Kronig until about an hour before his death.

Mr. Kronig was a member of the New York Athletic club, an active member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, No. 430, of Norwich, and a member of the Shennecossett Golf club of Eastern Point.

Although but a young man Mr. Kronig was known throughout the state. Being of kindly disposition he quickly made friends and always kept them. In business he was a man to be trusted and at The Manhattan people often asked for his personal services. He was of a happy disposition, a true friend and helped many who were in need. In his death Norwich loses a young life that was upright and just in every respect and for those of his family left to mourn the loss of a husband, son and brother there are many expressions of deep sympathy.

Mr. Kronig is survived by his mother, his wife and two sisters, Mrs. F. A. Stern of New York, and Mrs. Otto Nordwald of El Paso, Texas.

Joseph P. O'Connor.

Joseph P. O'Connor died Monday morning at his home, 31 North Cliff street, after an illness of about three weeks. Mr. O'Connor was born in Norwich Dec. 5, 1884, the son of the late P. J. O'Connor and Mary Ann O'Sullivan O'Connor. He received his education in the schools of Norwich and until about six years ago had resided on the West Side. He mastered the carpenter's trade and, was well known throughout the city.

He is survived by two sisters, Miss Margaret E. O'Connor of Norwich and Miss Nellie L. O'Connor of New Haven. For the past six years he had made his home with his aunt, Mary Hanna Cronin, of North Cliff street. His many friends heard of his death with sorrow.

HEARING CLAIMS FOR $120,000 OVER APARTMENT HOUSE DEBTS

Priority of mortgages, mechanics' liens and attachments, totaling about $120,000, are in question at a hearing which was begun Monday morning in the common pleas court room at New London before Attorney Hibberd R. Norman as a committee of the superior court. The committee is to find facts regarding the dates of the priority of the various claims and submit a report to the superior court regarding the financial entanglements that arose from the construction of the Highland apartments in Granite street, New London, by Giome Duca and Agostino Di Noto, who are now in Los Angeles. They were engaged in the construction of the Highland apartments during the boom times of the war.

In addition to the $120,000 in claims on which a priority ruling is to be given by the committee there are three mortgages amounting to approximately $70,000 the priority of which are not questioned.

The hearing is held on a suit brought by George F. Taylor and James W. Hillhouse of the firm of Hillhouse & Taylor of Willimantic, lumber dealers and contractors, on a suit to foreclose a mechanics' lien of about $7,000.

The plaintiffs were represented by Attorney William A. King of Willimantic and Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey; Attorney Arthur T. Keefe represents Harry J. Kennedy and Carl G. Carlstrom of New London; Attorney E. L. Smith and Attorney Broder of Hartford represent the Land Mortgage and Title company of Hartford, one of the large mortgagees, and Attorney Arthur B. Calkins of New London represents the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company.

At the opening of the hearing Attorney Calkins informed the court that counsel had agreed upon the amount of the Chappell company's claim in order to save time, and David P. Condon, cashier and bookkeeper of the Chappell company, was called to the stand to prove the amount of the claim. Mr. Condon said that the amount of the claim was $11,822.70 for material furnished from March, 1920, to October, 1921. The lien was made on Dec. 8, 1921.

George F. Taylor was then called to the stand and he gave testimony regarding the claim of Hillhouse & Taylor. He testified to the company furnishing material to Duca and Di Noto for the construction of the Highland apartments. The material was mill work and was furnished on a contract.

Mr. Taylor testified that the contract with Duca and Di Noto for the mill work was $17,360 and that material was furnished as extras amounting to $1,785.03, making a total of $19,145.03, on which the defendant paid $12,117.24, leaving a balance due of $7,027.79.

Mr. Taylor testified in detail as to the kind and quantity of material furnished under the contract and as extras, giving figures from the account of the firm.

The hearing continued all the afternoon, and was continued to next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

PAULINE FREDERICK FIRST ON SUPERIOR COURT LIST

The January additional term of the superior court will open in this city this (Tuesday) morning at 10 o'clock before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury.

The first case assigned on the list for trial is Pauline Frederick's attempt to break the will of her father, the late Richard O. Libby, who died here Sept. 1 last at his home, 121 Broadway.

His will left his daughter nothing from his estate of about $35,000. The will contained the clause: "I give and devise to my daughter, Pauline Beatrice Rutherford, nothing, and I mention this omission to show that the same is intentional, and not made by mistake."

The suit is brought under the married name of the screen star, which is Pauline Beatrice Rutherford, and is defended by the Thames National bank, which Mr. Libby made executor of his will. Attorney Hibberd R. Norman is counsel for the screen star and the bank's attorneys are Brown and James.

Pauline is at present appearing in person in the Selwyn theatre, Boston, in a play called The Guilty One, which is billed as a dramatic play.

SHOULD FEED PHEASANTS DURING WINTER WEATHER

Supt. John W. Titcomb of the state fisheries and game has sent the following circular letter to all persons who received pheasants in 1922:

It is perhaps unnecessary to call your attention to the importance of feeding the pheasans at this season of the year. Pheasants do not feed on trees as do the ruffed grouse, and during heavy snows find it difficult to pick up sufficient seed to sustain them. It is hoped that you or the persons who assisted you in distributing pheasants will ascertain where these birds are now in cover and see that scratch feed is sufficiently scattered in their vicinity. The snow should be packed down hard before scattering the feed. Unfortunately, the pheasants will not go into shelters as do the quail and the food must be distributed in the open.

All lovers of game birds are also cautioned to see that quail have shelters and an abundance of food until the snows are gone. Intermediate chick feed wit ha slight mixture of poultry grit is about the best food, although almost any mixed grains will do except that the finer they are the less the crows will get.

About 175 pheasants were distributed in this vicinity last fall.

Rain of 1.40 Inches.

The heavy rain of Saturday night showed a rainfall of 1.40 inches, according to the measurement taken at the water department office. This makes a total of 4.99 for the month so far, which is an unusually large precipitation for the first twenty days of the month.

Both the city reservoirs will doubtless show a considerable gain in the next few days from the heavy rainfall.

BRASSIL DEATH PROBABLY FROM NATURAL CAUSES

Nothing had developed Monday, said Coroner J. J. Desmond, as far as he knew, to make it appear that anything but natural causes had brought about the death of James Brassil of Franklin, whose body was found Sunday morning on the bank of a brook at Yantic, ten days after he had disappeared from his home on Meetinghouse Hill, Franklin.

The last man to see Mr. Brassil alive was a grocer who called at his home on Jan. 10, buying some eggs from him, selling him some groceries, and cashing a check for him of about $8. When the body was found there was something over $2 in the pockets of the clothing.

It was four miles from Brassil's home to the place where the body was found, and the coroner indicated that he thought it entirely possible that the man had been tired out by the walk, as he was about 78 years old, and had lain down because he was exhausted. He was without an overcoat but wore a sweater and a coat. The coat had been pulled up over his head as if an effort had been made to keep that part of him as warm as possible, very much in the way adopted by wanderers accustomed to sleeping out in the open.

Plans were made for the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the circle which comes on Friday, February 23. The anniversary celebration will take place at the Johnson Home and it is expected that every member will be present to answer to the roll call.

DANGER THAT STATE WILL LOSE SHAD FISHERY

The building of dams in the Connecticut river, thereby cutting off 75 per cent of what was originally native breeding grounds for shad and which extended from Enfield to Bellows Falls, Vermont, together with the pollution of the stream, and held by Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries himself to be responsible for the rapidly decreasing numbers of shad in the Connecticut river. Prediction is made by the superintendent that within five years the Connecticut river shad will be extinct if present conditions are permitted to continue.

The records furnished the board by the superintendent show that, though 176,086 shad were caught in 1903, the high mark for shad fishing in the Connecticut river, but 13,321 were caught in 1922. In 1890, 34,318 shad were reported as having been taken from the river, and the return for last year were the lowest of any year since state records in this connection have been kept.

The decrease in the number of licensed fishermen has kept pace with the decrease in the number of fish found in the river, but 138 licenses having been issued to shad fishermen last year, as compared with 190 for 1921, 216 for 1920, and 269 for 1918, a decrease of 133 in three years. The decrease in the number of fishermen does not account for the decrease in the number of fish caught, according to the superintendent, for if there had been plenty of fish in the river the number of licensed fishermen would have increased rather than decreased.

A study of the life history of the shad in fresh waters is recommended by the superintendent, together with a five-year closed season on shad fishing, that it may be determined whether the restoration of shad fishing under present-day conditions is feasible. In this respect it is hoped that the state of New York, which is facing very similar conditions with reference to the shad fishery on the Hudson, will cooperate.

The superintendent finds that the presence of small-mouthed black bass, which first made their appearance in the river about forty-five years ago, is an adverse factor, because bass are destructive to young shad. The conditions point to rather a gloomy outlook for shad fishermen, the present breeding grounds being limited to the Connecticut as far as Enfield, the Farmington river, the Scantic, Eight-Mile and Salmon rivers. Unless something is done immediately, the superintendent predicts the Connecticut river will soon be in the class with the Thomas and the Housatonic rivers, both of which were once famous shad streams.

DANIELSON

The streams of Killingly, so Ezra street, financially, these days; that is, there is much chase and scarcity of "jack" on hand —comparatively money—as the result of a tax settlement with certain manufacturing concerns owning property and doing business in town. Of course, the town has a bonded indebtedness, but perhaps in its history has it happened to receive $50,000 in tax money, or thereabouts, during what might be termed the closed season for tax collections. But that is one of the happy incidents in the town's affairs during the present month, so Killingly is now well fixed for operating capital.

This has all come about through the withdrawal of appeals by the Quinebaug Mills, the Quinebaug Cotton Mills, Inc., and the Goodyear Mills, Inc., from assessments on their properties by the board of assessors who compiled the lists for 1921 and 1922. The cotton spinning concerns thought the assessments too high, excessively so in fact, and took their troubles in a formal way before the members of the board of relief. Failing to obtain the sought for relief, the manufacturing companies took their troubles into the superior court, where the cases have since been pending trial.

Just what brought about the change in attitude on the mill companies in their tax assessments is not apparent, nor has [illegible] for the public relative thereto, but Tax Collector Elbridge A. Williams has just received a check from the Goodyear Mills, Inc. for $27,100.72, paying all taxes and interest in full, either [illegible] from the Connecticut Mills company and its affiliated concern, the Quinebaug Cutting Mills, in regard to the [illegible] property has brought the total of settlement receipts from the group of mills up to $50,000 [illegible] that closes this particular chapter of taxation matters in Killingly.

A man who saw the accident said Yip looked up all too late, let out one ear-splitting yip and was crushed out of this "sweet existence." That's tragic enough on all hands.

Somehow the police didn't seem to know anything about the accident whereabouts were asked about it, so inquiry was made at the laundry. Yip said it wasn't true and he ought to know. Furthermore, he declared that he isn't Yip, anyway as the pigtail swinging outside the laundry indicates he might be. Yip has been in China for five months, having a little holiday, and incidentally showing the Flo Ziegfeld brothers the newest things in Mongolian silk shirts and other smart haberdashery.

It is understood that Yip said before he started on his little jaunt to the Orient that Charlie, who is now running the laundry, was his nephew. Charlie says now that Yip is his cousin, or maybe his father-in-law. It seems to be a little uncertain about this. However, Charlie says of himself that he has never been killed on a railroad as yet, and in the present world he more careful of his prospective profits when carrying a washing. Besides Charlie is always busy and never has been across the railroad track since he came to Danielson.

Aside from these local observations, the story about Yip being killed is absolutely accurate and will leave it to the most expert gossip what [illegible] and then to the facts rather than spoil such a choice morsel of "news."

PUTNAM

This city is being surfeited with stories of a wild nature about Klukism. Investigation shows that they are 100 per cent. bunk. Weird yarns that are repeated and gasped at by hundreds of people, yet there isn't a word of truth in them.

Every day brings a new crop of these ridiculous stories, all fabricated for the entertainment of the credulous. A bit of good advice offered here Monday is as follows: "Don't repeat such stories".

This carnival of peddling hair-raising stories is undoubtedly due to the wide publicity that the hooded orders has received in the press during the past few months. There is no foundation whatsoever for the stories with a local flavor that have been circulating about Putnam, and to allay the unrest that such stories cause occasion was taken to discredit them from one pulpit here on Sunday.

"Forget the gossip" is the slogan of Putnam's sane and sensible people of all races and faiths. Such talk cannot possibly do any good and constantly repeated is capable of doing much harm.

There isn't a thing officials say in Putnam to give rise to any such mess of foolish talk as has been going the rounds for the fortnight.

As a sort of white frosting on a slush mélange the weather man sent along a little more snow Monday morning and further stopped the fleeting good nature of humanity that has had to endure so much and so many varieties of bad winter weather since the first of December.

Outside the business section it was practically impossible to go about much in Putnam during Monday without wearing rubber boots as the only real protection against wet feet. There were stretches of cleared sidewalk, but one has to cross the street occasionally in going about and, that's where the trouble lay. The streets were slushy notwithstanding their clean covering of white.

Street Supt. Dumas and his force of men cleaned the business section very promptly. Incidentally snow removal is costing a lot of money this winter. The city, the town and the state through its highway department are finding that such winters as these eat big holes in contingency funds.

Stanley Kelley, erstwhile head of a school for boys in Pomfret and identified with boys' camp work in Woodstock, the past few years figured in the city news of New York Monday, when the Metropolitan papers printed feature stories of a raid on Cushman's cabaret in Greenwich Village resort, frequented by flappers and the cake-eating males of the species.

Mr. Kliey is represented as being secretary of the Washington Square association, which engages in various activities tending to uplift the moral standing of the risque community known as Greenwich Village, and which abounds in long haired men and short haired women.

It appeared by the printed stories that the Sunday night raid at Cushman's was made at the behest of the association which Mr. Kelley represents as secretary. A squad of blue coats and plain clothes men entered the place about midnight when the lights were at their lowest and the jazz at its highest and took 22 young people into custody—12 youths and 10 girls, the youths varying in age from 18 to 22, the girls from 15 to 22. Secretary Kelley congratulated the inspector in charge of the police after the raid and said that through such efforts "the village could live up to its best traditions and be a fit place for home loving folk, and artists to live in."

Among the youths arrested were two who claim to be students at Princeton and others who are students in other higher institutions of learning in and about New York. The girls, when at work, are chiefly engaged as stenographers.

Among the charges that will be filed against the prisoners are violating the "dry" laws, disorderly conduct and juvenile delinquency. One of the girls already has been ordered committed to the Florence Crittenton home.

The raid created a sensation in the village, where Cushman's had repeatedly been complained about as a public nuisance.

The practical value of student training at the State Trade School is shown in the wide variety of experience offered by work in process at the present time. This work is of a definitely practical nature which must be performed in strict accordance with the established standards for such work, not only technical knowledge that it possesses.

The following types of jobs forms the basis of instruction in the school at the present time.

Cotton Textile Department—Weaving 120 yards table cloth pattern on jacquard loom; involving: cloth analysis, and designing, study of jacquard motions, setting of the machine for satisfactory performance of the work.

Making two thousand pounds, No. 16 hosiery yarn from the raw cotton; processes comprising breaker-picker, intermediate, card, drawing frame, slubber, roving and spinning frames, winding, weighing, sizing, testing for strength. Math. involved: fractions, ratio and proportion, percentage, square root. Technical: knowledge of cotton staple, effect of moisture on fibre, textile terminology, production costs, cost per unit; routing of material through the various processes.

Making 100 pounds four ply twine giving the student experience on making twine in various plys, figuring ratios, percentage of twist, etc.

Weaving scotch plaid pattern on box loom; drawing in, box loom calculations, types of boxes, speeds, threads per inch, harness motions and multiplier head settings. Math.

Mechanical Drawing Department—Drawing map 4x6 of state of Connecticut, lettering; use of terms as applied to drawings, English suitable to make concise statements in connections with methods of construction or other necessary instructions required to do the work.

Related math. for all trades taught in this department.

Electrical Department.—Installing fire gongs in school, charging batteries, installing porch light, wiring houses, making meter board, repairing electric iron. Math. involved: fractions, common and decimal, ratio and proportion, powers and roots, areas, volumes and weights, application of formulas, drawing, laying out of lighting systems, wiring diagrams.

Technical knowledge: study elementary electricity, magnetism, electromotive force, resistance, electric circuits resistance of wires, magnett induction, rewinding one 5 h. p. motor, 1 three h. p. motor 1 one-half h. p. motor. Wiring two houses for lighting.

Machine shop practis as related to this work is carried on during certain periods of the week in the machine shop, for instance in the repairing of a motor the youthful electrician takes out burned coils makes a form, rewinds the proper amount of wire in the coil, places it in position, and where any machine work is required on the motor this is done in the machin edepartment by the student. It is aimed to correlate the academic and related subjects with the trade so as to properly balance the trade experience.

Carpentry Department—Carpentry department experience covers a wide range of woodworking from the framing and cutting of material for cottage house, designing in the drafting department, to the making of boxes, cabinets, sash and screens, ventilators flower stands, electric floor lamps, bookcases, library tables and battery boxes. Math. involved: fractions, decimals, areas, volumes, square root, knowledge of the steel square, and its application, to carpentry problems estimating costs, proper shop procedure, care of tools and equipment.

It is the aim of the school to as far as possible provide a general training or to develop all round tradesmen. It is not the desire of the school to subject instruction to one type of work and thereby produce a specialist. It is felt that if the boy wishes to specialize after receiving a broad training as an all round mechanic he can do so to far better advantage than if he has had but limited experience as a machine hand or on one particular type of work or process.

Machine practice being a subject related very definitely to mechanical drawing every student taking drafting is required to spend from 1-4 to 1-3 of his time in the machine department attaining first hand knowledge of the machine processes and developing his judgment. This gives him great adaptability and naturally makes for a superior type of machine draftsman or tool designer. An instance of the adaptability acquired by this experience was shown in the case of a graduate who in the summer of 1920 was unable to find employment in the drafting trade but was able to go into a machine shop and carry on successfully until favorable opportunity developed in his regular trade.

Machine Shop Practice—General instruction in machine operation, principle involved: turning and screw threading, making small beveled gears, making 6 special locks, cutting gears, making automatic machine parts for paper box manufacturing, grinding shims, reboring cylinder for automobile, repairing printing press, making special taper reamer for textile mill, making special treated nickled steel studs, reboring pulleys, building one magnetic chuck complete in cooperation with the electrical and drafting departments. Analysis of this work as a type job shows percentage of instruction as follows: trade drawing, 15 per cent., technical knowledge 10 per cent., science 10 per cent., math. 20 per cent., manuel dexterity 15 per cent., manipulative skill 10 per cent.

It would appear that trolley road patrons along the lines of the Putnam division may expect a further reduction in fare charges about April 1. In any event there is to be a reduction on some of the company's lines in Connecticut so that 12 rides will be available for 50 cents, instead of 12 for $1.00, as at present. No information was available in this territory Monday as to whether the reduction will apply to the Putnam lines. Furnishing service between Central Village and North Grosvenordale and between Elmville and East Killingly.

A real estate transfer of interest is that in which Charles Bove, who is in business in Main street, has acquired by purchase the Eric H. Johnson property on Main street.

Putnam men are included in the recently organized Danielson Rod and Gun club, which hopes to have a membership of 100 by summer and will devote its energies to obtaining game and fish for distribution all through this part of the state.

Dependable flivvers have finally had to be laid off the job and replaced by sleighs where travelers find it necessary to go out on country roads in this corner of the county.

Hyde Smith of Worcester was in Putnam Monday on a business trip.

John G. Johnson is resting in the south after a long period of arduous work, the strain on his health having been so great as to force him to relax for a time.

JEWETT CITY

The borough election Monday afternoon gave the counters one of the most complicated propositions that has ever been encountered here. On account of the death of Dr. J. E. Sweet, which occurred Sunday there was no time for new ballots.

Matthew Geary, the newly elected warden, will serve one year to fill the unexpired term of J. H. McCarthy, resigned.

He has lived in the town practically all his life and some years ago was foreman of the fire company. He knows all about the roads and is [illegible] of the borough. His views are sound and progressive, [illegible] in politics. However, in his election he secured the support of both parties. It always was [illegible] outstanding characteristic of Mr. Geary to be interested in the best side of things. There can be no doubt that he will seek to multiply the efficiency of any agency over which he may have control, for the advancement of the borough's interests.

Christine Marshall was seriously injured while sliding down Lafayette hill Saturday when she slid with great force into a pole, breaking one rib, and injuring her left side. Dona Ballou took her to his home where she remained for some time before being removed to her home.

Dr. Hugh Campbell will conduct a clinic in the Red Cross room on Friday at ten o'clock.

A. J. Yeager has just received a few cases men's and women's four-buckle overshoes. Will be sold at reasonable prices.—adv.

Nathan Babcock was knocked down by a sled on Taylor Hill the latter part of last week, and has since been on the sick list as a result. He stepped out of the way of one sled and was struck by another.

D. D. G. C. Jacob Wechsler and staff of Undaunted lodge No. 31, K. of P., installed Orient lodge officers of Danielson Monday evening. A fine collation was served.

Wechsler's Undaunted Mighty bowling team will bowl the Willimantic lodge bowling team at Norwich Wednesday evening. Quite a number of Undaunted rooters will follow this team down to help bring home the bacon. It is the finest fraternal bowling team in the country and they are ready to meet any K. of P. team that wants a game.

The republican and democratic committees that appointed wah power to fill vacancies on the party ticket, were confronted with some unusual conditions Monday morning. It is not often that the leading name is eliminated from both tickets by death as in this case. Dr. J. E. Sweet died almost on the eve of election. He [illegible] was no one certain in that his name appeared as the candidate for warden on both tickets.

Monday morning the joint committee agreed on the name of Matthew Geary to take the place of Dr. Sweet. The tickets were already printed, so every one that voted for a warden other than J. E. Sweet had to write the name in the blank space provided.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

Your other organs may need attention first because their work is most important.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition commence taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, because as soon as your kidneys begin to improve they will help all the other organs to health.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone.

Thousands and thousands of people everywhere have testified that the mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized, and that it stands the highest for its remarkable results in distressing cases.

Symptoms of Kidney Trouble.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you suffer from annoying bladder troubles, frequently passing water night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment, headache, backache, lame back, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble in its worst form may be stealing upon you.

Swamp-Root Is Pleasant to Take.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTE—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. This gives you the opportunity to prove the remarkable merit of this medicine. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

REACTION IN MARKET.

New York, Jan. 23.—Speculators for the decline endeavored to bring about another reaction in today's stock market, utilizing the unfavorable week-end developments abroad as an excuse, and while they succeeded in depressing a number of the active issues they failed to bring out any large volume of stock or to break through last week's low levels. This was regarded by some market observers as an indication of the market's inherent strength but others were inclined to regard it as merely reflecting a "watchful waiting" attitude on the part of large traders.

Opinion is general that the European situation is exerting a decidedly restraining effect on business and that public participation in the market is a negligible factor. Some uneasiness was caused today by the further depression of French and Belgian bonds, a number of which established new low records; another slump in foreign exchanges, some of which are approaching their November lows, and news of railroad and miners' strikes in the Ruhr.

Demand sterling was quoted around $4.65 1-2, as compared with last week's high of $4.67 1-4. French francs dropped to 6.34, as against Saturday's close of 6.49 1-2 and the extreme low of 6.17 established last November. The high mark of 7.44 this year was made on January 2. Italian lira sold around 4.70 and German marks were selling at .0047 cents, only slightly above the low of all time, .0042 cents, which was established last week. The abrupt break of 56 points in Danish exchange was generally believed to be the indirect result of the weakness of German marks, which have been heavily traded in in Copenhagen.

Major activity in the industrial list centered in Baldwin and Studebaker, the former showing a net loss of 3-4 and the latter, 1-4. Pan-American issues were active and strong on official announcement that the company has no immediate intention of offering a $25,000,000 issue of 7 per cent preferred stock, Saturday's reports to that effect arising from a misinterpretation of an amendment of the company's certificate of incorporation. Pan-American also touched 88 and then reacted to 87 5-8 for a net gain of 1 7-8 and the B closed at 80 1-4 for a net gain of 1 5-8.

Weakness of International Paper, which closed at 49 7-8, a net loss of 1 5-8, was predicted on the speculative belief that the annual report would show a large operating loss. Reynolds Spring broke more than 3 points on announcement that the company intends to put out another issue of 75,500 shares of common stock at $12 a share. Owens Bottle was active on speculative anticipation of an increase in the dividend at the next meeting. Steel & Tube Preferred touched 106 7-8 on a revival of reports that it was to be retired soon at 110, but it reacted later to 103 1-2 for a small fractional loss.

Fisher Body broke more than 5 points on reports of new financing and Kelsey Wheel was off 6 points on a small turnover. Wilson & Company was strong on reports of higher earnings. Pressed Steel Car Preferred which has been under pressure as a result of speculative uncertainty over the dividend, rallied 2 1-2 points on reports that the dividend would be paid.

Railroad shares eased with the rest of the list with the most activity in the low priced issues. Southern Railway, which enjoyed a period of strength last week, was quite active around 29, closing with a fractional loss. New York Central dropped 1 point to 93, or 2 1-2 points below the high of the year. Union Pacific established a new low for the year at 135 5-8 but rallied a point later.

Call money opened and held at 4 per cent throughout the day. All time money maturities are quoted at 4 1-2 and 4 3-4 with a few loans up to 90 days being reported at the lower figure. The bulk of the commercial paper business in prime names is done at 4 1-4 per cent.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 22.—A further liquidation of foreign bonds by frightened investors, which carried more than a dozen issues to their lowest quotations in all time, was the outstanding feature of today's bond market. Virtually all the active French and Belgian issues touched new bottoms, the losses ranging from 3-4 in the case of Belgian 6s to 2 3-4 in the case of Lyons 6s. Prague 7 1-2s and Czecho-Slovakian 8s also hit new lows.

U. S. government bonds, on the contrary, were firm. The first 4 1-4s advanced 36 cents on $100, the Victory 4 3-4 and the new 4 1-4s were unchanged, and the other active issues showed net gains of 4 to 8 cents.

Principal interest in the domestic list centered in the announcement that the $10,000,000 offering of the Northern Pacific Railway Company's refunding and improvement mortgage 6 per cent bonds had been oversubscribed, and the books closed. They were offered at 9 to yield about 5.05 per cent.

Among the listed industrial bonds, Marland Oil 8s broke 2 points and Cerro De Pasco Copper 8s and Liggett & Myers 7s were off 1 each. Child Copper 7 1-2s were strong. The weak spots of the railroad list were Missouri Pacific General 4s, Baltimore & Ohio Convertible 4 1-2s and Kansas City Southern 5s, each off 1 point. Brooklyn Rapid Transit 7s and Third Avenue Adjustment 5s each sold off about 1 1-2 points each.

Total sales (par value) were $10,281,000.

New London county has two forefathers born citizens in its delegation in the house, both of whom were born in Canada. Six of the 30 representatives were born outside of Connecticut, but twelve were born in the same towns which they now represent.

WINTER WEATHER BRINGS NO JOYS TO TROLLEY

If you want to be friendly with the motorman or conductor on your trolley car, don't tell him you are enjoying the winter weather we are having for it's a ten to one shot he won't agree with you and if he has time to talk with you he will tell you that for almost a month now he has been working day and night to keep the cars running. He will tell you that during the day he has been running passenger cars and during the night he has been running the snow plows to keep the lines free from snow or ice and that in some cases he hasn't stopped working for 24 hours a time. And he'll tell you, too, how much time he has lost because of autos stalled on the track, and autos broken down on the track, and every time he is delayed even if only for a minute or two, it means another delay to the car waiting for him on the next switch.

And don't mention the joys of winter to the man in the repair shop either, for he can't see them, and he'll tell you that, he, too, has been working day and night, and that 16 and 18 hours of work out of the 24 hours hasn't been at all unusual for him. And he'll tell you of being called out and working all night in the snow and ice to put a car on the track, and of working all night in the pit, under a car that is dripping snow and ice water down his neck, so that that particular car may go out as a "shop extra" in the morning, for the high ice and the water in the tracks raises the dickens with the motors and electrical equipment.

And the trackman will tell you of the nights that he has worked in keeping the switches clear of snow and ice, and of the time he has had to put in in keeping catch basins open so that the water may drain off, and of the hours he has worked with a pick and shovel digging out the ice between the rails where the motors of the car were rubbing.

And the dispatchers will tell you of the troubles they have had in trying to keep the cars moving on time in spite of it all, and the lineman will tell you there's no fun in climbing a pole covered with snow and ice.

Unless you want to start an argument right away quick, and perhaps a hot one, too, it may be better to speak well of winter to the ice-man rather than the trolley employe.

Not Nice

That dingy film on teeth

Millions now combat it

You see today white glistening teeth—teeth that look clean and safe. And you see dingy teeth.

Let us show you where the difference lies. See what a change can come in a week. Ask for this ten-day test.

Combat the film

Film is what makes teeth cloudy, and film ruins teeth.

That is the viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

It is curdled

Dental science, after long research, has found ways to fight that film. One acts to curdle it, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. These two great film combatants have come to millions by it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Careful people of some 50 nations now employ it, largely by dental advice. New beauty and new safety have come to millions by it.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Nevertheless a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Manifold power

Pepsodent also gives manifold power to Nature's tooth-protecting agents. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids. Thus, night and day, tooth enemies are fought as they never were before.

A delightful test

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then you will know how to beautify your teeth. You will know how to better protect them. This is too important to neglect. Cut out the coupon now.

NORWICH TOWN

The Apostle John, was the theme of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey's sermon at the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church. The text chosen was John 13.23. Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom, one of His disciples, who Jesusloved.

By request, Rev. Mr. Bailey read a notice of the 46th annual meeting of the United Workers, which is to be held in Park church parish House this (Tuesday) evening at 8 o'clock; also an invitation for as many of the Norwich Town Congregational parish as could do so, to attend the special evangelistical meetings at the Central Baptist church, during the next two weeks, when the Rev. York A. King of Boston, will be the speaker.

The Intermediate society of Christion Endeavor, held an interesting meeting at 3 o'clock, planned by the missionary committee, with Reginald Avery and Carl Freeman leaders. An impressive exercise entitled What are the Boundaries of God's Salvation? This was in the form of questions and answers, with Miss Doris Browning, teacher. Among the members who participated, one gave the boundary of his home; another the boundary of a town; another the boundary of a state; another the boundary of the country; and the last the boundary of the world. This final answer was by saying, the north pole is on the north; the south pole in on the south; and the uttermost parts on the east and west which was the correct answer.

At the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at 7 o'clock, the subject was Evangelistic Missions at Home and Abroad. The The missionary committee, Miss Helen Schwenk, chairman was in charge of the meeting. Ralph H. Marsh, president of the society offered prayer, and Miss Jessie E. Hyde read the scripture lesson. Miss Marjory Merry was the pianist. The lecture on the Far Flung Line, was read by Roy Mr. Bailey, which was illustrated by stereoptican slides, showing much of the work of the seven societies at home and abroad. These societies all Congregational, are as follows: American Board of Missions, Congregational Home Missionary society, American Missionary association, Church Building society, Congregational Educational society, Sunday School Extension society and Fundaf ro Ministerial Relief.

Benediction by Rev. Mr. Bailey closed the very impressive meeting. Walter Durr was in charge of the stereopticon machine.

At the Congregational prayer service Thursday evening in the chapel the topic will be The Worship of Ge

Had Jolly Sleigh Ride.

One of the most delightful sleigh rides of the season was enjoyed by a party of Norwich Town young people Friday evening to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Wheeler of Lefflingwell. Upon their arrival a bountiful supper was served, afterwards dancing and music was enjoyed. The party broke up in the small hours of the morning, thanking Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler for a jolly good time.

Mass of Requiem.

A month's mind mass of requiem for the late Mrs. Mary Sullivan was offered in St. Mary's Memorial church Monday morning at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan. Relatives and friends attended the service.

Ceased Work Because the French Refused to Release Fritz Thyssen—Miners' Strike Appears to be a Complete Failure—The French Have, With the Authorization of the British Authorities, Expelled Count von Roedern From Cologne—Measures of Repression Are Being Carried Out by French Officials—Germany Has Sent Notes to the French, British and Belgian Governments Protesting Against Coercive Measures in the Ruhr—French Report a Considerable Movement of German Troops in Unoccupied Territory.

(By the Associated Press)

Many thousands of steel workers in the Ruhr district have put their strike of one into operation in protest against the arrest of Fritz Thyssen. The mine workers, however have failed to carry out the orders of the German government, and not only are digging coal and sending it to the surface, but are increasing their productive activities. Meanwhile the railway service is reported to be almost normal. The future action of labor, however, is believed to depend on the outcome of the trial of the German industrialists, which is fixed for Wednesday at Mayence.

The German customs officials at several places are on strike, and the French are making arrangements to fill their places.

The French officials report a considerable movement of German troops in the Cologne non-occupied territory. The meaning of this is not indicated.

The Italian premier Mussolini is reported to have declared that Italy has made no offer to intervene in the Ruhr situation, but has merely advised moderation on the part of France and warned Germany of the dangers of reaction.

Isolation of the Ruhr region, as threatened by France in case of a general strike, is considered not likely to become effective, because the Germans must continue to operate the trains in order to bring in food supplies for the populations.

FRENCH CONTINUE THEIR MEASURES OF REPRESSION

Duesseldorf, Jan. 23—(By the A. P.) The French continue their repressive measures towards state officials refusing to obey their orders, but appear to have abandoned the idea of placing the delinquents in jail, contenting themselves with dismissal and expulsion.

The expulsion of Count von Roedern from Cologne was carried out today by the French, with the authorization of the British authorities, despite the strong protest of von Roedern, whose appeal for British protection failed.

In the Rhineland, measures for the collection of the coal tax and taking over the state forests are proceeding slowly, in the face of the resistance of German officials. The customs employes at the Mayence Central Station declined to work under French supervision and quit this morning. Herr Pendell-Below, the Reich commissary of forests at Wiesbaden, who refused to turn over the records to the French, asserting that the Wiesbaden forests did not belong to the state, but the municipality, was dismissed from office today and expelled. He is the third Reich official at Wiesbaden to be expelled in the past five days.

The switchmen and trackwalker at the Meiderich and Oberhausen yards in the Belgian zone of occupation, also quit work this afternoon after damaging the switch boxes. The train service in the Ruhr is generally a little below normal, but has improved since yesterday. The output of the coal mines is increasing hourly according to the French, and a personal investigation seemed to bear out the statement that there was a twenty per cent. improvement in production above yesterday.

The labor bureaus at Meunster and Elberfeld are making efforts to induce the miners to strike in a body if the industrial magnates are sentenced to jail tomorrow, but in general the response to strike orders has not been as enthusiastic, except in the case of the Thyssen plants, as might be expected from population in a patriotic protest against foreign occupation.

The French have not been able to despatch to France, the coal requisitioned today, and there are nearly 30,000 tons of coal and coke dumped near Ludwigshafen awaiting French crews to take the barges to Strasbourg.

The Duesseldorn Nachrichten, which was suspended, will be permitted to resume publication on February 1, provided the editors enter into an understanding to refrain from printing articles criticising the French occupying forces.

The absolute necessity to transport foodstuffs into the Ruhr to feed their compatriots is the main cause of the failure of the railwaymen's strike, as the French permitted it to be known that complete isolation of the Ruhr from the outside world would follow a general strike, and the railroaders would be responsible for famine and starvation. Up to the present the French have requisitioned no foodstuffs and have forbidden the soldiers even to buy provisions in the open market.

CONSIDERABLE MOVEMENT OF GERMAN TROOPS

Essen, Jan. 23—(By the A. P.)—A French official statement issued this evening declares that a considerable movement of German troops has taken place in German unoccupied territory. No details are given.

Belgians Arrest Burgomaster

Duesseldorf, Jan. 23—(By the A. P.) The Belgians have arrested the burgomaster of Duisburg.

ITALY HAD WARNED BERLIN OF DANGERS OF REACTION

London, Jan. 23—Benito Mussolini, the Italian premier, today explained his attitude on the Ruhr crisis to his cabinet, says a despatch to the Central News from Rome.

The premier asserted that Italy had made no offer to intervene in the situation but that it had warned the Berlin government of the dangers of reaction and advised France to exercise moderation.

The Ruhr problem had not yet reached a deadlock which would justify an attempt to step in and try to arrive at a solution of it, he said.

The premier added that he had instructed the Italian engineers sent to the Ruhr to abstain from acts of a political character.

The cabinet fully supported the premier's attitude.

GERMANY SENDS PROTEST TO FRANCE, BRITAIN, BELGIUM

Washington, Jan. 23 (By the A. P.)—A note protesting against the French and Belgian attempt "to force with terrorizing measures German officials to render assistance in the execution of illegal measures aimed against their own country" through expulsion of officials who refuse to cooperate with the forces of occupation in the Ruhr, was made public by the German embassy tonight after it had been handed to the French, British and Belgian governments by the German representatives at Paris, London and Brussels.

The embassy also made public another note delivered today to those government and to Italy, defining the German position as to the ordinances issued by the inter-allied Rhineland commission covering the occupation which, it contends, "are in contradiction with the Rhineland convention" and have no legal value and are not to be complied with" by the local German officials.

65,000 EMPLOYES OF THE THYSSEN PLANTS ON STRIKE

Hamborn, Jan. 23—(By the A. P.)—Sixty-five thousand employes of the Thyssen plants in this city and Muelheim went on strike today, owing to the French refusal to release Fritz Thyssen, who is held at Mayence awaiting court-martial for refusing to co-operate with the occupational authorities. No disorders have been reported among the strikers, but the French are reinforcing their effectives in the strike area.

General Degoutte, commander-in-chief of the occupational military forces, has refused to receive a delegation of the Thyssen workers.

20,000,000 MARKS FOR BENEFIT OF THE RUHR MINERS

Berlin, Jan. 23.—(By The A. P.)—Chancellor Cuno today received a cabled remittance of twenty million marks from Santiago, Chile, for the benefit of the Ruhr miners.

Financial relief for the workingmen in the Ruhr area is being voted in Germany in sums ranging from one million to one billion marks. The latter sum has been subscribed by the German Lignite Syndicate, while subscriptions running from five million to twenty million marks are reported from all parts of Germany.

FRANCE'S NEW PLAN FOR MORATORIUM FOR GERMANY

Paris, Jan. 23 (By the A. P.)—Although France's new plan for a two years' moratorium for Germany is due to come up formally before the reparations commission on Friday, there were certain indications tonight that Premier Poincare might not press for a decision by the commission for several weeks, in view of the situation in the Ruhr and the reported intention of the German government flatly to reject the new proposals.

The plan was only circulated among the members of the commission Monday, but already severe criticism of it has developed in British quarters, where it is asserted the project would fail to re-establish German credit. Further details of the plan were made known tonight and lively discussion has taken place among members of the commission on the provisions, notwithstanding reports that the plan might not be pressed immediately.

One paragraph definitely sets forth that Germany must accept the plan by Feb. 15, and before that date must deliver to the commission a declaration of its adhesion to the plan and an engagement loyally to carry it out. Germany also must produce guarantees from the German industrialists that the proposed internal loan will be raised and that the necessary legislation will be enacted not later than March 1. Separate guarantees of fulfillment must be obtained from each German state.

The proposed three billion gold marks loan would be used to meet reduced cash and merchandise payments during the life of the two-year moratorium. The moratorium would be reduced to eighteen months if German finances improved sufficiently for the resumption of the full schedule of payments.

Of the loan, 2,500,000,000 would go entirely for reparations payment. The other 500,000,000 marks would be used to stabilize the mark. It is presumed the loan also would be used to pay the costs of army occupation and also the costs of the Ruhr occupation. One billion marks would be raised in foreign currency and one billion and a half in deliveries of merchandise.

The three billion marks in cash would have to be produced largely by the heads of industry, who have sent huge sums out of Germany. The reparations commission would go over the German government with a finetooth comb and reduce its expenses to the minimum. A 25 per cent. levy on German expenditures for the so-called perpetual loan, the bonds of which would be paid to nationals from whom capital was taken. Interest on the bonds would be paid from the German budget, after all reparations charges, including costs of all commissions of control and the reparations commission, had been met.

British reparations officials assert that the success of the plan depends on the ability of the Germans to raise the proposed loan. They add that the plan would not give Germany an opportunity to re-establish her credit and restore the confidence of outside investors. Sir John Bradbury, the British representative, will take part in the discussions of the plan, but will not vote on it.

The new plan would place the reparations commission in complete control of German finance, with power to insist on the necessary revenue being raised and also authority to veto any expenditures.

Paris Police Search for Anarchists

Paris, Jan. 23.—(By the A. P.)—The Paris police today conducted widespread searches in an effort to uncover the group of anarchists they believe responsible for the killing yesterday of Marius Plateau, leader of the royalist direct action gangs, by the girl anarchist, Germaine Berthon.

EXALTED CYCLOPS FIGURES IN MOREHOUSE HEARING

Bastrop, La., Jan. 23.—(By the A. P.)—The name of Captain J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Parish Ku Klux Klan, again figured prominently in testimony given today at the state's open hearing into operations of masked men in the parish, which culminated August 24 in the kidnappings of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard of Mer Rouge, whose bodies were found December 23 in Lake La Fourche.

Miss Lillian Wellenman, a telephone operator in the Bastrop exchange, testified that Captain Skipwith had requested her not to handle any calls between Bastrop and Mer Rouge, either out-going or in-coming, but an effort by the state to definitely set the date of the request as August 24 failed.

Miss Wellenman explained that Mer Rouge is on a direct line with Bastrop. The kidnapping of Daniel and Richard took place shortly before 7 p. m. on the Mer Rouge highway just beyond the corporate limits of Bastrop and witnesses have testified that the telephone wires at the scene had been cut and were trailing on the ground. The kidnapping took place shortly before 7 p. m. and the staff of Attorney General Coco assumes that the lines were severed after Mrs. Wellenman, in effect, had refused to hold up calls between Mer Rouge and Bastrop.

Mason said he was with Daniel, Richard and W. C. Andrews, another man kidnapped that day, and that during the late afternoon he was seated with them on the lawn about the courthouse. Mason testified that Captain Skipwith "was" walking around, talking to various men who were strangers to me." The witness said that Skipwith "would walk up to a man and say something, then look at us." Captain Skipwith did this several times, he testified, and he said to Richard "I guess the Ku Klux are up to something."

Richard replied:

"They don't want me; they had me last week."

Richard was taken out by a small party of masked men on August 17, and questioned concerning an alleged attempt to assassinate Dr. B. DeKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge.

BANDITS GOT $50,000 FROM MESSENGERS IN BROOKLYN

New York, Jan. 23.—Daylight bandits active in New York state of late, today added $50,000 to their spoils when they held up four employes of the Municipal bank and escaped in an automobile owned by the bank president.

The holdup was staged by four gunmen in the traffic-congested street in Brooklyn. It was the boldest and most profitable of a series of payroll robberies and holdups in the last few days.

The stolen car was located nearly two hours after the robbery on a corner less than a mile from the scene of the robbery. Bank messengers later visited the rogues' gallery in the hope of identifying the bandits.

The holdups occurred when three bank messengers, only one of whom was armed, in company with the chauffeur of Samuel Barnett, president of the bank, were on their way to the Borough Park branch of the Municipal bank. There they were to pick up an additional $60,000 and take the entire amount to a downtown bank.

The bank machine was proceeding down Bedford avenue, a busy highway, with the money, gold, silver and currency, packed in two bags. Suddenly, a small coupe darted in front of the big car and forced it to the curb.

As the cars stopped, the four bandits leaped from their own car to the bank machine. At the point of revolvers, they forced the bank employes to silence and commanded the chauffeur to drive on. They abandoned the coupe, which later proved to have been stolen.

The bank car was directed to a lonely spot near the King's county hospital, where it was halted. The employes were forced from the machine. Then the bandits sped away.

In their haste to notify police, the messengers ran nearly a mile before they encountered the first policeman. Breathlessly, they told of the holdup, and a hasty description of the stolen car and the gunmen was sent to police headquarters.

Action Against Tax Exempt Securities

House Passes Resolution Proposing Amendment to the Constitution to Prohibit Issuance.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The Green resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution which would prohibit further issuance of tax exempt securities was adopted tonight by the house.

The proposal, which had been urged by President Harding and Secretary Mellon, was put through after an unusually bitter all day wrangle, by a margin of seven votes. Passage of the resolution required a two-thirds vote, and the roll call stood 223 to 101.

Republicans opposing it and democrats supporting it split about even, 23 democrats joining administration leaders, while 24 republicans broke away from party lines and voted against it. The measure now goes to the senate, but some house leaders privately expressed the opinion that there was not much chance of its enactment at this session.

Amendments were offered by the score, but they were knocked out with little ceremony, after a half hour fight over the improper use of a couple of commas in the text of the resolution. Nearly could qualify as an expert on grammar, and those who sought to put themselves in that class failed to make themselves heard above the hubbub, and finally the commas went out on the chance that the senate might put them back if needed to get a clear interpretation as to what the house meant.

Representative Green, of Iowa, ranking republican on the ways and means committee, who drafted the proposal, and Representative Garner of Texas, ranking democratic committeeman, took charge of the fight for the two sides. The argument swung around the oft repeated statements that the measure was designed to prevent the rich man seeking a tax free haven, and that it was an invasion of the right of the states to control their own credit.

Representative Moore, democrat, Virginia, tried to get in an amendment making the law inoperative unless ratified within five years, and Representative London, socialist, New York, one which would make it effective, if ratified, in 1945. Both were rejected.

The principal fight was over Mr. Garner's amendment which he explained was designed to prevent the levying of a prohibitive tax on state bonds or the imposition of a higher tax on income from state bonds than that levied on income from other sources. Without discussion the house refused to exempt federal farm loan and joint stock land bank bonds.

REV. GRANT CONTINUES TO AIR HIS HERETICAL VIEWS

New York, Jan 23.—The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, further convinced his supporters that he would neither recant his alleged heretical views or resign, as demanded by Bishop William T. Manning, but utterances in an address he delivered today before the Dutch Trat club.

He has not yet answered Bishop Manning's letter calling on him to show belief in the divinity of Jesus Christ or resign, and intimating that trial for heresy awaited him if he did not do one br the other.

"There is a widespread belief in church circles that any one who does not agree with every part of the church's creed and doctrines should get out," Dr. Grant said. "I don't feel that way about it at all. I look to the church to that respect as I do upon the state.

"If one does not agree with every law on the statute book, one does not get out of the country. If one disagrees with a republican or a democratic administration, or with a decision of the supreme court, one does not renounce his citizenship on that account. But one does work for reform and strive to change the laws and policies in which one does not believe."

"What we are fighting against," said Dr. Grant, "is the old idea of authority and of having to be ruled by authority. What we want is absolute freedom to express what we believe and to fight for the truth as we see it.

"We should hate to see the word 'protestant' eliminated from the official name of our denomination and we would also hate to see the Protestant principle eliminated from its doctrines."

HAVE FOUND THE LEAK OF "EMBASSY" LIQUORS

Washington, Jan. 23.—An alleged source of Washington's supply of fine "embassy" whiskeys and wines was made known to the prohibition enforcement bureau today, police announced tonight. They said they expected the bureau to take up the matter through the treasury with the state department, and that it would set to stop "the leak."

The information, according to police, was contained in affidavits obtained from John L. Lynch, who was arrested in a raid on his apartment last night. Lynch is alleged to have revealed that he was doing a large business, receiving orders by telephone and having the "wet goods" delivered to his customers, and that he got many of his supplies from a diplomats butler.

All of his dealings, he is said to have admitted, were conducted with the butler or an officer of the legation, and he is quoted as saying it would require all night for trucks to remove the amount of liquor which had been sold to him. His ledgers and day books, police said, listed many prominent persons among his "best customers."

THREE MINERS KILLED AND 30 OVERCOME BY GAS

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 23.—Three unidentified miners were killed and 30 were overcome by gas when fire broke out early today in the 1400 foot level of the Morning mine of the Federal Mining and Smelting company at Multan, Idaho, seven miles from Wallace early today.

The thirty men who were overcome were hoisted from the 2,000 foot level through the fire zone to safety, and were said to have recovered. The fire was still burning in the west end of the 1400 foot level late today, but mine officials said dampness there would retard the flames.

Premier Kato of Japan Reviews World Affairs

Extracts From Speech Made Before the Japanese Diet—Conditions Improved in Far East.

Washington, Jan. 23 (By the A. P.)—Extracts from the speech of Premier Kato and the text of the speech of Count Uchida, the foreign minister, before the Japanese diet at Tokio today were made public tonight by the Japanese embassy.

Premier Kato spoke of improved conditions in the far east, mentioned the naval limitation treaty negotiated at Washington and discussed improvements contemplated in Japan. Count Uchida spoke particularly of the Washington agreements and mentioned the present European situation.

The extract of Premier Kato's speech follows:

"Gentlemen, I deem it an honor as prime minister to lay before you a general statement of the government policies on this occasion, this being my first opportunity since the organization of the cabinet at imperial command. Allow me to begin with the consideration of our foreign relations:

"The political situation in Europe is as yet unfortunately far from being settled, but in the far east affairs have recently improved. Conditions in Russia have shown a gradual improvement and in far eastern Russia the political situation has tended, likewise towards stabilization. Accordingly, we have withdrawn our troops from Siberia and North Manchuria, completing withdrawal by the end of October last. This marks the termination of our expedition to Siberia which was undertaken August 1918 in cooperation with the allied and associated powers.

"With regard to China, a detailed agreement for putting into effect the Shantung treaty concluded at Washington was recently signed and the so-called Shantung question, the settlement of which was so long protracted, has thus fortunately been conducted. I do not doubt that this termination of a difficult question between the two countries will aid greatly in an improvement in their relations, but it is a matter for deep regret that the political situation in China is lacking its stability, and it is the earnest hope of the Japanese government that China will, at the earliest possible moment and through the efforts of her own people, achieve tranquility and find the road to healthy progress.

"Regarding the treaty for the limitation of naval armaments, signed at the Washington conference, the United States, Great Britain and Japan have taken steps towards their ratification. Acting in harmony with those countries and out of respect for the spirit of the treaty, Japan has proceeded towards putting its provisions into effect, thus demonstrating her sincerity of purpose.

"The surplus revenue yielded as a result of the limitation of armaments and by administrative financial readjustments, will all be devoted to measures more in keeping with the times. In the light of the financial conditions now prevailing, it has been deemed wise to advance the dates for the redemption of the national debt.

"The Washington conference gave emphatic testimony to the fact that the policy of the powers is one of peace. The government places the greatest importance upon this conference, not only because of concrete results, but because it lightens burdens and dissipates any anxiety that existed among people and, because of its achievement in developing understanding and friendship among nations. The most notable is our relationship with Great Britain and the United States which through the conference have been put upon a still closer and surer foundation. In view of these achievements the government is upon the point of seeing the interests of the country to see that the various treaties, and resolutions signed at the conference were speedily put into force and no time was lost in taking necessary measures for effecting the ratifications which took place in August last year. Both Great Britain and the United States have likewise taken steps to ratify these agreements and it now remains only for France and Italy to do the same. I am confident these powers will take similar action in the interest of world peace.

"France, in cooperation with Belgium, has deemed it proper to take coercive action in the Ruhr district of Germany. This action may lead to a grave situation and the Japanese government, constantly mindful of the importance of peace, is paying close attention to the development.

"Towards Russia Japan has already followed the fundamental policy of non-interference in internal and political affairs. We hope that as soon as the political conditions in that country are stabilized, we may be able to settle various questions maintaining accord as far as possible with the other nations concerned.

"The earnest hope of the government is that conditions both in European Russia and Siberia will soon be stabilized and that Russia will properly appreciate its responsibility for the unfortunate affir of Nikolaievsk and change the attitude it has hitherto maintained so that the opening of commercial intercourse may thereby be hastened.

"As regards China, it has been our fundamental policy, as repeatedly declared to avoid interference and observe impartiality toward the internal affairs of that country, and to help in the awakening and uplifting of the Chinese people in the hope that a peaceful and united China may come into being. The government are firmly convinced that it is to the best interests of Japan to maintain this policy."

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 23.—Dissatisfied with food served them at the breakfast table today, 14 prisoners of the Maryland house of correction at Jessup were wounded by bird shot and four guards were injured by furniture hurled at them by the inmates during an ensuing riot. All of the injuries were slight. More than 100 prisoners took part in the riot.

CRISIS IN CONTROVERSY OVER MOSUL OIL DISTRICT

Great Britain to Insist That Turkey Consent to Submission of the Question to the League of Nations—Turkey Has Suggested That the Matter be Settled by a Prebescite in the Contested District—Marquis Curzon Has Informed the Near Eastern Conference That Refusal by the Turks Would Involve the Possibility of a Renewal of Warfare—Representative Child Told the Delegates That America Was Opposed to Any Monopolistic Policy.

Lausanne, Jan. 23.—(By the A. P.)—Unsettled as is the general European situation at the present moment, it suddenly took a more menacing turn this evening owing to critical developement in the Near Eastern conference, Turkey refused to accept the British proposal to refer the Mosul dispute to the league of nations for settlement, and Great Britain declined to accede to Turkish counter suggestions that the question be settled by a plebiscite in the contested district.

Lord Curzon then declared that as foreign secretary of the British empire he would take the responsibility of addressing a letter to the council of the league of nations setting forth that a situation had arisen which was liable to disturb international peace, and asking that the matter be dealt with under the covenant, which provides that the league can act when there is war or any threat of war in the world and take steps to restore or to insure the maintenance of peace.

PROGRESS OF SENATE OIL INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE

Washington, Jan. 23—Inauguration by the senate oil investigating committee today of its examination of the Standard Oil company of Indiana was marked by a denial of the recently current reports that the Standard company was negotiating for the acquisition of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Standard of Indiana, was asked concerning the reports in the course of a detailed interrogation as to operations of his company, and in reply asserted positively that "there are no negotiations."

Mr. Stewart indicated that his company, one of the largest of the Standard corporation, would like to acquire the Gulf corporation, particularly a strong oil producing company, but said he didn't know whether a proposition could be arranged satisfactory to both and that "it remains to be seen whether I can get the Gulf to see things my way." The Standard of Indiana and the Gulf at present are not competing companies.

The examination of the Standard of Indiana, which was conducted today exclusively through Mr. Stewart, consisted in the presentation of figures as to stock and cash dividends, net earnings and surplus, both before an dsince the supreme court decree dissolving the Standard Oil company became effective in 1911. The figures produced showed that the Standard of Indiana since its divorce from the parent corporation and up to the end of 1922 had paid approximately $39,560,000 in cash dividend, in addition to stock dividends aggregating 250 per cent.; that the company from the dissolution of last June30 had made net earnings of $255,000,000 and that the company's surplus at the end of 1922 was about $143,250,000 as compared with a surplus of $10,216,000 at the close of 1912.

TO GET DEPOSITIONS FROM WILLIAM J. BURNS

Washington, Jan. 23—Court action in an effort to get depositions from William J. Burns, chief of the department of justic bureau of investigation, and R. M. Whitney of the American Defense society, was begun today by attorneys for the twenty-one communists arrested at Bridgeman, Mich., August 22 last.

In contempt proceedings today in the district of Columbia supreme court Justice Hoehling ordered Mr. Whitney to answer questions put to him by the communists' attorney. The decision overruled his claim of privilege as a newspaperman in communications between confidants and he appealed the case. Whether such proceedings will be instituted against Mr. Burns, who refused to answer questions yesterday on the advice of the attorney general, was said by Frank P. Walsh, attorney for the communists, to depend on the outcome of Mr. Whitney's appeal.

In questioning Mr. Burns for a deposition yesterday, Mr. Walsh sought to learn of any connection of department of justice and Burns' International Detective Agency men with the raid at Bridgeman, and whether Francis Morrow, alias Ashworth, arrested and later released, was connected with the department of justice. Mr. Whitney was questioned by communists' counsel as to stories he had written concerning the raid and communist activities in an attempt to learn from whom he had obtained documents on which he said the articles had been based.

MINERS' WAGE SCALE READY FOR RATIFICATION

New York, Jan. 23—(By the A. P.)—A standard scale to be used in fixing union wages and working conditions for bituminous coal miners throughout the industry was agreed upon here today by operators representatives from the tri-state competitive field and officials of the United Mine Workers of America.

While the agreement was reached in sub-committee, and needs ratification by the whole joint conference before it becomes a contract, this formality is expected to be disposed of without delay at a session called for tomorrow morning.

Operators of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, producing about 36 per cent. of the national's 500,000,000 annual tonnage, were parties to the agreement which, when signed, will act as a standard for determining wages and working rules in the remaining 64 per cent. of mines in outlying states.

Terms were not to be revealed until the sixty-odd participants in the negotiations have had opportunity tomorrow in deciding whether to sign on the dotted line. Under the rules of the conference, approval must be unanimous.

The only hint as to the contract provisions came from Michael Gallagher, Ohio operator, and point conference chairman, who said there was "no vital departure from the terms of the existing agreement" expiring next April 1.

His statement, taken with unofficial comment of both sides tonight, indicated that the chief provisions were as follows:

1—Extension of the present scale of $7.50 per eight hours for day work, and $1.08 per ton for contract miners.

2—The contract to be of one year's duration, instead of two years, as the union had sought.

3—Establishment by districts, according to local conditions in outlying fields, of differentials from the basic scale, as well as district settlement of local disputes over working rules, terms and conditions of employment, payment for "deadwork", tools, explosives, etc.

The demand for a maximum 6 hour-day, 5-day-week with time and a half for overtime, and double-time for holidays (including Saturdays and Sundays), was not pressed by the miners, it was said, although it was on the list of demands submitted last Saturday and rejected by the operators.

The 6-hour-day—5-day-week, "was not even mentioned" in the sub-committee's progress toward agreement, according to labor members.

38 POINT BREAK IN STOCK OF THE FISHER BODY CORP.

New York, Jan. 23—Circulation of rumors in the financial district that the Fisher body corporation was contemplating the issuance of 100,000 shares of additional common stock and $20,000,000 of 6 per cent. debenture bonds caused a violent 38 point break in the stock of that corporation here today on the New York stock exchange.

The stock closed last night at 200 1-4, advanced this morning to 203 and then dropped to 162. It rallied 10 points before the close, making a net loss of 38 1-4 points.

Durant Motors of Delaware, traded in on the curb, also broke badly. It closed last night at 78 1-4, fell this afternoon to 63 and then rallied to 70 1-2 for a net loss of 7 3-4 points.

The weekly meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Rotary club was held Tuesday evening at 6.30 o'clock. "Jim" Case, of the Norwich club was a guest at the meeting. "Jim" Fullerton reported for Fred D. Jordan, who was absent in regard to the future meeting which is to be in charge of the Boys' Work committee. It was suggested to postpone that meeting for two weeks at which time each of the members would bring a boy as his guest and the meeting would be addressed by J. B. Davis of Hartford, who makes a specialty of Boys' Work. Frank H. Foss reported for the committee in charge of organizing a Rotary club in Putnam and said that a survey had been sent to international headquarters and that the club would be organized shortly after the survey was accepted. Mr. Foss also stated that in regard to the best method of raising money to pay the expenses of a delegate to the St. Louis convention he thought that the club dues should be increased and that new members should be taken into the club.

"Rick" W. Downer and John Ahearn were called upon to render a duet and sang the "Word That Stands For Service" in an admirable fasion, in fact so pleasingly that they were called upon for an encore which they also rendered in a harmonizing manner.

"Jim" Case of Norwich made a few short, but effective remarks on the goodfellowship of the Rotarians throughout the country.

The meeting was turned over to Harry W. Standish, chairman of the entertainment committee. C. Harry Branch, who was to give a biographical sketch was absent because of illness and Maurice S. Leonard gave a business talk. Mr. Leonard stated that there were about 12 million automobiles now in use not including trucks or cars in storage. In the course of his talk he mentioned the fact that in 1921 over 62,000 automobile dealers went out of business because of the liberal prices which they were allowing on used cars.

He said that there were several branches in his business, the sale of new cars, the buying and selling of used cars, the general garage, the sales of supplies and accessories, and the tire repairing department. In summing up his talk he said that he found that the Rotary slogan, "He profits most who serves best," was a good one, and he told the exact service which automobile men required to give.

William A. Dawson gave the response to Mr. Leonard's business talk in a fitting manner and "Bill" touched on some delicate points which Maurice had overlooked in conducting his business. Both men were given a rising vote of thanks for their excellent talks.

Rev. Harry S. McCready, the speaker of the evening, spoke on "Service Above Self." In the course of his speech Rev. Mr. McCready enumerated some of the things which are enemies of the slogan; and among these were selfishness, which he characterized as a colossal monster of moral destruction; substitution of well-wishing for well-doing; also the substitution of pleasing people for serving people, in which he visualized the person who instead of being frank and of service believes he is serving when he in reality is only doing all in his power to please another and agree with him in his modes.

The third great enemy he said was the discouragement which comes to a man when he has to walk in the common-place path of service for an extended perior and possibly throughout his life. Do not be afraid to play a second fiddle, concluded the speaker. In the space of time the first fiddler will be retired and then the best second fiddler will come into his own. Rev. Mr. McCready quoted a short poem entitled "Service Above Self." All those present extended Rev. Mr. McCready a vote of appreciation of the speaker's splendid address. After the adjournment of the regular meeting a short meeting of the directors was held and the applications of three new members were acted upon.

WINDHAM

Sunday services were not largely attended because of bad weather conditions. There were seven women present at St. Paul's. At the Congregational church there were 20 in the morning and 13 at the C. E. meeting, which was unusually interesting. The subject was Missions, and the leader, Miss Marguerite Cook, had prepared a special program. Music was furnished by a quartet composed of Misses Polly Bixby, Charlotte Lathrop, Eden Cook and Arthur Keeney, who sang a hymn-anthem and at the close of the meeting sang the benediction. Letters from Miss Esther Moody of China were read. The singing was led by mandolin and piano played by Eden Cook and Charlotte Lathrop. Miss Arnold accompanied the quartet.

The annual meeting and roll call of the Congregational church was held Friday evening and was well attended, considering the bad traveling. Supper was served to about 70. The menu consisted of sliced ham, macaroni and cheese, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee, and was in charge of the L. A. S. Rev. A. W. Clifford presied over the business meeting. The report of the church clerk and treasurer, H. C. Lathrop, showed a gratifying condition of things which Mr. Lathrop said was largely due to the efforts of the pastor.

The benevolences of the home and branch church in South Windham were $1,290. Of this sum, $983 was applied on the apportionment. Of the money received by communion offerings, etc., there is a balance of $33. The annual meeting of the ecclesiastical society does not come until the first of April, but Mr. Lathrop stated that all bills are paid and money enough in sight to pay expenses until the end of March.

There were 10 new members received during the year, making a total membership of 181. There are 45 members in the Sunday school. Receipts were $92.63, balance $16.66. The school has given $182.13 to various missionary and charitable objects, including Near East relief, work in China and of the A. A. M. A., etc. Charlotte Lathrop of the C. E. reported 31 members, a gain of three. The society has been active, due largely to the efforts of President Eden Cook, which the loyal assistance of the members. Special missionary programs have been prepared. Flowers have been furnished for Sunday services and later sent to sick and shut-ins; $67 has been used for missions and local charitable work. Special music has been arranged for nearly every meeting. Mrs. John Potter reported for the L. A. S. A full account of their work was given in the report of their annual meeting last week.

Miss Dorothy Brown, secretary of the Woman's Missionary society, stated that 19 meetings were held during the year. Three study books were used. Much sewing was done, clothing was sent to Chandler Normal school. Two boxes of games, toys and books were sent to Doby Springs, Okla., for Christmas. A layette was made for Dr. Guild and two layettes were sent to Ellis Island. Gifts and collections for home missions were $33.34, and there is a balance of $14.47, which will be used to buy sewing materials. For foreign missions, $24.91. Twenty-three dollars was recently sent to Hartford to be applied on the apportionment for home work.

The report of the South Windham branch church, given by C. A. Barstow, showed a substantial gain there. The annual assessments for general conference and county association were voted paid.

The following were re-elected to office: Church clerk and treasurer, H. C. Lathrop; member church committee for three years, Mrs. W. F. Maine; Sunday school superintendent, William Hinckley. After the roll call Rev. A. W. Clifford spoke a few words, thanking all who had helped him in his work and who had proved their loyalty to the church.

Miss Josephine Bingham entertained a number of friends one day last week.

Mrs. H. C. Haich spent Sunday with her brother, Oliver L. Johnson, and his family of Norwich.

Ned Thompson of New York is staying at the inn with his brother, Jack Thompson.

The young people have been enjoying the fine coasting on Zion's Hill.

There were 13 present at the meeting of the Woman's Missionary society held with Miss Mary Little and Mrs. Robert Perrum, Mrs. F. E. Guild led the devotional exercises, and the reports of the secretary and treasurer were given by Miss Dorothy Brown and Miss Clara Johnson. Sewing was done for Doby Springs, Okla. The program in charge of Mrs. A. W. Clifford was on India. The new study book, The Trend of the Races, will be commenced at the next meeting. Tea was served.

Mrs. Henry Bingham and Mrs. Ann Towne left Tuesday to visit relatives in New York state. Mrs. Bingham with her sister-in-law at Oriskany Falls and Mrs. Towne with her sister, Mrs. Story, at East Greenwich.

NORWICH TOWN

At the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, preached from the text, Luke 2:9, And I say unto you, ask and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

Mrs. Aldrich, wife of the pastor, was the efficient leader of the missionary meeting, at the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening. Evangelistic Missions at Home and Abroad was the topic.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Norwich Grange Installation

John Hollowell of Preston City, master of Pomona Grange, will install the officers tonight of Norwich Grange—the installation will be preceded by the regular supper.

Breed Theatre

Mary Carr's popularity is far and wide. The epithet, "the sweetest woman on the screen," was earned after her masterful performance in the William Fox triumph, "Over the Hill." Now Mrs. Carr, mother of six delightful children, is scoring a second huge success in Silver Wings, another Fox special, which will be shown at the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

In Silver Wings, Mrs. Carr plays the part of a mother whose joys and sorrows—more sorrows than joys—wring tears even from the most hardened and callous.

A simple beautiful picture of American home life, tells a story that should be taken seriously to heart, for it is but a picturization of those family tragedies that surround us every day.

Silver Wings had a tremendous success in New York city. Press and public acclaimed it as a film which taught a timely lesson, while pointing out a moral that many of the younger generation would do well to heed.

During its run at the Apollo theatre, the house was packed day and night. At each performance, Mrs. Carr appeared in person and delighted the audience with her timely and improvised speeches.

Movie Chats completes the bill.

Seven of Hearts Scheduled for the Broadway Thursday

The feature vaudeville attraction at the Broadway for the last half of this week is Seven of Hearts.

Seven of Hearts is indeed vaudeville's act charming. Six clever girls and a real boy make it so. Here are a group of singers and dancers whose efforts are intensified by a series of novel and scenic effects. Barney Grahm is the boy and the girls are the Misses Dier, Claire Norwich, Drager, Kane and Gunsett. Each and every one is capable of holding his or her own and together they make a company that is indeed a winning hand.

Other acts of first class calibre will also be featured.

Agnes Ayres in her latest starring vehicle, "A Daughter of Luxury," which comes to the Broadway theatre Thursday has a role similar to those in which she achieved success when she appeared as the "O. Henry" girl. She is a girl reared in luxury who is left destitute and is forced to walk the streets hungry and destitute, vainly seeking work. Miss Ayres plays that part with a keen sense of humor and instead of viewing her plight as a tragedy, makes light of it. Coupled with thrilling action, there is a nabundance of wholesome comedy.

Lorna Doone Coming to the Strand Thursday

"Speed, pep and a thrill" is the demand of the American amusement seeker, according to motion picture producers, who claim that the modern mania for "something with a kick in it" is responsible for the growing number of melodramatic films which are on the market.

To satisfy this youthful demand and at the same time please the critic and the educator who want substance as well as excitement, Maurice Tourneur has developed a special field of film production in which he stands preeminent. He has screened a number of classical novels and plays which not only supply the necessary 'thrills' but are master works of artistry.

Madge Bellamy, remembered for her splendid work in "Hail the Woman," plays the title role with the emotional ability and spontaneous charm that already have endeared her to the public. John Bowers has the part of the herculean "John Ridd" while Frank Keenan has created one of the finest characterizations of his career in "Sir Enear Doone."

This masterpiece will be on view at the Strand theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

DEMPSEY EXPRESSES EAGERNESS TO MEET CONTENDERS FOR CROWN

New York, Jan. 23—Expressing his eagerness to meet any aspirants for his heavyweight crown Jack Dempsey and his advance entourage, including the champion's pet pedigreed bulldog, "Diamond Dick, Jr.," reached New York today.

Dempsey's manager, Jack Kearns, is due to arrive tomorrow and in the afternoon a conference is scheduled with Promoter Tex Rickard at which negotiations for the titleholder's expected program of action during the outdoor season may reach a definite basis.

Rickard said today he would submit new proposals to Kearns and Dempsey calling for a match with Jess Willard, probably June 30, and the other with the survivor of a heavyweight elimination series among Floyd Johnson, Tom Gibbons and Luis Firpo, the Argentinian pugilist. The latter contest may occur in September.

Dempsey declared he was ready to meet any of these heavyweights as well as Harry Wills, with whom he once had a bout [illegible] but [illegible] ring critics were opposed to the proposition for a match with the negro would be distasteful.

Dempsey is said weighing on his own estimony, only 195 pounds, close to his best fighting weight. Dempsey declared he would want at least six weeks or two months to get into condition for a championship fight. He intends to remain in New York or its vicinity for several weeks and indulge in light gymnasium or road work to keep himself in trim.

Asked about offers for a bout with Joe Beckett, English champion, in London, Dempsey said he was not anxious to fight abroad and did not relish a bout with the Briton would materialize.

Give the Local Boys a Chance

An interested boxing fan writes the Bulletin suggesting that local boys with ring aspirations be given a chance to show their wares in Norwich. E. G. BUCKLAND TALKS ON NEW ENGLAND RAILROADS

Boston, Jan. 23—For New England to part with the control of the New England railroads "would be like parting with her birthright," Vice President E. G. Buckland, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, said in an address before the Merchants' club tonight.

"New England must work out her own salvation," he said. "The New England railroads are operated by New England people for New England and unless New England retains within her borders all of the facilities for transportation she is likely to suffer a permanent and irrecoverable handicap."

Admitting that at present the equipment of the New Haven road was not in satisfactory shape, he said:

"The answer to the question, 'What is necessary to restore service?' is simple a restoration of the New Haven's motive power and passenger equipment to a normal condition. This means that instead of 350 locomotives to be shipped for heavy repair or rebuilding, requiring 24 hours or more there should be not over 200 in that condition. This means that the standards on the other locomotives now running should be restored to the pre-strike conditions necessary to insure reliability in extreme weather conditions. This means that the condition of the passenger equipment must be somewhat improved.

"This, and this alone, is what is the matter with the New Haven road. It is not in financial difficulties. It has no floating debt. It does not owe a dollar to any bank. Its bills are paid currently and its current assets considerably exceed its current liabilities. With the progress now being made in the New Haven shops and in the work of repair in the outside shops normal conditions ought to be approached rapidly and reached within the next six months with a gradual and perceptible bettering of operating conditions."

With the possible exception of lack of ballast and painting, he said, the New Haven roadway and structures were in normal condition. About four per cent. at the beginning of federal control in 1918, twenty-eight per cent. when the road was turned back to the company and 20 per cent. now.

Mr. Buckland reviewed the shopmen's strike, saying that the charge that the railroad managers provoked the strike could not be proved. "Because it isn't true." After the shopmen quit work, he said, the New Haven recruited its shop forces with "experienced mechanics who were out of work or who left employment elsewhere because of the higher rates of pay still being paid by the railroads as compared to the rates paid in outside shops."

It was the purpose of the New Haven management, he said, to assist in every way the committee appointed by the governors of the New England states to investigate the railroad problem and to recommend what if any consolidation should be made.

NO SOLUTION OF THE MURDERS AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., Jan. 23—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fraser McLeish, whose death by violence Sunday morning were almost obscured by the fire that burned the lodge at Harbourview which they occupied as caretakers for the estate, were buried today while investigators continued their effort to establish the identity of the hard and the weapon that killed them. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons of New York, who employed the McLeishes and came here to assist in running down the murderer, and William H. Vanderbilt, of New York, son of Mrs. Fitzsimmons, were among the mourners.

Emmanuel Episcopal church where the services were held was filled to overflowing and the throng that stood outside during the services was as large as that within the doors. Delegations included an escort of honor from the American Legion, and at the grave in Island Cemetery a firing squad from Fort Adams paid final honors. McLeish was a veteran of five major engagements overseas.

Little progress has been made in the solution of the crime. Every detail of the house and grounds have been checked up, from a missing piece of pie to bloodstains on towel and mirror, but with no success.

Nowhere in the house or in the ruins could be found any object that might have been the weapon used to deliver the crushing blows, marks of which were on the skull of the woman and the man.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Winter never fails to bring this car renewed praise.

It is because the starting system and carburetor seem to be almost immune from cold weather troubles. The response is prompt, even on the coldest mornings.

The cord tires, with their safety tread, are also particularly desirable in winter. They not only act as a safeguard against skidding, but greatly reduce the possibility of having to change tires under disagreeable weather conditions.

Close fitting curtains, which open with the doors, enable the owner to drive in comfort the whole year round.

STAND BY THE BUDGET.

In the inaugural messages of the governors of many of the states there was much emphasis laid upon economy. It was realized by the chief executives that sound business administration of state affairs was called for and that the money of the taxpayers should be spent as prudently as possible. This didn't mean closing the eyes or pocketbook to the needed things, but putting a stop to extravagance and waste.

What applies to the states holds good for the nation. We have been getting away from the large expenditures of war days and we have been responding to the demand for a lowering of taxation. That is all in the interest of those who pay the taxes, directly or indirectly, and means adherence to a system that will keep the expenditures within the revenue.

The federal government has long needed the budget system under which it is now operating. It has already shown excellent results and given a most favorable impression for the future. It all depends, however, upon the manner in which it is supported. It can be made a success or it can be made a failure. There can be eliminated the old pork barrel practices or they can be revived. It all depends upon whether the best interests of the country are to be served. Certainly there cannot be support of pork barrel methods and a successful working of the budget system. They cannot go hand in hand.

For that reason it is not what can be regarded as the proper attitude when the appropriation for the army is increased in the lower house of congress by nearly $20,000,000 in order to provide appropriations for a number of river and harbor projects scattered about the country, and which did not have the approval of the committee.

If this policy is going to be carried out in one respect there is no telling where it will end. If the budget is to be disregarded for such purposes it will be the cue for others to insist that it be for others. There's no end once the yielding for matters of that kind takes place. It remains for the senate to correct the inclination of the house.

PINCHOT FIGHTING WASTE.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania has opened his term with a statement to the legislature and people of that state in which he stands for better state government and a proper use of the commonwealth's money.

That is a sound policy and right at the outset he has let it be known that this policy of sound business and the elimination of waste is going to apply to the telephones and the automobiles that are paid for by the state for the benefit of officeholders. Time will tell whether he plans to carry this idea to the point of niggardliness, but the impression is gained that he is determined to end that drain on state funds that has awakened so much criticism and that it can be done without interfering with the proper conduct of the state's business.

Telephones and automobiles are of course quite as important in the conduct of state business as they are in the handling of private enterprises. From all indications he doesn't intend to interfere with such, but he intends that they shall be restricted to state use.

Perhaps the matter of telephones doesn't come into quite as much prominence as does that of the autos. Many telephones may be paid for by the state without any benefit to the state and there may be many for which there is no excuse for payments by the state, but when it comes to automobiles the situation is much more clear. States and cities are cognisant of the value of autos in the conduct of public business. Against that Governor Pinchot has no opposition. What he cries out against, and what has been the plaint of many another, is that these same public autos are used quite as much for private benefit and pleasure as they are for public business. This of course means putting the expense for such pleasure up to the public. It is a form of graft that cries out for correction and the example that is being set by the new governor of Pennsylvania is one that might well be employed in many other directions.

BETTER RADIO CONDITIONS.

That regulation hasn't kept pace with the development of the radio is apparent to all who have difficulty with the jammed conditions in the air when a number are trying to broadcast at the same time. It is apparent that the longer the confusion is permitted to go on the worse the situation is bound to become.

Radio has taken and there has been a big increase in the number of broadcasting stations as well as in the number of homes with receiving outfits. In the early days the situation was believed covered by the issuing of licenses to the broadcasters who could qualify as such. Even though the situation has been outgrown there is no other method of handling the situation than by continuing to issue licenses until some other change is made in the method of regulation.

Because of the situation that has developed and is growing steadily worse as radio increases its followers, there is a demand for regulation that will be more in keeping with present conditions. Under the bill that is proposed it would be impossible for an alien to own a broadcasting station and an end would be put to the indiscriminate issuance of licenses for the very purpose of overcoming the confusion that now exists with such a great number endeavoring to use the air at the same time. It has come to be recognized that something must be done if there is to be efficiency for some or a general mixup for all, with important stations being bothered by the great number of inconsequential small ones.

The aim is not to freeze out the amateur. It is recognized that much is to be expected from that field. It is entitled to encouragement. It is legislation that cannot be supported for the purpose of creating a monopoly for certain ones.

Whatever is undertaken now will be subject to such changes as time goes on and new conditions arise. There is demand for better regulation and it is for the purpose of satisfying that demand that action is being urged at this session of congress.

RESTRICTING FIREARMS.

Those who are closely identified with the fighting of crime and who are aware of the weaknesses of legislation existing at the present time for the protection of humanity are invariably found to favor the placing of greater restrictions on the possession and sale of pistols.

At the same time those who are advocating additional legislation are fully convinced of the necessity of federal action if effective results are going to be obtained.

The idea of restricting the sale and the licensing of the owners of revolvers is nothing new. Many cities have been driven to such action by the great amount of crime in which such weapons have figured and yet legislation which concerns cities or states fail to meet the situation. Invariably it is the case that those who would protect their homes against the criminals by having firearms in their possession are prevented from doing so by the law, while thugs and gunmen are able to get their much needed weapon quite as if the laws did not exist. The situation thus results too often in giving protection to the criminal instead of to the public.

Such laxity as permits criminals to get permits to carry pistols should be dealt with in the respective communities, but when the restriction of firearms applies to only certain parts of the country those seeking revolvers are able to purchase them elsewhere and even to buy them through mail order houses quite as if there was no law at home against possessing such.

It is because of just such ineffectual restrictions through independent state action that federal legislation that would apply to all is sought.

ARE THEY THERE, OR NOT?

If we are to judge by those who claim to have seen them, those who claim to have directed other ships through them, those who have been near enough to get the names and port of registry that fleet of rum peddlers hanging outside of the three-mile limit is made up of something more than imaginary or painted ships.

There are those who have pointed out the weakness of the prohibition enforcement, decried the attempts to prevent the manufacture and sale of liquor and smiled at what they considered the ineffectual efforts to carry out the provisions of the Volstead act. They have maintained persistently that prohibition could never be enforced. On the other hand there are those who have pointed out the exaggerations of the wets and shown what effects were being produced from the work of the dry forces.

Regardless of whatever may be the results that are being secured by the federal and state forces engaged in the enforcement of the dry law, it must be apparent that the flooding of the country with liquor from foreign shores is something which that agencies cannot ignore. If the rum ships are there it does no good to insist that they are not. If they are there there are good and sufficient reasons for bringing into play every possible agency for frustrating those who undertake to smuggle the stuff ashore. In view of the amount of liquor that is being sold the rum fleet presents a problem that cannot be ignored even though there are limits to which the enforcement authorities can go, and yet if the vessels are there and outside the three-mile limit they are there for a purpose and can be seen quite as easily by the drys as well as the wets. Perhaps congress will yet have to name an investigating committee to settle the question.

THE WEDNESDAY CLUB

"This winter has simply skipped away," announced Kate Pratt. The Wednesday club had drawn their two tables close to Stella's living room fire and were mixing gossip and bridge.

"Hasn't it?" agreed Sally Kendal, absent-mindedly leading trumps. "Almost time to think about spring housecleaning."

"Don't say housecleaning to me!" This was Kate again. "When I think of the way I have to struggle with Jim Pratt to get even one room papered, and then remember the way the paint is peeling off the kitchen, I could just lie down and die of discouragement. Jim will spend $25 on an evening in town for the two of us without a murmur, but when it comes to calcimine or paint he's a perfect miser."

"Oh, no—he's not." Carrie Burke, as the oldest and longest married member, spoke authoritatively. "Most men are like that about housecleaning. They dread the muss so and not knowing where to find their golf shoes and old trousers when the closets are being done. That's my king, Mrs. Pettibone," she added kindly to her partner, the new little bride who was substituting.

"Well," hesitated the bride, shyly, "I guess there's only one thing that will take it, isn't there?" And she played an ace. Carrie sighed, but without bitterness. Then she returned to the original line of thought.

"You've one thing to be thankful for, anyway. Jim doesn't fuss about the house. Now, Tom never says a word about the bills and he's always urging me to redecorate or remodel or something, but he wants to choose the colors."

"There's always something," Marjorie Davis contributed. "Ted and I go to the mat oftenest over the car. In spite of the length of time I've been driving, he can't seem to feel the slightest confidence in me. When I insist on taking my turn at driving he sits by me with his teeth clinched and his feet pressing on imaginary brakes so hard he almost kicks a hole in the motor.

"And he keeps telling me the simplest things that any child would know. He just can't relax and be comfortable."

"Peter and I have most of our trouble over golf," sighed Stella Van. "We learned together, you know. We spent his vacation last summer at the country club and played together every day. Night after night we didn't speak to each other all through dinner and I cried myself to sleep. It was the most miserable two weeks I ever went through. He tried to teach me and I tried to teach him, and the angrier we got the worse we sliced and hooked. Even now he never plays with me without flying into a rage, but I've learned to keep still, and he's always sorry afterward. Oh, Sallie, I'm so sorry. Why didn't I lead you back a spade?"

"It's of no consequence," said Sallie Kendal, sweetly. "We're set, anyway. What's a trick, more or less, among friends? But, speaking of husbands, Phil Kendal is the most exasperating man to make a garden with that any girl ever married. I want flowers and he wants vegetables. We simply cannot get together on it. Last spring he sowed radishes between all the rows in my picking garden, and when I went out to transplant the baby pansies into a nice soft bed I had all ready for them what do you think I found popping up all over it? Beans!"

"How do you like the girls?" asked Carrie Burke, walking home in the sunset with the little new bride who would never play bridge but had very blue eyes and a disarming smile.

"They're lovely," said the bride, enthusiastically. "I was so embarrassed at first, because I know I don't play at all well. But they were so nice about it that I didn't mind a bit. But isn't it a pity"—there was real concern in the blue eyes—"isn't it a pity they're all so unhappily married?"

"Unhappily married?" Carrie's voice showed amazement and indignation. "Why, they're the happiest set of married folks I know. Ted adores Marjorie and Stella and Phil are perfectly foolish about each other. Unhappily married? Wherever in the world did you get such an idea?"

"Oh, I'm so sorry," apologized the little new bride. "I just thought from the way they talked—I didn't understand."

But Carie's mind had gone swiftly back over the afternoon's conversation. She laughed suddenly and patted the bride on the arm.

"You will," she promised, encouragingly. "You'll understand. In about ten years. Or maybe five!"—Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Catharine Hogarth, Wife of Charles Dickens.

One of the unfortunate women who are unable to keep step with the mental growth of their husbands was Catharine Hogarth, wife of the great English novelist, Charles Dickens. In her case the situation was singular, for 20 years elapsed before her gifted husband realized that she had not made the intellectual strides that he had made. Her unhappiness was doubled because, after a score of years of devoted wifehood, she saw her husband loan to her own sister for companionship.

The story of Mrs. Dickens is the usual story of the wife who spends so much thought and time upon devices for the physical well-being and comfort of her mate that she does not even notice his drifting away from her.

Catharine Dickens was a good, capable woman, but she was neither beautiful nor intellectual. She was a good mother and a good housekeeper, but she had no charm. Her sister Mary, on the other hand, was fair of face and keen of wit. Her accomplishments were many and her mental attainments great. She came to live with the Dickens family, and it was not long before she had, no doubt unconsciously, usurped her sister's rightful place as hostess to the hordes of distinguished guests who came to visit her famous husband.

This, of course, was a source of deep hurt to Mrs. Dickens, who for a time remained silent regarding the injustice that was being done her. Later she openly showed her bitter resentment of her sister's attitude, but the situation did not change. In fact, it grew more marked. Dickens frequently in his wife's presence referred to Mary Hogarth as an ideal of womanhood, and just as frequently, according to biographers, declared that his marriage had been a mistake, telling his friends that he and his wife were "not made for each other."

Ultimately the strain was too great, and a separation ensued. Mrs. Dickens was given an allowance of six hundred pounds a year, with which she took care of herself and her oldest son, who accompanied her. The other children and the sister-in-law remained with the novelist.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, whose sermon attacking the constitution and personnel of the Episcopal church has aroused a storm of protest from both clerical and lay leaders of that denomination, is one of the most widely known Episcopalian clergymen in the United States. For 30 years he has occupied the pulpit of the Church of the Ascension, New York city, representing one of the wealthiest parishes in the country. Dr. Grant is a native Bostonian and a graduate of Harvard university and of the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge. His first parish was in Fall River, where he remained from 1887 until called to New York in 1893. He has traveled extensively and has embodied the results of his observations in several published volumes. His views on many social issues of the day are extremely progressive, so much so that they have frequently elicited severe criticism from the more conservative element of the Protestant Episcopal church.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mrs. Eddy a Bold, Shrewd Commercial Promoter.

Mr. Editor: Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy will be known to history, at least to those who have studied her life, writings, character, and conduct — as a bold, shrewd, and successful commercial promoter and propagandist. Bold, if not even to the pont of blasphemy, in her claim of the divine inspiration of the thesis of the book entitled, "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures." I quote from the 201st edition, page 2: "Whence came to me this heavenly conviction? The divine Spirit testifying through Christian Science unfolded to me the demonstrable fact that matter possesses neither sensation nor life; that human experience shows the falsity of all material things." Yet she claimes that God created man—to delude him in every sense and faculty of his nature. Is God the lover and creator of deceit, delusion and lies? Or is it only Mrs. Eddy's God?

Mr. Capell attacking my suggestion as to the origin of her philosophy, states that Dr. Powell says of this, "her philosopsy is her own" entirely. Where does he say so? Not in his "Christian Science, the Faith and its Founder," but just the opposite; in Chapter V, The Philosophy; which he introduces as follows: "The philosophy of Christian Science is merely a distinctive form of idealism; the theory almost as old as man, and there is no reality saved thought. India had the idea before Gautama. Democritus of Abdera, 430 B. C., remarked "Man lives plunged in a world of illusion; and of deceptive forms which the vulgar take for reality. The Neo-Platonists made much of it, in early Christian centuries. Bishop Berkeley gave it a new vogue 200 years ago. But none of them ever dreamed of making the philosophy of idealism a revelation handed down from heaven at a definite time and place, and the basis of a new and startling faith. Christian Science is something wholly different in its philosophy from historic Christianity." The test of divine inspiration which Jesus gave, the touchstone by which we may "try the spirits, whether they are of God: because many false phophets are gone out into the world" (II John 4:1), is truth, or accordance with reality all facts. "When he, the Spirit of truth is come, he shall guide you into all truth." John 16:13. Mrs. Eddy makes him the original author of universal deception. Jesus had not where to lay His head; no exorbitant fees like these for His teaching. Mrs. Eddy's fees in 1887:

A Little Talk on Thrift

Moral Soundness

Those who practice thrift never fail entirely; they may not attain the heights, but they never will reach the depths.

No one, at the beginning of life, ever expects to fail. The lamp of hope burns brightly in youth. But hope alone cannot bring success. There must be concrete action along right lines. Steadily, step by step, the desired ends are attained. Where there is persistent effort with freedom from wrongful methods of conduct and living, there can be no such thing as ultimate failure.

And it is because the practices of thrift keep one constantly within the bounds of prudent living, that this plan of life is the best safeguard against failure.

In a broad and general way, moral [illegible] soundness, as well as economic stability, is the inevitable accompaniment of thrift practice.

Thrift is a character tonic. It develops the will and strengthens the moral fibre. Through it one is able to forego those habits of life that are harmful.

Thrift equips us for the temptations as well as for the vicissitudes of life.

No man can practice thrift without being a better citizen as well as a more independent one.

It is these aspects of thrift which should appeal strongly to parents and to those who are engaged in educational duties. Let us send forth our young men and our young women into the world with a thorough appreciation of the moral as well as the material values of thrift. After all, success in life is not to be wholly measured by material standards.

Learn the value of thrift. No better safeguard against failure can be provided than such an equipment.—American Thrift Society.

Stories That Recall Others

Strategy Goes Astray.

Martha, age six, had unsuccessfully sought the gift of a nickel from her father. Edna, aged twelve, her sister, was a silent onlooker and the two started off together. Scarcely had they reached the sidewalk when they turned back and Martha rushed up to her father.

"Edna wants a nickel and is afraid to ask for it," she explained all in a rush.

"Well, if Edna wishes the nickel I'll give it to Edna," and the father placed the coin in the older sister's hand while Martha jumped up and down and exclaimed in glee, "I didn't want a nickel, I didn't want a nickel."

For a Regular Diet.

He had been getting to work late with such regulararity that the boss' ire was aroused and so he resolved to begin arriving at the office more punctually. Anyhow, all the standard alibis, such as the alarm clock failing to ring, just missing the car and the like were about worn out in his case.

And so one morning he drifted with attempted nanchalance into the office among the early arrivals. The others of the office staff at once set up a clamor.

"What's the matter, couldn't you sleep last night?" some asked.

"He probably was out all night and hasn't gone home yet," others remarked.

"The clock at the house must have been an hour fast this morning," he said another.

Then the target of all these remarks became indignant. Going to the boss he made a complaint. "If it's going to cause so much excitement for me to be on time I guess I had better be late every day," has said.

"Nope," said the boss, without looking up from his work. "Get down on time every morning and you won't cause any excitement."

DRINK WATER WHEN KIDNEYS HURT YOU

Take Glass of Salts If Your Back Aches or Bladder Troubles You

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are oblized to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at

RUB RHEUMATIC PAIN FROM ACHING JOINTS

UNITED WORKERS' BUILDING FUND FOR SHELTERING ARMS OVER $30,000

One of the most important announcements made Tuesday evening at the annual meeting of The United Workers held at the Hugh H. Osgood Memorial Parish House was that the Sheltering Arms building fund had now reached and passed the $30,000 mark, due greatly to the legacy left to the United Workers by the late Thomas J. Wattles. This fund has been growing for nearly nine years but had grown but slowly during that time, but the gift of nearly $30,000 by Mr. Wattles sent the fund upward and brought the time when a new building can be constructed much nearer.

The members of the United Workers are now urging support to this now large fund, that it may become large enough to build this much needed home in the near future.

The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Henry T. Arnold, who welcomed the members of the United Workers and guests. The opening number on the program was a hymn pleasingly rendered by the choir of Christ Episcopal church.

The scripture reading of the meeting and prayer was offered by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, following which there was a hymn by the congregation.

Executive Committee.

Mrs. Arnold then spoke briefly of the purpose of the meeting, then called upon Mrs. Channing M. Huntington, secretary, for the report of the 1923 annual meeting. This report was accepted. The annual report of the executive committee which was also accepted was then read by Mrs. Huntington as follows:

Again the United Workers bring to the public the report of a successful year.

Eleven regular meetings of the executive committee have been held at No. 9 Washington street with three special meetings to consider matters of unusual importance.

The first item of interest, aside from the regular work, was the taking over of the home service department of the Red Cross, as that work no longer required a special Red Cross worker, and has been done by Miss Edith Moran and her assistant, Miss Dorothy Brown of the welfare department, all salaries and expenses being paid by the Red Cross.

A most important event of the year was the legacy of Thomas J. Wattles. The house, 274 Broadway, with the furnishings has been sold, and the money realized devoted to the building fund of the Sheltering Arms.

A special committee appointed to dispose of the furnishings, were the chairman, Mrs. George W. Carroll, Miss Paddock, chairman of the Sheltering Arms committee, and Mrs. Charles A. Gager, who with their chosen assistants, deserve particular recognition for the efficient and systematic way in which the sale was conducted.

By death and resignation the United Workers have lost, this year, three valued workers. In the death of Mrs. George W. Lane the association loses one who has been closely connected with the work from its beginning, and a resolution of appreciation was placed upon the records.

The resignations of Mrs. Francis A. Bidwell, for 35 years the untiring and efficient chairman of the sewing bureau, and of the first vice president, Mrs. Lucius Brown, were accepted with expressions of deep regret.

Returning to activity in the United Workers, after a period of sixteen years, a backward glance shows a most interesting and encouraging growth in the work, a number of new departments having been opened, requiring a large corps of workers, paid and volunteer, while the work performed by the recording secretary has so increased as to demand an assistant, a corresponding secretary, and upon special occasions a public lity committee.

The work of all the departments is carried on, not only efficiently and faithfully, but with joy in the work. The air of peace and contentment pervading the Sheltering Arms, and of happy childhood at the Rock Nook Home is witness of the loving service of those in charge.

Respectfully submitted,
HELEN HUNTINGTON.
Recording Secretary.

Following the adoption of the report of the secretary, Miss Adelaide L. Butts read the annual report of finances which showed the United Workers to be on a fine money basis, and gave an idea of the vast amount of work accomplished by the workers during the past year. The report was as follows:

ADELAIDE L. BUTTS,
Treasurer.

These two reports were accepted and ordered printed with other reports. Mrs. George D. Coit was then called upon to read an appreciation of the late Mrs. George W. Lane, for years a beloved member of the United Workers, and one who had given the best years of her life in the interests of the work of the organization. Mrs. Coit's letter was a beautiful tribute to one who had served so well the needy families, children and old people of Norwich.

Collection Adds to Fund.

Mrs. Arnold then spoke of the Sheltering Arms building fund, explaining the number of years this had been slowly building up, and how by the legacy of Thomas J. Wattles it has grown to over $30,000. She spoke of the great need for the new building and asked for a liberal contribution to the fund. A collection was then taken up and the sum of $38.02 was added to the fund.

This part of the meeting then closed with a solo, Come Unto Him, from The Messiah, sung by Master Howard Finsley of Christ church choir.

Mrs. Arnold then told of the old sewing school located years ago on the West Side and of the building where the sick were taken before the time of the W. W. Backus hospital. These, explained Mrs. Arnold, were then the only two activities of the United Workers and today we have 11 branches, each one ably taken care of by women who give of their time and services. The United Workers is daily reaching out, adding more and more people yearly, and there is a need of greater support if the kind policies of the organization are to be continued in the future. Never, said Mrs. Arnold, has the public of Norwich failed to respond most generously when an appeal has been made by the United Workers, through the newspapers of our city, but with even more support it will be possible to extend the work for the benefit of those needing it the most.

Department Chairmen Report.

The second half of the meeting was conducted in a new way, Mrs. Arnold announcing that each of the chairmen of the 11 departments of the United Workers would give individual reports of activities during the year. Each of these reports were filled with information which showed plainly the many and varied lines of activities this organization is entered into. The reports also showed that the work is appealing to hundreds in the city. Thousands of calls have been made by department workers, hundreds of sick visited, mothers taught better care of infants, pre-natal clinics held, boys' and girls' club work done, poor aided, boys and girls guided along right paths, and many other deeds of kindness performed during 1922 which proved the banner year for activities for the United Workers. On the basis of the reports, the organization claims that it has demonstrated the right to expect the loyal and liberal support of the citizens of Norwich in carrying out the great humanitarian program before it.

The department reports were read as follows: House department, Mrs. B. P. Bishop, chairman, reporting no change; family welfare department, Miss Nancy E. Lucas, chairman, report of thanks for Thanksgiving and Christmas aid, and hundreds of visits by members of the department; sewing bureau, report by Mrs. Herbert R. Kind, appreciation of the work done by Mrs. Francis Bidwell, former chairman, resigned; visitation to almshouse department, Mrs. Howard L. Stanton, chairman, reported inmates in fine health, receiving best possible care; public health nursing department, Mrs. Albert H. Chase, chairman, reported over 1,000 received nursing care, hundreds of calls, bigger program for 1923; district visitation committee, Mrs. John H. Barnes, chairman, reported 78 visitors, over 1,339 contributions, total income $3,071.71, people look forward to visits; Sheltering Arms committee, Mrs. Mary H. Paddock, chairman, report by Mrs. W. Russell Baird, secretary, no deaths during past year, need of new home, fireproof, offering more homelike living; Rock Nook home, Mrs. Edward Fuller, chairman, made an appeal for more interest, outlined aid to many children, many returned to parents, found better homes, watched through school; club works committee, Mrs. Shepard E. Palmer, chairman, reported thanks to teachers for their aid in cooking, sewing and other class instructions, need of more support in the Falls district; Adam Reid fund, Mrs. William A. Norton, chairman, many aided in past year.

Election of Officers.

The nomination of officers for the year 1923 was then made by the nominating committee, Mrs. Frank Hempstead, chairman, all elections being unanimous. The officers for 1923 are as follows:

Mrs. Frank Hempstead, chairman of the nominating committee, then read the nominations of officers as follows: President, Mrs. Henry T. Arnold; first vice president, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard; treasurer, Miss Adelaide L. Butts; assistant treasurer, Miss Matilda Butts; recording secretary, Mrs. Channing M. Huntington; assistant secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar; corresponding secretary, Miss Louise B. Meech; vice presidents for three years, Mrs. Frank S. Bunnell, Miss Alice M. Cardwell, Miss Gertrude M. Following the benediction by Dr. S. H. Howe, pastor of Park Congregational church, the meeting adjourned at 9.45 o'clock.

DENIES NON-SUIT IN LIBBY WILL CASE

Motions for a non-suit and to direct a verdict sustaining the will were denied by Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court, here late Tuesday afternoon in the trial of the suit brought by Mrs. Pauline Beatrice Rutherford (Pauline Frederick) to break the will of her father, the late Richard O. Libby of this city.

The will left her nothing, but left the estate of about $35,000 to relatives of his wife who died in this city on May 31. Mr. Libby died Sept. 1, having made his will on June 5, 1922.

The appellant, who is the well known motion picture actress, did not appear at the trial.

At the opening of the trial Tuesday morning before Judge Brown and a jury, Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who is counsel for the Thames National bank, executors of the will, proved the document by Probate Judge Nelson J. Ayling and the three witnesses, apt. D. J. Twomey, Charles W. Dow and Attorney Arthur F. Libby, who was counsel for the testator. All said he seemed of capable mind when he made the will.

Attorney Libby testified that R. O. Libby told him the reason why he left his daughter, Pauline Frederick, nothing was that she was earning more in a month than his whole estate would amount to, and that she didn't need it, while his wife's relatives did.

Witnesses for the appellant, were called to the stand by Attorney Hiberd R. Norman, counsel for the actress. They included Cornelius R. Hoelck, George R. Hawley, John M. Hoelck and Joseph G. Rainey, a nurse.

Contest of the will is brought on the ground of mental incapacity. Attorney Norman rested his case with some medical testimony.

Dr. Louis T. Cassidy, who attended Mr. Libby last July, when he was suffering from a gangrenous condition in his foot, with a diabetic condition, testified that Mr. Libby was irritable and that he had hardening of the arteries and some kidney trouble. The mind might be affected in some stages of diabetes. He couldn't sleep nights and had to sit up in a chair nights and spoke of how he took to heart his wife's death. At one time, the doctor said, Mr. Libby told him he called upon God to bring his wife back and when God didn't do anything, he called upon the devil. The devil did not respond, Mr. Libby told the doctor, that he had lost confidence in God and the devil.

On cross examination, Dr. Cassidy said that Mr. Libby had enough mental capacity to know what property he had and what he wanted to do with it.

Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve testified he attended Mr. Libby on July 14 when he was suffering from diabetes and bad condition of his heart. Then he was in good condition mentally, but physically in poor condition. Diabetes, said the doctor, throws off toxins into the system which affect the brain and the heart condition would also affect the brain by lessening the blood supply to the brain.

On cross examination Dr. Gildersleeve testified he had no knowledge of Mr. Libby's condition on the 5th of June. In July he seemed to have mental capacity to conduct his own business but later he had delusions and was not able to conduct business.

Nelson H. Larsen, who bought the Libby house on Broadway, testified he bought the place on July 27, testified that he didn't get everything that was agreed to in writing or verbally. When he was buying the property, Mr. Larsen said, Mr. Libby seemed all right, but after that he didn't seem himself. When Libby's goods were packed up, some of the things which had been agreed upon Mr. Larsen should have, were packed up with Mr. Libby's goods.

Attorney Brown made his motions for non-suit and to direct a verdict, which Attorney Norman argued against on the ground that the unnatural disposition of the property, without any break with the daughter, and the medical testimony showed there was ground for bringing the suit before the jury.

After a short recess, Judge Brown ruled against the motion for a non-suit, and asked Attorney Brown if he wished to rest the case for the appellee before the court ruled on the motion to direct a verdict.

Dr. R. R. Agnew was then called to the stand by Attorney Brown. He testified he had treated Mr. Libby at times for two years before June 5, which was the date when the will was executed.

Dr. Agnew testified that Mr. Libby then had mental capacity to know what the property he had and what he wanted to do with it.

On cross examination, Dr. Agnew said Mr. Libby had had paresis, or dementia, but was not demented to the extent of not knowing what he was doing.

Attorney Brown then rested his case and Judge Brown directed the jury to retire. Attorney Brown argued a motion to have the court direct a verdict sustaining the will. He argued that all the medical and other testimony had failed to show that Mr. Libby was lacking in mental capacity, but that in fact it had shown otherwise.

Attorney Norman opposed the motion, arguing that Dr. Agnew's testimony had showed the man had insanity and that unnatural and complicated disposition of the property furnished grounds why the case should go to the jury and that no verdict should be directed by the court.

After the arguments on this motion, Judge Brown denied the motion and court adjourned to hear the arguments before the jury when court comes in this (Wednesday) morning.

CHURCH IS A UNIT IN THINGS THAT ARE VITAL

"The Church of God is more at one with the things that are vital than it is adverse in matters non-essential." This was the opening sentence of an address by President B. T. Marshall, of Connecticut college Monday evening in the First Baptist church, New London, when a mass meeting under the auspices of the Federation of Churches, he spoke upon the topic, "Building the Commonwealth of God." A demonstration of the truth of his first statement, as revealed by the churches of New London county, was manifest in a recent meeting in Norwich of more than fifty ministers representing the Protestant Christian Churches of the County, where, for a day, they met in conference to look at their common problems, to dedicate themselves anew to their common task, and through a sense of fellowship and more intimate acquaintance, to bind themselves into unity as Christian leaders, whose business it is to help build the Commonwealth of God in this county.

The unity of the church was further emphasized by the speaker in the fact that the everyday programme of the church and the constant aim of all churches is to win men to love and obedience to God, according to the example and in the power made available in Jesus Christ our Lord. That unity of purpose, that [illegible] aim, needs to be stressed now as never before, in the presence [illegible] perplexity, the bewilderment [illegible] the world, facing problems that [illegible] and confuse, and through the undertaking of the God-given task to bring men, through work and worship, into friendship with one another and with the Eternal Father.

Specific ways to accomplish this purpose as practicable [illegible]

THE BEST WAY

To get strong and to keep well is to help Nature rebuild and repair the wear and tear upon body cells. Food is not always sufficiently digested or properly used. The best medicine is that which builds up, not merely braces up. This is why Father John's Medicine secures results, which have caused its steadily increasing use for over sixty-seven years. It contains neither alcohol nor drugs. It supplies one of Nature's great food-medicines which can be easily digested and effectively used. Get a bottle today.

It is a builder, not a mere brace.

ty like New London county, and in a city like New London, not overlarge, friendly in spirit, relatively homogeneous, as cities go, and well equipped with churches and leaders, were cited as follows:

1—There should be a new declaration of dependence upon God. America, the republic, the realm the vigorous the creditor nation of the world is in danger of losing her soul unless she constantly acknowledges her dependence upon the Giver of all good, the Creator of all bounty, the source of all wisdom and knowledge and power.

2—There is needed the ringing declaration of loyalty to God and His rule in the hearts of men, and an unswervable purposefulness, through consecrated effort, to build in the hearts, the minds and affairs of men a sense of joy and of confidence in the reign of God in the hearts of men.

3—There is needed an exaltation of the privilege and value of common worship, of regular faithful attendance upon the ministration of the church in order, through the privilege of worship, which means the participation by the people in the prayers, responses and hymns of the church, in the privilege of meditation in an atmosphere and environment which induces it, and through instruction from those trained and qualified for the purpose in things of God to develop the souls of men. This emphasis on worship needs to be made stronger than ever to avoid falling into the danger of the idolatry of the sermon, whose importance is not to be counted, but which is not all the service, and as contrasted to the demand for fine music, for worship is not entertainment. The minister of the church is a director of worship. He should be chosen with reference to his personal qualifications of reverence, dignity, taste, liturgical gifts, and secondly but scarcely less, for his ability as a teacher, preacher and administrator.

4—The building of the Commonwealth of God can further be advanced by the adoption of an adequate and practicable plan for religious education. This may involve a reassizing of the systems now in vogue in many churches. It is hoped it may involve the establishment of week-day religious education by arrangement with boards of education permitting scholars to be released from day school to attend for a period once or twice a week, the religious instruction offered by the churches which must be of the highest character, well graded, well conducted with all the necessary form and quality that should dignify it in the minds of the student and satisfy the boards of education that the work is of equal worth with the educational practices and standard of the day school.

5—The thought of God and the rule of God in the hearts of men will be further enhanced by a recognition of the church year, by observance of the outstanding days, and periods that mark great events of Christ and in the history of the early church. The observance of these days and periods will help one to practice fellowship of the Christian faith and to keep alive and sensitive a sense of the presence of God in daily affairs.

6—The Commonwealth of God will further be built up, and its broad scope recognized as wider than the mere membership and organization of the Christian church, by a policy of hospitality and open-mindedness toward truth from every quarter, by an honest and frank and cordial recognition that the word of God may come from the laboratory of the scientist, the observatory of the astronomer, from the page of history and steadily from spiritual experience of the race; and this open-mindedness and hospitality toward truth should be accompanied by most cordial hospitality toward all who will work and worship in the church, and whose purpose is to do the will of God after the pattern of Jesus Christ though they are not ready, in all details, to accept the phraseology or the confessions of the church called the creeds, which are, after all, the milestones that mark the progress of Christian truth.

7—And most important of all, the Commonwealth of God will be built up by the practice in daily living of the faith men hold, to the end that the state and society may be leavened by the spirit of those in whom abides and work as radiant energy the spirit of the living God.

To this seven-fold programme the churches of New London were summoned with confidence that it is practicable, with assurance that they are able to do it, and that by this means the Commonwealth of God will be as real in the minds and hearts of the people as the city itself has increasingly become in a noble sense conscious of itself.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The first payments of any dividend to any class of its stockholders since Feb. 1, 1921, is to be made to holders of the first preferred stock of the Connecticut Mills company on Feb. 1. A dividend on a quarterly basis of 1 3-4 per cent., or $1.75 per share, was declared Monday and announced Tuesday morning.

It is real good news to the people of Danielson, where one of the big mills—the original plant of the company—is located, and where several hundred people are employed by the concern and where members of its stockholders reside.

It has been indicated for several months that the Connecticut Mills have quite recovered from the reverses they suffered in the nation-wide slump in business in the fall of 1920 that a resumption of dividend payments might be anticipated during 1923, but the announcement of the next dividend to be paid so early in the year came as a very great surprise to all but a very few residents of Danielson, and as a very happy one.

Here in this first step of resuming the payment of dividends the company gives substantial evidence of having weathered a severe storm. This step is indicative of the rehabilitation of the big concern. It already has materially strengthened the corporation's credit and resulted in advanced quotations of its stock.

It is not the intent here to create the impression that the Connecticut Mills is not yet in a strong position financially because that is not the case. But the fact is that the company has just closed a successful year and has reached a point where it is able to pay a dividend—the earliest one—to its first preferred stockholders and halt the accumulation of deferred dividends on this issue. There are seven such deferred dividends on the first preferred stock and it is the hope and belief of the management of the big mill company that all of these will be paid in due time and then attention will be given to the accumulated dividends on the second preferred stock holders of which and of the common stock do not benefit in the present dividend.

Obadiah Butler, vice president and active directing head of the manufacturing operations of the Connecticut Mills company, said Tuesday afternoon that the declaration of the dividend has had an immediate steadying effect. This announced the value of the company's stock, stabilized its credit and brought forth very optimistic forecasts of the concern's future.

While emphasizing the fact that this dividend to the first preferred stockholders is but the first step in meeting its obligations to its stockholders and that the company has not as yet resumed such a strong position as is desirable, Mr. Butler says that the prospects are for an excellent business during 1923, and his hope is that it will not be long before all accumulated dividends of the first preferred stockholders will be paid and attention then given to paying the accumulated dividends on the 5 per cent. second preferred stock.

Mr. Butler sees prospects for a very busy year. He said Tuesday that no difficulty would be experienced at the present time in booking business to the capacity of the plant, but stock of the right kind being offered is on such a basis as to permit of manufacturing only at cost, or slightly less, than cost of production. This is due to the sharp competition of fine fabric mills in southern states, where longer hours are worked each week and lower scales of wages are in force. These southern fabric mills are now quoting prices varying from six to ten cents per pound under the production costs of cotton fabrics here in the north.

However, there is a limit to the producing capacity of these southern fabric mills, and as soon as they have received all of the orders that they can fill during the year, the overflow of business, of which there is prospect of plenty, will come to the fabric mills of the north and allow them to operate at a reasonable profit.

Viewing the outlook, Mr. Butler is encouraged far beyond the hopes of what was believed possible in the way of the company's quick recovery 18 months ago. The company is gradually strengthening its position, he says, and eventually is coming through in fine form.

The concern is now operating free of any restrictions in force when its creditors' committee was in existence. It is retaining splendid cooperation from its stockholders' committee, which is very conservative yet in no way interferes with the operating heads of the company. In a word, the entire situation is continuing to look rosy.

Following his having made an explanation that was accepted as satisfactory by Prosecuting Attorney Arthur C. Bill, Peleg Bromley, driver of a motor truck owned by the Falls company of Norwich was not prosecuted upon his appearance here Tuesday morning, though the intention was to prefer charges against him for violation of the automobile laws.

Bromley was ordered Monday evening by Officer Arthur DeForest to appear here Tuesday morning. This was the result of Bromley failing to halt his truck when the officer blew a long blast for him to stop. The officer followed up his first unheeded signal by jumping on the running board of a public service car that happened along and ordering the driver to pursue the truck, which halted at a filling station to be refitted with a Presto-lite tank, as the lights on the car were growing very dim.

Bromley asserted he did not hear the officer's whistle, being curtained in the cab and owing to the rumble of the truck and the noisy rattle of the chains on its rear wheels. He declared he would have obeyed the signal had he heard it. As to the tail-light on the machine being out, Bromley said it was lighted when he left Putnam and must have jarred out on the trip down. Bromley's statement being straightforward, it was accepted by Attorney Bill and no action was taken against the driver.

The nearly 40 teachers in the schools of Killingly are not going to get their monthly pay checks today (Wednesday), the day they are due, because of the fact that the town has no ready cash on hand.

Now this sounds like a mighty queer statement, coming right on the heels of another one in which it was set forth that Killingly has just received approximately $60,000 in back taxes from certain manufacturing concerns, but it is a fact, nevertheless.

This apparently anomalous situation is due to the simple fact that the nice, fat sum referred to happens to be in possession of Tax Collector George A. Williams at the present time and not deposited to the account of Town Treasurer Frank T. Preston. Collector Williams has not turned the money over, and the law does not require him to do so until Feb. 5, when his collections for the preceding month are supposed to be deposited and available for use by the treasurer in paying authorized and approved bills of the town.

It so happens that Killingly is short of funds, insofar as ready cash in the bank is concerned, at the present time. Of course, the town could go out and borrow several thousand dollars right now and pay the teachers on time, but this would appear to the average conservative citizen like poor financing when the interest charges were considered and when only half a thought is given to that $60,000, or thereabouts, that the tax collector has in his possession.

Killingly long has prided itself on prompt payment of its current obligations. That its preparation for paying on the minute may not suffer, officials were taking steps Tuesday to relieve the present trying situation. Checks for the teachers were drawn Tuesday and it is hoped that when Collector Williams, who is a representative in the legislature, returns from his duties at Hartford on Friday, will deposit his collections so as to make them available for the town and relieve it from the necessity of borrowing money, and paying interest thereon, that salaries due the teachers may be paid.

J. F. Gardner Jr., agent of the Quinebaug company, has been re-elected president of the Manufacturers' Association of Eastern Connecticut, the membership of which is representative of the various varieties of textile concerns in the Quinebaug valley. Charles Bragg of the Central Worsted company at Central Village is vice president; Joseph L. Ryan of Putnam, secretary, and Henry J. Thayer of the Manhasset Manufacturing company, Putnam, treasurer. The board of directors for 1923 is made up of J. Arthur Atwood, Wauregan; Samuel Butterworth, Lawton mills, Plainfield; John G. Johnson, H. K. W. Silk company, Putnam; George J. A. Fried Cape Scallops, Tartar Sauce.
Pommes Saratoga.
Patties of Sweetbreads a la Reine.
Roast Stuffed Turkey, Cranberry Sauce.

Killingly's evening school has been discontinued. Lack of interest and dwindling attendance has made it seem proper and advisable to suspend the sessions. The evening school has been in session only 11 nights since the first of the year. Any number of guesses may be hazarded as to why those who would greatly benefit by attendance at evening school fail to go so though the town and state exert themselves to provide this educational opportunity, but no guess might completely clear up the situation. The fact remains that few who start out so enthusiastically in the early fall maintain their enthusiasm throughout the long term. The others drop out. Incidentally, the town will not be entitled to any reimbursement from the state because the law requires that an evening school shall be in session at least 75 nights to obtain state aid, and Killingly has not held that many sessions since last fall.

Adelbert Gill, about 65 years of age, suffered an attack of heart disease while eating dinner at the Village inn at Goodyear Tuesday at noon and died shortly after being assisted away from the table and into an adjoining room. Dr. George M. Burroughs viewed the body and gave permission for its removal to the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy in Danielson.

Little is known about Mr. Gill's history. He came to Goodyear about a month ago and asked for permission to remain at the inn over night. It was apparent then that the man was in poor physical condition and unable to work, but he stayed on in the hope that his health might improve. He claimed Dover, N. H., as his home and is said to have a sister resident in Springfield, Mass., also a cousin who has been in the priesthood for 40 years and is located at Granby, P. Q. Mr. Gill was without money.

Tuesday afternoon funeral services were held for Ira Shippee, veteran of the Civil war, who died in Goodyear. Rev. Charles A. Downs of that place officiating. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Herbert Congdon, Arthur Tessier, William Pope and William Colwell. Louis E. Kennedy had charge of the arrangements.

At the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy Tuesday afternoon funeral services for Miss Necia Stillwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stillwell, were conducted by Rev. C. C. Tibbetts. Burial was at South Killingly, relatives acting as bearers. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Motorists are receiving application forms on which they may renew their claims for drivers' licenses all of which expire in this state on Feb. 28.

PUTNAM

Henry J. Thayer of the Manhasset Manufacturing company of this city was elected treasurer of the Manufacturers' association of eastern Connecticut at the annual meeting of the organization held in Danielson, and Joseph L. Ryan of this city secretary. Members of the board of directors representing Putnam mills and others in this territory are Mr. Thayer, John G. Johnson, Charles A. Thayer, George A. Gardner and J. F. Riordan.

Putnam police have been making a hunt of public garages of this city in the hope of finding as a "put-up" a Ford coupe stolen from Fannie Gravelin of East Providence. The search did not reveal the car, but the officers are taking two looks at every car of that type that happens through this city. The missing car is said to have been driven out of Providence over the Cheapside route toward this city.

Brick masons are at work building what is to be the north wall and part of the west wall of the First National bank building, now undergoing a remodeling process that will make it one of the most attractive small city banks in southern New England. The extreme cold weather does not appear to hamper the outside construction work. Cement foundations have been put in, have solidified and brick is now being laid upon them. The construction will continue right through the winter except when the weather is stormy.

The coal shortage in Putnam at the present time is the worst in the city's experience during the present winter. Coke is now being used as one substitute for hard coal by householders who have found impossible to supply their needs with the preferred fuel. One resident said Tuesday that he had failed in a city-wide canvass to obtain any hard coal, which is not coming through as plentifully to Putnam as was the case earlier in the winter, although there has been no surplus here at any time. In some homes chunks of hard wood, much of green or only partly seasoned, is being used in heaters, while in other homes oil and soft coal are being used in heaters.

The general impression of officials who have made an investigation of the case and of others who have heard about it and given the subject some thought is that a warning attached to the door of a business place on South Main street is nothing more or less than a rather unworthy effort to josh the colored proprietor.

The sign read "We'll get you if you don't get out" and was signed K. K. K. This looks like another one of many reported instances of taking advantage of a jumpy state of the public mind to scare some likely prospect as a joke, but which is really a serious matter for those who perpetrate it if they are found out.

A concert was given Tuesday evening at the Second Congregational church in this city by the Piedmont male quartet. The quartet is composed of students of Piedmont, Georgia, college. The singers are touring the south for the purpose of carrying the Piedmon college message and to raise funds for the institution. The concert included solos, duets, trios and quartets, southern folk songs, dialect and college songs.

There is at least one compensation coming from this real old-fashioned winter and that is Putnam's assurance of having a plentiful supply of high grade ice for all uses during the year. Thousands of tons of excellent ice has been harvested and stored away by diffred dealers. The work of getting the season's crop is now nearly completed and the supply is so ample as to offset all prospect of shortage.

Passengers who are waiting about the local station for late trains may regale and comfort themselves by reading a pamphlet entitled Bale Play For the New Bacon Road. The pamphlet tells much about the railroad's troubles, considering at some length among other things the shopmen's strike, belated trains, why the power went bad and the money where of the situation. There is the implied impression that conditions are going to be better in the not distant future.

The traveling public, however, has heard that tale now for so many years that ir is a bit wearisome. Admitting that conditions on the New Haven are no worse than on other important roads, what the public wants is dependable train service. It has little further patience. It doesn't like industrial rows that lead to most of the trouble in the nation today.

Police have been asked by her relatives in Danielson to locate a woman about 45 years who has been missing from her home in that place for several days and is believed to have come here and taken employment.

Eleven members of Jessamine chapter, Order of the Eastern Star of this city, left Tuesday afternoon for New Haven, where they will attend today and tomorrow the grand chapter sessions of their organization. Various entertainment features will attend the holding of the sessions.

Charles L. Southey, who has been sub-master at Putnam High school the past two years, has resigned. Mr. Southey is leaving Putnam for a Rhode Island high school. He has been a teacher of mathematics, chemistry and physics, while in Putnam and his work has been pleasing to the school officials.

One of the largest herds of thoroughbred cattle now owned in Windham county is warmly housed this winter, in the splendid big barn at E. C. Rogers Mansup farm in the Gore district. The herd includes upwards of 30 head, including many remarkably fine Holstein-Freman cows, one of which has a state record for milk production.

Indications on Tuesday were that every available ticket for the Putnam-Killingly High school game to be played at the P. H. S. gym Friday evening will be taken in advance. There has been a large demand for tickets from Danielson and the admissions are limited to 400, to prevent overcrowding of the observing space.

As a feature of its winter activities a whist party was held Tuesday evening by the Grosvenordale Whist club.

Tractors have been used to advantage recently in outlining town roads for laying new plows to clear country roads. The combination works splendidly and long stretches of highway can be made good for travel in a comparatively brief time.

Littlefield, president of the Connecticut Congress of Mothers, was the guest and speaker. She gave a talk concerning the important doings of the national and state associations and outlined some things of interest that this local organization can do. The meeting was well attended and very interesting.

Between thirty and forty children are availing themselves of the opportunity of getting hot cocoa which is being made at the school during the lunch hour this term. A class of older girls under the supervision of a teacher has charge of this activity. The best products are used and all is done in a highly sanitary manner and served to the children at the low price of two cents a cup.

The children in all the grades at school are now taking their gymnasium exercises as required by law, at the Community house under the direction of the directors there. The following programme was tried out last week: Tuesday, 3 to 4 p. m., upper grade boys; Wednesday, 2:45 to 3:30, boys and girls of the lower grades; Friday, 3 to 4, upper grade girls.

The teachers assist in this work.

George Hutchinson is still confined to his home by illness.

The community sympathizes with Charles H. Hopkins in the loss sustained by the burning of his garage last week which was not insured and in which he had stored a large supply of automobile accessories and sawmill supplies. Two cars were destroyed and a set of new truck tires which stood close by the door of the garage. The village has a right to be proud of the record of the chemical apparatus which promptly reached the fire and was successful in preventing the building from taking fire. The Central Village fire department was also present, giving timely assistance, the Moosup equipment holding itself ready for immediate service. The loss by the fire is estimate dat least $1,000.

CONTINUES NOON MEETINGS AT RADIATOR CO. PLANT

Under the auspices of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. another fine noon meeting was conducted Tuesday at the radiator plant at 12:30. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was again the speaker, and his audience was a large one. Mr. Ricketts said in part: "You will recall that last week I talked to you on The Limitation of Knowledge, making the points that the best of us know really little at most, and that it was best that we did not know what was to happen in the future, and that there was before us a wide field of knowledge.

"The Scripture used last week was 'For now we know in part' and today I take the other side of the question. 'But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part will be done away.' The Scripture quoted suggests the opportunity for and the necessity of faith as to the future. Faith is a great aid to further knowledge. When we look for the great men of history, we do not necessarily look for the men who have great knowledge, but for men of great faith. I have known men who have had a wonderful grasp on Greek and Latin, but they hardly knew enough to go in when it rained. We must be men of faith if we would be big men. To develop faith into knowledge means that we have not an easy task. Let us think of a boy in our Free Academy whose Father is one of the foremost jurists in Connecticut; the boy desires to also become a prominent jurist. He has a long hard road to travel, between where the boy and his father are there are many sacrifices and hardships. Faith is a great incentive to knowledge. I know of no finer illustration of a strong faith than we have in Columbus. He believed there was something grand across the ocean, but he only guessed; he did not know. His faith led him to persevere in his endeavor to secure funds enough for the expedition.

"Faith is almost knowledge, not quite. For instance, if I were summoned before a judge and asked what I knew about London and Paris, I would be able to tell him considerable about both these places because I have been there. But if he were to ask me what I knew about Constantinople and Calcutta, I would say, I know nothing, but as a matter of fact, I have heard so much about these places that I am absolutely certain that they exist as though I had been in both places.

"I am sometimes asked my opinion of what heaven is, and I answer heaven is a place for the advanced development of everything in me that is fit to live. We attain in every realm by growth, not suddenly, and it means hardships and sacrifices. Washington was not made in a night; Lloyd George did not become the man he is in a day, but it cost him his very blood to climb to his place of prominence. Sometimes you hear people say that it is an easy thing to live a Christian life, but it is not so. You cannot become a well rounded Christian suddenly and without effort. There is in every man the evil and the good, and it all depends which is allowed to develop the most as to what kind of men we are. I suppose there are not many saints among you; saints are not too plentiful, but if we allow the good to develop and grow in us we are on the way to sainthood. St. Paul wrote this significant sentence, "it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like him for we shall see Him as He is." There is the possibility of every human being of whatever race to become finally like God, and faith quickens our knowledge along this line.

S. S. STOCKING WILL BE 93 YEARS OLD TODAY

Today (Wednesday) Sabina S. Stocking will round out 93 years of life on this old planet. Mr. Stocking is at the home of Mrs. Margaret T. Ritchie, 330 Main street, where he has made his home for about four years. He is nicely located, well cared for and likes to meet with old friends. Although he cannot get about as he used to in years past, he retains all of his faculties and keeps up with the times and is cheerful.

He was born in Manchester, Conn., and his family located in Norwich in 1832. When young he mastered the trade of cabinet maker and was a fine worker. He enlisted in the Norwich light infantry before the Civil war and later with the crack Ninth Massachusetts militia regiment and was made commissary sergeant.

In 1866 he located in New York and was there until 1892. In his younger days he was a volunteer fireman in Norwich and the old Fay State and played in the first Gilmore band that paraded in Boston.

Mr. Stocking married Miss Louise Carter who passed away several years ago. All indications are that Mr. Stocking will live to greet his friends on many more birthdays.

WESTERLY

In the Third district court Tuesday morning Everett A. Jones was arraigned before Judge Oliver H. Williams on a complaint charging him with having made an assault upon Mrs. Sarah Perry Carpenter of Main street, with whom he boarded. He told the court he had hired a jitney and gone to the north end of the town and purchased some gin. He said that later he had reason to believe Mrs. Carpenter was helping herself to the gin, and he procured a razor from his trunk and started after her, but did not strike her with the razor.

He says that she fell against it and her clothing and arms were cut. Jones testified that he has been in Westerly for 13 years, has been steadily employed during that time and has had no trouble with anyone and never before has been arrested. Chief Brown said that he knew Jones to be a steady worker and never knew of him to be in trouble. The physician who dressed the wound on Mrs. Carpenter's arm said that it was not of a serious nature. Judge Williams found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $25 and costs, amounting in all to $33.

A special meeting of the Westerly town council was held Tuesday afternoon at the council chambers on Broad street. The purpose in calling the meeting was to discuss certain recommendations which were recently made by the Westerly Board of Trade in regard to filing of plats of land to be developed, certain widths to be made for streets, and also an expenditure of $3,500 for platting and making plans for this work. So much time was taken in discussing the plans for platting, etc., that the question of appropriating $3,500 for plans and surveys was not reached. No votes were taken and the matters were left for action at the next regular meeting.

The "Bonnie Brier Bush" was presented Monday night at the Caledonian hall in Westerly by the Scottish Comedy company of Boston. A large audience greeted the players and the comedy was very much enjoyed. Old Scotch songs were well rendered and John E. Daniels, who sang Scots Wha Hae, received a round of applause. A dance and social hour followed the rendering of the comedy.

MYSTIC

The gasoline line that has been put on between Mystic and Old Mystic is meeting with success.

School trips will be made from Mystic to Stonington and from Stonington to Mystic in the afternoon. Just what disposition will be made of the tracks to Old Mystic has not yet been decided. It is very probable that in a few years this means of service will be carried out and limited service between Westerly and New London touching at Stonington, Mystic and Noank and the possibility of a local service which would go into the center of the small places en-route.

The funeral of William A. McKone was held at his late home on Greenmanville avenue, Monday and a solemn high mass held at St. Patrick's church, Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald celebrated the mass. Interment was in St. Patrick's cemetery.

STONINGTON

A fire broke out about 12:20 Monday night in Clemen's boarding house on Water stret. An alarm was rung in from box 4 and both fire companies responded. Upon reaching the scene the firemen found a man who boarded there had presumably dropped a spark from a match on his feather bed which was soon in flames. The fire was confined to the bedroom. The firemen did most excellent work under Chief Engineer Charles Main.

The furniture belonging to the late Mrs. Julia Darrell of Main street were sold at auction Tuesday afternoon, and drew a large crowd.

Mrs. Paul F. Estey, of Westerly addressed the members of the Travel Club Tuesday afternoon a tthe Free Library, a most interesting meeting was enjoyed.

Joseph Pont spent Sunday at his home here. Mr. Pont is employed in New York.

Albert Fritz spent the week end at his home here and returned to Willimantic Monday.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. Juna Belle Squier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Utley, is at home, having a vacation of nearly three weeks from her duties at the Mansfield training school and hospital, where she is employed.

Miss Helen Brown is living in Hartford at present, being employed in a music store.

The monthly social of the Christian Endeavor society on Friday evening, under the management of the young men, took the form of a coasting party on the hill at the Green on the Pine street road. Twenty-eight young people participated in the sport, having a hilariously good time, adjourning to the chapel at 10 p. m. for refreshments.

The continued case of Alex Zuryk, a blacksmith at Leonard Bridge, against Abraham Kosoff for a bill of $48 for work done, extending over the past two years, was brought to trial on Saturday afternoon at the town hall before Justice Hubert P. Collins. Zuryk was represented by Town Counsel Samuel B. Harvey and Kosoff by Judge Frank H. Foss of Willimantic. Justice Collins decided the case in favor of the plaintiff, allowing him, however, only $18 on account of his bill as presented. Through his counsel Zuryk appealed his case to the superior court.

At the next social of the Christian Endeavor society, Friday evening, Jan. 26, the Epworth league of Willimantic will present a play entitled Pa's New Housekeeper.—adv.

The reading lesson in church Sunday morning was Acts 26, being Paul's defense before Agrippa. The tet of the sermon was Acts 26: 19 a nd 28. "Whereupon, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision," and "Then Agrippa said unto Paul almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian," which the preacher used as a basis for a discourse on faith in God.

JEWETT CITY

Rev. James J. Tyler, a native of New Britain, recently assistant at the Immaculate Conception church in Waterbury, one of the largest and most flourishing parishes in this diocese, comes to Jewett City as assistant to Rev. John J. McCabe, pastor of St. Mary's church. Father Tyler takes the place of Rev. J. H. Selferman, who on account of ill health has been obliged to relinquish active duty for the present and is now recuperating at the home of his father in Middletown.

Father Tyler is a young man of exceptional ability and a man who challenges especial notice on account of his fluent mastery of the French language. He is well known in this end of the state, having served at St. Mary's in the French parish at Willimantic for three years. While Father DesSureault of Occum and Father Morrissey of Plainfield were in Europe, Father Tyler acted for them in charge of their respective parishes. His preparatory and collegiate course was perfected in the Nicolet college of the province of Québec, and his seminary course at St. Bernard, Rochester, N. Y. St. Mary's parish is to be congratulated in being so fortunate as to be assigned a young man of such marked ability and linguistic accomplishments. The attention of state church officials is often called to the Jewett City parish because of its distinctive polyglot nature, this fact demanding that its pastor and his assistant shall not only deliver sermons in the mother tongue but must also be given in Polish and French. The many friends of Father Selferman, both in the church and out of it, are a unit in expressed pleas that he will be able to resume active duty and serve in other fields.

News has reached the borough of the critical illness of Henry Huntington of Willimantic, for several years a resident of Jewett City, where he was boss farmer for the Ashland Cotton company. He sang bass in the Methodist church choir. His daughter, Grace Huntington, became the wife of Leonard Geer, a native of Griswold. Mr. Huntington not returning from the woodlot as soon as he ought, his son-in-law, upon going to investigate, found him prostrated.

John W. Blake, 58, died at his home on Mechanic street after an illness of nearly two years. Mr. Blake was born in Worcester, Mass., the son of Michael and Catherine Gallivan Blake. He was married to Elizabeth E. Furey in Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 23, 1890. For 21 years the family has lived in Jewett City, where Mr. Blake was overseer of spinning with the Ninigret company until his illness. Previous to that time he was with the Samoset mills in Central Falls in the same capacity. He is survived by his wife and seven children —David of Providence, Jennie, John, Catherine, Edward, William and Mary of Jewett City. A brother, David F. Blake, lives in Attleboro.

Mr. Blake was a member of Nutmeg lodge, M. W. of A., Eleaser Jewett lodge, N. E. O. F., Court Griswold, F. of A., A. O. H., Div. No. 1, of which he was a past president, and of the Holy Name society. Those who knew Mr. Blake best say that he was a master of the textile divisions of which he had the overseeing for many years.

As a rule the silent partner has a good deal to say.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, Jan. 23.—Prices in today's stock market opened strong, reacted in the early afternoon and then strengthened again before the close, making final quotations irregularly higher. The afternoon reaction accompanied marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 5 per cent, news of the Turkish rejection of the British proposal regarding the Mosul oil fields and a sensational break in Fisher Body stock, which dropped from 208 to 163 and then rallied to 172 for a net loss of 28 1-4 points.

The reaction was halted by a bullish demonstration in the rubber shares, which accompanied announcement of another increase in the price of crude rubber to 37 cents a pound, the highest since the middle of 1920 and more than double the price in the early weeks of last year. There was also a heavy accumulation of railroad shares just before the close, several investment issues gaining 1 to 11-2 points.

Trading continued to be largely a professional affair, the volume of sales being even lower than that of yesterday, which was the smallest full day session since the middle of last August. The extreme dullness made it difficult to ascribe any particular reason for the fluctuation of most prices.

Baldwin and Studebaker were again the most active of the leading industrials, the former closing at a slight fractional loss. U. S. Steel advanced a point and gains of a point or more also were registered by such prominent industrials as American Tobacco, Consolidated Gas, Crucible Steel, Maxwell Motors A and B, Tobacco Products, Steel and Tube preferred, United Fruit, U. S. Rubber and Corn Product. Mexico Manufacturing, Mandil, Sinclair and Mackay companies, also were strong, each gaining 2 points or more.

Woolworth was one of the most conspicuous weak spots, dropping to 201 for a net loss of 11 1-8 points. Beechnut Packing, which has been bid up recently on speculative expectation of an increase in the dividend, dropped 2 3-4 points on announcement by the president of the company that no immediate increase in dividends was contemplated. California Petroleum closed 2 1-8 lower.

No special reason was assigned for the heavy buying of rail shares in the final dealings. Jersey Central advanced 5 points and gains of 1 to nearly 2 points were scored by Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, Lehigh Valley, New York Central, Pere Marquette, Union Pacific and Western Maryland second preferred.

Call money opened at 4 per cent., advanced to 4 1-2 in the late afternoon and thence to 5, where it closed. Government withdrawals from local banks during the day amounted to $2,000,000, with heavy withdrawals also reported by interior institutions. There was little change in the time money market and the tone was somewhat easier, loans running being offered at 4 1-2 per cent. for the shorter maturities and at 5 1-4 per cent. for longer periods with little support bidd on out for 4 1-2 for the usual 6 months loans. The commercial paper market also was more active, a good volume of new paper being placed and disposed of quickly. The bulk of the paper placed was in 4 months maturities.

Foreign exchange took place in more active manner today than for some time past. Demand sterling advanced 1 cent to 4.46 1-8 and francs, checks to 5.18 points to 6.03 with other exchanges advances in the Belgium and Italian rates. Danish exchange alone dropped to 18.69 yesterday to 18.24 on Saturday, quoted today to 19.40. Calcutta exchange established another new high record, the rupee being quoted to 38.-

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 23.—Bond prices exhibited a firmer tone in today's market but a number of weak spots in the rails and public utilities gave it a spotty appearance at the close. Except for a drop of 14 cents on $100 in the first 4 1-4's U. S. government bonds were either higher or unchanged, the gains ranging from 2 to 16 cents, the highest in the second 4's which ordinarily are inactive.

There was a suspension of liquidation in the French and Belgian issues on the brisk recovery in exchange rates but French 8's Bordeaux 6's, Lyons 6's and Seine 7's were the only liens to make any material recovery, the gains in these ranges from 1 to 1 1-2 points. Latin-American bonds were strong, Mexican 5's advancing 1 3-4 on reports that the Mexican government had deposited sufficient funds here to make the first debt payment, April 1, and advances of 1 to 1 1-2 points being recorded by Republic of Colombia 6's, Bolivian 8's, Republic of Chile 7's and Havana Electric 5's. Danish bonds were weak apparently in belated response to yesterday's sharp drop in exchange.

Goodyear 8's of 1931 advanced 3 points on a heavy turnover and Maryland Oil 8's with warrants, moved up 4, while gains of a point each were registered by Chile Copper 7's, Mexican Petroleum 6's and Wilson company convertible 6's. The feature of the railroad list was a drop of 1 3-4 to 61 1-4, a new low record in the New Haven issue 7's. St. Paul general 4 1-2's, Chicago & Alton 3 1-2's and Louisville and Nashville unified 4's each scampered at least a point.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit 5's, seldom dealt in, dropped 3 points and Interborough Rapid Transit 6's, 2 1-4. Government powers 5's were pushed up 1 1-2 points.

Total sales (par value) were $11,449,000.

Total sales 804,000 shares.

20 industrials averaged 97.43, net gain .18.

20 railroads averaged 85.77, net gain .67.

High 1922, 93.99; low, 73.93.

METAL MARKET

MONEY

New York, Jan. 23.—Call money firmer; high 5; low 4; ruling rate 4; closing bid 4; offered at 4 1-2; last loan 5; call loans against acceptances 3 3-4.

COTTON

New York, Jan. 23.—Spot cotton quiet, middling 23.75.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Helped by strength of European exchange the wheat market today rallied somewhat from recent sharp declines in price. The close was firm, 3-8 to 1c net higher with May 1.16 to 1.16 5-8 and July 1.11 5-8 to 1.11 3-4. Corn finished unchanged to 1 1-4c lower, oats 1-8 to 1-4 to 1-4 up and provisions varying from 7c decline to 5c advance.

Houses with eastern and foreign connections were early buyers of wheat, and gave the market an upward impetus which although afterward temporarily more than offset through increased selling was again in full force during the last half of the day.

In addition to the upturn in European exchange, the fact that the Liverpool wheat market failed to reflect yesterday decline here had a bullish influence, and so, too, did purchasing of May here against sales at Winnipeg. Besides, it developed that the price difference had been greatly narrowed between Argentine wheat C. I. F. Europe and No. 2 hard wheat at ports on the Gulf of Mexico.

Demand for wheat grew more impressive in the final dealings and with many previous sellers trying to even up trades, the market closed at practically the top figures reached. Nevertheless, other bears contended that broadly speaking the days recovery was only a natural reaction after the big break which of late had been recorded.

Corn was weak owing in some degree to the prevailing mild weather. Oats were firmer with wheat.

Provisions held about steady in the absence of any aggressive action either way on the part of leading interests.

ARE WOMEN OVERWORKED?

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. The aprons to the housewife and mother who struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father or mother to support, therefore do housework besides. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Ninety-eight out of every 100 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for woman's ills. For nearly fifty years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.

NUMBER FOUR

rest, and he had declared his belief in the principle that large factors in the world's resources should not become the subect of monopolistic development.
The American representatives were glad to associate themselves with the intent of Lord Curzon's remarks on this subject; they had expressed their governments' policy, but neither the statement nor adherence had reference to any particular [illegible] field of economic activity. Only those who wilfully perverted these declarations had read into their meaning which suited their own political ends.
Ambassador Child continued: "The American representatives cannot [illegible] duty to refer to Lord Curzon's [illegible] mention of the Yankee oil [illegible] claims of the Turkish Petroleum Company and to request the conference that, without seeking special privilege or favor, the interests of the United States [illegible] be considered in the principle that it must be considered in the rights of [illegible] from the usual consumptions in coal, [illegible] cases, where another principle is involved, will be a violation of the policy of the open door.
"We seem to be substantially correspondence our Government has already made in regard under the necessity and assistance in the Council of the United States. So far as it seems to [illegible] protection to legitimate American interests is at their hands, it does not affect the duty of the American representatives whether the [illegible] American rights is associated with commercial, or any other kind of interest."
Mr. Child responded by saying the Lord Curzon's reference to a new corporation afforded a opportunity to suggest that where [illegible] existing claims already in existence concerning legal rights to resources some means should be provided for a judicial settlement of these rights which would give complete assurance of impartiality.
He held that such impartiality could not be provided for specifically in advance, but that under a general principle the interested parties should be satisfied as to the impartiality of the unbiased determination at the time of the reference of the conflicting claims.
The British spokesman said tonight that Lord Curzon would undoubtedly send his communication in time for its consideration at the next meeting of the council of the league in Paris, which is set for January 29. They called attention to Curzon's words that if the Turkish government declined the council's invitation to state its case, then the league would probably place it [illegible] and the penalties that could be applied, hence. These are of an economic nature, and bind the league to boycott Turkey.
"The league of nations has never adopted definite rules for [illegible] each member is placed [illegible] as to whether to [illegible] a blockade or not."
The British added that the latest development seemed to [illegible] distinctly unfavorable for the success of the Lausanne conference. The conference, however, will continue its labors, and the Turks will later be confronted with the draft treaty in which [illegible] to the British, [illegible] submitted to the [illegible] Turks change the [illegible] they will be sufficient for them to refuse to sign the treaty. Then [illegible] and tonight, [illegible] of war in the Near East.
Some of the other [illegible] inclined to take a more [illegible] the situation than [illegible] several of the [illegible] of peace to mediation. They [illegible] the opinion that the [illegible] soon to mediation. They [illegible] large number of [illegible] lies had already made to the league and believed that the world would [illegible] the balance.
The Turks asserted that [illegible] could never [illegible] as breaking up the Near East [illegible] forever over the question of oil [illegible] than the world would come to [illegible] the real cause to the crisis.
Lord Curzon, himself, at today's meeting remarked these [illegible] thought England was interested in Mosul because of its alleged oil riches, and declared that Great Britain [illegible] pledged her word to the Kurds of [illegible] on the southern frontier of Turkey that they would not be returned to the Turkish yoke, and Great Britain meant to keep her word.
He admitted that [illegible] Empire company possessed oil concessions at Mosul, but said that England would [illegible] erously take into account the world's needs and not try to monopolize Mosul's petroleum.
He attacked the Turkish delegation for sending representatives to London recently and offering Mosul oil [illegible] cessions to British syndicates, now endeavoring to influence the French government. The British [illegible] holding the oil concession to Mosul had acquired it before the war. All the British recognized that petroleum [illegible] vitally interested the whole world, and contemplated no monopoly. No negotiations were under way to the [illegible] of the legitimate interests of other countries, and if these succeeded the world would gain.
In his arguments Ismet Pasha contended that Mosul was an essential part of the Turkish Fatherland and that no such question could be referred to arbitration.
After pointing out that the general mandate idea came from President Wilson, Lord Curzon remarked that Turkey had authorized a mandate for France in the case of Syria, yet denied it for England in the case of Mesopotamia.
Lord Curzon was opposed to a plebiscite, because it had never worked, he said. He recalled that in spite of the present thirty thousand troops in Upper Silesia an attempt to hold a plebiscite was the cause of assassinations and battles costing many lives, and was eventually abandoned and the question sent to the league of nations, which, he declared, was "impartial and possessed great moral authority."
If Turkey refused to submit the case to the league, what was to be done? The newspapers were saying that if the Mosul question was not settled in accordance with Turkish wishes, Turkey would decide the matter in a military way.
"There may be war," he said impressively. "I am here to make peace, not war, and therefore I am not here to allow conditions to exist which may result in war."
Lord Curzon then outlined the steps he would take and declared that Turkey would be responsible for what might happen.
M. Bompard, Count Di Garroni and Baron Hayashi, representing France, Italy and Japan, respectively, earnestly supported the British plea for arbitration. Mr. Bompard said the situation was one of gravity, and the gravest results might follow from Turkish refusal. Baron Hayashi referred to the British offer as entirely unselfish, and urged the Turks to reconsider their decision.
Ismet Pasha, however, proved adamant. He insisted that a plebiscite would work if there was complete abstention of outside influence. He thought nobody could contemplate the possibility of peace being threatened by the question of Mosul. His last words created a new sensation in the British delegation. They were: "I ask the British to accept the principle of the restitution of Mosul to Turkey."
The conference adjourned late tonight in considerable confusion and without definite plans for the future.

POSSIBLE TREATY BETWEEN TURKEY AND UNITED STATES

Lausanne, Jan. 23.—(By The A. P.) As the American delegates here are systematically preparing bases for a possible treaty of amity and commerce between Turkey and the United States they have a lively interest in the discussions of the Lausanne conference which is now [illegible] its climax.

FRENCH ARE TO WORK GERMAN STEEL PLANTS AND MINES

Steel Manufacturers in France Have Been Asked to Go to Essen—French Technical Forces and Troops in the Ruhr Are to be Placed Under One Command—Railroad Workers in France Are Being Mobilized and Sent to the Ruhr—A Number of Czecho-Slovakian Miners Are Being Engaged by France for the Ruhr Mines—The Germans Are Continuing Their Policy of Resistance.

(By The Associated Press.)

Conditions in the Ruhr are improving for the occupying forces. The mines are in operation to 85 per cent. of their capacity, the railroad services are reported to be well up to the standard, and in general there is less tension evident in the industrial towns.

France is preparing to take over control of the railroads, and for emergency purposes is mobilizing her own railroad workers, who will be put into service in the Ruhr in case the Germans go on strike.

Premier Poincare at Paris, in conference with the heads of his technical departments, is prepared to send reinforcements to the occupied territory, and at the same time the French authorities have in mind the cutting off the Ruhr region from all communication with outside sections of Germany.

There are rumors that General Weygand, Marshal Foch's chief of staff, will be appointed high commissioner for the Ruhr.

The French president, M. Millerand, in an address to representatives of the Legion of Honors, announced that France was determined to compel respect for treaties.

POINCARE DAILY CONSULTING WITH TECHNICAL EXPERTS.

Paris, Jan. 24.—(By The A. P.) Premier Poincare is continuing his daily conferences with the heads of the technical departments concerned in the occupation of the Ruhr with reference to reinforcements of the contingents already there, which, it is said in official circles, must necessarily be larger than at first contemplated because of German resistance.

Officials figures place the number present in the Ruhr district at about 45,000 troops, fifty French engineers, twelve Italian and the same number of Belgian engineers. Others will be sent forward as rapidly as needed.

The necessity of concentrating the technical forces and guarding troops in the Ruhr under one command is felt, and it is thought probable tonight will be given to the premier that General Weygand, Marshal Foch's chief of staff, will be given supreme command with the title of High Commissioner for the Ruhr.

Reports are current that one of the most conspicuous steel manufacturers in France has been asked to go to Essen. This is taken to mean that M. Poincare is determined, if necessary, to operate the works there, as well as the mines, if the Germans continue to stand out.

The mailing out of a section of the railroad workers on a special mobilization order is only the beginning of the task of strengthening the operating staff of the Ruhr. It is expected that other technical men will be summoned as soon as it is decided that what is required.

The French public, which was surprisingly indifferent to the operation in the Ruhr at the outset is now showing lively interest, due, it is thought, to the German resistance. The announcement of the entry of the French troops into the Ruhr produced no visible reaction, even the movie public watched the pictures of the entry apathetically, but now they are cheering every time the French soldiers in occupied Germany are flashed on the screen. It is said that M. Poincare has noted this change in the attitude of the public and feels that his hand has been strengthened accordingly and is more determined than ever to maintain his present attitude whatever the resistance the Germans may offer.

MINING IN THE RUHR NOW 85 PER CENT NORMAL

Duesseldorf, Jan. 24.—Mining operations throughout the Ruhr yesterday reached 85 per cent of the normal output.

Meat has increased sixty per cent in price, while fats and lard are getting very scarce. General Degoutte has issued orders forbidding the soldiers to buy milk, except for hospitals, as there is also a great shortage of milk.

FRENCH HAVE RELEASED 100,000,000 MARKS PAYROLL

Ludwigshafen, Jan. 24. — The French authorities today released the 100,000,000 marks payroll belonging to the aniline syndicate, which the French seized several days ago.

BELGIANS ARE SENDING A WAR STRENGTH REGIMENT

Brussels, Jan. 24.—A fresh regiment at full war strength left Antwerp today to reinforce the Belgians in the Ruhr. The men were loudly cheered as they departed. A strong detachment of railroad men has also been sent to the Ruhr.

A despatch from Aix La Chapelle says that the Belgians arrested two more bank managers today. It adds that the Reichsbank, which had been cleaning up all the marks possible in its different branches, tried to get the marcons the Rhine, but the bearers were detected and the money was seized.

FRENCH TROOPS ARRESTED DISTURBERS AT MAYENCE

Mayence, Jan. 24.—(By the A. P.) —Crowds which assembled outside the court to await the verdict started demonstrations when the news was learned, singing "Deutschland Uber Alles" and other patriotic songs. The demonstration was prolonged throughout the evening until French cavalry dispersed the manifestants who scattered over the city breaking a few windows and yelling. The German police and military authorities did not interfere. The French troops arrested some of the disturbers.

French military officers assert that they had information that German agitators were present in the crowds in an endeavor to provoke an incident, but that the coolness of the French troops defeated their onject.

During the proceedings in the court-martial, a French attorney, Maitre Laclere, who had been appointed to act for the defendants, [illegible] hesitated to appear for the industrialist, but that he finally had agreed in order to show that the defendants were possessed of the widest guarantees. He had made it a condition, however, that he also should speak as a Frenchman.

After theoretically defending the French occupation of the Ruhr and eulogizing Premier Poincare, M. Laclere asked for the acquittal of the Germans, declaring that any Frenchman in France would have done as they had done.

GERMANS ARE CONTINUING POLICY OF RESISTANCE

Duesseldorf, Jan. 24.—(By The A. P.)—With their eyes turned toward the Mayence courtmartial, the Germans in the Ruhr today continued their policy of resistance by refusing to obey the orders of the forces of occupation while the French proceeded to further repressive measures.

The number of expulsions of officials since midnight of January 20 now totals twenty-three. The director of customs of the Dortmund district has been placed under arrest, thus recording the first incarceration since the industrial magnates were taken into custody last Saturday and held for trial by courtmartial.

The instructions received in the Ruhr from the minister of posts and telegraphs in Berlin to decline to afford any telegraphic communication requested by the French military has been countered by the French who have taken charge of the Bochum, Dortmund and Essen telephone exchanges and are operating them.

FINES IMPOSED UPON SIX GERMAN INDUSTRIALISTS

Mayence, Jan. 24 (By the A. P.)— The six German industrialists, headed by Fritz Thyssen, who were arrested by the French occupation authorities in the Ruhr for refusing to carry out orders given them to insure reparation deliveries from their respective plants, were convicted here today by courtmartial.

In each case fines were imposed in francs. The aggregate amounted translated into American money was $20,000.

Officials here were unwilling tonight to comment on the judgment of the court, but permitted the feeling to spread that it would serve as further proof of the mildness with which the French government is conducting its operations in the Ruhr and be an excuse for stronger measures of further occasion arises to deal with recalcitrancy.

FRENCH RAILROAD WORKERS ARE BEING MOBILIZED

Toulouse, France, Jan. 24—(By the A. P.)—An order has been received here mobilizing the seventh field section of railroad workers for service in occupied Germany. One hundred of the men were sent last night to Bordeaux where they are being equipped for duty in the Ruhr district, and 200 more belonging to the twentieth section are due to leave tonight for Paris on their way to the occupied zone.

P.)— Dr. Schlutius, president of the state finance department, and Dr. Von Raiffeisen, president of the state mines administration, recently arrested for refusing to obey the orders of the French authorities, were convicted today by a courtmartial and sentenced to one year imprisonment. The sentence, however, was suspended.

Asquith, and David Lloyd George.

The letter refers to the late ambassador, as "one of the best friends Great Britain ever had, and a far-seeing crusader in the cause of Anglo-American cooperation."

She has decided to obtain that. Her tenacity and calm will overcome every resistance. I have confidence in the firmness and coolness of the government. Have confidence in yourselves."

ADMITTED THE THEFT OF $3,000 AUTOMOBILE TRUCK

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 24.—Arrested this afternoon for violation of a motor [illegible] John Compton, 19, of 118 Wabash [illegible], Newark, N. J., who was taken in custody with two others, admitted to the police the theft of a $3,000 automobile truck from John Morris and Company, undertaking supply concern of Newark.

The two who are being held with Compton are Stanley Kierron, of West Kingston, R. I., aged 20, and Herbert Heintzman, also 20, of 37 Upton street Boston.

The trio were arrested when the truck in which they were riding, wandered into a street reserved for one-way traffic. Compton in voluntary confession told the police he had taken the truck from 119 Broad street, Newark, this morning upon assurance given by his two companions, that the vehicle would be successfully disposed of in Boston. The other two vigorously denied this statement, holding they were merely being accommodated for a ride by Compton who picked them up on the road. Advices are being awaited from Newark authorities.

STATE HELPED SUPPORT OVER 500 WIDOWS IN 1922

Hartford, Jan. 24.—Over 500 widows received financial support from the state during the past year, according to a statement made today by Agent Raymond F. Gates of the department of charities and institutions. At present the number of widows who are state beneficiaries is 518.

Mr. Gates said that improvement in the industrial situation had made it possible for many of the widows to earn something to contribute toward their own support. He pointed out that 1,800 children are present beneficiaries of the department.

Agent Gates requested a deficiency appropriation of $50,000 to reimburse towns for care of state paupers. This is a statutory requirement and the $200,000 appropriated for the purpose two years ago was an estimate. Of this appropriation $185,058 has been spent to date.

Deficiency appropriations were asked by other departments as follows: Teachers' retirement fund, $75,000; motor vehicle department, $36,000; state library, $15,000.

SUSPECT BANDITS' LEADER IS AN ESCAPED BURGLAR

Newark, N. J., Jan. 24—Essex county authorities are working on a tip that the leader of the bandits who held up a federal reserve bank truck in front of the United States mint at Denver, December 18 and whose frozen body was later found in the bandit car in a garage there, is Hugh Douglas Craig, escaped burglar wanted here.

Craig slipped a pair of hand cuffs and escaped from a gang of prisoners about to enter a prison van here November 20. A few minutes before his escape Craig had been sentenced to serve from fifteen to thirty years in state prison for burglaries.

He was known as "The Gentleman Burglar", and was said to have been an electrical engineer and a college graduate.

Detective headquarters here received a letter from Denver suggesting that the dead bandit may be Craig. A handkerchief found on the slain man's person bore the initials H. C. which were Craig's.

SOFT COAL PRICES ARE ON DOWNWARD TREND

Washington, Jan. 24—Bituminous coal prices, which have shown a strong advancing tendency in recent weeks, are now turning downward, according to compilations given out today by F. R. Wadleigh, federal fuel distributor. During the week ending January 22 available statistics indicate the average price of the products at the mines was $4.33 per ton, as compared with $4.42 the previous week.

The drop, Mr. Wadleigh said, is believed to be due to the vanishing of fear concerning a possible strike in the coal fields, mild weather and better transportation conditions.

Banner, secretary of the National Merchant Tailor Designers' association, stated today. The association is holding its 43rd annual convention here. He ascribed the mounting price of wool and scarcity of workmen as reasons for the predicted price increase.

British and Turks Clash at Lausanne

Both Are Holding Tenaciously to Their Original Positions on the Mosul Question.

Lausanne, Jan. 24 (By the A. P.)— Great Britain's proposed appeal to the league of nations against Turkey, on the ground that the Turkish attitude on the Mosul question threatens to disturb international peace, was the subject of a lengthy conference today between Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, and Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league.

Both the British and the Turks were holding tenaciously tonight to their original positions. No compromise appears possible; one or the other must back down.

In the meantime a complete agreement was reached today on the problem of the exchange of populations, whereby the Turks in Greece will be moved to Turkey, and the Greeks in Turkey who are Ottoman subjects will be sent back to Greece.

Another clash occurred today between the British and Turks over the men buried in Gallipoli. The Turks announced that the cemeteries of the British dead must be made smaller, they were willing, they said, to discuss the laying out of new cemeteries elsewhere than in Gallipoli.

The British delegates characterized this demand as an insult, saying that the British forces now occupied Gallipoli and would continue to occupy it, whatever happened, until assurances were received that their soldier dead would remain undisturbed.

The allies have abandoned their demand for the expenses of the occupation of Turkey and have reduced the reparation bill to £15,000,000.

$140,000 FIRE LOSS IN THE CENTER OF NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 24.—Firemen fought a stubborn blaze in the four-story brick warehouse of the H. M. Bullard company, furniture dealers in Orange street, for a number of hours this afternoon and confined it to the single building. The company's loss will approximate $90,000 with possibly $50,000 to firms in adjoining buildings. Fire, smoke and water losses are subject to adjustment, it was state, as it was impossible tonight to determine the amount of salvage from the stock of furniture in the main store of the Bullard company.

Next door is the main office of the Western Union Telegraph company, in the upper part of whose building are several manufacturing firms. The fire did not get a foothold in the building however, and while the telegraph company had complications through water flooding conduits, the damage was not believed to be heavy.

SPIRITUAL PHOTOGRAPHY IS AN INGENIOUS FRAUD

New York, Jan. 24.—"Ectoplasm" is so un-spiritual that it "can be chewed and swallowed," and spiritual photography is "a clever and ingenious fraud," Dr. Joseph Jatsrow, professor of psychology at the University of Wisconsin, declared in an address today before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

He characterized belief in ghosts as a sort of "verbal intoxication," declaring that people "always elaborate upon stories they hear regarding ghosts and spirits"

In order to gain any scientific attention today, he continued, a ghost must have modern attire. The old-time ghostly shroud, he said, was a thing of the past, and the tendency today is to "substitute new words for old things and imagine they, have a meaning,"—hence, "ectoplasm."

TO EXPERIMENT WITH FIVE CENT FARE IN NORWALK

Hartford, Jan. 24.— The experimental five cent fare rate in Norwalk ordered by the public, utilities commission May 21, 1922, is rescinded in an order issued by the board today. The order provides that the Connecticut company shall return to its at ten fare rate, or three metal tickets for twenty-five cents, except that the five cent fare will remain for local passenger transportation between Norwalk and South Norwalk railroad stations, with transfers furnished on this line only to those paying a ten cent or a token fare.

The order notes that during the five cent fare experiment all the lines in the city except the West Avenue line lost money.

Cody (Buffalo Bill) has been presented to Yale university by Mrs. Charles Bigelow, widow of Colonel Bigelow, of this city, it was announced tonight. Rum-Running Fleet is Being Checkmated Ships Are Reported to be Riding Idly at Anchor Off Sandy Hook, With No Customers.

New York, Jan. 24.—Despite the favorable "snow screen" off shore, which prompted the quick dispatch of the coast guard cutter Manhattan, the launch Surveyor, and all other available craft to Sandy Hook to block possible attempts to land liquor, the rum fleet off Sandy Hook rode idly at anchor today, with no customers. The Manhattan returned tonight with "nothing to report."

The fleet, according to observers, now numbers 17 ships, three of them steamers. A little off the regular trans-Atlantic lane, but directly in the path of ships coming in from the south, the bootlegging craft were described as a greater menace than ever to navigation in the blinding storm. Small fog signals employed aboard are heard, mariners said, only a few feet away.

John D. Appleby, head of the marine department of the prohibition enforcement forces, said his men were standing guard at three inlets along the Long Island coast.

"The rum runners can get their stuff to Long Island only at these three inlets," he said. "Our boats re patrolling these places and our men on the shore are ready to help frustrate any ttempt to land liquor. We are covering about 100 miles of the coast."

CHARGED WITH HAVING FORGED HIS WIFE'S NAME

Boston, Jan. 24.—David Murray, a civil engineer, was arrested here tonight at the instance of his wife, Agnes Fiske Murray, on charges of forgery. The complaint alleged that Murray forged his wife's name to orders on which he received negotiable bonds and stocks, per property, from a Boston brokerage concern.

The warrant covered four counts of alleged forgery and uttering, placing the amount said to have been obtained by means of four orders on the brokerage house at $12,000. Inspector who made the arrest said that the charges to be brought against Murray would probably involve half a mission dollars.

Mrs. Murray's fortune was inherited from her father, who was said to have been a Harvard professor. Murray's bail was fixed at $5,000 tonight and he was remanded to jail.

The complainant is a daughter of the late Arthur L. Fiske, former Harvard lecturer and principal of the Boston Latin school, who died in 1919.

BLANKET OF SNOW COVERS NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Jan. 24.—With more snow, perhaps in blizzard form, forecast for most of New England, the weather bureau today issued a road map which showed graphically the extent to which the winter's heavy snows still cover this section. Virtually all of Maine, all of New Hampshire, and most of Vermont were shown to be under more than a foot of snow, and it was stated parenthetically that in some places the amount of snow on the ground, unaffected by drift, was in excess of three feet. Much of Massachusetts and the western half of Connecticut was shown to have between six inches and a foot of snow.

Due to five feet of snow was reported on Worcester county roads between Barre and Athol, and the Jacob's Ladder, Mohawk Trail and mountain roads were described as completely blocked to motor traffic.

GERMAINE BERTHON, GIRL ANARCHIST, EXAMINED

Paris, Jan. 24.—Germaine Berthon, the girl anarchist who last Monday shot and killed Marius Plateau, of the royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise, was examined by an investigating magistrate today in the hospital where she is being treated for the wound in the breast which she inflicted upon herself after killing Plateau.

Mlle. Berthon told the magistrate that she came to Paris from Tours in 1921, joining the anarchist union. She was wounded by a sabre during the communist manifestation of April last, and left the anarchist union to become an individualist.

She told the magistrate she assumed entire responsibility for the killing of Plateau, and said she had long intended to slay Leon Daudet, proprietor of L'Action Francaise.

STATE FUEL ADMINISTRATOR T. W. RUSSELL HAS RESIGNED

Action Was Due to Failure of the Legislature to Act Promptly on Recommendations—Declines to Carry Responsibility Without Proper Enforcement Authority—Resigns in Order to Give Governor Templeton "a Free Hand in Building Up a New Organization in Which the Legislature Might Have More Confidence"—Charles W. Jaynes, Deputy Administrator, is to Retire With Mr. Russell.

Hartford, Jan. 24.—State Fuel Administrator Thomas W. Russell today forwarded to Governor Templeton a letter tendering the resignations of himself and Deputy Administrator Charles W. Jaynes, of West Hartford. Following is a copy of the letter:

"I present herewith the resignations of Charles W. Jaynes, deputy fuel administrator and myself, state fuel administrator.

"Ever since August of last year we have attempted to control so far as we could, by the force of public opinion and without law, the fuel situation so that the distribution should be as widespread as possible—in order that the unusually scanty supply which we knew would be forthcoming should be available for every home in the state.

"You have called the attention of the legislature to the fact that in your opinion the present situation had developed into an immediate emergency requiring definite authority to control it effectively. A bill was presented to the legislature on Thursday of last week. No definite action has been taken on the bill, although I understand the time for hearing has been set for Tuesday of next week. Under these circumstances it is evident that it will be impossible to pass any so-called bill under the latter part of next week which means an interval of at least seven days without legal control.

"On account of the present unusually severe winter conditions we are absolutely unwilling to continue before the public in the position of carrying a certain amount of responsibility for the development of the situation without any real authority to control it.

"The apparent reluctance of the legislature to act promptly on this matter can be due to only two reasons: I. A belief that no emergency exists, in which case this administration is not needed by the state—or, 2, the fact that the character of this administration is such as to make them timid about giving it legal authority for its action. In order to clarify the situation as regards the latter condition, I feel that it would be helpful to you to give you a free hand in building up a new organization in which the legislature might have more confidence.

"It is my impression that much of the criticism against the bill was directed against several sections which were not suggested either by the attorney general or by us, and I am mentioning this fact to you in order to make our record entirely clear.

"You have been kind enough to request us to continue, but I regret to have to ask you to consider this letter as final. The resignations to be effective upon appointment of our successors or in any event not later than January 31st.

CONDEMNS USE OF WINE UNDER GUISE OF RELIGION

New York, Jan. 24—Immediate repeal of the sacramental wine privileges to Jewish congregations as a means of checking the misuse of the privilege was advocated today by Julius Rosenwald, Chicago manufacturer, at the Golden Jubilee of the union of American Hebrew congregations. He appealed to the convention to ask congress to repeal the present system and denounced the religious bodies, Jewish and otherwise, who used the wine under the guise of religion.

"We should state in the first place," Mr. Rosenwald said, "that we believe it is not necessary to use wine for sacramental purposes. Then we should petition congress or whatever body is required with the enforcement of the prohibition law to take cognizance of our attitude and to withdraw the privilege of sacramental wine from Jewish ministers and congregations."

LOOKED LIKE A BLIZZARD BUT TURNED INTO RAIN

New York, Jan. 24—A chill rain, which arrived just in time to save New York from what looked like an old-fashioned blizzard, late today caused the worst congestion of years in the West Side tunnel of the Interborough subway.

Soaked pedestrians, ducking into the subway stations, particularly the one at Times square, which was already jammed with matinee crowds, made it impossible to load and despatch trains on anything like schedule. President Hedley of the Interborough said, explaining the tieup.

And just about that time the homegoin gcrowds of office workers added themselves to the melee. Trains which normally go uptown in 45 minutes rattled from 30 m. tes to an hour in their cunning time, and the passengers had been so squeezed that they felt all out of shape by the time they got home.

MAY BE RECONCILIATION OF FARRAR AND TELLEGEN

New York, Jan 24—Reports of a possible reconciliation between Geraldine Farrar and Lou Tellegen were revived today after Arthur E. Schwartz counsel for the actor had obtained a postponement until Monday of a request hearing in a divorce brought by the diva.

The attorney said he had asked for the postponement in order that he might receive from Mr. Tellegen now in Los Angeles, a reply to a letter asking whether there was any truth in reports of a reconciliation. He denied that the continuance had been sought by his client and emphasized that he merely desired to ascertain whether there was anything to report that Mr. Tellegen recently had sent a bouquet to the singer in Lynn, Mass. Mr. Tellegen has been quoted in dispatches as denying that the flowers came from him.

Mr. Harding attended to a number of matters today in his study, signing the nomination of Judge Edward T. Sanford, of Tennessee, to be associate justice of the supreme court to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Associate Justice Pitney and nominating a number of postmasters and some other federal officers. He also signed the interior department appropriation bill and some minor bridge bills.

MONTVILLE

Miss Florence Chapman has received a medal from France in recognition of her services as ambulance driver in the World war.

There were about 30 men of the community who gathered at the Baptist parsonage for a social time Wednesday evening in response to the invitation of the pastor, Rev. John H. Stearns. Many games were enjoyed and one interesting feature of the evening's entertainment was a number of baby pictures of the men hung on the walls, and from which those present were asked to guess their identity, the one guessing the most to receive a prize. This was won by Fred Chapel, and consisted of a fancy picture. A vote was taken on the prettiest baby picture, and Herbert Rogers' picture took the prize. Everyone had a grand time singing songs, and refreshments were served of sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee. Pastor Stearns gave the men a short talk, and it was voted to hold a social at the chapel next month, with an oyster supper.

Temperance Sunday was observed in the Uncasville Methodist Sunday school on Sunday, and Mrs. Luther Fields of Norwich, secretary of the W. C. T. U., gave an interesting address to the school. In spite of the extremely icy walking, two classes had a perfect attendance, Mrs. Cooper's and Miss Rena Ungerer's.

Joyce Johnson, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Johnson, celebrated her fifth birthday at her home on Jan. 16 by giving a party. Games were played, refreshments were served and there was also a pretty birthday cake with five candles. Those present were Mrs. Edwin Comstock, Mrs. Robert Eaton and children, Edna and Doris, and Mrs. Carl A. Johnson and Joyce Johnson.

A truckload of young people under the management of William Allen and Thomas Jones motored to Willimantic armory to attend a dance and supper on Saturday evening. Those in the party were Madeline Walsh, Helen Skiffington, Aldea Lousignan, Gladys Daniels, Eleanor Langevin, Ida Bonville, Rose, Catherine and Teresa Hickey, John Donovan, Eddie Bonville, Louis Bonville, Henry Hamilton, Ingolf Johnson, Thomas Jones, Albert Morin, Bernard Allen, Frank Pachiodo, James Clark and Leo Murphy and Harold McGrath of New London.

About 35 of the Ladies of Columbia came from Norwich on a sleighing party to Hickey's hall on the evening of Jan. 16th. A social evening was enjoyed with music and playing of games, and a lunch of sandwiches, hot dogs, coffee and cake was served.

An entertainment given by the children of the Uncasville Methodist Sunday school will be held in the schoolhouse on Friday evening. There will be a playlet and pantomime by the small children, and a western Indian scene by the older boys and girls, and also recitations, together with the home orchestra of the Uncasville church.

The weekly Bible class of the Montville Union Baptist church which has met at the parsonage on Monday evenings will be held this week at the chapel after the prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 8.15, and will be conducted by Mrs. John H. Stearns.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Uncasville Methodist church will meet with Mrs. Ralph Meicer Thursday afternoon.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Union Baptist church will meet with Mrs. Pearl Chapel on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary A. Stone, widow of Edward L. Stone, died at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Caswell, 40 Johnson avenue. Mrs. Stone was born in Pomfret Landing, Conn., Aug. 4, 1843, the daughter of Charles and Esther Bennett Durkee. She passed her girlhood in Killingly, where she taught school for a number of years previous to her marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Stone made their home in Willimantic in 1872 and the deceased had since lived here.

Mr. Stone was a conductor on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for over 40 years, dying at his home on Pleasant street in 1914. They were the parents of three daughters, Jessie W., who was the wife of Robert H. Fenton, dying in 1908, Grace G., who was the wife of Elmore Platt of New Haven, her death occurring in 1916, and Mabel E., wife of Charles H. Caswell of this city, who survives.

There are two grandchildren, Lois Caswell and Jessica Fenton. Mrs. Stone was a devoted wife and mother and was a most congenial neighbor, loved by all who knew her.

A pretty winter wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Backus in South Windham at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when their daughter, Calista Helen, became the bride of George Lester Gardner of Providence, son of Dr. and Mrs. James L. Gardner of Central Village.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white canton crepe trimmed with lace and buds. She wore a tulle veil caught with buds and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and sweet peas. The maid of honor, Dorothea Gardner, sister of the groom, wore yellow canton crepe and carried a bouquet of Aaron Ward roses. The bridal party entered the living room to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The best man was Kenneth Stetson of Central Village. Rev. A. W. Clifford performed the ceremony and the double ring service was used. The house was prettily decorated with ferns, palms and cut flowers, yellow, white and green being the color scheme.

A reception was held after the wedding. The couple left later in the day for an extended wedding trip.

At the annual meeting of the South Coventry Congregational church, held in the vestry, one of the items of business discussed and voted upon was the increasing of the pastor's salary $200, this being the second increase since Rev. Charles D. Johnson accepted the pastorate two years ago. Rev. Mr. Johnson expressed appreciation for the cordial relationship between his parishioners. L. A. Kingsbury was the moderator. A total of $12,242 was spent for a new furnace and repairing the vestry.

At a court session held Wednesday morning in the town hall at South Coventry, Justice of the Peace William D. Hawkins presided. Frank Garmalinski appeared on the charge of assault and breach of the peace and Benedict Twerdy was charged with assault, breach of the peace and trespassing. Both men engaged in a fistic battle Monday evening on land owned Garmalinski and Wednesday morning both still bore the marks of the fight, displaying black eyes and bruised faces.

Garmalinski entered a complaint to the authorities and claimed that Twerdy had assaulted him. Shortly after, Twerdy entered a complaint against Garmalinski, and both men were arrested Wednesday morning. Justice Hawkins was of the opinion that both were guilty and fined each $5 and costs, totaling $14.50, on the charge of assault, and then sentenced both to 15 days in jail, suspending sentence and placing them on probation for six months.

A pulmotor was recently added to the equipment of the police department. The machine is kept in the Bank street engine house and can be secured when needed by calling up either the police station or the engine house. Still another addition was made recently when a first aid kit was delivered to Chief Killourey. The cabinet is of metal, 12x16 inches, and contains medicines, bandages and a complete line of first aid necessities. Arrangements are being made to have all first aid work done in the lobby of the police station, where chairs and temporary stretchers will be provided when needed.

ASKING $2,726,500 FOR STATE ROAD WORK

Decision to request specific appropriations aggregating $4,726,500 from the general assembly to carry on the work of the state highway department for the next two fiscal years has been made by Commissioner Charles J. Bennett. This is about $1,200,000 more than the aggregate of specific appropriations made to the department two years ago.

These estimates are predicted on the continuance of the present schedule of motor vehicle fees, which by law are turned over to the highway department for repairs and replacements. As $3,567,744.84 was realized from this source during the past calendar year, granting by the legislature of the specific appropriations now requested, will make about twelve million dollars available to the department from the state treasury in the next two years, provided the legislature makes no change in the motor vehicle fees.

Money received from the government for federal aid roads and funds contributed by towns toward state aid highway projects are not included in the estimate of $12,000,000. These sources are capable of producing enough additional funds to bring the aggregate at the disposal of the highway department to nearly fourteen million dollars.

For state aid highways, two million dollars is asked. This is twice the amount asked for the purpose two years ago, probably to make up for the fact that the last request was not granted. The legislature adopted the state aid highway bill, but it was in one of the last days of the session, and the bill, reaching ex-Governor Lake after final adjournment of the legislature, failed to get his signature.

A request of $1,000,000 is made this session for construction of trunk line highways. The other items in Commissioner Bennett's requests are the following: Trunk line bridges $500,000; repairs to the state aid roads, $750,000; deputies and engineers, $400,000; office and clerical expenses, $50,000; commissioner's salary, $10,000; commissioner's traveling expenses $2,000; commissioner's automobile $8,500.

No appropriation is requested in complete unfinished intervals in state aid roads.

FIERY, ITCHING SKIN IS QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

KEARNS ANGLING FOR MATCH BETWEEN DEMPSEY AND WILLS

New York, Jan. 24.—Jack Dempsey's principal objective in his heavyweight campaign this year is a bout with Harry Wills, negro challenger. Second choice is Jess Willard, who lost the title to Dempsey three and a half years ago at Toledo.

That was the way Jack Kearns, the titleholder's manager, summarized his plans today after his arrival for conferences with promoters which are expected to result in a definite program of action for Dempsey next summer.

"The Wills match is what the public wants most of all," Kearns declared, "and Dempsey is ready to sign for any reasonable terms. I have had no bona-fide offer for a match with Wills but I am going to insist that it be given first consideration."

Kearns declared he was anxious to sign for a Wills bout around July 4 and if successful would seek one or two fights beforehand to put the champion in condition.

"They say Willard is too old, that Tom Gibbons and Harry Greb are too light, and that Luis Firpo and Floyd Johnson are not yet ripe for a championship match," Kearns said, "but we're willing to fight any of them. Willard is entitled to a return bout and I think he would give the champion a real battle, if he is in shape."

Dempsey is ready to fight on short notice during the indoor season, Kearns added, or early in the spring.

Kearns and Dempsey postponed their scheduled conference with Tex Rickard until tomorrow, when the Madison Square Garden promoter is expected to propose terms for two bouts, one with Willard and another with either Gibbons, Firpo or Johnson.

Tom O'Rourke, Polo Grounds matchmaker, announced he would offer Kearns definite terms on Friday for three bouts, all to take place at the Giants' ball park between April and October, with three of four contenders from whom O'Rourke would choose. Except to admit that Wills was one of the quartet he had in mind, O'Rourke would not disclose his plans, but it was understood Jess Willard, Tom Gibbons and Joe Beckett, the English heavyweight, were the other three.

SPEAKER MOST SUCCESSFUL AS PINCH HITTER

American league managers called on 104 players during the season to act as substitute batter, either to start a needed rally or to deliver a hit in a pinch. Only 55 made hits at any time, but most of the 49 who failed were called upon only once or twice and of these, six were each responsible for one run, but without changing the result of any game in which they acted as pinch hitter.

Of the fifty-five who hit safely, Manager Speaker of Cleveland was the most successful, the Indians' leader having worked the opposing pitcher for four bases on balls and on hits in 21 appearances as substitute batter.

Larry Woodall, Detroit, was at bat twelve times in eleven games and made five hits, while Hauser, Philadelphia Athletics; Menosky, Burns, Foster, Leibold, Boston; McClellan, Mostil and Strunk, Chicago; Uhle and Gardner, Cleveland; Gagnon and Manion, Detroit; O'Doul and Schang, New York; Welch, Young, Hauser and McGowan, Philadelphia; Robertson, Vangilder and Durst; St. Louis; all hit .300 or better. Walter, Boston; Uhle, Cleveland, were up twice and delivered a 1000 per cent, while Blue, Detroit; Judge, Washington, and Witt, New York, each drove out a single in their one effort.

Pinch hitters often created interesting situations and occasionally won games outright. Some of the more notable, that had an influence in the final standing of the teams follow:

On July 7th Joe Harris tied the score with the Browns in the seventh inning with a double, in the ninth Burns tied it again with another double, and in the thirteenth Boston won. This was the worst blow the Browns suffered during the season from pinch hitters. It will be recalled that St. Louis lacked only one game of tying New York for the championship.

July 17 Amos Strunk scored Falk with a two-base hit, and won from New York in the eleventh round. Hervey McClellan went to the plate five times as pinch hitter and made good on four occasions. Three times he started ninth inning rallies, but not in a single instance was the result of the game changed.

Larry Gardner made two hits in the eighth inning of the game of August 16th against the Athletics and Cleveland scored seven runs, but the lead of the Mackmen was too long to be overcome. Guisto beat Detroit in the final inning April 26th after the Tigers had led Cleveland for eight rounds.

Nunamaker's double was a potent factor in the defeat of New York on June 19, when Cleveland counted three times in the eighth. Nunamaker also helped down Washington in the tenth inning of the game August 19. Speaker and Stephenson also had much to do with the victory of September 15 over Washington when the Indians scored three runs in the last inning. It is obvious that timely hitting had much to do with landing Cleveland in the first division.

Danny Clark, pinch hitting for Detroit in the ninth round of the Philadelphia game, May 23, drove out a home run with two men on, which tied the score, the game being called in the eleventh with the count still even. July 7th Detroit was seven runs behind Washington when the ninth inning opened. Woodall, pinch hitter, led off with a safe drive and before the side was retired he came up again made another hit, and Detroit won, 11-9.

Camp Skinner beat the White Sox in the tenth round, May 9th, with a single which was the best pinch hitting performance of the year for any Yankee player.

One of Manager Milan's four pinch hits came in the ninth inning of the game with Boston, May 31, and aided in the scoring of four runs and victory.

The Red Sox pinch hitters came nearest to the regular team batting average, followed by Cleveland and Chicago.

WESTMINSTER HOCKEY TEAM FORFEITS TO BOSTON A. A.

Boston, Jan. 24.—The Westminsters of New Haven, last year's champions of the United States Amateur Hockey association, failed to appear tonight for a scheduled game with the Boston Athletic association, present leaders in the eastern wheel of the league. As a result the game was declared forfeited to B. A. A. by Thomas J. Kanaly, local representative of the association.

It was announced to the biggest crowd of the season which packed the Boston arena, that the Westminsters had failed to send any explanation of their absence from the game, scheduled weeks ago. There had been a question of the status of the team due to the fact that final certificates of standing had not been issued to members of the team who played in Canada last season, and who for that reason required formal transfer certification by the Canadian Amateur Hockey bodies to those of this country.

Francis J. Sullivan, sponsor for the Westminsters, had demanded that certificates be given, but had sent his team on the ice in previous scheduled games of the league series, although threatening from time to time to play no more. He was here last night but, according to George V. Brown, manager of the arena, gave no intimation that he would not appear tonight for the game for which seats had been sold out even then.

In an exhibition game arranged to sooth the disappointed audience, B. A. A. won, 5 to 1, from a team made up largely of members of the Victoria Rowing Club of Canada, another C. S. A. H. A. club. The only goal for the opposition was scored by Percy, a member of the Boston Hockey club.

In the final period the game almost developed into a free-for-all battle when Percy became involved in a fist fight with Campbell of B. A. A. after Campbell struck him. At one time there were four players on the penalty bench.

WESTMINSTER PLAYERS STAY AT NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 24—Members of the Westminster Hockey team of New Haven, who failed to appear for a scheduled game with the Boston Athletic association tonight in Boston spent the evening here watching the Yale freshmen play a practice game in the Arena.

Members of the team said that they had not gone to Boston on orders from Charles Van Norman, manager, who was in communication this morning with Francis J. Sullivan, sponsor of the team. Mr. Sullivan, whose home is in Boston, telephoned Van Norman that he had been unable to get the certificates of standing for the team and that under those circumstances he believed that the game tonight would not rank as a league game. He told Van Norman to hold the players here until further orders. No additional instructions were forthcoming and the team remained in New Haven.

The team was scheduled to leave at noon today and it was not known here that the game would not be played until it was learned that it had been forfeited in Boston.

SHOW BIRDS ARRIVE IN MUTILATED CONDITION

New York, Jan. 24.—The annual Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, ordinarily staid, had a sensational opening when the management posted notice of a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of persons responsible for mutilation of prize-winning white leghorns entered by George D. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Mich.

When the cocks and cockerels were uncrated on their arrival from the west, their tails were found to have been so badly mutilated as to compel Mr. Ferris to withdraw them from exhibition. It was recalled that a shipment of entries to the Chicago Coliseum show last December had met with similar mutilation.

LOWTHORPE LANDSCAPE SCHOOL'S SPECIAL COURSE

The Lowthorpe school of landscape architecture for women, which is located at Groton, Mass., is offering a special course for amateurs, April 3 to May 17.

Lowthorpe offers exceptional opportunities to students enrolled in this special course designed to meet the needs of the amateur gardener. The grounds are laid out in a series of gardens: The rose garden, rock garden, long border—the iris garden—the sunken garden, annual garden and nursery of herbaceous perennials being attractively related in an harmonious whole. The special course of lectures has been carefully planned to cover subjects of keen interest to the gardener with daily instruction in the green house and garden.

Miss Amy L. Cogswell, formerly of this city, is an instructor at the school.

Breed Theatre

Those who have not seen the William Fox production, "Silver Wings," featuring Mary Carr, the famous mother of "Over the Hill," now showing at the Breed theatre, still have one last chance to witness this feature photoplay, which ends its successful run today.

The great number of picture lovers who have crowded the Breed theatre unanimously acclaim Silver Wings to be even greater than the famous Over the Hill, which stirred the country last year. They realize finally that that which tugs at their heartstrings affects them far more visibly than the mediocre thrillers viewed in the lurid melodramas in the days gone by. For who is there so superficial that fails to be touched by the greatest love of all—mother love?

In showing Silver Wings the management of the Breed theatre fully believes that the same emotions portrayed in this picture play does not concern itself with the element of time. It matters not whether the action takes place a hundred, a thousand years ago, the heart throb is the same.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lorna Doone Opens at Strand Today.

Romance comes riding across the screen in picturesque seventeenth century garb in the sumptuous production of Lorna Doone which opens at the Strand theatre today. From a novel that has been a favorite with three generations, Maurice Tourneur has produced a film that combines the beauty of an old world painting and the thrills of a modern melodrama.

Against the background of the Devonshire hills and moors, visited annually by hundreds of tourists who have shuddered over the deeds of the "bloody Doones," the beautiful love story of the captive Lorna is told. Characters of the familiar book enact with a realism, terrifying at times, the dramatic episodes that are known to every student of the English classics.

Contrasted with the early scenes of the wild moorland where peasants in quaint homespuns and linseys live under the terrorized sway of the wild outlaw band are vivid glimpses from the magnificent court of King James where Lorna is taken in regal style after her rescue by the herculean John Ridd from the wicked Doones. John's fight when he tears a hole through the thatched roof of the banquet hall where Lorna is being forced into marriage with Carver Doone and the big battle when the aroused peasantry burns the Doone village to the ground are two of the most dramatic episodes ever screened.

The novel has been screened with an evident disregard for expense for the settings are rarely beautiful while the photography attests the innate artistry of the producer.

"Ham" Hamilton in his latest comedy, The Educator, and a Selznick News are the remaining subjects.

ONE MAN CARS.

Many of the bills which are being introduced in the legislature this week will never appear on the statute books. It will be felt by many that for the good of the state this is the proper method of disposing of them, and among that number may well be included the measure that would forbid the use of one man trolley cars. That would be aiming a blow both at the trolley companies and the traveling public.

Driven to greater economies than had previously prevailed in order to reduce expenses, and by that means make possible a lower trolley fare, the trolley companies resorted to the one man cars, the operation of which reduces the amount of current used and the wages paid. One man is doing the work of two, doing it effectively, with better service than could be expected under former conditions and with as great if not greater degree of safety in transportation. These are matters that must get consideration when there is thought of forbidding one man cars.

Tests have shown that there are less accidents with such cars than with the two-man cars and where efforts have been made to have them removed by trolley companies the petitions have been denied. One-man cars are operated with success in the larger cities and certainly the idea of forcing greater expense upon the companies, with the knowledge that the greater expense of such a forced change would call for increased revenue which would have to come from the fares cannot be looked upon as in keeping with present conditions.

Notice has been received that a second reduction in the fares is to be made. The one man cars have helped to make this possible. They are going to continue to aid in the bringing back of the nickel fare, and it is certainly an unreasonable proposition to urge that the benefit of the one man cars should be denied to the people who are depending upon trolley service and looking for the coming back of normal fares.

BUILDING A POSTOFFICE.

Much is to be said in favor of the recommendation made by the postoffice clerks at Hartford, who in anticipation of a new postoffice building for that city have urged that it be not a "European palace of marble" but built after the "style of the leading factories of the state."

That of course may strike one as a bit unusual. It is not customary for postoffice employes to have much to say about what kind of a building shall be erected, and certainly it is not in keeping with past practices to build government buildings that have any resemblance to factories. And yet, why not?

What is needed more than anything else in the construction of a postoffice building is a place for the efficient handling of the mail and a location that will be reasonably handy for the people of the community. Is there anyone better qualified than the experienced clerks of a postoffice to pass judgment upon the kind of a building that should be provided? It is possible to build an ark of a structure, that might resemble a European palace or one from some other continent and possibly contribute to the attractions of the community and yet be wholly unfit for the purpose for which it is intended—the handling of the mail.

Factory buildings are invariably erected for efficient handling of the business. That is, modern ones are. Proper attention is paid to light, the amount of floor space and adequate room for the various departments. They are built for business rather than show, and that is the sensible recommendation that the Hartford clerks appear to have made, and it might easily be inferred that they had done so under the belief that these essentials are too often disregarded.

Certainly the recommendation of the Hartford clerks, if followed, would not obligate the government to the expenditure of a greater sum than might otherwise have been intended.

INJUSTICE TO HARBORD.

Wise expenditure of money and the elimination of waste have been urged by President Harding. It represents of course a policy that should be in operation at all times in congress, and possibly that is the mistaken view which is being taken by the lower house when, in response to an amendment to the war department appropriation bill, it voted favorably upon the cutting off of the retirement pay for Major General Harbord. No names are mentioned in the amendment, but it is solely for the purpose of dealing with that case that this action is sought.

Whether or not the house realized the significance of the amendment is uncertain, but now that attention has been called to the situation and the meaning of the amendment it is certainly to be expected that the senate will insist upon the removal of such clause in the bill.

It is a long established fact that honorable service in the army entitles an officer to a certain part of his pay upon retirement. That is in recognition of service and because he continues to be subject to the call of the government in case his services are required at any time. It is part of the contract under which an individual enters the service. Others are getting it and others are anticipating it. There is no reason why it should not go to General Harbord. It is not a question of whether he needs it. It is a case where the government should live up to its obligations. He isn't drawing any more than he is entitled to, or more than others in a similar office would draw. There has been no discrimination in his favor and there should be none against him. Because he has entered private business upon retirement, and because the company with which he is connected may at some time do business with the government ought not to interfere with his contract with the government.

The step that has been made by the house action is most unwise. It certainly cannot inspire the best possible from an army officer henceforth if it is permitted to stand.

CROSSING DANGERS.

Those who have narrow escapes at railroad crossings may or may not have disregarded the danger in getting over a railroad track at grade. Certainly they are more fortunate than those who have lost their lives at such points, and if greater vigilance at such points is needed by them they have had warning enough. Good luck has given them a chance to take even greater precautions in the future when they undertake to negotiate such crossings. It brings home to them that there is an actual danger at such places, and there is quite as good reason why it should do the same thing to others, whether it happens to be those particularly crossings that are concerned or not. Too great care cannot be exercised when it comes to a possible dispute of the way with a locomotive.

On the other hand there are times when even the careful are next to helpless. There are the blind crossings where there is no opportunity to get a view of the track in one or possibly both directions. They call for greater caution of course, but at those points the highway users are entitled to some warning of the approach of a train. If a flagman isn't warranted there should at least be a bell or a light that will serve to prevent fatalities.

It is clear that there are a great many instances where the expense of elimination of crossings is out of the question. Possibly there are those where technicalities exist concerning the establishment of signals, and under those conditions no one feels warranted in action. Yet the situation is one that warrants something being done for the prevention of fatalities.

Increased respect for crossing dangers and better warnings at such points would do much to save life.

AGREEMENT BLOCKS SHORTAGE

When the commission that is engaged in getting the facts about coal stated recently that the prospects were that there would be no strike in the soft coal fields this spring, it knew what it was talking about. If it did not actually know, it was able to reach a conclusion from such conditions as it was familiar with, and that made if possible for it to predict the agreement between the miners and operators that has taken place.

The agreement differs from others that have existed from the fact that only three of the four states that formerly made up the central competitive field are included in this understanding. This represents the big majority and in all probability will serve as a standard for the establishment of wages and working conditions in the other fields.

While the public has been interested in seeing that no pact was drawn up that would have for its object the gouging of the consumer, it has also been keenly alive to the importance of being assured that the fuel supply will not be curtailed again this spring. In the conference that has been underway these matters have not been disregarded, and the reaching of an agreement doesn't mean that the public is going to be saddled with higher prices or that there is to be any interference with the work of the fact finding commission. It does mean that coal production will continue, that coal will be available, but that whatever relief is to be expected in the way of better conditions in the coal industry must await the commission's report and action thereon. It blocks another shortage this year.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The push at Hartford is on, but there's some satisfaction in the fact that it cannot last long.

The continuance of the fight in Ireland can no longer be blamed to influences outside of the island.

It is useless now to hazard any guesses about the weather until groundhog day has done its worst.

It was not so many days ago that Germany was piling up coal. Now it seems to be engaged in piling up trouble.

They are sending most everything by radio these days. Possibly the monthly bills will be distributed that way next.

Those who have found it necessary to subsist upon snow balls have been provided with plenty of material thus far this winter.

France isn't willing that the Ruhr dispute should go to the league of nations. What does France think of that league, anyway?

For some reason there doesn't appear to be as much enthusiasm over the celebration of Bobby Burns' birthday as there used to be.

Are we going to continue to pay a high price to keep our merchant-marine idle, or are we going to encourage it to get busy and do something?

Those who have had much to say about Colonel Harvey because of speeches he has made are now complaining because he didn't make a single one during his stay in this country.

Governor Smith of New York hasn't been in office three weeks and has begun to pardon prisoners whose conviction has been justified by the highest court and whose pardon has been previously refused. It takes politics to make a monkey of justice.

THEIR THRILLING DAY

"Well!" began the serious young man who always took the lead at the big fraternity house, "this is a nice time to be getting in from a merely Sunday noon dinner! Was she there?"

"Hey, fellows!" shouted the nervous young man. "C'mon down! Shanks and Methuselah have got back! What's she like? Have you been eating dinner straight through from 2 o'clock till 10?"

"Loosen up!" roared the entire fraternity house, now gathered. "Was she like a chorus girl?"

"Of course not," the tall young man told them affably. "Being one, she did not in the least resemble one. She may be Tottie Footlights on the stage, but once out of the stage door she is Miss Mary Whetstone and her mother is a lifelong friend of the hostess' where we dined. I am sure she can bake a cake and do tatting."

The fraternity house greaned in incredulous horror.

"But she doesn't," the short young man hastened to add. "Say, but she's a peach! You'd wish you had eight eyes instead of two just to look at her! And she had a friend with her from the same company who simply isn't! No human girl really could have such eyes and hair and not dissolve into just a dream or something! They were just like other girls—only more so!"

"Oh, much more so!" agreed the tall young man, in ecstatic reminiscence. "If only other girls were more like them! They didn't talk shop at all and were so interested in everything I—we said!"

"Well, that sounds like a cheeky girl," said the serious young man. "They know how to pretend——"

"Pretend nothing!" the short young man told them indignantly. "You could tell from the expression in their eyes that they were intelligently absorbed in everything we were saying!"

"And we drove them downtown," negligently added the tall young man. "Our host was catching a 6 o'clock train and we offered to chaufe him to the station and that made it perfectly natural to say to Miss Whetstone and her friend Miss Jones, 'Can't we drop you at your hotel or wherever you are going from here?'"

"You little dickens!" reproved the serious young man.

"So all four of us," the short young man continued, "took Mr. Ryder to the car. And that was when Shanks grabbed me and hissed into my ear that did I realize it was strictly up to us to ask those girls to have tea with us before they had to leave for the theater—and he had just 60 cents, and how much did I have? And all I had was a nickel and a $1 bill!"

"And of course," added the tall young man, "we couldn't take them to tea just anywhere—it meant the Pinkstone or some place like that—they were such nice girls and looked as though they always walked on red carpets laid under canopies when they went out to tea! And neither of us had the remotest idea what to do or how to do it in two minutes, which was all the time we had to decide."

"And before we had decided," the short young man took up the tale, "they had turned around and smiled at us and it sort of went to our heads, for both of us began babbling out invitations to have tea and the girls said why that would be perfectly lovely and it was so kind of us!"

"And Methuselah recited, just as though walking in his sleep, that of course we'd go right down to the Pinkstone and I thought we might just as well be arrested there for not being able to pay our bill as anywhere," said the tall young man. "We were just as happy as though headed for the guillotine—when little Mary Whetstone raised her perfect brows and smiled again. Oh, said she, how we had had such a big dinner at the Ryders just a short time ago, how in the world did we think we could really eat anything? Consommero was a cute little place right around on Dearborn street where they went lots and we'd go. So still frozen with fear, was that even cute little places like lobsters and chicken a la king and Neapolitan, we went there, and Methuselah's $1 bill to add to our coats and those blessed girls shoved the menu aside and said they'd have all they ever ate before the play was ten and cinnamon toast—it came to $1.30 for the four of us.

"Well, heaven does look out for the drunken and the feeble-minded," gasped the fraternity host.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, who will become Protestant Episcopal bishop of Pittsburgh, was born in Geneva, N. Y., 62 years ago, a son of Rev. Duncan Cameron Mann. After graduating from Hobart College in 1881 he attended the General Theological Seminary of New York and received his B. D. degree in 1884. A year later he became pastoral work as assistant at Trinity Church, Buffalo. In 1886 he ordained priest and became assistant in Grace Church, Orange, N. J. In 1890 he became rector of that church and also archdeacon of the diocese of Newark. In 1905 he was called to Trinity Church, Boston, where he has served as rector for 17 years, despite appeals to become missionary bishop of the State of Washington, suffragan bishop of New Jersey, and bishop of Western New York. He has, however, occupied a national position as president of the House of Deputies of the General Convention for the past ten years.

Wives of Famous Men

Elizabeth Schuyler, Wife of Alexander Hamilton.

Among the wives of prominent Americans, none had a more trying and difficult position, nor bore it with more understanding and dignity, than Elizabeth Schuyler Hamilton, wife of Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of the treasury. All the women of Revolutionary days were strong and during and after the war, for most of them were greatly bereaved, prey to the hardships which accompanied with warfare. But Elizabeth Hamilton had, in addition, the lot of a fascinating husband.

Elizabeth was the daughter of General Philip Schuyler, and the marriage in 1760 allied Hamilton with one of the most distinguished families of colonial New York. Hamilton was a handsome man, sanguine and ready, and was possessed of great charm. Women doted on him, and all during their married life Hamilton was accused of infatuation, harmless enough, as a matter of another.

Apparently, Mrs. Hamilton understood his need for admiration and made allowances for it, as many wives have done before and since. She loved him, and she knew that in spite of his straying, he loved her. It was extremely characteristic that their most bitter quarrel was over a matter of four dollars.

In 1791 came the big scandal connected with Hamilton's name. After a particularly romantic courtship with a beautiful lady named Mrs. Reynolds, Hamilton learned to his dismay that the lady's story was nothing more than a blackmailing scheme, which the wife of her husband had agreed with her to put over rather than submit to the publicity. Hamilton wrote a treatise explaining the whole affair, sparing neither himself nor several other men prominent in public life at that time. He severely criticized for the through it all Mrs. Hamilton stood by him, her high breeding and lofty character combining to give her the necessary stamina to live in the storm.

Mrs. Hamilton survived her husband for nearly half a century, his fatal duel with Aaron Burr having lived to the age of 97.

"Mother, Why Not Try The Newer Form Of Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable all the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?"

"The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than you are and now she looks just fine." There can be no healthy, beautiful rosy-cheeked women without iron. Good physicians have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more of the newer form of iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking patients. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks, and strength and vitality from their bodies. This newer form of iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in certain green vegetables, is highly recommended to thousands who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you the proper amount of good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale, and sickly-looking, just like a plant trying to grow in soil deficient in iron.

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood—beautiful, healthy, rosy-cheeked women, full of life, vim and vitality. You can get Nuxated Iron from any druggist under an absolute guarantee that it will do the same for you or your money back.

Stories That Recall Others

A Stern Parent, Indeed

A teacher was teaching reading by the phonetic method recently. Having success with small words, she started with some a bit more difficult. She came to the word "stern." A small girl in the front front row was asked to give the word. Slowly she spelled it "s-t-e-r-n."

"Now use the word in a sentence," said the teacher.

"Sometimes when I want to go to the movies my papa says 'Nothin' st-ern' " was her sentence.

Her Next Tooth

With the possible exception of her debut in the world of elocution, when she "spoke a piece" from the teacher's desk at the last day exercises, the greatest single event in Louise's life was the loss of her first tooth. She was seated at the side of her Aunt Evelyn, pensively exploring with an inquisitive little pink tongue, the gap left by the missing incisor. Suddenly she broke the silence:

"Aunt Ebbie, I wonder what color my tooth will be when it comes in?"

"Why, white, I suppose," replied her aunt puzzled at the question. "Why?"

"Well, you know," answered Louise with a sophisticated raising of her eyebrows, "you know grandma has a gold one!"

WHY EASTER COMES THIS YEAR ON APRIL 1

Easter Sunday comes April 1 this year. This date has sorely puzzled many people who are not acquainted with the rule, as laid down by various authorities, that "Easter is the first Sunday following the first full moon after the 21st of March," with the qualification that "if the moon is full on a Sunday not that Sunday but the next following is Easter."

Now here is the problem:

The first full moon in the common calendar after March 21 this year is at 8.10 a. m., April 1, which is Sunday morning.

(The moon to which reference is here made is called the paschal moon, by the way).

Therefore, according to the supposed rule that "if the paschal moon falls on Sunday, the next Sunday is Easter," the celebration of Easter would come on April 8 this year. And it is this fact which has been puzzling many people.

The clue to the situation is to be found in a paragraph in the Catholic Encyclopedia, to the effect that "the moon according to which Easter is calculated is not the moon in the heavens," etc.

For the purpose of this calculation, it is assumed that the moon will be full when it is 14 days old, counting from the date of the new moon.

As a matter of astronomy, sometimes this is true and sometimes it isn't. It is not true of the paschal moon this year, which becomes full by the common calendar on its 15th day, which is Sunday, April 1.

The 14th day of this paschal moon comes on Saturday, March 31. Therefore Saturday is the day which is counted as the full moon date, making it possible for Easter to come the next day, Sunday, April 1.

McAuliffe of the Wauregan house gave him a farewell dinner Wednesday evening at the hotel on the eve of his departure for Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he has been given a fine promotion to the management of the Redington hotel, one of the houses in the Knott chain.

Kilby, on behalf of the hotel staff, presented Mr. McAuliffe a beautiful platinum watch chain with Elks' charms, studded with diamonds and a handsome traveling bag. Mr. Kilby spoke in warm appreciation of the departing manager and expressed cordial wishes for his great success in his new field, to which Mr. McAuliffe made a fitting response.

Music and sleight of hand stunts by members of the party made entertaining features of the evening.

ADVISING AUTO OPERATORS TO RENEW THEIR LICENSES

Blanks are being mailed from the office of the state motor vehicle department for renewal of motor vehicle operators' license, all of which will expire on the night of Feb. 28.

As there is a larger number of operator's license issued each year than there are car registrations it behooves those who would operate a motor vehicle during 1923 to get a hustle on and secure the license early. Usually applicants put off renewing licenses the same as they put off registration and the result is inconvenience and delay on the final days.

Renewals can be obtained at any branch of the department, but new licenses have to be obtained after an examination by a representative of the department and the cost is $5 instead of $3.

Nothing jolts a narrow-minded man more than being forced to admit that he is in the wrong.

POINTS OUT FIVE ESSENTIALS FOR SUCCESS IN CHURCH EVANGELISM

Prayer with tears is not the style according to New England culture of the present day, but let me tell you that this type of New England culture will send you down to hell quicker than anything else, said Rev. York A. King, evangelistic leader, in a stirring talk on the Summary of the Plan of Church Evangelism, delivered at the Central Baptist church Wednesday evening in opening a series of meetings there.

In the first place said Rev. Mr. York the success of this 13 day evangelistic campaign in Norwich depends on each one of you and it will be your prayers and efforts that will make it either a success or a failure.

God is bound by every law of the universe to hear the prayer of the sinner. We oftentimes say prayers and think they should be answered. This type of praying comes to naught, you must pray for something definite. A woman came home from church recently and her sick sister asked her if anything new had happened at church and she replied, Oh, no, only the same fine address, fine singing, all to empty seats. Another sister told of the minister giving the same old line. In another home a sister came home disgusted at the happenings of the church. She told of a man dressed in ordinary street clothes entering their church and of the pastor greeting him and taking him to the platform. He gave a talk on the Prodigal Son, but this she said was old stuff. The sick sister said, "Thank God, I have prayed for nine years that Dwight L. Moody would visit our church, and for years I have thanked God for his answer to my prayer, and now Mr. Moody is here. It was because this invalid dared to pray that Mr. Moody came to that church and began what was the greatest evangelistic meeting ever seen in London.

It is an established fact that 55 per cent. of the population of our country is in no manner connected with any organized religion. Prayer is needed to reach these people. In my church three women were praying for people they wished to aid. They came to me for prayer but I made them meet together and pray together and they visited individually on these people and in two months their friends were converted to the religion of Christ.

I tell you it is the duty of the church to give the newcomers some scriptural foundation for their belief and if this is done early there will never be any danger of them back-sliding as so many have done in the past.

The Plan of Church Evangelism can be summarized, said Rev. Mr. York, into five short parts, each of mighty importance. The first and most important is prayer. Have your prayer list pray daily for someone. Form your prayer circles, have your cottage prayer meetings and get down before your God and pray for His aid and it shall come to you.

Next in order of importance is preaching, with soul winning as the central thought and purpose. Too many preachers try to hand over brilliant bits of literature while the people hungry for the word of God are thirsting for the good of Bible religion told in simple words of understanding and sympathy.

Third is personal work, and here every member has a chance. Have your prayer list and work among those you love, bring them to see the vision of Christ as He really is and they will run to Him and worship Him.

Fourth comes the Bible, the whole Bible, not parts of it, for the whole is the Word of God. Learn your Bible, you people who know nothing of its passages, and use them in winning souls to Christ.

The fifth and final plan of work is the Holy Spirit, the wonderful spirit that makes us do good, that guides us in the ways of truth. Shortly after graduating from college I went to Providence and soon after my arrival was asked to officiate at a funeral. I walked home wishing to become acquainted and suddenly I stopped in front of a cottage house, and rang the bell. I was bewildered for I knew not who lived there. Soon a woman came to the door and in her hands was a Bible. Her eyes were dimmed with tears, and I asked her of her trouble. She told me of a tragedy in her family that morning and said she was looking for comfort in the Bible. I pointed out passages to her and kneait and prayed with her, then left.

In a few weeks this woman attended cottage prayer meetings in her neighborhood and became a follower of Christ. She came to my church to be baptized and told her story of how she was in trouble and a stranger came and prayed with her. She did not recognize me until after she had told her story.

Later I went to a learned and true Christian and told him this story and he said, "King, you ought to be proud of that visit for it was the Holy Spirit that made you stop at that home that morning, pick out the passages of scripture and pray.

It is the same Holy Spirit that will guide us all and prayer will lead us the right way.

The singing was spirited under the leadership of Rev. William G. Cooper of Providence, Miss Olive Linton accompanying on the piano.

The meetings will continue at the church until Feb. 4, during which Rev. Mr. King will deliver his evangelistic sermons. The meetings are open to the public, and judging from the opening talk will be among the best of this kind in the city in several years.

CITY FATHERS GUESTS AT TERMINAL CAFE

To signalize the completion of the new Terminal cafe on Franklin square which is ready for the formal opening, the proprietors, Gianacopoios, Sakellarides & Co., entertained the city fathers in the cafe Wednesday evening and 8 o'clock at a sumptuous dinner.

Mayor Milo R. Waters was seated at the head of the table with his official family ranged along the sides, those present including members of the common council and the heads of city departments.

The following was the excellent menu served:

Anchovy canopi
Chicken Gumbo a la creole Celery
Baked Haddock a la Normandie
Duchess Potatoes
Half Broiled Chicken Brown Butter
Julienne Potatoes, Green Peas
California Asparagus Salad
Mayonnaise Dressing
Baked Alaska Souffle
Coffee Cigars

Those present included Mayor Waters, Alderman G. S. Raymond, Henry Gebrath, P. F. Sweeney, A. R. Grover, Councilman Edward Crooks, W. B. Shea, F. M. Green, F. H. Quimley, W. H. Aldrich, J. E. Fitzgerald; City Treasurer C. S. Avery, Corporation Counsel W. H. Shields, Jr., Police Chief George Linton, Deputy Fire Chief H. R. Taft; Superintendent J. J. Corkery and Cashier W. H. Callahan of the water department and U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson.

When cigars were reached, Mayor Waters briefly congratulated the proprietors upon the success they had achieved in business life in this city and commended their enterprise in providing such a thoroughly good restaurant, which was such an ornament and asset to the city, he said, filling a long felt need here.

The company expressed its approval by hearty applause and Alderman Sweeney was invited to act as guide in viewing the modern equipment of the new cafe. The trip of inspection had as a special object of interest the complete refrigerating plant in the cellar, where were pointed out the automatically controlled and electrically driven refrigerating machine, which will make 900 pounds of ice in 24 hours, runs an ice cream freezer, making 10 gallons in 5 minutes, and supplies the refrigeration for the ice boxes, soda fountain and show cases for French pastry.

Particularly admired were the appointments of the cafe, with its 14-foot marble soda fountain, mirrors and window draperies, cooled show cases, oak marble top tables, tile flooring and brilliant electric lighting.

The proprietors announced Wednesday evening that Charles Gregory, who has been a well known head waiter in this city for two years, will be manager of the cafe and Mrs. Nellie Moore will be in charge of the French pastry department.

Bible Class At Y. M. C. A.

Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. the Men's Bible study class held its regular session with good attendance. The topic was, A mistaken man and how he found out his mistake. The scripture used was in Acts, the ninth chapter, the story of the conversion of Saul of Tarsus.

It was pointed out that Saul furnished an admirable example of what ought to follow conversion. While far too many men after they are converted settle down to a passive Christian life, Saul felt that it was not enough to simply quit his meanness, but that it was his duty to put his whole soul in service for the master Who had saved him; in other words he was not a negative but a positive Christian; he redirected his activities. Previous to his conversion Saul's actions were based to an extent on hate, but afterwards his actions were based on love, and unless our motives are thus based on love they are wrong.

A careworn woman doesn't seem to care what she wears.

FUNERALS

Dr. J. Byron Sweet.

The funeral services for Dr. J. Byron Sweet were held from the Methodist church at Jewett City Tuesday afternoon. The attendance of the many friends of the doctor completely filled the seating capacity of the main floor of the church.

After the reading of passages from the Bible by Rev. Herbert L. Walker, pastor of the church, the sermon was by Rev. J. W. Payne. His remarks were at once sympathetic and impressive.

The speaker set forth the beautiful teachings to be gathered from the poem, The Land of Beginning Again, and pointed out the continuity that exists, in connection with the vanished past and the infinite future. He spoke of the doctors kindly heart and

STARTS FOR NEW ORLEANS, PREDICTS HEAVY SNOWS

Herbert W. Lucas, the well known weather prophet, and Daniel Fitzgerald of Palmertown, are leaving this week for New Orleans and will eventually reach the Pacific coast in the next few months. They are to stop off in Virginia, at Atlanta and other points.

Before leaving, Mr. Lucas gives the warning that Norwich should prepare for the worst snow storms ever seen here, between now and spring. He has a wager that we will get more snow this winter than in any season in the past ten years and he is confident that he will be counted on the winner's end of the bet.

GIVES ANCIENT HISTORY OF WITTER HOMESTEAD

Bits of early history of old families in Preston and stories of the old Witter homestead which was recently destroyed by fire, were related Wednesday night by Henry W. Beckwith, of New Haven, connected with Brown, Martin & Co., Inc., investment brokers.

Mr. Beckwith, who is a direct descendant of the Downer and Witter families who located in Preston in the latter part of the sixteenth century told of the history and the Downer and Witter families of which a granddaughter, Miss Mary A. Witter of Norwich is a descendant.

In the interview Mr. Beckwith said: To the best of my recollection Penobscot street got its name from the Penobscot Indians who came down from Maine by canoes sometime between 1745 and 1790 and landed along this coast. A group of them came to a landing just above what is now Preston bridge. According to a story told me by my aunt, Mrs. Juliet D. Ackley, now dead, smallpox broke out among this group of Indians and they were forced to remain here.

At that time my great-grandfather, Dr. Avery Downer, and his father Dr. Joshua Downer, were practicing physicians in Preston City. As the other doctors in Norwich were afraid to associate with the Indians, fearing a spread of smallpox among their patients, Dr. Downer and his father attended them.

It is my belief that Penobscot street got its name from the fact that these Indians had stopped in that vicinity during their illness. Dr. Avery Downer practiced medicine in Preston City for many years from 1782 until the time of his death about 1854. He was a Revolutionary War veteran and was the next to the last survivor of those who witnessed the scenes following the battle of Fort Griswold. The other survivor was a man named Gallup who lived in New York state at that time.

Dr. Downer entered the Revolutionary war and studied medicine with his father. He received a license to practice and become a surgeon of the 8th Connecticut Reriment. He later married Abagail Mott, daughter of General Mott. General Mott's wife was Abigail Possiter, daughter of Rev. Mr. Possiter, a graduate of Yale, 1742, who was a pastor of the Congregational church at Preston City. General Mott was a military man long before the Revolutionary war and had held the position of a lieutenant under the crown, being stationed at Crown Point and at Ticonderoga.

At the beginning of the Revolutionary war he entered the army and was sent by the government to Ticonderoga to put the fort in repair, he being an engineer. Dr. Downer and General Mott are both buried in the Preston City cemetery. Of these families there remains but one descendant living today in Norwich, Miss Mary A. Witter, granddaughter of Avery Downer, now residing at the Johnson Home. There were other descendants but they went west where they made their homes.

Speaking of the old Witter homestead property at Hallville which recently burned to the ground, he said: Miss Mary A. Witter is the only surviving member of the old Witter family who built the homestead where they lived for years. Miss Witter in her younger days lived in the old homestead and is familiar with many of the stories connected with the Witter family's early history.

The old Witter property on which stood the homestead which burned down a couple of weeks ago, was purchased from the town of Preston in 1692 by Ebenezer Witter, who was deacon and original organizer of the Preston City church. He is buried in the Avery cemetery and the stone marking his grave is well preserved. His wife, Dorothy Morgan Witter, is buried beside him. He died in 1712 and the stone marking his grave is the second oldest in the cemetery.

Ebenezer Witter's wife's family lived in Preston City, going there from Wethersfield, this state. Ebenezer Witter also owned what is now Matthewson's Mill, this being the place where he first settled. The Witter property, at his death, went to his son, Ebenezer, who sold it to his son, Jacob Witter, who owned a tavern in Norwich Town. From Jacob Witter the property went to his nephew, Jonah Witter, in 1785.

Ebenezer, the second, had a son Nathan, who went to Brooklyn, Conn., in 1775 and settled about two miles from the center of the present town of Brooklyn. Nathan's son Jonah later acquired the old Witter homestead, and was the last of the family to live in the original house which stood east of the brick house recently destroyed by fire. In 1800 he built the brick house mentioned. The bricks used for the construction of the house were brought from Providence by boat, landed near what is now Dawley's lumber yard and carted from there to Preston. The corners of the building were faced with brown stone, as were the arches above the doors and windows. This stone was carted 40 miles by ox team from Portland, Conn. The building, when completed, was one of the finest in this section of the country.

The hallway ran from the front to the rear of the house. The wainscoting and front stairways were of solid mahogany. The rooms were cozy and there was an open fireplace in each room. The building had a dormer roof and the attic was constructed as a hall where in the old days socials and entertainments, dances, etc., were held.

Jonah Witter lived there until his death and then the property went to his son, Lucas Witter, and at his death to his son, Lucas, and following his death the property went to Miss Mary A. Witter, now living in Norwich. Miss Mary A. Witter's mother was before her marriage Miss Emily Downer, and Miss Witter's father was Lucas Witter.

The Witter homestead was a landmark on the Westerly road for years. It passed from the Witter family about 1902. Much of the furniture which was purchased in New York and Philadelphia is now scattered among the descendants of the family.

Until quite recently the original paper on the attic walls remained, evidently having been removed after the house passed from the Witter family.

It is of interest to note that among the descendants of the Jonah Witter family are Samuel Hart, dean of Berkeley Divinity school, John H. Hewitt, professor at Williams College, and others prominent today in the life of Norwich.

WILL GIVE HEARING ON COMPLAINTS ABOUT TRAINS

Hartford, Jan. 24.—Under a resolution of the legislative committee on railroads introduced last week because of protests of members of the general assembly that train service by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was inadequate and unaccommodating for their needs, a public hearing will be held in the hall of the house of representatives next Wednesday afternoon.

The resolution gave the committee power of subpoena but it will not be exercised. Instead the decision was to invite officers of the New Haven road to the hearing, and to request the public utilities commissioners to be present.

The committee on railroads took no formal action as to the scope of the hearing. It merely announced that any person if aggrieved over present train service probably will have opportunity to speak.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND NEVER SUSPECT IT

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Representative Charles S. Hyde's (Brooklyn) resolution that the legislature act to reduce county commissions from three to one is regarded as certain to stir up lively debate, excite much opposition and win much support among the legislators when it comes up for action. Mr. Hyde is contending for one-man county commissions with a view to getting a more economical administration and placing responsibility for the direction of county affairs solely upon one person. He is quoted as pointing to a $7,000 deficit in Windham county last year as one reason why legislators should support his proposition.

Wiseacres among those who make a study of things political are predicting that Mr. Hyde's resolution will eventually get the gate, as the saying goes. He is a democratic member of the legislature, which has a decided republican majority.

As the county commissionerships are largely held by republicans throughout the state, it is not in line with the usual procedure in such cases to expect a republican legislature to lend itself to ousting various of its party members from office, especially when such an important move as Mr. Hyde suggests requires special legislation to accomplish it.

A list of names of citizens who have said during the past few days "I wish you would say something in the paper about having the town take some action as to sanding sidewalks in the borough these icy times" would materially assist in filling this column this morning.

There is no exaggerating that many stretches of sidewalks in the business section are in very dangerous condition at the present time and that they have not been free from ice for weeks. Many persons have fallen. Some have been badly bruised and shaken up. Attention sufficient to make the sidewalks at least reasonably safe for the thousands who use them would require precious little time and effort and no great amount of money. There is recognition of the fact that the severe winter with its constantly recurring storms has made the job of keeping sidewalks cleared a very difficult one, but sand, salt and sawdust are easily available and applied to walks would make the community happier and safer. Conditions are also bad on sidewalks on residential streets, but these are not as much complained of as the business section, where all go on one errand or another.

Newly elected officers of the Danielson Building and Loan association are: President, Harry Brearley; vice presidents, Dr. George M. Burroughs, George H. Chil, Obadiah Butler, Burlette C. Hopkins; treasurer, Ernest R. Warren; secretary, Clifford H. Starkweather; assistant secretary, J. T. Gardner, Jr.; board of management, C. A. Potter, W. Irving Bullard, N. L. Greig, Harry E. Crawford, Frank T. Preston, E. L. Darbie, John A. Gilbert, L. E. Young, D. E. Jette, A. W. Bassett, A. M. Thompson, Alfred L. Read, F. E. Tunnicliff and Arthur W. Williams; auditors, Andrew E. Meech, Charles E. Austin, A. Van Woodworth; attorney, Harry E. Back.

Annual reports of the organization show that the past year has been very successful and that dividends have been paid at the rate of 6 per cent. The assets of the association at the present time amount to about $90,000. It was stated Wednesday by Secretary Starkweather that 130 shares of the 15th and current series had been subscribed for up to that time.

The association was started six years ago to aid in the development of Danielson, and has prospered from the first. A number of new homes in the borough are the direct outgrowth of this association, and many more such homes will be built from the funds of the organization as the years go by.

Wednesday morning the funeral of Miss Mary Elizabeth Foley was held at her home in Elmville, with services at St. James' church in Danielson at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. E. Shelley, M. S., Rev. Murray, Marion Hutchinson, M. Cherie, Frank Murphy, Michael McCormack and Thomas Killian.

Olean, N. Y.—"Every month my blood would go to my head and I would have such a headache, nose-bleed, backache and pains that I could not do my work. At night I could not get my rest, and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read some of your testimonials about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, so I decided to try it. I had only taken two bottles when I began to be better, and my back did not hurt me nor my head ache. I felt like a new woman. The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine and I will always recommend it."—Mrs. A. D. EARLS, 530 N. 5th St., Olean, N. Y.

PUTNAM

There was a pretty wedding at St. Mary's church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock when Miss Alice G. Gibney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gibney, became the bride of Chester L. Emerson of Webster. The marriage was performed by Rev. Adrian Dykemans, who also was celebrant of the nuptial high mass, attended by numbers of relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary M. Connor of this city as bridesmaid and Louis Emerson of Webster, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe satin and she wore a bridal veil caught with a strand of pearls. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid's gown was of rose colored charmeuse and she wore a hat to match. Her bouquet was of roses.

After the marriage ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents on Farrows street.

During the day Mr. and Mrs. Emerson left on their wedding trip, during which they will visit in New York and Washington and in other cities farther south. The bride's traveling gown was of brown material with hat to match.

The bride, who has been a supervisor at the central office of the Southern New England Telephone company in this city, received many beautiful and useful gifts.

The groom is an electrician in his home town of Webster, where the couple will make their home.

Following is a summary of Y. M. C. A. events in this county:

C. A. Russell of Haddam chairman of the state county work committee and Clyde Hatfield state county work secretary were the guests and speakers at the county committee meeting held in Putnam Friday evening, January 12th. Mr. Russell gave a very interesting talk on "The Relationships Between the County and State Committees" and urged upon the county committee members a larger participation in the actual work of the county YMCA.

The regular monthly Leaders' Training Conference was held at Putnam Tuesday evening, January 16th, with leaders and officers of groups present. A splendid chicken dinner was served by W. E. Moss' supper committee, which is a sub-committee of the Putnam Local Association. Harry Richardson, leader of the Senior YMCA group of Moosup, led a very interesting discussion on the subject "Some Outstanding Group Problems and How to Solve Them."

George O. Draper of New York city, international YMCA physical director, was present and gave us a very helpful talk on the character building values of play and also a demonstration of games suitable for YMCA group meetings.

The next meeting of the leaders will be held at Putnam, Tuesday evening, February 13th and Charles Richardson of Putnam will be chairman of the supper committee.

Besides meeting the YMCA group leaders of the county, Mr. Draper on his recent visit also gave a talk to the teachers of the Putnam and Thompson schools on the educational value of play and conducted a demonstration of games suitable for school room, gymnasium and play ground. There were forty teachers present and all were pleased with Mr. Draper's work.

A deputation team of three young men from Yale College visited Brooklyn over the week-end of January 13-14th and conducted a series of very helpful and interesting meetings. On Saturday evening, a social was held with some fifty young people present and on Sunday the men spoke at the church and Sunday school and at a mass meeting for boys and young men in the afternoon.

Their straight forward talks and clean cut Christian characters made a deep impression upon the local young men and will, without doubt, result in much good.

Approving the good record and excellent management of the past year, the shareholders attending the annual meeting of the Putnam Building and Loan association reelected the board of officers for 1923. The list is as follows: President, Alexander Gilman; vice presidents, John M. Dean, Jr., Ernest B. Kent, Walter J. Bartlett, M. H. Geissler, W. E. Moss; board of management, Alexander Gilman, Walter J. Bartlett, W. E. Moss, Omer J. Milot, E. B. Kent, G. Harold Gilpatric, Oscar Dugas, Ray C. Hoseworth, John M. Dean, Jr., Herbert L. Smith, John M. Dady, Silas M. Wheelock; secretary, M. H. Geissler; treasurer, W. E. Moss.

Excess energy expresses itself in various ways in these winter days of limited outlets for human vitality. In the case of John Pisucki of Mechanicsville in took the form of walloping M. Pauli and a fight ensued. The outcome of the matter was the arrest of Pisucki and his presentation in court before Justice Fourtelotte of the town of Thompson. A fine of $1 and costs a total of $20.15 was imposed. Amadee Bellerose acted as grand juror and the arrest was made by Constable John Kennedy of Mechanicsville.

An impressive showing is made by the Putnam Trade school in th industrial exhibit now being held at the state armory at Hartford by manufacturing and agricultural interests in Connecticut. Putnam visitors to the exhibit were very much pleased with the showing of the local school. Wilfred Daigle of this city, a student in the textile department of the Trade school, and Herbert E. Erickson, student in the carpentry and architectural drafting department are in Hartford as demonstrators. The exhibit opened Tuesday is to continue through the present week.

Wednesday afternoon's snow storm was No. 22, according to the best little counters engaged in keeping tabs on this matter. The check-up is being carried on by some who were impressed during the fall by a prediction that the present winter and early spring would bring a total of 35 snow storms.

Tenants are gradually vacating the St. Onge block, acquired some time since by the Putnam Savings bank which since has disposed of the building at auction with the understanding it is to be removed to make way for the bank's new home, to be built within the next few months. Charles Miron, who has ad quarters in the block for years, will vacate to take a new location elsewhere.

Following funeral services here on Tuesday the body of Flora M. Bartlett was taken to Webster for burial. The deceased died Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell D. Ross. She was a native of Webster, born in that place in 1854.

Resolutions favoring the reappointment of Judge M. H. Geissler as judge of the Putnam city court for a period of two years and Deputy Judge Archibald Macdonald, Jr., for a period of two years were introduced in the general assembly by Representative Luther M. Keith. It is not considered likely that there will be opposition to making the re-appointments. The present terms of Judge Geissler and Deputy Judge Macdonald do not expire until January, 1924.

Mrs. Samuel Diamond and Miss Elsie Diamond are spending a few days in New York.

Thursday turned in another below zero temperature, the mercury registering 2 below at several places in the city at 5 a. m.

Mrs. J. Harry Mann has returned to Putnam after visiting in New York for several weeks with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent have been attending the annual mid-winter convention of the Advent Christian church in Boston.

In this city general interest will be created by a proposal introduced in the legislature by Representative C. S. Hyde of Brooklyn to reduce the number of county cmomissioners from three to one. Representative Hyde says that a smaller commission would tend toward lower county costs.

Arthur V. Bennett of Southbridge was a visitor with friends in Putnam on Wednesday.

The season for taking pickerel through the ice is nearing its end for this year and it has been one of the poorest seasons from the fishermen's viewpoint in years. Continued severe cold weather and heavy quantities of snow have kept all but a few from this winter sport.

Complaining that she did not feel well, while sitting up at the wake of Miss Mary Elizabeth Foley at Elmville, about 11:30 Tuesday night, Mrs. Mena Riding, 63, was administered ginger tea and other home remedies by solicitous members of the household and went to an upstairs room of the home. Her illness was regarded as nothing more serious than an attack of indigestion, to which she had been subject, but she died within half an hour. Dr. George M. Burroughs, who was called, declared that death was due to angina pectoris, from which Mrs. Riding had been suffering, it is now evident, for some time past.

Mrs. Riding has lived in Danielson and vicinity for years. Mrs. Benoit Tetreault of the Christian Hill section of Danielson and Mrs. William Mathieu of the West Side are sisters. A brother is resident in Danville. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

While one might not regard it either as a first sign of spring or as an evidence that there is a glut of fuel in the market, it is at least of interest to chronicle that a farmer from Canterbury was in town with a sled load of wood, canvassing from door to door for a buyer. The wood, offered at $10 a cord, was hard, dry and of good quality.

The 7-year old son of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Downing of Moosup died Wednesday in a Providence hospital. The body was removed to the Downing home in Moosup.

WESTERLY

Judge Hugh Baker of the superior court of Rhode Island has handed down his finding in the divorce petition of Phebe E. Littlefield vs. Charles Litchfield, which was heard recently in the superior court at Kingston. A petition for absolute divorce was originally filed and later the petitioner moved to amend her petition to a divorce from bed and board.

Though the court was unable to find the papers in the case any order or entry made on this motion to amend, the case was heard, all parties consenting, on the theory that the amendment had been made and that the petition was for a divorce from bed and board, and the court so treated it.

The grounds alleged in the petition were exceeme cruelty and neglect to provide.

The court found that there was only one isolated instance when the respondent used any physical force towards the petitioner. The testimony did show, however, that the respondent was rather quick tempered and vulgar, not particularly careful of the language he used, ad did not treat the petitioner as respectfully as he should, but the court was of the opinion that the evidence fell far short of sustaining the petition on that ground.

As regarded the matter of neglecting to provide for at least a period of one year prior to the date of the petition, the testimony showed, that from October, 1921, to May in 1922, the respondent was receiving about $21 per week in wages. Out of this amount he had paid for furniture, fuel, doctor's bills, heat and light. The testimony did show that the respondent occasionally played cards for very small amounts.

In answer to the petitioner's claim for neglect to provide the respondent showed that he had credit at two stores at Wickford Junction and that the petitioner could have ordered food and clothing as she deemed necessary and that the credit was never cut off by the respondent as long as the two lived together.

The court was of the opinion that the testimony failed to show that the respondent neglected to provide the necessaries for his wife for at least a year before the date for the petition.

The respondent urged that the petition should be denied because the petitioner declared that under no circumstances would she live with the respondent or become reconciled to him.

If the grounds alleged in the petition were satisfactorily proved, said the court, the court doubts whether the petition would be denied for this reason alone, but in his opinion, the testimony failed to sustain the petitioner's allegations of extreme cruelty and neglect to provide, the other questions did not become important.

The petition was denied and dismissed.

Michael Costello of Pawtucket appeared for the petitioner and John J. Dunn of Westerly for the respondent.

The "Monday Club" of Westerly were entertained Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Taylor of Elm street. Miss Phebe Perry read an account of the beginning of journalism in Rhode Island, reading extracts from the Providence Journal and other Rhode Island newspapers. Several copies of the old Rhode Island papers were loaned by the Westerly library for this occasion.

Moses J. Brines and H. W. Gibson of Providence, were the guests Tuesday evening at the Community gathering at Christ Episcopal church on Broad street. Both of these men gave very interesting talks to their audience. Herbert W. Rathbun and D. Harold Rogers were also among the speakers.

STONINGTON

Ernest Fritz and four companions had a narrow escape from death or serious injury late Tuesday when their automobile stopped close to the New Haven road tracks as the Pittsburgh Express was approaching. The radiator and both headlights of the automobile were taken off by the locomotive as the train went by, but otherwise no damage was done. The accident was said to have been due to one of the crossing gates getting out of order. The gate tender waved his arms and Fritz was able to stop just in front of the tracks.

Fritz said he would ask the railroad to return his headlights, as no trace of them could be found.

BALTIC

A hearing was held in the town building Monday evening, with Senator William G. Park, First Selectman R. J. Jodoin and many legal voters in attendance, and the idea of establishing a town court was gone over and it created a favorable impression with the majority. A bill will be introduced to that effect by Senator Park at this session of the legislature.

Cards were received by K. of C. members of a meeting of the K. of C. to be held Thursday night, when Supreme Agent John Dailey will address the meeting.

JEWETT CITY

No weather profit in this section, be he caterpillar or goosebone, has anything on Old Cluey Watson, of Mount Misery fame. Immediately following the trapping of a skunk with dark blue hair on its breast bone, he predicted that one snow storm would follow another all winter. Wednesday, he said: "and by George it's doin' it."

"What-Soever" circle of the King's Daughters of the Baptist church held their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon. The officers elected were: leader, Mrs. G. H. Prior; secretary, Mrs. Samuel Cathcart; treasurer, Mrs. E. M. Gray.

Mrs. John Harris was admitted to membership. The business section of the meeting came in for minor importance when the supper the circle gave is considered. One was allowed to enjoy his fill of all the good things, then when it came to paying, it was left to the discretion of the diner. Only one must consider nothing less than a quarter. An all round success is reported. One man suggested that the circle he advised to elect officers twice a week.

A local bird lover says don't forget to clear the snow from the bird feeding places this morning. When they enjoy the few morsels you put out for their breakfast, they will promise their active help next summer, when the bugs and worms in your garden, threaten to distroy your plants and vines.

Agreeable to the provisions of the borough law a meeting for organization of the newly elected board of borough government was held Tuesday evening, it being the day following election.

The necessary oaths of office were duly administered, and for one year the board will be:

Warden: Matthew Geary.
Burgesses: Ernest L. French, Clarence H. Kahn, John A. Godek, George A. Haskell.
Clerk: Edwin M. Gray.
Assesors: John Tracy, Herbert E. Gray.
Treasurer: Edwin M. Gray.
Bailiff: Wicenty Osga.
Collector: Lionel E. Boucher.
Auditors: George H. Prior, Joseph H. Stafford.

Passersby on Ashland Street are stopping to admire the big new trademark which has been placed on the tower of Ashland Cotton Co.'s mill. The design is shown in circular form, with the big five foot letters ACCO, the official trade-mark of the concern, done in gold leaf. G. H. Prior is the artist.

A view caught, when the setting sun strikes the circle at just the right angle presents the device as a solid disc of burnished gold.

Information gathered from opinions expressed by the borough committees, both democratic and republican, as to the effect, that in all probability there may be changes made in caucus methods, when a year hence, another borough election takes place.

The idea is advanced, and is also very well thought of by the officials, that as matters stand in the borough of Jewett City, a people's caucus should, and may, supplant the present party caucuses. Initiative action in this important proceeding may be justified in the following fact. The republican borough committee, tried to get twenty representative, not to say leading men, of the borough to allow their names to appear on the republican ticket for warden, without success. J. Byron Sweet appeared on both tickets and would have been elected, and would have been satisfactory to both parties. Matthew Geary was endorsed by both parties and was elected. His election pleases both parties, and he can be trusted to do his best for any borough benefit. It is asked, how does the minor consideration relative to his politics affect the case? The clerk and treasurer, and efficient and competent official, received the entire borough vote. Again the citizen asks, What matter his political views? The borough committees say, a people's caucus would determinte the names to appear on the ticket, on merit in an open forum, not on dominating political lines.

There has been much speculation as to just how a rifle club can shoot so near the confines of the borough. It may be said that the shooting will be done with 32 calibre rifles up to 100 yards, and the manner in which the shooting will be done will protect all persons and property. The same safeguards that are used by the Meriden Rifle Club will be used by the local club. The range of the Meriden Rifle Club is so located that every shot fired is fired in the general direction of the State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, which is within one quarter of a mile of the Meriden Club's range. As all of the shooting of this club is done with high power rifles it can be seen that if there were the least danger, the state authorities would soon stop the shooting.

As the local club will use only the 22 calibre rifle for its shooting on the local range the danger will be nil. The club will not attempt to secure any long range at present for the use of the service rifle, until the members have become proficient with the calibre rifle up to 100 yards. Here it might be said that the 32 calibre rifles that will be used by the club are accurate up to 200 yards under favorable conditions using the long rifle cartridges. One cartridge company is already putting a 22 calibre long rifle cartridge on the market, that is accurate up to 260 yards. The club has already received a challenge from another rifle club for a match on the indoor range. Charles Palmer, president of the local club, is trying to secure the use of the range in the state armory at Norwich one night a week for any members of the local club who care to go down and shoot. If enough members get together for a few nights practice, the club will accept the challenge.

The fine targets made by the local club are attracting state wide notice. The scores made in Norwich and Voluntown, show figures of more than passing interest to patrons of this finest of games. Captain Palmer or Gilbert Miner, Jr., should be notified if any members wish to shoot before the local range is established.

Peter Garand, who demonstrated changing a hive of bees to another hive at the fair in Pachaug last year, produced 1100 pound of comb honey last summer. He has increased the number of colonys from 29 last spring to 65 now. He has been studying bee culture since 1916. His first swarm came from a hollow tree that he cut and took to his home. When he released his new pets they angrily poured out in a stream, and didn't take many minutes in showing their displeasure. Mr. Garand beat it for a nearby shed, but carried a swollen eye for some time. Now he handles them with perfect safety.

The World Wide Guild Girls of the Baptist church met at Miss Agnes Franklin's home on Tuesday evening for their regular meeting. A very pleasant part of the programme was the presentation of one of Wallace Nutting's pictures to the bride president, Mrs. Alice Gilbert Davis. The vice-president, Miss Georgina Campbell did the honors, and the bride who had so carefully kept her plans secret, was the one to be surprised herself. Mrs. Franklin served refreshments assisted by her daughter and Miss Campbell.

A part of the programme at the Community Club tonight is to be given by Edward Connelly, the humorist, song-reader of Norwich. Some of the young people are to give a dialogue also. There are other fine numbers to be given.

CREAM WILL CLEAR A STUFFED-UP HEAD

Instantly Opens Every Air Passage—Clears Throat Too

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffing. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.

LEAK OF THE "EMBASSY" LIQUORS CURTAILED

Washington, Jan. 24.—(By the A. P.) The supply of "embassy" liquors which police declare have found their way into the bootleg trade of Washington was declared by enforcement officers tonight to have been curtilled as a result of alleged disclosures by John J. Lynch, who was arrested in a recent raid on his apartment when a quantity of Scotch and rye whiskeys and imported champagnes were said to have been seized.

Lynch, in an affidavit, according to the police, named one legation as a soudce of his supplies and they added that they had been promised, further information that would "rock the city" and might result in some step to request the state and treasury departments to curtail the supplies of intoxicants received through diplomatic permits.

Published reports, attributed to anonymous police sources, however, that some of the liquor seized in the recent raid had come from the Cuban legation interested in a visit to the state department of the legation charge, Dr. Arturo Padro Y Almeida, and a public statement by him that he was in entire ignorance of any "alleged selling of liquor" at the legation.

At the state department, he is understood to have inquired of Under-Secretary Phillips if there was any truth to the published stories that Lynch had named the Cuban legation in an affidavit as one source of his supplies as a middleman between diplomatic sources and bootleggers in the national capitol. He was said to have been told that no such information had been laid before the department officially.

PROTESTS SIZE OF HOUSE APPROPRIATION FOR N. G.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Vigorous protests against the size of house appropriations for the national guard and reserve officers training corps, have been received by the senate appropriations committee, revising the war department bill. Major General George C. Rickards, chief of the militia bureau, has informed the senate committee, that the house appropriations, instead of providing for expansion of the national guard, would result in a real reduction of strength.

Referring to the house committee's statement that the appropriations was designed to enlarge the national guard to 218,000 men, General Rickards said the money actually provided by the house, "would make it impossible," to increase the guard to that figure and, on the contrary, would result in a "serious decrease in efficiency."

General Rickards has informed senators that the funds allotted it would would be impossible to prepare the guard for field service or to provide for four day schools of instruction for officers, none-commissioned officers and selected privates. State rifle competitions also would be precluded, he said, and it would be doubtful whether national guard teams could be sent to national rifle matches.

HOUSE DISCUSSED STATUS OF GENERAL HARBORD

Washington, Jan. 24.—Discussion of the recent retirement from the army of Major General Harbord to accept the presidency of a radio corporation, was renewed in the house today, Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, declaring that if General Harbord felt he should get out of the army "at the height of his efficiency" he should have resigned.

Mr. Dickinson insisted that his amendment to the army bill denying pay to retired officers engaged by corporations selling to the government was not "a direct slap" at General Harbord. Numerous officers of the army, he said, were employed by corporations manufacturing materials to be sold to the war department and a law was needed to cover the subject.

WILL HELP AMERICAN FLIERS AND AIRCRAFT

Washington, Jan. 24.—American fliers and aircraft manufacturers hereafter will be able to compete in European contests and Europeans to enter American events through the National Aeronautic Association of U. S. A., Bernard M. Milvihill, its vice president, declared today in announcing receipt of documents giving it sole authority over such sports in this country from the Federation Aeronautic Interinationale.

The first effect of this action, Mr. Milvihill said, was to give recognition to Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, and Lieutenant R. A. Maughan, of that service, as holders of the records for their flights in the Pulitzer trophy contests at Detroit in October. The general flew one kilometer at a rate of 224.48 miles an hour, and the lieutenant average 206.25 miles an hour in a 100-kilometer flight.

The Federation aeronautic Internationale composed of national organizations as sole representatives and authorities on aeronautical sports in their countries, is described as the international authority on such contests, and the American association's membership entitles its contest committee to enforce the regulations of the federation.

TO CLEAN GREENWICH VILLAGE OF "BOHEMIANS"

New York, Jan. 24.—Greenwich Village, the quaint, crooked-laned Bohemia tucked away in lower New York, the national only authentic Latin quarter, must be saved from vice and restored to dignity.

So the Washington Square association, composed of life long residents of the village, decided and today enlisted the aid of the district attorney's forces.

The village, once the residing place of the aristocracy of the city's Victorian era, later the home of a colony of artists and intellectuals, now has become "a nationally infamous, seething sink of iniquity." Assistant Prosecutor Carstarphen said in promising to aid in a new clean-up.

In soliciting police aid, Stanley Kelley of the Washington Square association, said the village was being commercialized and given a bad reputation throughout the country by a few persons who conducted cheap dance halls. Recent raids in which many young men and girls were arrested proved his contention, he declared.

Most of the things that are to be had for the asking benefit the giver more than the receiver.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY.

New York, Jan. 24.—Heavy selling of oil shares, particularly the California issues, imparted a reactionary tone to today's stock market after an early display of firmness founded on another bullish demonstration in railroad stocks. Professional interests again dominated trading which was a little more active than yesterday. The foreign situation continues to exert a restraining influence on business but domestic conditions and influences appear to be the deciding factor in the determination of quoted values.

Irregularity also prevailed in the bond market, which was featured by the strength of tax exempt issues in reflection of the house of representatives adoption of a resolution to submit to the states a proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the further issuance of tax exempt securities. Foreign exchanges eased slightly. Some new high records were made in the cotton market, but prices reacted on profit taking at the close.

Weakness of the oil shares was due largely to speculative disappointment over the announcement that the Standard Oil Company of California had declared a dividend of only 40 cents a share on the new stock, which is equivalent to the rate on the old. The new stock closed at 55 5-8, a net loss of 2 5-8, after getting as low as 54 3-4. Speculative belief that other Standard Oil companies might also continue the old dividend rates prompted selling of Standard Oil of New Jersey which sold down within a fraction of 40 and at a net low level for the year.

The recent cut in California crude oil prices because of an over-supply also was a contributing factor. California, Petroleum dropping 1 3-4 points and Pacific Oil, 1 1-4. General Asphalt broke 2 3-4 and the preferred, 3, while losses of a point or more were sustained by the Pan-American issues and Pierce Oil Preferred.

Strength of railroad shares was attributed to a continuance of record car loadings, the satisfactory nature of the December earnings statements and the signing of a bituminous coal agreement removing the possibility of another strike this spring in the soft coal fields. Scattered excellent gains were made in this group during the morning, particularly by the low priced speculative issues, but these were materially reduced or wiped out later. At their best prices Atchison sold at 101 3-8, Baltimore & Ohio at 44 1-8, New Haven at 39 3-8, St. Paul common at 33 and the preferred at 35 3-4, Northern Pacific at 74 1-2, Norfolk & Western at 112, Southern Pacific at 90 1-4 and Southern Railway, the most active, at 30 3-4.

Beechnut Packing dropped more than 4 points on further selling as a result of the official announcement that no increase in dividend was contemplated and Fisher Body, which indulged in a sensational 38 point drop yesterday, moved today within a radius of 5 points, closing at 98 1-2, a net loss of 3 1-2 points. Postum Cereal, R. H. Macy, Nash Motors and MacKay Preferred were also conspicuously weak while United Fruit, up 3 3-4, and Kresge, up 8, were among the few outstanding strong spots.

Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent throughout the day. Time money and Commercial paper markets were fairly active with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges were dull and irregular, British, French and Italian rates yielding slightly. The Indian rupee established another new high record at 33.45 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 24.—Price movements in today's irregular bond market closely paralleled those in the stock market, speculative railroad mortgages following the stocks to higher ground while oil company liens declined in sympathy with the reaction in those shares on the "Big Board." Foreign bonds were irregular, some of the French municipals making good recovery from recent heaviness, while the governmental issues showed no important changes.

Strength of tax exempt securities on the house of representatives adoption of a resolution to submit to the states a constitutional amendment prohibiting further issuance of entirely tax-exempt issues was one of the features. Liberty 3 1-2s, the only wholly tax exempt war issue, advanced 52 cents on $100 to 101.86 and the new 4 1-4s got back to par but the other active U. S. government securities showed losses of 2 to 12 cents. Good municipals also were in demand.

Sharp recovery of the St. Paul and New Haven issues was the feature of the railroad list, St. Paul General 4 1-2s advancing 2 3- points and New Haven 3 1-2s, 2 1-2, with other lines of those roads gaining 1 to 1 1-2 points. Texas & Pacific firsts and Central New England 4s were among the few weak spots in that group.

Producers & Refiners Oil 8s, with warrants, which slumped 3 points, and Marland Oil 8s, with warrants 2 points, led the reaction in oil company bonds. Lackawanna Steel 5s to 1950 and Goodyear Rubber 8s of 1941 also were weak. Chile Copper 7s, Cerro De Pasco 8s and Bethlehem Steel 6s were strong. Brooklyn Rapid Transit issues gave a good exhibition of strength, the 5s gaining 3 3-4 points and the 7s and stamped 7s, 2 5-8 and 2 points, respectively.

Total sales (par value) were $11,323,000.

MONEY.

New York, Jan. 24.—Call money easier; high 4 1-2; low 4 1-2; ruling rate 4 1-2; closing bid 4 1-2; offered at 5; last loan 4 1-2; call loans against acceptances 4.

COTTON.

New York, Jan. 24.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 25.60.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Wheat showed a tendency toward a higher price level most of the time today with special attention being given to news that the senate agricultural committee had favorably reported the Norbeck bill to stimulate export of farm products. Closing quotations were unsettled at 1-8c net decline to 1 1-8c gain with May 1.17 to 1.17 5-8 and July 1.12 to 1.12 1-8. Corn finished 5-8@3-4 to 1 1-8@1 1-4 up, oats up 3-4@7-8 to 7-8 and provisions at an advance of 2 to 17c.

Sentiment in favor of higher prices for wheat began to develop shortly after the opening when the fact became apparent that depression in the Liverpool market and in foreign exchange rates was failing to bring about any particular pressure to sell here. Bulls put stress on evidence purporting to show that wheat was low as compared with other commodities, and on talk which was current that Russia would be out of the export business for at least a generation.

The most striking upturn of prices in the wheat market, however, came after the fact was generally known that a step forward had been taken at Washington to create the revolving fund of $250,000,000 proposed by Senator Nor

GREENEVILLE

Vaudeville night at St. Andrew's Men's club was a great success from every point of view. Over 100 men attended and were entertained with a program which is unique in this part of the world. The Philippine String sextette from the submarine base gave a good number of selections which were much appreciated. The orchestra under the direction of George Hemblet of Lisbon played at the opening of the program and at the close. A special Russian quartette consisting of violin, bombast, concertina, and sweet potato entertained for a half hour with duets, trios and quartettes. William Banfield showed a number of new tricks. R. C. Plant gave one of his laugh-producing, inimitable talks, which kept the audience in constant laughter. During refreshments the Philippine sextette played a number of selections and the program was completed with a two-reel Charlie Chaplin picture entitled The Pawn Shop. All present pronounced this the "best ever."

The bills were tabled for calendar.

Senator Bakewell in explaining the latter bill said the United States had gone farther than any other country in providing high school education or education beyond the elementary grades. BOYS FROM SEASIDE SANATORIUM AT CAPITOL

Members of the legislature at Hartford rubbed their eyes Tuesday morning when they say a couple of near-naked boys walking through the corridors in the state house, accompanied by what was clearly a nurse. Of the two children, one had his leg in a plaster cast and walked with slight difficulty, but both appeared happy in spite of the cool temperature. Senators and representatives alike stopped the party and asked what the invasion of the state house by under-clothed children meant. They were told that the two boys are a part of the exhibit of the State Tuberculosis commission at the state fair at the Armory and the garb worn comprises the routine garment of the children summer and winter. They were from the Seaside Sanatorium at Crescent Beach, the only state sanatorium in American for curing bone and glandular tuberculosis.

After the boys answered the questions of the members of the general assembly, and handed them an illustrated leaflet, entitled "What Says This Drum to You?" they walked through Capitol park to the State Armory, where hundreds of visitors this afternoon asked them about the open-air treatment which, taken the year round, is curing the children of tuberculosis. The basis of the treatment is the sun cure, which consists of exposing the bodies to the sun and air a part of every day in the year. Their only clothing is the trunks and sandals which they wore in walking through the low and ice in Bushnell Park to the State Armory. They formed the most picturesque part of the exhibit of the State Tuberculosis commission at the state fair. The two children are Alfred Karry, 8 years old, whose home is in New Haven, and Dennis Jannito, 9 years old, of Waterbury. The nurse who accompanied them was Miss Martha Frye from the Seaside Sanatorium. Dr. John F. O'Brien, superintendent of the Seaside, is in general charge of the part of the Seaside exhibit in the State Tuberculosis Commission booth.

BOXING BOUT GAVE ENTERTAINMENT FOR ROTARY

The "skyscrapers" of the Norwich Rotary club had charge of the noonday meeting at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday and entertained the club by putting on a snappy boxing bout between two local amateurs and providing a real old-fashioned New England boiled dinner as another feature.

The tall men in charge of the luncheon were Sid Alling, Eb Learned, Al Lillibridge, Jim Crawford and Art Brown who covered themselves all over with glory as was evidenced by the enthusiastic vote of appreciation given for their efforts.

At the business session, President William G. Park presided and a letter, from Raymond M. Havens, president of International Rotary, was read, complimenting the local club on its 100 per cent. meeting in December. It was voted to send a telegram to President Havens informing him that since holding the 100 per cent. meeting in December two more perfect attendance meetings had been held making what is claimed to be a record. It was also voted to send a letter of appreciation for services rendered the club by John J. McAuliffe, while manager of the Wauregan hotel. Al Bliven was song leader for the luncheon.

After the luncheon was over the boxing bout took place and was a snappy go between Tony Bruso, 133 pounds and Dominic Falcone, 140 pounds, two of Barney Keenan's proteges. Both boys were handicapped by the slippery condition of the impromptu ring but made a good showing, putting a lot of action into their work. The bout was declared a draw by the referee.

Arguments before the jury were made when court opened Wednesday morning by Arthur M. Brown, counsel for the executors, the Thames National bank, and by Attorney Hibberd R. Norman, counsel for the appellant. Judge Allyn L. Brown took about an hour in charging the jury.

The court accepted the verdict as soon as it had been presented by the foreman, and the morning session adjourned for dinner.

POETRY

HYMN TO THE NORTH STAR.

The sad and solemn night
Hath yet her multitude of cheerful fires;
The glorious host of light
Walks the dark hemisphere till she retires;
All through her silent watches, gliding slow,
Her constellations come, and climb the heavens, and go.

Day, too, hath many a star
To grace her gorgeous reign as bright as they.
Through the blue fields afar
Unseen they follow in his flaming way;
Many a bright lingerer, as the eve grows dim,
Tells what a radiant troops arose and set with him.

And thou dost see them rise,
Star of the Pole! And thou dost see them set.
Alone in thy cold skies,
Thou keep'st thy old, unmoving station yet,
Nor join'st the dances of that glittering train,
Nor dip'st thy virgin orb in the blue Western main.

There at morn's rosy birth
Thou lookeste meekly through the kindling air,
And ere that round the earth
Chases the day, beholds thee watching there;
There noontide finds thee, and the hour that chills
The shapes of polar flame to mock heaven's azure walls.

All like, beneath thine eye,
The deeds of darkness and of light are done;
High towards the midnight sky
Towns blaze, the smoke of battle blots the sun,
The night alarm on a thousand hills is loud,
And the strong wind of day doth mingle sea and cloud.

On thy unaltering blaze
The half-wrecked mariner, his compass lost,
Fixes his steady gaze,
And steers, undoubting, to the friendly coast;
And they who stray in perilous wastes, by night,
Are glad when thou dost shine to guide their footsteps right.

And, therefore, bards of old,
Sages and hermits of the solemn wood,
Did in thy beams behold
A beauteous type of that unchanging good,
That bright eternal beacon, by whose rays
The voyager of time should shape his heedful way.

—William Cullen Bryant.

SHALL I FORGET?

I do not think I shall forget—
Although I said I would—
For I have tried so long and hard
And yet it does no good.

Just when I think I have forgot
I find myself once more
Reviewing all the memories
I have reviewed before.

I do not think I would forget—
Although I thought I must.
When I had seen my dearest dreams
Lie shattered in the dust—

For I have learned remembering,
Although it brings my tears,
Is sweet to hold against my heart
As I go down the years.

—Abigail Cresson, in New York Herald.

ENTIRE RUHR VALLEY HAS TAKEN ON THE ASPECT OF WAR

Demonstrations of a Violent Nature Have Been Carried Out by the Germans—The Occupying Forces Have Placed Their Machine Guns and Weapons of Large Calibre in Readiness to Cope With the Resistance That Appears to be No Longer Passive—Military Measures of a Sterner Nature Are Threatened if the Germans Continue Their Spirit of Defiance.

(By The Associated Press.)

All of the elements usually cited as contributary causes of open war exist in the Ruhr valley. The German populace, wrought up by the presence of the French and Belgians, their hatred augmented by the arrest and conviction of the industrial leaders, have carried out some demonstrations of a violent nature in various centers of the Ruhr. The occupying forces have placed machine guns, 75s and weapons of larger calibre at strategic points, with the purpose, if necessary, of overawing resistance that appears to be no longer passive but extremely active. The return of Fritz Thyssen Dusseldorf and visit to Essen was made the occasion of remarkable demonstrations of organized cavalry and foot soldiery which acted into action. There was some firing by the military, although the French are under orders not to use their rifles unless attacked. The railroad strike is reported to be almost complete, the roads are tied up at the present and traffic of all kinds is in a state of suspension. Meanwhile reinforcements are sweeping into the Ruhr and engineers and workers of all kinds, are arranging to have the various public services in operation without great loss of time.

M. Tirard, the French minister of public works, and General Weygand, Marshal Foch's chief of staff, are in the field and military measures of a severer nature are threatened if the recalcitrant spirit of the Germans continues.

When M. Le Troequer declared at Dusseldorf that "France is here to stay here in spite of the complete satisfaction from Germany," Dr. Hermes, the German minister of finance, in introducing the budget in the Reichstag at Berlin announced that Germany was firmly resolved to resort to every means at her disposal to frustrate the aims of a policy of violence which was being pursued against her.

FRENCH HAVE COMPLETED MILITARY ARRANGEMENTS

Dusseldorf, Jan. 25.—Should further sabotage and armed resistance occur here it will come just at the moment when the French have completed their military arrangements to hold the Ruhr for all time to come. The troops, composed of three divisions of infantry commanded by General Degoutte, is established in the region of the Ruhr, covering Duisburg and Recklinghausen. The third corps, under General Isselin with the same effectives, occupies Essen and Bochum. Two regiments of cavalry are quartered around Hornberg and Ratingen, ready to move in case of trouble.

Beside a division is stationed along the Rhine from Wesel to Dusseldorf. A total of 100,000 armed men is thus on the wall of France and the complete pacification of these and other districts, some of whose still have their arms, and which has the moral and financial support of the entire land, to the east and the south, and effective help of seven divisions of the occupying territory on the left bank of the Rhine.

Crowds gathered around the statue of Bismarck, Von Moltke and Von Roon in Ludendorff street tonight and sang Deutschland Ueber Alles and shouted down with the French" until curiously rushed from the barracks and dispersed the manifestants with jeers and insults. The French showed great patience, being Under order not to fire unless attacked.

The railroad station in Duesseldorf is one of the most office. Telegraphs and telephones are out of commission and the Ruhr is almost entirely isolated from the outside except through the French military system of communication.

FRENCH HELD OFF MOB AT THE POINT OF BAYONETS

Essen, Jan. 25.—(By the A. P.)—Great crowds turned out this afternoon to greet Fritz Thyssen and his fellow industrial leaders, found guilty of unlawful hostilities at Mayence on a charge of contempt for refusing to make the delivery of reparation coal.

The attitude of the crowds toward the French occupational forces was at times threatening, and at the headquarters of the garrison, opposite the Reichsbank branch, the French had to keep a mob only at the points of bayonets. Two machine guns were in readiness and it seemed that the order to fire would momentarily be given, but quiet was finally restored without shooting or casualties of any kind.

This crowd, numbering well into the thousands, was drawn to the guard house while following an automobile believed to be carrying Herr Thyssen and his comrades to the Kaiserhof hotel nearby. The magnates, however, did not arrive until 4:30 o'clock when they entered the Kaiserhof amid great roars of cheering and the singing of patriotic songs.

It is estimated that at least 10,000 persons were gathered in downtown Essen awaiting the arrival of the industrial leaders. The streets were filled most of the afternoon.

BOATMEN ON THE RHINE HAVE GONE ON STRIKE

Duisberg, Jan. 25.—The boatmen on the Rhine have gone on strike, and traffic on the river is at a standstill.

Herr Hauser, director of the postal service at Duesseldorf, has been arrested for refusal to obey the French occupational authorities.

SHOTS FIRED BY FRENCH TO QUELL DISORDERS

Duesseldorf, Jan. 25.—(By the A. P.)—Violent manifestations occurred in the streets of Duesseldorf this evening in connection with a general two-hour strike called in protest against the French occupation and as a welcoming demonstration to Fritz Thyssen. Several shots were fired by the French in quelling the disorders, and one German was wounded. The strike lasted from 5 to 7 p. m.

The French tonight had stationed tanks at strategic points throughout the city; machine guns were so placed as to command every public square and forces of cavalry and infantry were patrolling the streets.

CROWDS IN UGLY MOOD IN STREETS OF ESSEN

Essen, Jan. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The crowds in the streets of Essen have grown larger and their mood uglier since the return of the industrial magnates, who at Mayence yesterday were convicted by a French court-martial and sentenced to pay fines for disobedience of the orders of the Franco-Belgian authorities. For a time today it seemed as though serious clashes between civilian mobs and French machine gunners were inevitable.

There was great jubilation at the station on the arrival of the magnates' train and mighty cheers and popular songs greeted them and followed them to their homes and hotels. The French guards, believing themselves menaced, summoned reinforcements, planted machine guns in the main squares and took possession of the lobby of the Hotel Kaiserhof, which tonight resembles an arsenal, while two companies of French dragoons are guarding the adjacent square.

There was another noisy demonstration in front of the postoffice, but no conflicts. The atmosphere continues electrical, and the temper of the civilian crowds is more hostile than at any time since the beginning of the occupation.

HEARINGS ON MOREHOUSE PARISH OUTRAGES END

Bastrop, La., Jan. 25 (By the A. P.).—The state's open hearing inquiry into the activities of masked men in the Morehouse parish ended today with the testimony of Leon Jones, a traveling man of Moselle, Miss., that one night last August a small truck containing masked men and two others who appeared to be prisoners passed him on the road bound toward Lake La Fourche.

Some time later, he said, the cars returned. There seemed to be no prisoners.

Besides Jones' testimony, the principal developments of the final session were:

A statement by Attorney General Coco that "since the advent of the Ku Klux Klan in the parish there had arisen into a supercession of constituted authorities by the Ku Klux Klan . . . from which a reign of terror and chaos have resulted."

A declaration by counsel for members of the klan identified in the hearing that "it was manifest from the very beginning that the real motive behind the prosecution was to convict the Ku Klux Klan in the forum of public opinion."

Announcement of the early withdrawal of state militiamen from the parish.

Promise by Attorney General Coco that the evidence gathered at the hearing would be presented to the grand jury "for its consideration and action as soon as we can get a transcript of it."

DAUGHERTY VINDICATED BY 204 TO 77 VOTE IN HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house, by a vote of 204 to 77, approved tonight the action of its judiciary committee in giving Attorney General Daugherty a clean bill of health on the impeachment charges brought against him by Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota.

Without a roll call and by practically an unanimous vote it adopted also a resolution discharging the committee from further consideration of the charges and laying the Keller impeachment resolution on the table. The two votes were regarded as having the effect of closing the incident.

The question of whether the house has the constitutional power to compel a member to testify before its committees was left undecided. This issue was raised in the midst of the judiciary committee hearings when Mr. Keller refused to respond to a subpoena served on him after his dramatic withdrawal from further participation in the proceedings.

The committee, in its report, took the position that the couse could punish Mr. Keller by imprisonment or otherwise until he did testify, the term of imprisonment, however, not to extend beyond this session of congress, but it made no recommendation on the subject, nor did the house take direct action upon it.

OBITUARY.

Henry Melville Whitney.

Brookline, Mass., Jan. 25.—Henry Melville Whitney, known as one of the greatest captains of industry of his time, died at his home here tonight at the age of 84 years. Until his retirement several years ago from active affairs he was an international figure as capitalist and transportation magnate.

As the organizer of the Dominion Coal company from which grew the present coal and iron industry of Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, it had been said of him that "no American ever did more for Canada."

He was born in Conway, Mass., in 1839. In 1868 he was made agent of the Metropolitan Steamship company, which then operated a line between New York and Boston. He later became president of the company.

Always an advocate of reciprocity with Canada, Mr. Whitney based two campaigns as democratic candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts on that issue. He withdrew before the election in 1906 and was unsuccessful in 1907.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

No Proposal From Rome, Jan. 25.—Reports emanating from Berlin to the effect that Italy is seeking to bring about a world economic conference at Washington were declared in authoritative quarters today to be without foundation. CHARGES AGAINST ANDERSON, ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MAN

New York, Jan. 25.—Long-smouldering accusations of misappropriation and malfeasance, of blackmail and extortion, today burst into flame when William H. Anderson, superintendent of the New York state branch of the anti-saloon league and a nationally known "dry" crusader, was summoned to the district attorney's office for examination.

The district attorney's aides maintained sealed lips and sealed records concerning what took place at today's quizzing. But Mr. Anderson himself in a statement issued tonight, revealed that an investigation of certain financial transactions within the league, and involving funds donated by its supporters, had been started by District Attorney Banton.

The specific accusations, alleged by the Evening Mail, to have been made by O. Bertsall Phillips who, until last year was chief financial field representative of the league, were:

1—That the league chief for many months, carried out a private arrangement whereby he split, fifty-fifty, commissions on donations solicited by Phillips.

2—That Anderson falsified the official accounts of the league, which is a corporation, thus committing a felony.

3—That Anderson, after public refusing, in 1920, an increase of his $10,000 salary, drew "compensation" at $15,000 that year, that he obtained the board of directors' authority to draw from the treasury to himself $24,000 for unauthorized and unitemized "publicity."

4—That, although the league professed to pay no commissions or bonuses to solicitors of contributions, Phillips regularly received 20 per cent commission up to $25,000 collected annually, and 10 per cent on collections exceeding that amount, and that Anderson secretly shared these commissions, recording Phillips' compensation as "salary."

To which Anderson replied with counter-charges that he was being made the victim of attempted extortion and blackmail which had already cost the league, under the guise of a "settlement," $2,500 paid Phillips by the board of directors last December.

He named Robert G. Davey, alleged member of the staff of the Lord's Day Alliance, as a co-conspirator, with Phillips, but withheld the name of a third person he declared was involved.

"These charges," he said, "are the joint product of a desire for revenge on the part of three discharged employes and an attempt to extort money."

He said that for seven months the charges had been held over his head in order to make him pay his accusers what was not their due.

Anderson said that his salary had averaged very considerably under $10,000 a year and I earn every cent of it."

He admitted having made the "statutory split" agreement with Phillips, and to have kept it at first, receiving various sums from that source, commencing with contributions on the licensed records.

He did not say because he wished to treat the part of the commissions sank in the league and the Knights Phillips was to settle. The books of the organization had been "corrected" but, he declared, there had been no "deception."

"The actual facts concerning the so-called spat were before the board some months ago, and the board ratified everything I had done, and notified the district attorney's office to that effect," Mr. Anderson continued.

TESTING MEDICAL PHASE OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT

New York, Jan. 25.—Attorneys for the Association for the Protection of Constitutional Rights argued before Federal Judge Knox against the constitutionality of that part of the Volstead act which limits the use of alcohol for medicine.

The association, whose membership includes a number of physicians, is seeking an order restraining prohibition and other federal officers from interfering with the prescription of medicinal liquors in any quantity that medican men may deem advisable.

Counsel for the physicians declared the physicians had instituted proceedings because they felt that they should practice their calling as their best judgement dictated and not as Mr. Volstead and zealot adherents prescribed."

Lausanne Conference To Adjourn Next Week

Whether Peace Is Signed or Not—Announcement Made by the Allies.

Lausanne, Jan. 25.—(By the A. P.) Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, declined tonight to comment on the announced allied project to adjourn the Near East conference by the end of next week, whether peace was signed or not. The allies hope that publication of their plans will have sufficient psychological pressure to induce the Turks to yield on the disputed points.

Both French and Italians rallied rather reluctantly to the procedure laid down by the British, and they were careful to say tonight that there could be no question of a definite rupture which would lead to renewed war, but all will depend on the nature of the answer the Turks give when the allied treaty is definitely presented.

Marquis Di Garroni, of Italy, said tonight that the door to peace would be left open, even after the adjournment of the conference without definite results, because the allies stand ready to return to Lausanne if there seems any chance of reaching an accord. Both the French and Italians are striving desperately to save the conference.

Rev. Grant Neither Recants Nor Resigns

Writes Bishop Manning Quoting Ecclesiastical Authorities for Statements Made.

New York, Jan. 25—The Rev. Dr. Percy Stinckney Grant, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of the Ascension whose recent sermons denying the divinity of Christ brought from Bishop William T. Manning a demand that he "recant or resign", tonight replied to the bishop with a long letter quoting ecclesiastical authorities for the statements he made, and including:

"If at any time I have seemed to express myself crudely, I sincerely regret it."

Dr. Grant neither recanted nor offered to resign his rectorship. His letter was a ten page plea for enlightenment and liberty for the pulpit. In one place he quoted the following 'sober words of Bishop Gore in a book which last lent you (Bishop Manning) commended to the diocese:

"It is pitiful to see how many there are among the professed ministers of Christ, who, in an hour of popular discussion of some vital truth, are proved, by their perplexity or dismay, or by their uninstructed denunciations, never to have thought at all seriously or deeply about the most momentous questions."

In concluding Dr. Grant said: "I would say ex animo with St. Paul, that 'the Lord (i. e. the Christ of experience) is the spirit.' Might I venture to add the conclusion of his sentence? 'Where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.'"

And as a postscript, Dr. Grant added:

"In accordance with the example set by you, I am giving copies of this letter to the press."

Dr. Grant told newspapermen that he was sending the letter to Bishop Manning tonight by special messenger. The bishop could not be reached to learn if he had received it.

The letter opens with a reference to "The miraculous elements of the Gospel." Of this Dr. Grant said:

"I cannot love God with my mind and at the same time believe that the laws of nature were ever violated; for the simple reason that God himself has taught me, as he is teaching all our sons and daughters in every modern university of the western world today, that these laws are immutable throughout eternity. It is not in the remotest degree that I question his power. It is simply a matter of evidence. If you reply that in the gospel miracles, laws of which we have no knowledge were set in operation, I must answer that in such cases the alleged events ceased to be miracles. Should your hypothetical contention turn out to be true in fact, we, the lovers of the truth I would rejoice in such fresh revelation. But of this there is as yet not a scintilla of evidence. In the 'miracles' of healing, many of the laws employed by Christ have today been made known to us, but we thereby realize clearly that such works are not contrary to, but in accordance with law."

"All books of the new testament tell us that he had a true human body, and lived a real human life. That human body weighed, let us say, one hundred and fifty pounds. Am I helped either in my own inner life or in my preaching to others, by affirming that such a body, in utter defiance of the law of gravitation, walked upon water as upon a solid floor? Were I to state that this is a literal fact, might I not justly be charged with denying the true humanity of our Lord? And I am very sure that Jesus of Nazareth did nothing in his life for the purpose of creating wonder. Indeed he definitely refused to request for a sign of his character."

Dr. Grant added: "But you will reply 'There must be a limit somewhere; a line must be drawn beyond which it is disloyal to go.' Most heartily do I concur in this. The limit is the truth; and he who is disloyal to truth has no place in the ministry of the church. But truth is something of which one cannot have different brands. There can be no such thing as Episcopalian truth; or Presbyterian truth or Catholic truth. Truth is what is."

Regarding his belief in Christ the letter said:

"I pass now to my belief in Jesus Christ our Lord. From my heart I believe that Jesus is the portrait of the invisible God, the perfect revelation of my heavenly father. When I ask myself 'What is God like?' I can only answer, 'He is like Jesus,' and hence I can make my own the words 'He hath seen me hath seen the Father.' But I cannot make my own neither platonist or aristotelian explanations of the metaphysical relation between our Lord and the Father."

"With such understanding as I have, I am sure that in some sense there was in Jesus an incarnation of deity. My entire spiritual experience makes clear to me that His revelation of God is absolutely unique: that He is, as I said above, the very portrait of the Father. But how this was accomplished is to me, from the nature of the case, a wholly speculative question, as to which I know nothing."

Concluding, he said:

"I trust, Dear Bishop Manning, that I have clearly answered your letter, and that you will believe my words to be without conscious equivocation or mental reservation of any kind whatever. What I have written is taught publicly by great numbers of clergymen in the Anglican communion, including not a few bishops, and probably the majority of her most illustrious scholars. It would have been a simple matter to multiply quotations from representative Anglican teachers."

ROUSING FAREWELL GIVEN AMERICAN RHINE TROOPS

Band Played the Belgian and the American National Anthems as the Transport St. Mihiel Moved Down the River Scheldt From Antwerp—Doughboys Sang Farewell Songs and Shouted Good-Bye—The Transport is Bound for Savannah.

Antwerp, Jan. 25.—(By The A. P.)—Moving slowly down the River Scheldt tonight on the way home aboard the American transport St. Mihiel is the last contingent of the troops who represented the United States in the World war.

The troops arrived here this morning from Coblenz bridgehead and embarked on the transport, which started her voyage for Savannah at 5:20 o'clock this afternoon. Wan soldiers lining her rails the transport cast off her lines from the Siberia dock. The doughboys sang farewell songs and shouted greetings of good-bye, while groups of friends ashore standing in the dim light of the early darkness waved their adieux.

Then the propellers of the St. Mihiel began to churn the waters and slowly the transport moved on her way toward the flat lowlands of the Scheldt and soon was lost to view at the Royal Sluice. Still wending her way toward Flushing, which will be reached about midnight. From Flushing the wide sea opens the way for home and the signal bells will register the call "full speed ahead."

The formal ceremony of departure took place at 4:40 o'clock, when a company of the 26th Belgian Infantry with its band, lined up alongside the St. Mihiel. The band played the Belgian and the American National Anthems. Minister of War Deveze, accompanied by General Jacques, representing King Albert, and the burgomaster of Antwerp, Dr. Franz Van Cauwelaert, boarded the transport, where they were received by the captain of the St. Mihiel, W. T. Oliver; Colonel Walter T. Bates of the 8th Infantry, and the American consul, George S. Messersmith. Appropriate speeches were exchanged in the main cabin of the vessel. In his address M. Deveze expressed Belgium's devotion to the United States. The final ceremony was one of many attending the farewell of these last of the American soldiers in Europe.

The St. Mihiel was decked out in official flags for the ceremonies with the American Jack, forward, the efficiency flag of the United States army transport service at the main, the Belgian flag at the foremast and the American flag on the staff aft.

Among the many tokens of affection presented the departing soldiers was a most modest one from an unknown woman. Tidily she left a bouquet of flowers in the bridge cabin of Captain Oliver. It was not her own name, she said, but on behalf of the humble people of Belgium who never could forget the aid the Americans had rendered during their wartime needs.

The center of interest to those on board ship was the wives and children of soldiers who had exercised their constitutional right to marry. Gathered on the poop deck of the St. Mihiel they formed an attractive group.

One couple reached the ship only after some tribulations. Private Ralph Bailey of Maine married a girl just before the troops train left Coblenz. His bride decided that she did not desire to proceed to the United States immediately. Bailey gave her the marriage book, signed by Chaplain Easterbrook, bade her farewell and went to board the train. Within a half hour there was a hurried call to hold the train, for Bailey's wife had changed her mind and had decided to make the voyage. Tonight she is one of the party on board the St. Mihiel.

Captain H. R. Tourtillott at the last moment prior to the St. Mihiel showed off from the dock was maintaining his firm but kindly manner in his novel duties of handling the family affairs of the soldiers. He was obliged to revise his passenger list several times owing to a change of hearts of soldiers or their wives. His official list, however, when the lines were cast off, showed that there were 76 women and 65 children on board the transport. Three of the women were mothers-in-law. Three or four wives of soldiers were escorted off the ship before she sailed, as their husbands had declined to assume the financial responsibility of taking them to the United States. Although the passage would cost them only $2 a day and their food 66 cents.

REPARATIONS POLICY LAID BEFORE SENATE COMMITTEE

Washington, Jan. 25.—Further information with regard to the administration policy toward the reparations problem was laid before the foreign relations committee of the senate today by Secretary Hughes in the form of letters and documents, but there was no indication that as a result the gathering senate storm on European questions had been quieted.

In his letters, Secretary Hughes reiterated that the American government did not intend to participate in the reparations discussions. Discussing the unofficial representation with the reparations commission through Roland W. Boyden as an observer, Mr. Hughes declared with reference to "questions arising from time to time in which this government and its citizens have an immediate interest that these purposes have been served by the contact with the commission which we have been able to maintain through the present arrangements."

Shortly after the foreign relations committee had received the communications, Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, who recently proposed that the United States call an international economic conference, announced that he planned to renew the suggestion soon by the introduction of a resolution requesting the president to call such a conference.

Secretary Hughes made clear to the committee that it "has not been the policy of this administration to participate in the fixing of the amounts to be paid by Germany upon reparations claims."

"And particularly," he added, "with respect to the discussions that have been going on during the past few months before the reparations commission in relation to the amounts and terms of Germany's reparations payments the department has cautioned its observer not to take any position that would involve this government in these discussions."

NEW HAVEN DEMOCRATIC REGISTRAR FINED $250

New Haven, Jan. 25.—Eugene J. Harrigan, democratic registrar here, was found guilty on five counts of failure to register names on his primary list according to law by a jury late today. Harrigan was fined $250 several months ago in the city court and appealed the case.

He maintained that the names had been omitted from the list because they had been handed in too late, while the state contended that the names had been left out because they represented a faction in the democratic party objectionable to the registrar.

EXPLOSION KILLS SAILOR ON THE U. S. S. CALIFORNIA

SENATE TAKES UP FARM CREDITS LEGISLATION

Washington, Jan. 25.—Consideration of farm credits legislation was resumed by the senate today, the second and last measure on the farmer credit extension program, the Lenroot-Anderson bill coming up for debate with its friends hopeful of a vote early next week.

Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, co-author of the credit bill and member of the joint congressional agriculture commisaon, opened the discussion, citing support for the bill given by farm organizations and explaining its provisions which would go further, he said, toward providing credits to farmers than the Capper bill passed by the senate recently.

Coincident with the starting of the debate, Chairman McLean, of the banking committee, introduced a resolution designed to open further the gates of credit to agriculturalists. His resolution, which went over, proposed a joint congressional committee to investigate why more banks and trust companies have not joined the federal reserve system. The commission would inquire especially into agricultural credit necessities by ascertaining "financial conditions in agricultural sections" and whether the federal reserve law or the rules and regulations of the federal reserve board should be changed to induce small banks in rural districts to join the federal system. Recommendations to congress would be made in a report by the commission not later than January 31, 1924.

The resolution cited that 9,640 banks and trust companies, comprising 85 per cent. of those eligible, had not joined the reserve system.

Senators Brookhart, republican, Iowa, and Norbeck, republican, South Dakota, made brief criticisms of the scope of the Lenroot Anderson bill, arguing for more direct credit relations between farmers and the government, but Senator Lenroot said that direct government loans were impractical and hazardous, the overhead expense involved, he said, being prohibitive. The Wisconsin senator said he would like to bring the loans closer to the farmer, but declared the indirect loans, through the re-discount privilege, was the limit of business prudence and sound economic principles.

BROOKLYN "PONZI" TO BE SENTENCED FOR LARCENY

New York, Jan. 25.—Brooklyn's "Ponzi" as he is known to the police, smiled brightly at a jury which today decreed him guilty of first degree grand larceny after having heard testimony that his deft banking operations had ended in financial disaster for more than sixty Brooklyn citizens during the past year. Sentence will be imposed next week.

Ernest Laraco is the real name of the Brooklyn "Ponzi." He was arrested last November as he left a liner from Cuba, at the end of a leisurely and strictly de luxe Mediterranean tour, and was charged with having lavished money deposited in his "bank" on various women.

GERMANY WILL NEED FOODSTUFFS FROM THE U. S.

Washington, Jan. 25. — America may be called upon, as a result of the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr, to supply Germany with a large part of approximately two million tons of foodstuffs needed between now and the first of next September, a high government official asserted today. The Ruhr occupation, he explained, has reduced foreign confidence in Germany's ability to pay for imports, while it is also expected to diminish food production in that country to a considerable extent, leaving no nation except the United States to furnish any large part of the necessary supplies.

An intimate friend of the late Dr. J. Byron Sweet, told Thursday of the carefully laid out plans which the doctor cherished, as regarding his grandson and namesake, Byron Sweet.

The lad is the sixteen year old son of the doctor's only son, Stephen. The boy's father, long before he died, had many times demonstrated that he had inherited the Sweet bone setting skill. Dr. Sweet and his son, Stephen, were much handicapped in many things they sought to accomplish because of the lack of college degrees. The late doctor, had he lived, as he used to say, ten years longer, would have seen to it that his grandson, in whom he was well pleased, should be so equipped that nothing of the hindrances he knew so well, should serve as a deterrent to his ambitions.

Young Byron Sweet, even at the age of sixteen years, gives every evidence of the ability and the desire to make the best use possible of his priceless legacy.

The Auk, the official publication of the American Ornithologists' union, in its January number, gives as its leading article, a fine paper by Alfred O. Gross, on the Black-Crowned Night heron, which tells about the great colony of these birds at a point of Cape Cod. These birds are not often seen far from their colony centers. Yet, several years ago F. C. Whiting shot one on the Quinebaug above the town, five feet tall. He had it mounted and it stood for a long time in his store. The Auk says that according to the account of fishermen the herons were inhabiting the Cape Cod pines, when the lighthouse was built, over a century ago, and doubtless the ancestry of these birds were rearing their young among the sand dunes, long before the Pilgrims landed at Provincetown and settled at Plymouth.

Probably the bird Mr. Whiting shot was a wanderer from this heron colony at Cape Cod.

The boys are very grateful to the town officials for the use of the rooms, and seem to show much interest in the organization. They are very orderly for a group of young Americans. F. A. Benton, scout executive, of Norwich, was present with George Young of Taftville and three scouts. This group added much interest to the meeting. Need of Radio Regulation.

With 21,000 radio transmitting stations in the country, of which 569 are engaged in broadcasting a mass of often conflicting material, it would seem apparent to every one in the radio industry that some form of general regulation is necessary for the good of the service.—New York World.

Lots of infant industries never grow up.

CONTRAST

I like to follow country roads,
Along a level, up a hill,
By fields, through woods, where everything
Is quiet, peaceful, calm, and still.
The solitude delights my heart;
I listen to the singing birds,
And there, alone with Nature, feel
A happiness too deep for words.

I like to be in city streets,
Where all is bustle, action, life,
And watch the ceaseless crowds go by,
And feel the stir of endless strife.
I like to watch the busy throng,
To whom life is one constant drive.
I like both solitude and stress—
In short, I like to be alive!

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barstow of Gallup avenue Tuesday evening a company of 18 young people were delightfully entertained at a party in honor of their daughter, Miss Rose Ione Barstow. Music, dancing and games provided the entertainment for the evening.

The dancing was to the music of a Victrola and piano. Mrs. Barstow served cakes, ice cream and candy. The large birthday cake was prettily decorated with red, pink, white and green candles, with 14 pink candles lighted.

The occasion marked the 14th birthday anniversary of Miss Barstow, who received some very nice gifts which included a gold fountain pen and ivory toilet and manicure set combined.

It is a fifteen room house with all improvements, located on the corner of Hobart avenue and Oak street. The lot is a large lot. There is also a three car garage. Mr. Hagberg purchases the property as an investment and will make improvements.

Breed Theatre

In addition to a clever story, that turns on the question of the proper station in life for the newly-made millionaire, the William Fox picture "Without Fear" which is the feature at the Breed theatre and Saturday, has a fine display of rich gowns. Some of these are startling in their bizarre effect. One worn by Pearl White, the star, is so dazzling that it is sure to find advocates who are planning for something to startle all who attend fancy dress balls.

The tale revolves around a man who has become rich overnight—a man who is modest and democratic, who has no desire to enter society, but who society takes upon itself to snub. His big-hearted, democratic manner finds its reward, however, in the love of a society girl who defies the rules and the warning of her circle.

Ruth Roland will also be seen in the opening chapter of the Pathe serial, "The Timber Queen" and the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Fine Keith Vaudeville at the Broadway

A very pleasant offering of B. F Keith vaudeville was presented last evening at the Broadway and will also be seen today and Saturday.

The Seven of Hearts was the topliner. This act has six pretty girls and one boy who made a very good impression with their singing, dancing and musical offering.

George and Lillian Garden were very well received with their xylophone playing. They featured all kinds of music.

Peggy Brooks followed with song numbers. This petite miss made an instant hit and obliged with an encore.

Pesano and Landauer appeared in a comedy variety act featuring some good singing and comedy patter. Their offering was also well received.

Drama and comedy are expertly mixed in "A Daughter of Luxury," Agnues Ayres' latest Paramount starring feature, which opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday. Primarily dramatic, the situations might be handled as straight drama, but the story has been treated in a lighter and more inspiring vein, so that the humor made possible by this treatment provides relishable entertainment. The supporting players headed by Tom Gallery, are quite artistic.

Five Months Active Research to Get "Lorna Doone" Material—Playing at the Strand.

It took over five months of active research work to establish costume and custom details of the seventeenth century, the period in which the story of "Lorna Doone" now showing at the Strand theatre is laid.

Tourneur is a stickler not merely for realism but also for correctness of detail. As a result of the research work which has been done on his various productions of classical books and plays such as the "Bluebird," "Treasure Island" and the "Last of the Mohicans" he now has one of the finest reference libraries of any motion picture producer.

In "Lorna Doone" he has exceeded all his previous efforts and has produced a magnificent spectacle which is a faithful reproduction of the spirit of the novel from which it has been adapted.

A Ham Hamilton comedy, The Education and a Selznick news complete a very fine program.

KEARNS GIVES RICKARD OPTION ON DEMPSEY'S SERVICES FOR SHORT TIME

New York, Jan. 25.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, today signed an option with Tex Rickard under the terms of which Kearns agreed not to enter into any contracts involving the heavyweight champion for a period of six days ending February 1, pending receipt of a formal offer from the promoter.

The agreement, which bars Kearns from accepting, but not from receiving further fight offers for the stipulated period, was signed in the presence of newspapermen late this afternoon after a four-hour conference between the promoter and the title-holder's manager. The latter received $1,000 to sign the option.

Rickard said he would suggest terms for probably two fights during the summer. Dempsey's opponents to be selected by him from the four men he considered to be leading challengers. These four, he said, were Harry Wills, Jess Willard, Louis Firpo and Tom Gibbons.

Kearns reiterated his insistence that Wills be included as one of the champion's opponents under any contract he signed but Rickard, while declining to commit himself definitely indicated he favored Willard as Dempsey's first opponent, and either Gibbons or Firpo as the second, providing the champion again conquered the giant Kansan.

The promoter declared he would prefer to stage the first contest June 30 and the second probably on Labor Day.

The new Yankee Stadium may be the scene of one or both matches if Rickard's the successful bidder. The most likely alternative site is Boyle's Thirty Acres, the big pine sapper in Jersey City which Rickard used for the Dempsey-Carpentier contest.

Kearns intimated he expected to receive several other offers. He said he had been approached by interests represented by Harry Frazee, owner of the Boston American League club, and expected tomorrow to receive formal terms of an offer from Tex O'Rourke. Polo Grounds matchmaker. O'Rourke announced yesterday he would seek to sign Dempsey for three title bouts during the summer for a consideration reported to be around $1,000,000.

Joe Beckett, English heavyweight, has been eliminated as a possible opponent for Dempsey, so far as Rickard is concerned. He said he had cabled Beckett several offers recently to fight either Gibbons, Harry Wills or Gene Tunney, leading light heavyweights in this country, but had received no reply.

DR. HOLMS ELECTED HEAD OF LOCAL RIFLE CLUB

The Norwich Rifle club held their annual meeting at the armory Wednesday night. The following officers were elected: Frank W. Holms, president; N. C. Pierce, vice president; Benjamin F. Brewster, treasurer; Allyn M. Brand, secretary; Charles B. Palmer, executive officer.

Mr. Murphy and Mr. Grimes, both well known riflemen, were elected as honorary members of the club. Both of these men have done a great deal for the benefit of the shooting game. The club also voted to take steps to secure an outdoor range, up to 100 yards. This will open up a new phase of the shooting game to a large part of the members of the club, and will not be expensive as the 22-calibre rifle is very accurate up to 100 yards.

The club has already received challenges for two outdoor matches as soon as the weather breaks. Several new members are to join the club, among whom are two well known rifle shots. This will make a membership of over 40 members for the club. The club is now on a sound basis and is going strong. Several matches have been arranged with clubs throughout the country, and several events will be held among the club members. Every member in the club, whether a beginner or a veteran rifleman, will have an equal chance. Among the events in which the members of the club will be interested, are the National Sportsmen's club trophy match, the Norwich Rifle club cup match, a prize shoot, and the United States qualification N. R. A. match, the last named event is also the first week in April. It is hoped that at least one or two of the members of the rifle club will represent Norwich in the individual championship matches. This match is open to members of the N. R. A. and affiliated clubs in the United States and its possessions.

Fred Hilliard, a new member of the club, is doing some remarkable shooting. Wednesday night, in the position, he put up the following scores for 40 consecutive shots in 10 shot groups, 97-94-99-97, scoring 387 points out of a possible 400.

HADDOCK RECOMMENDS THE EXPULSION OF WESTMINSTERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 25.—President W. S. Haddock, president of the United States amateur hockey association, today declared that the Westminster club of New Haven was an "insubordinate member" and its expulsion had been recommended to the executive committee. "Meantime," added the president, "under my power as president, it stands suspended."

"If my recommendation is followed the club will be permanently expelled and the players will be suspended. Their individual cases will be considered later," said Mr. Haddock.

The club, Mr. Haddock explained, had entered for the national championship and bound itself, as did the other clubs, to follow the rules and regulations and instructions of the association's officers. Mr. Haddock continue:

"The club not only failed to take into account the legalized authority governing hockey, but still worse, the great hockey public, the loyal and enthusiastic followers of the game whose interests also are of some concern and should be respected.

"The association has not disclosed its entire hand with respect to the Westminster club, It will do so at the proper time and in the proper place.

"Meantime the officers of the association desire to say that they have been very lenient, expecting that as the organization became older the clubs would outgrow some of their faults. But there is no place in the association for the soldier of fortune or the profiteering adventurer who does not have the permanent good of the game at heart. All clubs in this organization will have to toe the mark, and only those who put sportsmanship first and relegate commercialism to the rear are wanted."

YALE NOT TO ASSUME WESTMINSTER MANAGEMENT

New Haven, Jan. 25.—Any possibility that the Westminster Hockey club of this city, barred from the United States Amateur Hockey league because of its failure to appear for a scheduled game in Boston last night, will be placed under the direct management of the Yale Athletic association disappeared tonight when Harold E. Woodcock, general manager for the association, announced that Yale could not "take under its wing" any outside organization.

Mr. Woodcock said that Yale would lease the arena, where the team played to the Westminsters through a "suitable person" for any future games. He said that he desired to correct an erroneous impression that Yale might assume control of the team.

It was learned tonight, that under the terms of the contract for the use of the arena, the agreement made with the Westminsters last fall was automatically canceled when the team ceased to be a member of the league.

BRILLIANT GOLF PLAYED AT SAN ANTONIO LINKS

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 25—Golf that would have won laurels at any tournament set the pace at the Brackenridge Municipal course today in the thirty-two hole ball matches, playing as a preliminary to the annual Texas open championship competition. Three of the pairs broke 70's A 61 won the money and gold medal.

Jack Tarrant, local amateur champion, Tom Boyd, of Foxhill Country club, New York, made a clean sweep of the board with their best ball 64, five strokes under the runners up.

Boyd carried off $100 in cash; Tarrant will wear the gold medal.

Both of the golfers had 70's. Each won six holes, and six holes were halved.

The 64 gives the course a new best ball record.

Walter Hagen, British open champion, paired with F. McLewis, Jr., San Antonio; and Joan Bredenus, Corpus Christie paired with Bob Scott, San Antonio, tied for second honors with 66s. Their prize awards will be determined by a play-up.

DUNN WANTS CHAMP IN EVERY CLASS

Charley O'Connell is Jimmy Dunn's lightweight hope for championship honors.

Jimmy Dunn, of Cleveland, who has developed more good boys than any other boxing manager in the country, has a desire to turn out a champion in every class before he gives up the ghastly game.

Dunn is the man who made Johnny Kilbane featherweight champion, a title he twice held.

If even a fighter knocked out an opponent, Bozo Downey did that very thing to Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion. Downey honestly won the title, but never was nationally recognized as the premier middle-weight.

Dunn is confident either Carl Tremaine or Al Corbett can beat Joe Lynch for bantamweight champion. He also has high hopes for O'Connell as a lightweight contender.

Dunn's desire to turn out a champion for every class is not without the realities of possibility.

COMBAT TEAM WINS INDOOR BASEBALL GAME

In a game in which rules and regulations were made and defined by Trainer Joe Gill, the Combat Train indoor baseball team nosed out an intercompany victory over Spencer's Colts at the state armory on Thursday evening by a score of 13 to 12. The game was productive of a little baseball but to all outward appearances it was the meeting of two defensive clubs, with Burdick leading the attacks and Tommy Simcox upholding the negative or vice versa. The two umpires as arbitrators might as well have been in China for all the good they did and the decisions they made were heartily and justly protested by both sides. Outside of these few little differences it was a good game and the boys had a lot of fun.

AMERICAN PLAYERS LOSE IN CANADIAN RACQUETS

Montreal, Jan. 25.—Two American players won, and four lost in the opening round of the single play for the Canadian racquets championship in the first day of the International tournament today.

The feature events were between Alex Wilson, of Montreal, and G. M. Heckscher, of New York and H. C. Clark, of Boston, and J. MacKenzie, of Montreal, both of which went five sets. Wilson and Clark were the winners.

Clarence C. Pell, of New York, American champion, who won the Canadian title last year is not defending it.

DELLA UNKO WINS ICE EVENT, AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 25.—Della Unko won out in the 2.18 pace, the best race of the opening card at the Devonshire winter meet today. Driven by Lynn Flemming, the mare came in second in the first heat then took the remaining heats by close finishes with Blend J. and Peter Hall, the second being negotiated in 2.14 1-2. Della Unko started three times at the recent Mt. Clemens meeting and was a popular favorite.

Alvin Pointer and Peter Johnson won the 2.30 pace and the 2.20 trot, respectively, in straight heats.

Snow covered part of the ice track and made the going rather slow. It was the first time many of the horses ever had performed on a mile track at a winter meet.

EPISCOPALIANS WOULD BAN RACE TRACK GAMBLING

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 25—Race track betting and operation of pari-mutuel machines at race tracks were put under fire by the council of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Kentucky at its ninety-fifth annual meeting here today.

A resolution pledging support to the Kentucky anti-race track gambling association was unanimously adopted by the council.

New Haven, Jan. 25.—Two of Yale's leading coaches are now on the sick list.

John J. Mack, trainer of the football team and coach of the track men, left today for Bermuda to recuperate from a breakdown, which occurred shortly after the football season closed. He will remain south for a month or more.

Joe Fogarty, coach of the basketball team, today entered the New Haven hospital where he will be under care of specialists from the Yale Medical school for a week. His illness was diagnosed as a light attack of pleurisy. He expects to be back with the team in time for the next game, February 8th.

LOVE BERRY SHOWS IN FRONT AGAIN AT PINEHURST

Love Berry, owned by A. W. Hodges, of Benson, N. C., was driven by W. H. Cane of Hackensack, N. J., one of the nation's leading amateur drivers.

ROBINSON DENIES HE WILL HAVE BROWN

Providence, R. I., Jan. 25.—Edward N. Robinson, who has coached Brown University football teams for the past 13 or 15 years, by long distance telephone from his home in Danvers, Mass., tonight told the Providence Journal that he had not accepted an offer to go to the University of Alabama as coach there. He said that he would be in Providence early next week to discuss terms for a renewal of a contract with Brown.

Wauregan Wins.

In a decidedly one-sided game the St. John's Five of Wauregan defeated the Plainfield quintet Wednesday evening by a score of 34-9. Stanley Gaseorek was the star of the evening, caging eight baskets and shooting three fouls. A. Dessert won a place in the hall of fame by caging five baskets and shooting one foul. Raymond Maynard did well in caging the other two baskets. Mercier was Plainfield's white hope with three baskets and a foul. Bergeron got the other lone tally. An added attraction was the newly organized teams representing the spinning and card room girls. Lack of practice handicapped them but they played a fine game. A streak of luck gave the spinning room the game by a 7-3 score. If these girls continue to show such courage and bulldog tenacity Wauregan will soon be the proud possessor of an A No. 1 girls team fit to compete with any team in the state.

LOCAL BANTAMWEIGHT MAKES GOOD SHOWING IN BOSTON AMATEUR BOUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Boston, Jan. 25.—Freddy Swartzberg of Norwich, bantamweight, lost his three-round bout against Arnold Ryan of Dorchester here tonight by a slight margin. The bout was one of the semi-finals and was a fast go in all rounds, Swartzberg making a good showing against a more experienced boxer.

Ryan, who won second place in the New England amateur bouts last year, has 15 knockouts to his credit and all have come in the early rounds. Swartzberg's style and condition made a strong hit with local fans and he was roundly applauded at the end of the bout.

Swartzberg took the first round by a good margin and in this round slowed up Ryan to a great extent. In the second round Ryan pressed the fighting and took the round by a fair margin. The last round went to Ryan but Swartzberg made the Dorchester boy extend himself to win. Lack of ring experience handicapped the Norwich boy to some extent but his showing here tonight proves that he is due to come along at a fast clip. He is in the pink of condition and when he left the ring there was not a mark on him and he did not show any effects of the bout.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Chicago wants the 1928 Olympic games.

Gil Dobie, football coach at Cornell, recently stated he would exchange positions with a professor, guaranteed $5,000 per year salary.

Cesare C. Smith, Michigan fullback in 1915 and 1916 and captain-elect of the 1916 eleven, is now in Russia with the American Relief Forces.

Pat Dwyer, assistant coach at the University of Detroit during the football season of 1922, has been engaged to coach Toledo University next season.

Lew Young, new head coach at Pennsylvania asked members of the football squad to select assistant coaches. They picked Gaston as line coach.

Harry L. Van Leuvan of Portland claims the largest skeelhead in 1922 and has a silver cup to prove it. He was awarded the trophy for a catch that weighed 15 pounds 5 ounces.

Monser, playing the outfield for the Spokane club of the Northwestern league, played throughout the season of 1913 without making an error. Monser accepted 260 chances without a slip.

Jim Crowell, captain and right end of Michigan's 1922 football team, has been named the position of athletic director at Fairmont College, of Wichita, Kansas. He is considering the offer.

Jess Willard has the weakest handshake of any boxer in the ring while Jack Dempsey, Jack Britton, Benny Leonard, Joe Lynch and even little Pancho Villa shake hands as though they really meant to.

John McAdoo known as "Scotty" to every athlete and student ever to appear on Franklin Field, will be missed by athletic authorities at the University of Pennsylvania. "Scotty" died last week.

Of the first 15 batsmen listed in the batting averages of the American league for 1922, eleven of them batted from the left side. Of the 15 batsmen who graced the tail end of the batting list 14 were right-handed hitters. There may be a reason.

Bill James, who pitched for the Boston National league team in 1914, will coach the young pitchers of the Sacramento Coast league team during the coming season, it was announced today by Lewis Morring, one of the owners.

Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul lightheavyweight, will be permitted to fight Jack Dempsey if he wins from Floyd Johnson, the boxing commission has ruled in a modification of the previous order denying sanction to the proposed meeting.

Gus Desch, world's record holder in the 440-yard hurdlers; Clarence McKim, star sprinter of the Illinois Athletic club, Newark, and Miss Maud Kelly, of Rumson, N. J., it was announced by Jack Bulger, Walker's manager. The couple met two years ago when Walker was training in Rumson.

For the first entries in the Women's National championship will be limited to players with handicap ratings of 14 or under. The 1923 tournament will be held at the Westchester-Biltmore Club in Rye, N. Y., Oct. 1 to 6 the United States Golf Association announced.

Bruce Shorts, star Michigan lineman of the point-a-minute days, was one of the sponsors of a "Michigan Day Trophy," which the University of Michigan alumni of Seattle, Wash., are presenting to the championship high school football team of that city annually.

This is the way it used to be! In game played August 14, 1886, Louisville against Baltimore, when both the teams were in major league baseball. Matty Kilroy and Tom Ramsey were doing the hurling. The game ended in a tie. Ramsey and Kilroy, sore at each other, begged to go in again. They did and Ramsey won from the little Irishman.

Artie Latham, famous ball player, third sacker and comedian who was with the St. Louis Browns when that team won four pennants in successive seasons, in the World's Series of 1887, stole 17 bases in the 15 games which constituted the series between the Browns and Detroit that season. This is more bases stolen than any series save the world series-contests of 1907, 1909, 1912.

President Ban Johnson of the American league has announced that the spring meeting of the league probably would be held in Philadelphia, Feb 25. The baseball writers of Philadelphia will hold their annual dinner at that time and President Johnson together with Ty Cobb and George Sisler, will be among the guests of honor. The meeting usually is held in Chicago.

George Hemmings wasn't the greatest hurler in the game, or he wasn't ever classed with the great ones, but he did fan the famous Harry Stevey of the Athletics who was, at that time considered one of the great batsmen of the game for Stevey had a lifetime batting average for his career in the major leagues of .347, the fifth best on record. In a game played June 30, 1891, Hemmings struck out Stevey five times with the bases full. Again in August every time he came to bat, four times in all.

Sam Crawford, of glorious memory, was a left-handed batsman but hitting against left-handed pitchers was Sam's delight. It is an accepted fact that southpaw hurlers hold the Indian sign on left-handed batters but here is one case where the Indian sign failed. June 13, 1903. Rube Waddell had the Tigers all fussed up, all but Sam Crawford who hit the curves of the lefty as will any fan over the ones run made by the Detroit team by virtue of Waddell's choice ones over the fence. Come in another left-handed hitter who thrives on southpaw curves.

HOPE TO PLUG "LEAKS" OF "EMBASSY" LIQUORS

Washington, Jan. 25—(By the A. P.)—Prohibition officials today revealed plans they are considering with the hope of plugging the "leaks" releasing foreign liquors to Washington bootleggers who, according to evidence they say they possess, have been getting supplies from persons attached to embassies and legations.

James E. Jones, acting prohibition commissioner, indicated that should he ascertain that any minor employe of any embassy of legation was involved in the illicit liquor traffic, he would take up the matter with the diplomat in charge, with a view to bringing about dismissal from the government's service of the offender and possibly his subsequent prosecution under the prohibition laws.

Another plan to check further the bootleggers alleged sources of "embassy" liquor, it was intimated, involves the possibility that the chiefs of the various diplomatic missions might be asked to cooperate voluntarily with the prohibition forces by furnishing them with written estimates of the approximate liquor requirements of their establishments for given periods. Such estimates, it was said, could be used by the prohibition officials as basis for checking against importations by the various embassies and legations and, should receipts appear at any time to be exceeding anticipated needs, would enable them, through friendly notice to the diplomats, to stop "leaks" by way of servants and employes.

Any evidence prohibition officials might find involving higher officials of the embassies and legations in the traffic, Mr. Jones said, would be dealt with through the state department with a recommendation that the home government of the offender be notified and his recall requested. The acting commissioner expressed the opinion, however, that cooperation from the diplomatic chiefs in handling offenses by minor employes and servants would show imediate results in shutting off bootleggers supplies.

FEATURES OF ARMY BILL ASSAILED BY SEC'Y WEEKS

Washington, Jan. 25.—Several features of the army bill as it passed the house were assailed by Secretary Weeks today before the senate subcommittee having the measure in charge.

The stipulation that boys under 21 cannot enlist in the army without the written consent of their parents was declared by the secretary to be such a blow to the recruiting service as to make it doubtful whether the army could be kept at authorized strength.

Mr. Weeks also objected vigorously to the provision which would bar Major General Harbor, who recently retired to become head of a radio concern, from drawing retirement pay. The stipulation, he said, constituted a reflection on the integrity of career officers.

Opposition to the river and harbor plans of the house was expressed by the secretary, who insisted that the appropriation for such purposes should be restricted to the budget estimate. He further stated that he wanted to emphasize the importance of restoring reserve officers headquarters which had been eliminated by the house, and he also favored a more liberal appropriation for the training of reserve officers.

In asking that the national guard appropriation be increased to the budget estimate, Secretary Weeks stated that the guard is now in fine shape, with a better quality of enlisted men and with better officers who are better trained.

The World war had demonstrated, the secretary said, that it would be feasible to consider a new plan of fortification defense under which many of the present forts, now obsolete should be abandoned.

IRISH FREE STATE ARMY NOW AT FULL STRENGTH

Dublin, Jan. 25.—(By the A. P.)—There was enthusiastic response today to the appeal of Defense Minister Mulcahy for army recruits to enlist under the short service agreement, not exceeding a year, to meet the present emergency.

General Mulcahy strongly urged employers to encourage their workers to enlist under a guarantee their their positions would be kept open for them. He pointed out in this connection that the campaign of destruction by the irregulars was amaled largely against industry.

The government plan does not call for an addition to the permanent national army, which is already recruited to practically the full number allowed under the Anglo-Irish treaty. Enlargement of the regular army, would require negotiation with England for a change in the treaty provisions.

MISTAKE IN NOMINATING SPRINGFIELD POSTMASTER

Washington, Jan. 25.—The nomination of Christopher G. Simpson to be postmaster at Springfield, Mass., which was sent to the senate today by President Harding, will be withdrawn, officials of the postoffice department said today after a conference, and recommendation be transmitted to the White House for the appointment to the position of W. Kirk Kaynor.

Officials said that "evidently a mistake had been made," as Mr. Simpson, who had been a candidate for the office, had withdrawn. It is understood that Speaker Gillett, whose home is in Springfield, had recommended Mr. Kaynor.

GOV. REILLY TO REMAIN IN CAPITAL SEVERAL DAYS

Washington, Jan. 25.—Governor E. Mont Reily of Porto Rico, said today after his return here from a visit to his home in Kansas City that he intended to remain in the capital for several days recuperating from the effects of a recent taxicab accident. During his stay in Washington, Governor Reily declared, he desired to take up with the departments concerned, certain matter in connection with his administration of the possession before returning to Porto Rico. Mr. Reily did not consult with any government officials today and did not indicate when he would seek any conferences.

MAN DEAD OR IN A STATE OF SUSPENDED ANIMATION

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 25.—Following a conference with the family of George W. Stevenson, Coroner Fred C. Bolen this afternoon ordered County Physician Harry Felch to assemble a clinic of local medical men to make an examination of Stevenson's body, which members of his family claim is in a state of suspended animation, but which two physicians pronounced dead.

Although the doctors who made the earlier examinations declared that Stevenson died Tuesday afternoon, members of the family have refused to surrender the body to an undertaker.

Beef holdings were 46 per cent lower than in 1922 and 59 per cent. below 1921. Similar figures for lamb were 58 and 668 per cent. Holdings of eggs and butter were rapidly depleted during December.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED BY BETHLEHEM STEEL

GERMANS WILL NOT ESCORT FRENCH OR BELGIANS

Berlin, Jan. 25.—The German government has notified the allied governments that no German officer or official would be permitted to accompany the members of the inter-allied control commission on their official trips through Germany if the investigating commissions contained French or Belgian members. Where the traveling commissions are made up only of English and Italian members German officials would be permitted to accompany them as heretofore.

American Stamps

New stamps to be issued by the Postoffice Department this month reveal a shrewd realization of the subtly educative influence of distributing millions of little pictures of America and great Americans through the mails. "There's a reason" for the value of every potrait. He who was first in other patriotic respects is on the stamp of widest circulation. And George Washington was a citizen of Philadelphia. But that other famous resident of this city, Benjamin Franklin, has the one-cent stamp designed in his honor, as the first Postmaster General. Lincoln's picture is three cents; and the one woman come next, Martha Washington. It is interesting to find the department explaining that the five-cent stamp is devoted to Roosevelt because of his fame abroad.

In this brief roster of the philatelic hall of fame Franklin is the only man who was not a President. It will cost "poor Lo" 14 cents to look at his own counterfeit presentment—but some of the richest Americans are Indians. The charge for viewing the Capitol is high—$1—but there are scenes and representatives who have paid considerable more than that. A view of Niagara is 31 cents—but that is a great deal less than the Yosemite, since many tourists who would like a souvenir of its natural attractions have well-filled pocket-books.

In some parts of the world the frequent issue of postage stamps is the recognized source of considerable easy revenue. Stamps are published chiefly to sell to collectors. Here all our stamps are not immediately buried in stamp albums; they have to get to work. Even after they are past their books, however, postage stamps of historic memory and often cause to make young people. Sir William C. Van Horne, the great railway builder, was one the only magnate who has earnestly recommended that boys should collect postage stamps as part of a process of education.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

BAR OUT NEAR DOCTORS, SAY HEALTH DEPARTMENT

That steps should be taken to eliminate from practice in this state many doctors and alleged doctors who are unqualified is the outstanding recommendation contained in the biennial report of the state department of health which has been prepared for submission to the governor.
"Connecticut is being flooded with poorly qualified medical practitioners," the report says, "it is needless to say that the effect on the general health of the people will be unfavorable. The medical practice act should be revised to include better control of all medical and allied professions."
The report was written by Dr. John T. Black, who has since resigned as commissioner of health. His successor is Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, organizer of the state bureau of preventable diseases. The report is for two years ending June 30, 1922.
It shows that the death rate for Connecticut for 1920 was 12.6 and for 1921 11.4.

Lowest Death Rate

"To those who have made a study of death rates, the rate of 11.4 for 1921 indicates a wonderful improvement in the health of Connecticut people," the report points out. "This is the lowest death rate ever attained by Connecticut and the lowest ever recorded by any state in the eastern part of the country. Not only does this rate indicate that Connecticut is now the healthiest state in which to live, but that its citizens have been saved an annual economic loss of $6,000,000, demonstrating clearly the effectiveness of the new health system of the state.
"It was only a few years ago that the health of Connecticut people did not compare favorably with that of neighboring states nor had it shown any marked improvement over a long period of time. A popular sentiment for health protection was developing, however, and it only needed a central organization to direct and co-ordinate the work.
"Had the death rate of 1915 prevailed in 1921 there would have been ten more deaths each day of the year; to be exact, there are 4,911 people living today who would have died had the 1915 death rate prevailed."

Lowest Infant Mortality

Connecticut also had the lowest infant mortality rate in the eastern United States. The typhoid and tuberculosis death rates while not the lowest were sufficiently low to indicate marked improvement.
The report points out that in 1915 107 babies died during the first year of life out of every 1,000 born, while in 1921, only 73 died. This great reduction in the infant mortality rate means the saving of 1,144 babies, the reports say, and is the largest factor in the reduction of the general death rate. The tuberculosis death rate has been reduced from 185 per 100,000 population to 95.6 and typhoid fever from 12 to 3.
"Connecticut may well be proud of her present health record," the report says; "and of the prestige she has established, but there are many more lives which can be saved and with greater economy to the state if it but continues with its aggressive program.

Where We Lack

The state lacks, absolutely, accommodations for those ill with cancer, gangrene, syphilis and other chronic conditions. Existing hospitals cannot and should not care for such cases. The misery and suffering thus occasioned should not be tolerated in a progressive state.
"The records show that there are almost 1,000 of these neglected sufferers who cannot secure proper care. A state infirmary is most urgent need, and it is hoped that the legislature will this year give considertion to the report of its infirmary commission."

Records Neglected

The original certificates of births, marriages and deaths should be filed with a central agency for permanent record and the local registrars should retain certified copies. The reverse of this procedure is now in effect with the result that these valuable records are in some cases grossly neglected."

Asks New Laboratory

More adequate laboratory facilities are needed, the report says, and an additional appropriation of $25,000 is asked for this work to permit the construction of a new building in connection with the agricultural experiment station in New Haven.
The report recommends the establishment of bureaus of public health nursing and of public health education in the department.
An appropriation of $337,050 is asked to cover the estimated expenses until July 1, 1926.

PROPOSES TO LEGALIZE 4 PER CENT. BEER

Hartford, Jan. 25.—Senator McGrath of Waterbury, democratic leader, who in an interview as to his attitude towards the 18th amendment said he was "better than the Atlantic and Pacific oceans together," offered an amendment to the state enforcement law to exclude beverages with a 4 per cent. alcoholic content in volume from the definition of "spirituous and intoxicating liquors."
This bill will represent what supporters of "light wines and beers" desire in modification of the Volstead act. The bill went to the almost defunct excise committee, while other bills dealing with liquors have gone to the judiciary committee.

Call for Chimney Fire.

Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft went to 37 Roosevelt avenue at 8.09 o'clock Thursday evening when a chimney fire broke out in the home of Rufus Higgins. The fire was quickly extinguished and no damage resulted.

MAKE GEN. AIKEN DEACON EMERITUS AT UNITED CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

GEN. WILLIAM A. AIKEN

General William A. Aiken, who will be 80 at his next birthday on April 18, 1923, was made deacon emeritus of the United Congregational church at the annual meeting of the church held Thursday evening in the Community house on Church street.
This action on the part of the church came near the close of the meeting, when the pastor, Rev. Alexander W. Abbott, addressed General Aiken with words of deep appreciation of his long service as deacon and the incalculable value to the church of his advice and influence for so many years.
General Aiken was much affected as he responded and thanked the church warmly for its action. He spoke of having been honored for 51 years by the Broadway church and the United church, though holding official positions, having been a deacon for 30 years of that time, and he went on to say in a pleasant way that he thought it was time octogenarians, or even nonogenarians, gave way to younger men in a church so youthful as the United, which was really only four years old. For that reason he had declined to be considered for re-election as a deacon this year, but he would never cease to cherish the associations in the church which meant so much to him.
The annual church meeting was held after the church supper at 6.30, which had an attendance of over 300 and was served by a committee under direction of Mrs. William A. Wade. The hostesses at the table were Mrs. F. W. Lester, Mrs. E. W. Higgins, Mrs. Frederick Shank, Miss Edith C. Young, Miss Isabelle Mitchell, Mrs. George R. Gifford, Mrs. Avery Gallup, Mrs. Harry M. Clark, Mrs. Richard P. Gregson, Mrs. Archibald MacDougall, Mrs. H. E. Johnson, Mrs. Wallwright Sample, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell 4th, Mrs. Alfred H. Bliven, Mrs. A. L. Peale, Mrs. H. M. Briggs, Mrs. W. H. Oat, Mrs. A. M. Thompson, Mrs. Curtis Bernard, Mrs. E. L. Latimer, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Helen Gallup, Mrs. A. J. Sinay, Mrs. C. A. Spear, Mrs. Charles Tyler Bird.
Pastor Abbott presided at the business meeting at which reports of the officers and heads of departments were presented, showing an active year filled with accomplishments in all lines of work.
Clerk Dwight L. Allen reported the membership as follows: Jan. 1, 1922, 848; increases, by confession 7, by letter 10; decreases, by letter 13, by death 11, net gain 8, present membership 856, of which 744 are non-resident.
Other reports were made as follows: Treasurer, F. W. Lester; trustees, H. G. Peck; custodian of trust funds, N. A. Gibbs; Brotherhood, W. F. Lester; church school, E. L. Latimer; treasurer of Community house committee, Dr. C. A. Spear; budget committee, H. G. Peck.
E. P. Bishop presented the report of the nominating committee and the following were elected as nominated: W. A. Aiken, deacon emeritus; H. F. Dawley, trustee for three years; J. H. Perkins, auditor for one year; Mrs. F. A. Bill, member of church committee for three years; Alfred Bliven and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., members of executive council; Ernest L. Latimer, superintendent of church school.
Pastor Abbott closed the meeting with brief and inspiring remarks upon the accomplishments of the past year and the two and a half years preceding, in which he said the church had become united in knowledge and in recognition of its task and has reached the moment of consecration as it presses forward into the new year.

EVANGELISTIC SPEAKER AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. York A. King, who is leading evangelistic meetings at the Central Baptist church, spoke Thursday night from the text, "As a prince thou hast power with God, and man and hath prevailed, words which were spoken to Jacob by the angel with whom he wrestled. This was the second meeting of the series.
"A mere mortal man such as you and I," said Rev. Mr. King, "may so humble ourselves and call upon God in prayer that he may lead Almighty God to turn aside and do something that he would not have done without that prayer. But we must fulfill the conditions. If we would move Almighty God we must come to the place where we realize the need of God, we must come claiming His promises and we must come in the name of Jesus Christ. There is no other name in which God has promised to answer your prayers. We must also hide His own time and way. If you would move your fellowmen you must speak and act with courage. Too many are such moderate cowards when it comes to speaking to their fellowmen but men and women can be moved tremendously for God when we do what Jesus said to do, just present Him as He is.
The singing was led by Rev. W. G. Cooper of Providence.
Rev. David A. Pitt, the pastor, announced the meetings for today (Friday) which will be an all-day meeting for prayer and conference to which the churches from the surrounding districts have been invited.
At the morning meeting, beginning at 10.30, Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe of Park Congregational church is to speak upon the Needs of Norwich Religiously. In the afternoon meeting which begins at 1.30 Rev. C. S. Nightingale of Moosup will speak upon the Needs of the Surrounding Communities and Rev. Chester H. Howe of New London will speak upon the Needs of the World.
Visitors from the outlying territory are expected to bring their lunch and the women of the church will serve coffee and cocoa.
The church is extending a general invitation to all to attend the meetings today.

I., and Norwich were present.
Mr. Tobin was the recipient of many gifts, one of $10,000, which is invested in a New York enterprise. The presentation was made by Alfred E. Keeler, M. D., of Louisville, Ky. Although taken wholly unawares, Mr. Tobin responded, expressing his appreciation for what had taken place.
Mr. Tobin then addressed his father in affectionate terms, expressing his gratitude for the many sacrifices made, with assurance of accomplishing his ambition and fulfilling his most cherished hopes. The party continued into the afternoon, the guests wishing Mr. Tobin Godspeed on the road to success.

OFFICERS ELECTED AT PARK CHURCH ANNUAL

The annual meeting of Park Congregational church was held Thursday evening in the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial Parish House with a large attendance.
Previous to the annual business meeting and election of officers an appetizing supper was served consisting of, escalloped oysters, Saratoga potatoes, rolls, jelly, pickles, cake, coffee, ice cream.
The business session was in charge of Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe, pastor of the church, who called upon Clerk Robert C. Johnson for the minutes of the last annual meeting. Mr. Johnson also read his annual report which showed a substantial increase in the membership of the church during the past twelve months.
Fred W. Cary, chairman of the society committee, reported a successful year, noting a closing of the year with a balance of $300 in the treasury. A few remarks were also made by the new chairman of the society committee, Dr. Grant S. Bunnell.
Miss Adelaide Butts, treasurer of church, gave a detailed report of receipts and expenditures for the year, showing a balance of $140 on hand with all bills paid. At the close of Miss Butts' remarks, Dr. Howe spoke briefly, saying that it was indeed with regret that the members listened to the last treasurer's report that Miss Butts will make. For the past half century, he said, the treasurership of the church had been in the Butts family. Wonderful service had been rendered and it was with regret that the church heard the last report from a member of the family in whose hands the finances of the church had been so carefully accounted for year after year.
Mrs. Rollin C. Jones reported at length for the Women's Federation of Park church, including in her report a brief summary of the activities of the various departments including the missions department, parish house department, hospitality committee, friendly committee, flowers committee, library committee, membership committee, publicity committee, finance committee, hospital department, custodian committee, cradle roll department, church interior department, and the Travellers' club.
Opening the reports for the Sunday school, Superintendent George L. Ingalls outlined the activities of the school for 1922. In his report he said that the success of the past year was due largely to the interest shown by the teachers of the classes. His report covered the annual picnic to Ocean Beach and he stated that this coming summer it had been proposed to hold the picnic jointly with the United Congregational church as the two schools enjoyed a fine day together at the beach in 1922.
Mrs. George L. Ingalls reported briefly for the primary department, following which Treasurer John Evans reported for the year. Receipts showed an increase and the balance on hand was $20.37. Charles Tirrell, secretary, reported also, stating that the average attendance for 37 Sundays was 91, a slight increase over 1921.
Jonathan L. Johnson, scout master, reported on the activities of the church troop No. 12, and Allen Latham and James Morton spoke briefly on the work of the Men's club, inviting all the men of the church to become members.
Dr. Howe then spoke briefly, urging the members to remember their duty to their church and community. He stated that he knew the members of the church were back of every worthy movement brought to Norwich and many of the programs of the church could not be reported on. Without the church, which is the fountain head, he said, little good would be done in any community, and of good was to be done, the Christians must do it, every church working together for the common good of all.
Professor Henry A. Tirrell then reported for the nominating committee and church officers for 1923 were elected as follows: Deacon for three years, John P. Huntington and Myron B. Prentice; church committee, Mrs. George D. Coit, Miss Helen B. Royce, Miss Alice Cogswell, Rev. Henry T. Arnold; clerk, Robert C. Johnson; treasurer, Myron B. Prentice; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Myron B. Prentice; offertory officers, Henry D. Johnson, chairman; William D. Fletcher, Robert W. Perkins, Allan Latham, Arthur E. Story, W. W. Leonard, chairman; Neville Bliss, Robert Cochran, E. J. Graham, Hibberd R. Norman; superintendent of Sunday school, George L. Ingalls; assistant superintendent, Jonathan L. Johnson; Honorary superintendent of primary department, Miss Sarah L. Huntington; superintendent of primary department, Mrs. George L. Ingalls; assistants, Miss Marion Williams, Miss Constant Clapp, Miss Ruth Loring; Sunday school secretary, Charles Tirrell; treasurer, John Evans, librarian, Manley Eastwood; chairman church ushers committee, Albert Van Wagenen, Jr.
The committee in charge of the supper comprised Mrs. Fred W. Cary, chairman; Mrs. John F. Royce, Mrs. John S. Blackmar, Mrs. H. D. Johnson, Mrs. W. H. Collins, Mrs. James Ridwell, Mrs. F. H. Pullen. The waitresses were in charge of Mrs. Robert Smith and were Mrs. Benjamin Pullen and the Misses Evon Broadhurst, Ruth Loring, Barbara Allen, Marion Williams, Pauline Mathers, Elizabeth Collins, Winifred Sweezy and Helen Tirrell.

POLICE SEEK MOTHER WHO LEFT BABY TO DIE

County Investigator W. A. Jackson, the police authorities of New London and Coroner J. J. Desmond are engaged in the search to locate the mother of a newly born baby whose frozen body was found last Saturday in a pile of lumber in New London. The baby was wrapped in pieces torn from a sheet and a copy of a Boston paper of the date of Jan. 14.
If the mother is found, it is possible that a charge of murder may be made against her, as the New London medical examiner has decided that the baby must have been alive when it was left in the lumber pile.
It has been reported here that the mother is a New London girl who has been working in this city for a short time.

SOUR STOMACH IS CAUSED BY ACIDS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.
Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.
At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste and stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of those rheumatic poisons.
Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

FRENCH REPARATIONS PLAN HAS BEEN SUBMITTED

Paris, Jan. 25.—(By The A. P.)—The French delegation bi the reparation commission has officially submitted to the commission the plan prepared by it in reply to the German government's demand of November 14 for a moratorium. The plan accompanied a supplementary note. The French delegation believes that it should postpone [illegible] up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.
Nowadays we get addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeths Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeths Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

France and Belgium, under paragraph 17, annex 2, part 8, of the Versailles treaty, the French and Belgian delegates will demand notification of this recognition of Germany's default to the interested powers and will ask for the maintenance in force of the schedule of payments of May 6, 1921.

Darken Gray Hair, Look Young, Pretty

Grandma's recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur darkens so naturally that nobody can tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmothers made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.
Nowadays we get addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeths Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeths Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Brooklyn citizens heard with regret Thursday of the death of Mrs. Mary C. Stetson, wife of Joseph B. Stetson, of that town. Mrs. Stetson broke her leg December 31, when she slipped and fell on the icy ground at her home and her death is regarded as chiefly due to the unfortunate accident which so upset her nervous system that she was unable to retain nourishment. This condition and the nature of the injury itself proved too much for one of her advanced years to overcome and she passed away at 8 o'clock Thursday morning.

Mrs. Stetson was born in Scotland this state, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs Charles Frink, and passed her 80th birthday May 23, 1922. Her marriage to Mr. Stetson was on December 26, 1868. They have lived their lives in Brooklyn, where they have been among the town's best known and most respected citizens for more than half a century. Mrs. Stetson's interest centered in her home. She was a kindly, pleasing personality, a splendid woman and one who will be greatly missed in the community, especially by those who have been her friends for any years. Mrs. Stetson was a member of the Unitarian church and of Brooklyn grange, in which she had been interested for many years. She was the last of her immediate family and leaves only her husband, who for a great many years was secretary of the Windham County Agricultural society and who has the sympathy of all those included in his wide acquaintance in every part of Windham and adjoining counties.

A check of $25,000 received Thursday from Hartford by Town Clerk and Treasurer Frank T. Preston from Tax Collector George A. Williams, who has been at Hartford since Tuesday, busy with his legislative duties, eases off the pressure upon the town for ready money and possible issuing of checks to cover teachers' salaries for the past month. The checks were prepared for such an eventuality as the turning over of funds by the tax collector and were sent to Thursday afternoon, thus stopping the delay in paying the teachers' salaries over the regular period for so doing.

As only a comparatively small proportion of the $25,000 received from the tax collector is required to pay the monthly salaries of the teachers Killingly now has ample money on hand to meet its current accounts without resorting to temporary loans on which interest would have to be paid.

J. Howard Burdick, retiring superintendent in this territory for the People's Light and Power company and the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company was presented with a valuable gold watch and heard expression of many sincere wishes for a successful future when he was the honor guest Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Quinn, where a party of about 30, including not only the employes of the company but also members of their families and a number of other friends were gathered.

Sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served during the evening, which was entirely given over to pleasant diversions. A radio concert was a feature of the evening.

Of special interest to many in Killingly is the announcement that the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has voted to retire $9,903,500 of prior preference stock, leaving the total outstanding at $20,000,00. Here is evidence that the great corporation had a very successful year in 1922.

The prior preference stock is one particular line of securities issued at the time of the reorganization of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company following the great industrial crash in the nation in the early fall of 1920. It stands ahead of all the other stock issues of the company. The fact that the total retirement of this stock in a period of a little more than two years now totals $14,453,500 is substantial evidence that the company is coming back strong and that it is doing a tremendous volume of business. The stock authorized for retirement cancels accrued dividends of $1,538,000 up to January 1 of this year.

Killingly is particularly interested in the great concern because the Goodyear Mills, Inc., a subsidiary concern engaged in the manufacture of tire fabric is located in this town and is one of its principal industrial assets.

On Monday next Tyler Andrews will take over the business that has been conducted in Center street for several years by C. A. Frost. Having disposed of his business Mr. Frost has planned to locate in Boston.

Killingly rooters have chartered a special trolley car for this evening to make the journey to Putnam for the final league game of the season between K. H. S. and P. H. S. This car will carry many students of the school and the party is assured of being an enthusiastic one, for Killingly has a will to win tonight's contest. The car is to leave here at 6:30. Many others will motor to Putnam for the game.

Mrs. Anna Katherine Potter, wife of Joseph K. Potter, died Thursday at their home in Brooklyn. Mrs. Potter was a life long and highly respected resident of Brooklyn, born there July 26, 1843. She is survived by her husband, a son, William B. Potter, five brothers, John, Putnam, George and Frank, Providence, William of Brooklyn and James, a resident of Indiana. She also leaves a sister, Mrs. Theodore F. Pond of Brooklyn.

Thursday afternoon at 1:30 at the home of his sister, Mrs. Jennie Humphrey, of Furnace street, funeral services were held for George O. Wethered, who died Sunday. Rev. C. C. Tibbitts of the Methodist Episcopal church was the officiating clergyman. Hymns at the service were sung by a quartet composed of A. P. Burns, Edwin Burns, Elijah Berriman and Henry A. McEwen. The bearers were members of Orient lodge, K. of P., William J. Craig, Walter W. Ryder, Henry E. Burton, Hiram W. Burton, Wilfred Pulze and Arthur W. Logee. The body was placed in the receiving vault at Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

The rapid growth of the savings department of the Windham County National Bank which has been especially pronounced during the month of January has been attributed to the fact that people are beginning to appreciate the sound manner in which the National Bank is being managed. This is evidenced by the fact that The Windham County National Bank has over $900,000 invested in securities of the United States Government or approximately 70 per cent. of its savings deposits, in addition to this there is a large list of first class loans and bonds all of which investments are quickly convertible into cash. Officers of the bank are being congratulated on the managements sound judgment in giving to the citizens of this community not only the protection which comes from being a National Bank, a member of the Federal Reserve System but also on the manner in which they invest their depositor's money. Deposit in their savings department on or before February 5th and thereby receive interest from February 1st. The Windham County National Bank. —adv.

There was a wonderfully good amateur minstrel show in the new parish house of the Westfield Congregational church Thursday evening, the second event ever to be held there. The new structure was crowded to its seating capacity even after that capacity has been increased by every possible ingenuity tending toward increasing the number of seats.

The minstrels abounded in as many features as are to be found on big time vaudeville bills and was fully worthy of the patronage it received and the commendation it elicited.

F. E. Cunneen was interlocutor and the end men were Burdette C. Hopkins Carroll Allen, Roland Gray and Ray Bailey.

Feature numbers were given by a male quartet made up of Earl Winslow, Ray aBiley, Clifford H. Starkweather and Carroll Allen, a mixed quartet in which Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Herbert C. Keech, Miss Edith Fuller and Clifford H. Starkweather were included; a Blackfoot Indian dance by Thomas Beckett; a Spanish dance by Miss Ruth Cunneen and Flora Keech; cake walk by Miss Ruth Spencer and Max Bressenneider; dialogue song by Ray Bailey and Carroll Allen; character duet by B. C. Hopkins and Roland Gray and a dialogue song by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Russ. The chorus numbered 20.

The minstrels were staged by the Westfield club for the benefit of the parish house fund and the committee in charge was made up of Miss Mae ailey, Miss Corinne Paine, Miss Evelyn Jette, Mrs. R. C. Spencer and Ernest Logee.

James E. Meech was stunned and badly shaken up when he slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk in the business section.

In the absence of Representative John Buckley of Union, Representative E. L. Darbie of Killingly acted as republican house leader and directed the business at Wednesday's session of the legislature.

Howard A. Patten of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

Among those of Killingly who have paid tribute to the worth and unusual skill of the late Dr. J. Byran Sweet of Jewett City is C. C. Mowry of Dayville.

Killingly's supply of ice remains to be harvested. A layer of slush between the heavy ice underneath and the snow above has delayed cutting until this filling becomes solidly frozen.

Day by day, in every way, the winter is getting more and more unreasonable.

A considerable amount of soft coal has arrived in Killingly with the past few days, but there continues to be a dearth of hard coal while many consumers continue to clamor for it.

Dr. J. L. Renehan of South Manchester was in Danielson Thursday on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Tibbles and family of Hartford, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson of Brooklyn.

John Anderson, who has been employed in Tolland for the past two months returned to Brooklyn for several days.

PUTNAM

Announcement was made Thursday that all of the real estate in this city of the late Nazaire Peloquin is to come into the market to be sold that the estate may be settled and a distribution of the assets made among the heirs.

It is stated here by competent judges of real estate values in Putnam that the Peloquin property has a present market value of approximately $80,000, though it could not be duplicated today for twice that sum.

The estate includes the Peloquin block, Main street, a two-story brick structure occupied on the street level floor by business firms and by the Victory theater and offices on the second floor. There is also the so-called White Front block on Pomfret street, a frame structure occupied for business enterprises and almost on the square in the heart of the city and dwelling houses near the Peloquin block on Main street.

David Flagg is administrator of the estate, which will be divided among about half a dozen heirs. Mr. Peloquin died suddenly and left no will.

Miss Alice Dupre Larose, 37, wife of Simeon Larose, died at the Day Kimball hospital, the body being removed to the Larose home here. Mrs. Larose had been ill from a complication of diseases. She was born in Danville, P. Q., but had lived in this city the greater part of her life and for a time was resident in Dayville. She leaves her husband, three children, Simone, Eulice and an infant a few days old.

Another death here was that of Estelle Benoit, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Benoit of Batley street. The child had been ill but a few days with pneumonia.

Thursday evening at the rooms of Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion, Victor Townsend, champion checker player of greater Boston, gave an exhibition of his skill against individuals and groups of the best checker players that Putnam could induce to join in the contest. Mr. Townsend has lost nothing of his shrewdness or skill in playing the game since his last appearance here and his efforts were watched with interest by enthusiasts over the game. The exhibition was staged for the benefit of the post.

There is interest here in measures introduced in the legislature by representative E. L. Darbie of Killingly. One of these measures provides for an increase to $3,500 annually in the salary of the state attorney for Windham county and another provides for an increase to $3,000 in the salary of the sheriff of the county. The measures will have strong support by the Windham county delegation and will draw support from representatives of other counties in the state.

Thursday evening found a large number attending the K. of C. fair in Union hall and making the most of the period for enjoyment between now and the coming of Lent, which will be marked by the suspension of many such social and entertainment activities until after Easter. The hall was prettily decorated and there were many features to awaken interest and supply amusement.

Because of alleged damage to valuable death masks of noted men, busts and other works of art, William Ordway Partridge, sculptor of international reputation, formerly of Putnam, on Monday filed suit at White Plains for $100,000 damages against Evelyn R. Poor, who, he says, owns the apartment house, No. 784 Park avenue, Manhattan. Mr. Partridge said he formerly occupied an apartment in the building and was to have moved in October, 1922, but on receiving notice of a rent raise he arranged to leave in July and notified the owner he would not renew his lease.

According to the complaint, in June the owner's agent suggested to Mrs. Partridge that if the sculptor could move before October he had a new tenant anxious to move in. Mr. Partridge agreed upon the promise of the agent to furnish safe storage for his art works. These were placed in the basement.

Two weeks later, Mr. Partridge said, he visited the basement and found all his belongings thrown about and wrecked. Many, he alleges, cannot be replaced, as they were likenesses of famous persons valuable to him in construction of monuments.

Among the damaged busts were those of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, General Grant, Roosevelt and Lincoln, while the death masks included those of William C. Whitney, Cyrus Townsend Brady and William McCracken. There were also statues of Nathan Hale and Horace Greeley.

During Mr. Partridge's residence here he occupied the house on Senexet road, formerly the home of Judge Catlin. A statue of Nathan Hale that he did is still at the house.

Attention has been called to the fact that Adelbert Carpenter will observe his 79th birthday on February 5. Mr. Carpenter always has lived in this town and has been janitor of the Putnam Heights church for 40 years.

Representative C. S. Hyde of Brooklyn is advocating a measure in the legislature that is of particular interest to Pomfret and Putnam people. He wants the state highway department to undertake the construction of a state highway from Brooklyn along the route past the old General Israel Putnam farm and the Lapsley place to Pomfret Landing, past the Haskell stand and to Pomfret station, joining with the state highway from Putnam to Hartford. This is a project that has been advocated for several years and is sure to be approed sooner or later. Representative Hyde has the best wishes of the residents of all the towns hereabouts in his effort to obtain authorization for construction of this particular section of road.

The fact that the Putnam Box Corporation has declared a dividend of 10 per cent is evidence that this concern continues to be numbered among the very successful ones operating in this territory. At the recent annual meeting the officers who have served during the past year were re-elected.

There is a shortage of overshoes in many communities in territory hereabouts. This is attributed by shoemen as being due to an exceptionally severe winter and to the fact that many people now wear low shoes throughout the year, making an overshoe a necessity in periods of deep snow and slush.

This (Friday) evening will be one of the big nights of the year at the Putnam High school gym. Killingly High, with a cohort of rooters, will be on hand for the final league game of the season between the two teams.

Charles T. Thayer of the plant force of the S. N. E. T. company has been incapacitated by an injury to his knee sustained while engaged in the ordinary course of his work. He has been under treatment by Dr. J. Byron Sweet, who died the past week end at Jewett City.

Feeding game birds has become an organized activity in this territory this January. Many are interested in preserving the feathered friends of the woods. But it is passing strange that some of the most enthusiastic huntsmen are not showing the slightest interest in the preservation of the birds. There's a "let George do it

KIDNEY TROUBLE CAUSES LAMENESS.

"A lameness followed me for some time, and I felt that it was caused from kidney trouble. One bottle of Foley Kidney Pills had the desired effect," writes H. B. Arbuckle, South Barre, Vermont. THE TALK ABOUT OVER PRODUCTION.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

The census of 1920 disclosed one highly illuminating fact, at least.

While there was a big increase in the population of the United States between 1900 and 1920, there was a bigger decrease, in proportion, in the number of farm workers.

As compared with 1900 there were in 1920 more factory and shop workmen, more railroaders, more steamboatmen, more circus performers, more plumbers, more miners, more blacksmiths, more office clerks, more lawyers, more bankers and brokers, more grocers, more in jail—and nearly two millions less at work on farms.

Active farmers, who have to employ help to carry on their business will not be surprised at this figure. For fully all that twenty years the working farmer has found it increasingly difficult to get workmen to do his work, regardless of wages. They have been drifting to the city and the factory village where wages were higher, hours shorter and backyards closer together. Also, where it was nearer to the movies, the club rooms and the "billiard parlor."

When I mentioned the two million loss in farm workers to a neighbor, he said: "Huh! That all? I thought the whole dum bunch had moved to town. There ain't none left around my neighborhood."

A western newspaper, noting this same two million drop in farm labor, remarks that, nevertheless, the nation has been fed, and of recent months more farmers have been hurt by over production than by under-production. It adds: "The soil has not only lost a large population but it appears also that, with benefit to itself, it could lose still more."

That last conclusion is an almost perfect example of the dense ignorance of farm conditions which prevails in too many quarters.

In the first place, there has been no over-production in recent months or months less recent.

There has been under-consumption which is a totally different thing.

Besides our own domestic demand we farmers used to ship a tremendous lot of our grains and meats and cognate products over to Europe, which paid a good price for them. If there was more than our own country called for, over to Europe went the surplus, and was sold for good money, some portion of which money drifted back to the farms. But today war-racked Europe, taxed to an extent we none of us adequately appreciate, has ten million less mouths to feed and ten times ten millions less money to buy with. It is living from hand to mouth and, most of it on what it can manage to raise from its own soil.

Furthermore, it is also, most of it flooded with Bryanized, Henryfordized money, so-called, which is hardly worth as much as the clean paper which is spoiled in printing it. A German silver mark is worth about twenty-four cents in our money. But of the German paper marks, which are the only currency available now, it takes more than $6,000 to make a dollar's worth. And they're liable to be worth even less tomorrow. Who wants to sell good wheat or pork for bales of such paper-waste? Austrian, Hungarian, Russian money is worth still less. The bolshevist printing presses are said to have stopped printing anything smaller than ten thousand ruble notes. As such a note, normally worth about $3,000, is now the customary charge for a cup of coffee or a sandwich, there is felt to be no use in wasting paper and ink on smaller denominations. While French francs and Italian lire are still possessed of real monetary value, they are nevertheless worthy only a quarter or a third of their normal rating in our money, and their prices fluctuate from day to day.

So long as practically all Europe is thus living in a continental poorhouse, and half of Europe, even if it wanted to buy our products, has nothing to pay for them with except bales of worthless paper, is it any wonder that our farmers keep their stuff at home?

Coming nearer home, is it any wonder, considering the greed and rapacity of "big business," that its devotees should have seized on this constriction of the American farmer's market to shout "over-production" as an excuse for "bear" attacks on prices?

If there were really over-production by the farmers of this country its effects would be felt in every kitchen of the land. Prices whether wholesale or retail, would fall, and Mrs. Consumer of the city side-street would be getting her bread and her beef and her pork and her onions and her butter and her eggs and her muslin sheets and her gingham aprons and the woolen goods for her men-folks' wear and everything else that started on the farms and plantations for less and lesser prices.

That, instead of this condition of things, prices are either holding high or even still higher is sufficient evidence that there is no over-production.

For not even the profiteer and the market manipulator can dam back Niagara or sweep out the Atlantic ocean. They would be just as helplessly swept away before the flood of actual over-production, if there was any such such flood.

The pretext of over-production is simply the club wherewith organized profiteers seek to knock down the prices they pay to farmers, that they may secure still larger profits from the consumers to whom they sell.

Our western contemporary is too easily fooled by this thinly-veiled pretext and pretense. If it would wipe its eyes it might perhaps come to distinguish between a hawk and a handsaw. It might even be able to see through the hole in the millstone.

Years ago, when I was raising things, I went into the front door of a big grocery store in a neighboring city to see if they wanted a load of potatoes. The manager to whom I was referred looked bored when I put the question. "What you want for 'em?" he inquired. "Fifty cents a bushel," was my answer. "Not for us," he retorted. "We've got all we can handle now at thirty-eight cents, and I certainly shan't buy any more unless they're cheaper still." So I went out and started away to look up other possible customers. As I was clambering down off my load in front of another store a man on the sidewalk asked if the potatoes, which he was feeling over in their bags were for sale. I assured him they were. He also asked how much. I again answered fifty cents. "All right," he said, "take 'em around to such and such a number." The location being on a back street, "and I'll be there as soon as you are." I drove where "directed," found him there as promised; and unloaded the rubers. Before I got them half off the wagon, two clerks were digging away at them to get a peck apiece for customers, waiting in the store above. "Gee," said one, "these came just in time; sold out the last we had ten minutes ago." Going up to the office on the main street floor to collect my pay, I found myself in the very identical store where I had been turned down less than an hour before, with the statement they had all the potatoes they could handle.

There used to be a conundrum somehing like this: One boy says "That boy's father is my father, and that boy's mother is my mother, and yet we are no relations. How to you explain it?" The explanation later given was the simple but sufficient statement that the boy lied.

There are a great many conundrums going the rounds in business. There is nothing new about them. It is surprising that one of them should fool even a western editor.

My storekeeper was really out of potatoes. He hadn't enough to fill two peck orders. But, according to his lights, it was "good business" to pretend he had an over-stock, if thereby he could beat down some farmer's price.

There is really no over-production in this country, now than there was over-stock of potatoes in his store, that by-gone day. But it is for the interests of people who want to make double profits to pretend that there is an over-supply—when they are buying. When they are selling, they tell a different tale. That their stories don't agree worries them very little, so long as the disagreement doesn't forbid them to rake in more shekels. Consistency may be a precious jewel, but a swelling bank account is often handier in emergencies.

The assertion that there is no over-production is in no ways inconsistent with the admitted fact that thousands of bushels of fruit, etc., were unharvested and wasted last fall. Those bushels were not left unharvested and wasted because there was no demand for them. There was a demand for every quart at a fair price. But that demand was checked and often stifled by the outrageous exactions of the people who stood between the peach orchard and the breakfast table.

When peaches would have sold readily in the city at $2 a basket, the peach sellers bid them at $3 and at the same time refused to give the peach-raisers, many of them only two hundred miles away on a main line of transcontinental traffic, as much as thirty cents a basket. Consumers felt they couldn't afford to pay $3 a basket for the peaches they really wanted; farmers found they couldn't get the cost of picking and basketing back at thirty cents. They could have earned decent wages and made a small profit if they had been offered a dollar a basket. The only dealers could have made a decent profit, paying this much and then selling them for two dollars. But that didn't satisfy them.

Now it wasn't over-production of peaches which was at fault in this case. It was something quite different: something which might be called a rush of hoggishness to the head on part of the distributors who stood between the producers and consumers.

To tell the average New England farmer, who is compelled to restrict his acreage and his output because he can't get the help to do his work that it would be a good thing if still more farm workers shook their jobs, would be as absurd as to have told Robinson Crusoe, before the cannibals landed, that he was suffering from too much company.

When a statement is so manifestly idiotic, if ceases to be dangerous and becomes ridiculous.

This is a good time for men to buy new shoes at these sale prices, as all shoe prices are advancing and we cannot replace some of these shoes for the prices we offer them at.

Back of this sale is our record of over thirty years as merchants in this city. I think all the shoe merchants that were in business in this city when I first opened a shoe store here, have all been called home—or are out of the shoe business. But being the dean of the shoemen of Norwich and New London means less to me than the satisfaction of looking back over thirty years of fair, honest value-giving to the public.

The shoes offered in this sale are not seconds or sale shoes made for sales, but are all from our regular stocks, being ends of lines, odd lots, and of season clean-ups. We guarantee every pair as though you paid full price. When you get home if you do not like the shoes, bring them back and get your money.

VETERAN BUREAU FINDS SOME MEN IN JAIL

In response to an order from Colonel Forbes, national director of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, delegated to the New Haven sub-district office through Major Lent, district manager, and Capt. J. E. Maguire, chief of co-operation in the district office, New York, calling for a survey of penal institutions, followed by a hospital drive, and an insurance campaign throughout the country, Major Everett C. Brennan, manager of the New Haven office, which has jurisdiction over Fairfield, New Haven, Middlesex and New London counties, immediately instituted a clean-up campaign and established contact with every ex-service man in these institutions.

The director felt that because some gallant youngster had been unfortunate in the law, was no reason why he should be deprived of the benefits of compensation. The campaign was waged in the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, and the bureau feels sure that the people of this community are interested in what was found as a result of this investigation.

The penal institution survey revealed 2,149 men who fought for their country, many of them having medals for conspicuous bravery, but surrendered in the days when jobs were hard to find and are serving terms for offenses ranging from petty larceny to manslaughter. Of this number, 150 were found confined in the following local institutions:

Cheshire reformatory, New Haven county jail, Fairfield county jail, Middlesex county jail and New London county jails.

Throughout the whole district 150 penitentiaries, prisons and jails were investigated and representatives of the bureau made out necessary forms so that these men might receive the benefits they were entitled to as a result of disabilities incurred during the World war.

The drive also cleared up cases which had been pending, and as a result of same, checks were sent out, some to the amount of as high as $2,500.

Hospital Cases Cleaned Up.

The hospital drive was an attempt to bring to the attention of the bureau urgent cases and have them adjudicated in the quickest possible way. In all, 6,000 cases were cleaned up, including 1,492 tubercular cases and 1,100 neuro psychiatric cases.

Had Much Insurance Reinstated.

The third campaign instituted was that of insurance, the necessity of reinstating lapsed insurance by the soldier was brought home by facts. Approximately 600,000 men in the district of Connecticut, New York and New Jersey have allowed their insurance to lapse and did not realize how simple it was to reinstate it. This was made plain to them when they were informed that lapsed insurance could be reinstated by merely paying for two premiums; one covering the month on which the insurance lapsed, and one for the month during which the insurance was reinstated. All intervening premiums are disregarded. The offer is still open and if there is a man in this sub-district who has not availed himself of this opportunity, he is privileged to call at the New Haven office and he will be informed in detail.

Next came the drive to rehabilitate or aid the "down and out" ex-service men. This was done by getting in touch with every social service agency in the sub-district and included the Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, Visiting Nurses, Home for the Friendless, and the Social Service department of the hospitals.

HOPES FOR IMPROVING HIGHWAY TO SAYBROOK

There is reason to believe that one of the big projects planned for the coming season by the state highway department will be the beginning of the work to improve the main highway from Hartford to Saybrook.

While it is not possible as yet to obtain definite information as to just when and how this work will begin, there is every reason to believe that the proposed improvement, much needed by the people of Middlesex county, to say nothing of the thousands from other places who use the highway, will be under way before the season is very far advanced.

Already outlined the state highway department has an extensive programme for highway work and it is likely that the appropriations from all sources for the coming two years will total $14,000,000.

This estimate is made in the belief that the present schedule of fees for motor vehicles will be maintained. They brought in during the year a total of $3,567,744, all of which was spent on maintenance.

In addition to this sum the department will ask for a total of $4,-226,500, for carrying on general work of highway improvement of which about $1,000,000 is for new trunk line highway construction.

There is reason to believe a considerable addition will be made to the sum to be used for state aid roads that are worked in conjunction with the towns.

It is also expected that the state will receive its usual quota of federal aid. All these sources are counted in the total of about $7,-000,000 a year, that will be used to carry on highway improvements and maintenance.

It is believed in Middletown that any improvement of the main trunk line running north and south will be of advantage to the community. it will also aid the other towns on the route.

New London Vital Statistics.

There were 41 less births in 1923 than in 1921 in New London and there were 53 more deaths, which makes a deduction over 1921 of 93 souls.

The births for 1922 were 105 less than for the year 1920, but the year 1920 had a large death rate, being 21 in excess of this year and 73 over 1921.

Marriages seem to be dropping off at rather an alarming rate. There were but 291 last year, as compared with 346 in 1921 and 386 in 1920. In the matter of births the males hold the lead, there being 25 more sons than daughters born in 1922, and in 1921 there were 12 more of the strong sex.

Gave Surprise For Mrs. Tennen.

Mrs. Dr. Joseph S. Tennen of Washington street was agreeably surprised Tuesday afternoon when a party of friends arrived, bringing with them coffee, cake, candies, and all that goes to make up the refreshments at a party. Mrs. Tennen, who is confined to her bed because of a broken bone in her left ankle, is making rapid recovery, but to have her friends surprise her so agreeably was a treat and a delightful afternoon was spent by all.

HOME RULE BILL WOULD EXTEND CITIES' POWERS

Broader powers than cities and towns have heretofore enjoyed under the provisions of home rule laws and amendments adopted by Connecticut general assemblies since 1912 are provided in a draft of a new home rule bill proposed by the general assembly commission named two years ago to consider uniform charters for Connecticut cities.

One of the principal benefits of the new act is that it combines all of the amendments adopted during the four sessions following the enactment of the original home rule law. Some of the red tape has been eliminated to make the act more simple and to encourage its use by cities, thereby relieving the legislature of the work required by many minor charter amendments.

The following is the Rogers bill as it has been offered to the assembly:

"Any town, city or borough in addition to such powers as it now has by general law or charter, shall have power to make by-laws or ordinances not inconsistent with the laws of this state or the United States, for the following purposes: to fix the hours during which the polls of such municipality shall be open for elections or for electors' meetings; to abolish voting districts or wards and to rearrange the boundaries thereof, provided no change shall be made in any voting districts or wards within 60 days prior to an election therein and provided such enactment shall state specifically the boundaries of such districts or wards; to change the fiscal year of such municipality or any department thereof; to fix and change the compensation of any of its officers; to create or abolish any appointive office, department or commission; to fix or change the term of any appointive office, and to define the duties and authority of any appointive office, department or commission; to establish and maintain budget systems; to make rules concerning publication of notices; to pension or give awards to employes; to accept gifts, devises and bequests, and to assume trusts for the benefit of its inhabitants in connection with such gifts, devises or bequests; to provide for the manner in which its contracts involving unusual expenditures shall be made; to create a sinking fund or other special funds; to provide for the temporary borrowing of money; to authorize the issue of municipal bonds to an amount stated for a specific purpose or purposes, provided the general terms and description of such bonds shall be stated and the total amount of bonds or other indebtedness of such municipality shall not be a greater per cent. of its grand list than permitted by the laws of this state; to make rules relating to regulation of traffic and to regulate the construction of buildings, provided that in towns which have within their local limits any incorporated city or borough the rules made by such town with reference to regulation of traffic or construction of buildings shall within the local limits of such city or borough be superseded by the rules and ordinances of such city or borough with reference thereto; to improve waterfronts and to make appropriations therefor; to provide for entertainments, concerts and celebrations, and to make appropriations therefor; to establish, maintain and conduct parks, playgrounds, baths, swimming pools, gymnasiums, recreation places and public gardens, and to make appropriations therefor; and all cities and boroughs and all towns other than those which have within their local limits an incorporated city or borough, and any fire district located in a town which has within its local limits an incorporated city or borough, shall in addition to such rights and powers as they now have by special charter or general law, have the power to make by-laws and ordinances not inconsistent with the laws of this state or United States for the following purposes, and, when properly authorized by by-laws or ordinances enacted in the manner hereinafter provided, shall have power to do and to make appropriations for the things hereinafter specified, viz., to contract for the furnishing of water; to provide for police and fire protection or garbage; to compel owners of property to construct sidewalks along highways in front of their respective premises where public necessity and convenience so demand, and to make rules concerning the construction of such sidewalks; to provide for the making, selling and distribution of ice; to provide for the employment of nurses; to provide for the medical care and treatment of children of the compulsory school age whose education is retarded by reason of defective physical condition and to establish and maintain free legal bureaus.

"Towns, cities and boroughs not otherwise authorized by charter to inflict penalties and impose fines for the violation of ordinances may by ordinance provide for the imposing of fines not to exceed $100 for the violation of any ordinance by them made under authority of the provisions of this chapter. Municipalities specially authorized by charters to inflict penalties and impose fines for violation of ordinances may inflict such penalties and impose such fines for violation of ordinances made by them under authority of the provisions of this chapter as they are authorized to inflict and impose them under their respective charters."

NOANK

Local ice dealers are busy this week cutting ice and, weather permitting, by Thursday night the work will be completed and ice enough for the coming season stored. At first it was thought to be necessary to scrape the ponds, owing to the snowfall, but fortunately the rain came along to lend its aid and work was commenced on Monday.

Neil Morrison, who is employed at the Chesebro icehouse, took an impromptu bath while cutting ice. One of the cakes broke off and plunged him into the pond.

What is known as the young fishing fleet came into port from Point Judith with a large catch of flatfish which was shipped to the New York market. The fishing boat Baby, Capt. Rossoe Boeciccio, and Helen, Capt. Singer, each brought in 10 barrels, and the Frances, Capt. William Musanti, brought in 12 barrels.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Jan. 25.—Price movements in today's stock market were upward in response to more favorable domestic developments, but the volume of trading indicated that the European situation was still causing a marked curtailment of business and a virtual absence of public participation.

Approximately one-tenth of the day's business was done in the new stock of the Consolidated Gas Company, which advanced 6 points to 68 1-2 on the announcement that it had been placed on a $5 annual basis, which amounted to an increase from $5 to $10 on the old stock, which advanced 10 points to 136.

The sharp run-up of these issues indicated that the dividend action had been a closely guarded secret.

Other public utilities hardened in sympathy, North American gaining 3 points; Public Service of New Jersey, 1 3-8 and Laclede Gas 1. Columbuagas advanced 1 1-2 points to 106 1-2 but dropped back a point at the close. Overnight reports that the state public service commission was going to order a cut in telephone rates caused some selling of American Telephone, which closed fractionally lower.

Steel shares made a fairly good response to announcements of higher prices for some of the finished products, such as tubes, and reports that the mills were now working at between 90 and 95 per cent of capacity. U. S. Steel advanced fractionally to 106 1-4 while gains of 1 to nearly 2 points were recorded by Gulf States, Crucible and Republic Steels, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, traded in here for the first time, sold around $79 a share. The Bethlehem Steel Corporation declared its preferred dividends for the entire year and its regular quarterly dividends of 1 1-4 per cent on both classes of the common. President Grace indicated that operations during the year would not get much over 85 per cent because of the shortage of unskilled labor.

Good recovery was made by some of the oils which were under pressure yesterday, California Petroleum advancing 2 1-2 points and the Pan-American issues, Cosden and General Asphalt, 1 to nearly 2 points. The Standard Oil issues improved fractionally. Simms Petroleum, which was traded in for the first time on the "big board" ringed from 12 1-4 to 13 1-4, closing at 13.

Except for active trading in Southern Railway Company in expectation of an unusually favorable December earnings report, the rail shares lapsed back into their usual dullness. Delaware & Hudson advanced nearly 2 points on a small turn-over and Atlantic Coast Line dropped 1 1-2 points on sales of 200 shares, most of the other issues showing only fractional changes.

Fisher Body, which recently dropped from 203 to 165, advanced to 175, a net gain of 6 1-2 points. Some of the other strong spots in the specialty list included Hartmann Corporation, up 4 3-8; Mac Bay Companies, up 7; Stewart arner Speedometer, up 5 1-2 and Atlantic Refining, up 7.

Call money opened at 4 1-2 per cent, advanced to 5 in the middle of the afternoon and then dropped back to 4 1-2. The time money market was dull with brokers bidding 4 1-2 per cent for all dates and bankers demanding 4 3-4. Some short loans were arranged at the lower rate. Both local and out of town bankers were in the market for commercial paper, the bulk of the prime names commanding 4 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange business was quiet with no important changes in rates among the principal European currencies. The Indian rupee, which has been creating new high records almost daily, reacted from 33-45 to 33-25 cents. The Canadian dollar was at a dismount of 1 per cent.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 25.—Renewed weakness of some of the French bonds, which sent French 7 1-2s and Fraamerican 7 1-2s to their lowest quotations on record, was the outstanding development in today's relatively dull and irregular bond market. French 7 1-2s dropped to 89 1-2 and then rallied to 89 3-4 while Fraamerican 7 1-2s dropped 2 1-4 points to 85 1-2.

The reaction in these issues, however, did not extend to the general foreign group. Belgian 7 1-2s advanced a point and Brazilian 7 1-2s, 1 1-2. Lack of buying power in the French issues rather than any heavy liquidation has been responsible for recent weakness, the volume of offerings being relatively small when the sharp extent of the decline is taken into consideration.

St. Paul issues showed good recovery but a number of the other mortgages in the railroad group lost ground, declines of a point or more being recorded by Chesapeake & Ohio Convertible 4 1-2s, New Haven 6s of 1948, Norfolk & Southern 5s, Hudson & Manhattan Income 5s and Union Pacific Refunding 4s. Brooklyn Rapid Transit issues were active at higher prices. Copper company lines were the strong spots of the industrial group, Cerro De Pasco 8s and Chile 7s gaining 1 1-2 and 1 points, respectively. Goodyear Tire 8s of 1931 were heavy.

United States government securities were irregular, moving within a radius of 8 cents on $100.

Total sales (par value) were $18,984,000.

Announcement was made today that the Pierce-Arrow Automobile Company has practically concluded arrangements for paying off its $7,180,00 bank loans through the sale of new securities. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company on April 1 next will pay off $24,782,600 in 7 per cent convertible gold notes, due April 1, 1925, at 102 and accrued interest.

New York, Jan. 25.—Cotton spot quiet; middling 28.60.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Wheat averaged lower in price today owing more or less to current predictions that proposed foreign credit legislation would fail of enactment. The market closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-8c decline with May 1.17 to 1.17 1-8 and July 1.11 1-2 to 1.11 5-8. Corn gained 1-8c to 1-4c@3-8c and oats lost a shade to 3-8c. In provisions, the outcome was a setback of 7 to 15c.

Selling on the part of yesterday's buyers had much to do with giving a downward slant to the wheat market right at the outset. Furthermore aside from talk that the senate would adjourn March 4 without having passed the foreign credit bill reported out yesterday from the agricultural committee, the selling side had an advantage as a result of comparative weakness of Liverpool quotations and because of apparent growing strain between France and Germany and elsewhere in Europe. In addition, Argentine and Canadian wheat afloat was reported being pressed for sale at concessionary prices.

A rally which took place in wheat values about noon proved to be only transient, and was ascribed to buying of half a million bushels for a house with eastern connections. With this buying ended, the market again sagged, despite reports of continued drought in western Kansas and western Oklahoma. On the whole, trade lacked volume, and the market was easily influenced.

News of damage to the Argentine corn crop gave firmness to the corn market here, but oats followed wheat. The conditions in Argentina were said to be in some degree similar to those of 1916 when half of the Argentine corn crop was rendered worthless.

TAFTVILLE

Assistant Postmaster Edward V. Murphy said Wednesday that he believed that the greater part of the work pending to the maturing 1918 issue of war savings stamps is over, but a few weeks a great deal of extra work was created in the local office owing to presentation of stamps for redemption. From statement received from J. C. Astell, director of the savings division, 2nd federal reserve district, it appeared that among the larger industrial savings organizations in the district of nearly $1,500,000 worth of stamps had been exchanged for war savings stamps in New England. Although many persons have redeemed their stamps when the time came, it is believed that a considerable number of savings certificates will be favorably considered, not only because of the immediate relief which it would afford, but for the assurance which this co-operation will give to the government financing its wartime obligations.

SEMBLANCE OF MARTIAL LAW IN THE RUHR; GERMANY IN DEFAULT; NO MORATORIUM

French Continue to Make Arrests in Connection With Thursday's Rioting—Friday Was Tranquil in the Occupied Area, but Bitterness of Feeling Against the French Was Apparent—French Troops Are Patrolling the Streets of Duesseldorf in Place of German Police—French Troops in the Ruhr Are Being Reinforced—Reparations Commission Has Declared Germany in Absolute Default—Commission Decides to Call Upon Germany for the Payment of a Half Million Gold Marks at the End of the Present Month.

(By the Associated Press)

Germany now is in absolute default [illegible] all the reparation obligations and must be refused to assistance in the [illegible] of sanctions to gain her [illegible] according to a decision of the reparations commission. Also [illegible] the present month the [illegible] is to be called upon [illegible] pay to the allies the [illegible] billion gold marks on [illegible] account.

In the occupied area of Germany comparative tranquility prevailed [illegible] of the general demonstrations [illegible] but nevertheless the feeling of bitterness [illegible] was apparent as [illegible] Numerous arrests [illegible] were made and others are [illegible] because of the [illegible] of various German officials in carrying out orders given [illegible] by the occupation officials.

The [illegible] Ruhr region [illegible] men on strike in the coal mines and other industries is slowly but surely augmenting. The railroads are virtually idle, and traffic [illegible] has all but ceased, the [illegible] is being manned by [illegible].

Large contingents of French troops are being brought into the Ruhr for the purpose of meeting any eventuality but, as yet, none

The next move in this great struggle is expected to come from Paris, probably early in February, after the Germans have failed to meet their January payment of 500,000,000 gold marks. Germany must submit to the ultimatum which then will be sent them or further military operations, the nature of which have not yet been announced, will begin.

The economic side of the occupation of the Ruhr apparently has proved a failure and the belief prevails that it will not affect the situation will improve with the increasing of difficulties in working the industries due to the spreading of strikes. It is understood, however, that France has decided upon a further use of force to bring Germany to terms. It is known that some of the engineers who came into the Ruhr with the invasion of M. Dubois, head of the French industrial delegation, are returning to France. The general is spending time until he receives commission renders its decision at the end of the month.

PRESIDENT OF RHENISH PRUSSIA UNDER ARREST

Duesseldorf, Jan. 26 (By the A. P.)—Dr. Gruetzner, president of Rhenish Prussia, was arrested today by the French.

He was released however after a three hours' conference with General Degoutte, but was notified that he would be taken into custody again unless he complied with certain demands made by the French generals.

FRENCH TROOPS BOUND FOR THE RUHR VALLEY

Duesseldorf, Jan. 26, 5:55 p. m. (By the A. P.)—Fresh contingents of troops are arriving in Duesseldorf, bound for the Ruhr valley. Infantry patrols are maintaining order in the streets of Duesseldorf in the absence of the German police.

The miners throughout the Ruhr are gradually joining the workers.

TIME NOT OPPORTUNE FOR U. S. TO OFFER HELP

Washington, Jan. 26.—Administration officials have seen no sign in European advices to the government that the time has yet to come when the United States could be helpful in the reparations crisis. Both at the White House and the state department emphasis was laid today on the tenseness of the situation in the Ruhr.

It was pointed out by authorized spokesmen for the government that while the French purpose to proceed by forcible means in the Ruhr remained unchanged on the one hand, and the German resolve not to discuss the situation in any way with France while the forces of occupation remained in German territory was unshaken on the other, outside proposals of any sort were futile. The administration, it was asserted, has no intention of becoming involved in any project that is doomed to failure from the start.

President Harding and his advisers take the view that if it had been possible for any conference project to relieve the reparations crisis, the league of nations long ago would have been invoked to that end.

ITALY IS SENDING THREE ENGINEERS TO THE RUHR

London, Jan. 26.—A ministerial decree has been adopted, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Rome, authorizing the sending of the first party of three Italian engineers to the Ruhr region.

GERMANY DECLARED IN DEFAULT; NO MORATORIUM

Paris, Jan. 26 (By the A. P.).—The possibility of the reparations commission becoming a medium for compromise in the present difficulties between France and Germany virtually ended this afternoon, so far as the immediate future is concerned.

By deciding that it would be futile to discuss the question of a moratorium with conditions as they are in the Ruhr, and declaring Germany in general default of all her reparations obligations to France and Belgium, the commission placed itself outside of the problem for some time to come.

The decision has the effect of providing for future defaults by Germany on reparations deliveries, either in cash or kind, and saves the commission the trouble of declaring a new default every time one occurs.

The memorandum prepared by the American unofficial representative, Roland W. Boyden, about which there has been so much discussion, now becomes in effect buried, since it was only to see the light of day when and if the French moratorium plan came up for consideration.

The likelihood of the Boyden memorandum ever being seriously discussed by the commission now is most remote. It is said, however, that Mr. Boyden has no intention of withdrawing his memorandum unless instructions to this effect are received from Secretary of State Hughes.

Sir John Bradbury, the British delegate, agreed with the French representative, Louis Barthou, that the present was not the time for discussion of a moratorium but he abstained from voting because he could not agree that Germany was entirely to blame for the general default on all her reparations obligations.

M. Barthou attached great importance to the fact that Sir John had offered certain technical advice in drafting the letter of notification to Germany, and it was broadly intimated after the meeting that this might be taken as a sign of closer Franco-British relations on the commission.

It was made plain by the British later that such an interpretation was entirely too optimistic, since there had been no change in the British attitude.

Today's action by the commission brings the schedule of reparations payment of May 8, 1921, into effect again, beginning February.

CUSTOMS BARRIERS ENCIRCLE THE RUHR

Essen, Jan. 26 (By the A. P.).—The customs barrier with which the French are threatening to encircle the occupied Ruhr region is expected to become effective at midnight tonight.

The occupation authorities decline to reveal their proposed plan or to indicate the methods they will take for enforcement. "Ask Marshal Foch" was the uniform reply given the newspaper correspondents today when they asked for information.

This is interpreted as indicating that Marshal Foch will have headquarters in Essen and be in charge of the customs embargo, which it is presumed will permit of exports and imports to and from occupied Germany only with the consent of the French authorities. German industrialists declare that if the ring is established it will mean ultimately the definite shutting down of industry in the Ruhr.

The mine situation was reported normal today, although Germans say the traffic situation was less favorable than on previous days. The French will attempt to operate the railway lines. Already they control the stretch between Cologne and Altessen, and announce that 3,500 French railway workers are due to arrive in the occupied area tomorrow.

The post and telegraph authorities have issued an ultimatum to the French demanding the evacuation of telephone, post and telegraph quarters, abolition of mail censorship, removal of military patrols from governmental premises, and non-interference with the government administration.

No mail has been sent out of Essen for two days.

PRACTICALLY MARTIAL LAW PREVAILS IN THE RUHR

Duesseldorf, Jan. 26 (By the A. P.).—What practically amounts to martial law has been declared in the occupied area.

All cafes, hotels, theatres and cabarets were closed at 10 o'clock tonight, German time, which is 9 o'clock French time.

The French tonight were continuing to make arrests in connection with Thursday's rioting. About twenty nationalist leaders were imprisoned during the evening.

More arrests are likely tomorrow if the Germans carry out their decisions to refuse to obey the French. This decision was reached today at a meeting of all the burgomasters, the chiefs of police, prominent state officials and the directors of the Reichsbank in the Rhine province. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Gruetzner, president of the province of Rhenish Prussia, who later was taken into custody but afterwards released after a conference with General Simon, who informed him that he would be rearrested if he remained recalcitrant.

Quiet prevailed throughout the Ruhr today. There was no recurrence of Thursday's clashes, but the temper of the population was more openly defiant in the prevalent depressing atmosphere of hate. New forces of troops came into Duesseldorf today to meet any eventuality that may arise here or in any other part of the Ruhr. The streets of Duesseldorf are under military guard, due to the absence of the German police.

The miners throughout the Ruhr continue gradually to throw down their picks, and workmen in other industries also are leaving their jobs. Smokeless chimneys are now everywhere in evidence throughout the once prosperous valley of the Ruhr. Locomotives, cold and silent, are stalled in shops or at stations; many pitheads from which formerly thousands of tons of coal daily was handled show no signs of activity.

EXTENSION OF FARM CREDITS URGED IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 26. — Extension to the farms of the country of the same credit facilities now afforded other business was advocated in the senate today by Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, during further debate on the Lenroot-Anderson rural credit bill.

Senator Smith said he could understand the hesitancy of congress to put the farmers on the same plans as regards credit facilities as commerce and industry generally, and advised against legislation for credit extension which would be nothing but a "chip" as compared to what the farmers should be given. He urged particularly amendment of the federal reserve act to extend the eligibility for re-discount of agricultural paper from six to twelve months instead of from six to nine months as provided in the Capper rural credit bill and in the Lenroot-Anderson measure.

The extension to twelve months coupled with such administration of the federal reserve act as would appreciate fully the farmers' problems would furnish ample relief to agriculture, Senator Smith declared.

PRESIDENT CONFIDENT OF WAR DEBT REFUNDING

Washington, Jan. 26.—President Harding has every confidence that there will be an agreement with the British government for the refunding of its huge war debt to the United States, it was stated today at the White House. Should the settlement be delayed beyond the present session of congress which ends March 3, there will, however, be no extra session of the new congress to consider the matter.

The president and the American debt commissioners are declared to believe that the counter proposition presented by the Americans after the British mission had outlined terms on behalf of its government was sound and one that might have been acceptable to congress.

The expectation here is that after the British cabinet has acted, the negotiations with the American commission will be resumed through Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador in Washington.

TRAGEDY FOLLOWS GIRL'S REFUSAL TO ELOPE

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 26.—Because a 15-year old girl refused to elope this afternoon, she is dead and her fiance is dying at the City hospital. The girl is Christina Oppido, the man Daniel Maniere, 21, both of this city.

According to the police, the girl's parents objected to the marriage and an elopement was planned. Today Maniere met her by appointment outside the factory where she was employed. The girl objected to eloping then and tried to postpone the marriage. Maniere was insistent. He drew a revolver and shot the girl through the heart, then he tried to runaway, but a crowd followed. When it gained on him he turned and fired two shots into his chest and fell to the street. He was removed to the city hospital where it was said tonight that he probably would die before morning.

FRENCH CHAMBER VOTES BUDGET, 23,956,000,000 FRANCS

Paris, Jan. 26 (By the A. P.)—By making a special effort, the chamber of deputies tonight voted the 1923 budget. It did not, however, balance the budget, leaving that task to the finance committee, which will seek ways and means to effect an equilibrium next week.

The total sum voted is 23,956,000,000 francs. Most of the proposed economies disappeared during the lengthy discussion of the budget which began last fall. A report that the senate intended to take its own time discussing the budget speeded up the chamber's deliberations in the hope that a final vote would be taken before the end of February, thus obviating further provisional monthly credits.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO STUDY REFORESTATION

Washington, Jan. 26.—Vice President Coolidge today appointed the special senate committee provided by a resolution of Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, to make a nation-wide investigation of reforestation. Those appointed were Senators Moses, New Hampshire, chairman; McNary, Oregon, and Couzens Michigan, republicans, and Harrison, Mississippi, and Fletcher, Florida, democrats.

The commission plans to make studies in the New England, Southern, Great Lakes and Pacific Coast timber districts after congress adjourns, and report plans for conserving and developing the national timber supply.

WOULD INCREASE POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS INTEREST

Washington, Jan. 26.—The interest rate which the government pays on deposits in its postal savings banks would be increased from two per cent to three per cent under a bill reported today to the house by the postoffice committee. Also the maximum amount which any individual depositor could have to his credit would be increased from the present $2,500 to $3,000.

Postmaster General Work in his annual report recommended that the maximum be raised to $5,000, but Secretary Mellon suggested $3,000, taking the position that limit should not be raised so high as to discourage investment of surplus funds in private business enterprise by the small savers.

SOVIET ENVOY DENIED ADMISSION TO HONG KONG

Shanghai, Jan. 26.—(By The A. P.)—A. A. Joffe of Moscow, soviet envoy extraordinary and plenipotentiary to China who has been in conference with Sun Yat Sen, leader of the South China faction, has been denied admission to Hong Kong and Macao, respectively British and Portuguese colonies. He announced that he would sail for Japan, to which country he declared he had been invited.

Ismet Pasha Calls on Ambassador Child

Discussed Deadlock in the Near Eastern Conference—Russia Will Not Sign Straits Treaty.

Lausanne, Jan. 26.—(By the A. P.)—Failure of the Near Eastern conference is certain, according to a statement made to the Associated Press tonight by Riza Nur, one of the members of the Turkish delegation.

Nothwithstanding this pessimistic view of Riza Nur, who is the most radical of the Turkish plenipotentiaries, hope is expressed in other responsible conference quarters that that things may arrange themselves at the last moment.

Ismet Jaah, chief of the Turkish delegation, called on Richard Washburn Child, the American observer, this afternoon and went over with Mr. Child at great length the existing delicate situation in all its aspects. Mr. Child later declined to discuss what he termed a private conversation, but in American delegation circles the impression prevailed that the Turks will seek a settlement at Lausanne, if one is possible.

The time apparently is not yet ripe for active American mediation, but the Americans stand ready to help in securing a permanent peace for the Near East. The Mosul controversy remains the thorniest before the conference. The Turks may be asked to accept on this point the decision of a special arbitration commission of which an American jurist would be the neutral member.

Ismet followed up his talk with Ambassador Child by inviting Rear Admiral Bristol, also of the American delegation, to take tea with him. The deadlock in the conference again was discussed over the tea cups.

Asked if war would follow the breakdown of the conference, Riza Nur said tonight: "God only knows. I am furious that our months of hard work here should all be for nothing."

The Russian delegation issued a statement tonight to the effect that Russian would not sign the straits treaty. The Bulgarians threw a bomb into Balkan circles, and incidentally into the allied ranks, by officially informing all the powers that Bulgaria flatly refused to accept the outlet to the Aegean sea as arranged by the allies. The allies offered Bulgaria a port near Dedeaghatch under the form of a lease, with the understanding that the railroad from the Bulgarian front would be under international control. Bulgaria, however, declared she must have complete sovereignty over the port on the Aegean and also over the special corridor along the Maritza river from the Bulgarian frontier to the sea.

London, Jan. 26.—A Consantinople message to the Exchange telegraph reports that the Angora government has recalled Ferid Bey, its representative at Paris, on account of the turn of affairs at Lausanne.

DISFAVORS $200,000 ITEM FOR RIVERS AND HARBORS

Washington, Jan. 26.—The recent action of the house in increasing by approximately $20,000,000 the item for river and harbor improvement in the army appropriation bill was declared by a presidential spokesman at the White House today to be contrary to the financial policy of the administration.

The president was said to hold that congress should adhere to the budget estimates for such work, a view expressed only yesterday by Secretary Weeks before a senate sub-committee considering the army bill.

Mr. Harding was further declared to believe that the budget figure was ample for essential improvements for rivers and harbors, although he recognized that it was within congressional power to appropriate whatever sum it chooses.

FIGHT LED TO ARREST OF THREE BARTENDERS

New York, Jan. 26.—A fight in a Brooklyn saloon, whench "Red" Downey alleged gangster, was carried to the street, led later in Roosevelt hospital without naming his assailants, today led to the arrest of three bartenders, charged with the holdup of the paymaster of the C. Kenyon Company who was robbed of $10,000 last January 16.

The fight the police believe, began over division of the $10,000 spoils. When brought to the hospital, Downey had $350 in his pocket. He steadfastly refused to tell who shot him, although he knew, as he said, his "lights were going out."

The three were first arraigned today, for homicide, but were dismissed for lack of evidence, then re-arrested. They were identified, the police said, by the paymaster who was held up.

Explosion Destroyed An Oil Tank Steamer

Ten Persons Missing — 22 Were Injured—In the Lower Panuco River in Mexico.

Tampico, Mexico, Jan. 26 (By the A. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER'S VIEWS ON 18TH AMENDMENT

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 26.—(By The A. P.)—There is no likelihood that the eighteenth amendment ever can be enforced, "no matter at what expenditure of money or of effort," Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, declared in an address today at the annual mid-winter meeting of the Ohio State Bar association.

He linked the prohibition amendment with the fifteenth addition to the constitution of the United States, which was proclaimed in 1870, and granted the negro suffrage, as "two important and law-made influences which now are making and seem likely long to make for lawlessness in American life." The subject of his address was "Law and Lawlessness."

He asserted that "methods of czarist Russia, and of the Spanish inquisition" are being used to enforce one provision of law and said there are a "dozen verboten signs in the United States to every one that Russia can show."

"The practical question is not whether the colored man should vote in the southern states, but whether the American people frankly will face the problem presented by the nullification throughout a large part of the land of a most important provision of the constitution of the United States.

"The situation with regard to the eighteenth amendment is even worse, because the revolt against it is not confined to men and women of intelligence and moral sensitiveness in one section alone, but is nation-wide. It will not do to attempt to silence these persons by abuse or by catch phrases and formulas.

"These men and women dissent entirely from the grounds upon which the case for the eighteenth amendment was rested; and they regard its provisions and those of the statutes based upon it as forcible, an immoral and tyrannical invasion of their private life and personal conduct.

"No one who is familiar with the practical workings of our political system, would expect either the fifteenth or the eighteenth amendment to be repealed within measurable time. So far as one can see, therefore, we are shut up to the alternative of their attempted enforcement by soldiers, and police and special agents, and detectives and spies, or to their abrogation over a great part of the land by local initiative and common consent. Either alternative is humiliating and degrading."

WESLEYAN STUDENT WAS PENALIZED FOR DRINKING

Middletown, Conn., Jan. 26.—The Wesleyan university undergraduate committee on the control of liquor today announced that Frederick O. Anderson, son of William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, had been penalized for violation of that part of the student regulations which prohibits drinking in Middletown while college is in session."

Anderson withdrew from the university two weeks ago. He returned and voluntarily appeared today before the committee where he confessed violation of the regulations, according to that body. It was announced that he would be suspended from student extra-curricula activities for the remainder of the year.

MEMBERS OF KU KLUX KLAN ARRAIGNED IN BROOKLYN

Eight Held in $1,500 Bail for Further Examination—Seven Are Charged With Possessing Blackjacks, One With Having a Bottle of Whiskey—Arrests Were Made by Bomb Squad—Magistrate Warns Accused That They Must Give Up Their Allegiance to the "Invisible Empire" or Get Out of Brooklyn—Hiram Wesley Evans, Imperial Wizard, States That the Klan Does Not Countenance Lawlessness—Is a Protestant Organization But Does Not Advocate Religious Prejudice.

New York, Jan. 26.—A warning to members of the Ku Klux Klan that must give up their allegiance to the "invisible empire" or get out of Brooklyn was issued today by District Attorney Dodd of Kings County and Magistrate Dale.

The warning was voiced at the arraignment of eight alleged members of the "inner circle" of the klan, who were arrested last night by members of the bomb squad after they attended what their counsel admitted to have been a klan meeting. They were held in $1,500 bail for further examination—seven on charges of possessing blackjacks and one on a charge of having a bottle of whiskey in the automobile in which all were arrested.

The first persons rounded up by the police since Mayor Hylan's order to drive the klan from the city, gave these names in court:

Alfred C. Clark, John F. Collins, a chauffeur; Ellsworth B. Morse, an assistant manager; William D. M. Simmons, advertising manager of a large typewriter manufacturing concern; John M. Gilmore, a photographer; Thomas Jones, a salesman; Charles T. Mulford, a banklerk; and Robert Fischer, 19, claiming to be a student at Pratt institute.

Counsel for some of the defendants demanded an immediate hearing, but Magistrate Dale refused until he was told of the presence of the blackjacks in the car after the man had departed from the meeting, which, it was learned, was held in a building owned by a Masonic organization and occupied in the daytime by the Brooklyn court. William Haddon, superintendent of the building, said the owners had leased the hall to a group known as the Brooklyn Circle club and that he never thought the organization was part of the klan.

Counsel had begun argument, when Magistrate Dale interrupted:

"What I want is light shown on the purpose of these men in departing from what you say was a peaceful, law-abiding meeting in a car containing weapons, whiskey and masks, and which did not carry lights.

"In these days of holdups and violence in Brooklyn both the citizens and the police officer are interested in keeping out of the city and suppressing charagters who move in the darkness of the night, carrying deadly weapons with them."

Here defense counsel broke in:

"If you honor please, take a look at these men. Do they bear the earmarks of criminals—of thugs? Don't you think rather that they appear to be just what they are, substantial and respectable business men?"

"You never can tell by appearances," replied the magistrate. "If these men were going to a, masquerade or were bent on any respectable mission, tell me about it."

For a moment there was silence. Then Police Lieutenant Gegan, leader of the raiding party, broke in:

"Your honor, I'll tell what that meeting was! It was a Ku Klux Klan meeting—what they call a klavern, or something like that. They don't want to answer questions about it. They want to keep it secret."

Magistrate Dale turned to M. R. Matheson, as the attorney for the majority of the defendants.

"Is this true?" he asked.

"I do not know; my clients did not tell me so," Matheson replied.

"Well, why not ask them now?" persisted the court.

Matheson turned to one of the prisoners seated behind him and conversed in low tones for a few moments. Then he faced the bar again.

"I am informed that it was an open meeting of the Ku Klux Klan designed to acquaint members and any others interested with the aim and purposes of the klan," he said.

"Who is the leader of the klan here?" asked Magistrate Dale.

"I think it is Clarke," was the reply.

Magistrate Dale turned to Clarke and asked if it was true that he was the leader, the grand cyclops.

"Well, that is my robe the detectives took from the car and are holding over there," was the answer.

Before fixing bail Magistrate Dale went into his private office and conferred with the district attorney's office by telephone. When he came out again he said he had been requested by District Attorney Dodd to say that the Ku Klux Klan had no place in Brooklyn and would be driven out as fast as it appeared.

"For my part," said the magistrate, "speaking as a citizen and an official in public life for more than 30 years, I say that there is no room in Brooklyn, there is no room in any community where the ideals of Americanism survive, for masked and secret government which rules or seeks to rule by violence. I solemnly warn you men that you must give up the klan or get out of Brooklyn."

STATEMENT BY IMPERIAL WIZARD OF KU KLUX KLAN

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Ku Klux Klansmen have no right to take the law into their own hands, Hiram Wesley Evans, imperial wizard of the organization, declared today, issuing a statement (also) in which he charged Governor Parker of Louisiana, with political or other motives in instigating the Med Rouge investigation of the deaths of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard.

Asked if the klan would defend any men who may be arrested or indicted in connection with the Louisiana case, Evans said:

"It would depend entirely upon the condition of the klansmen. If he was unable to provide defense for himself we would most certainly see that his rights as a klansman were

TO FORM ORGANIZATION TO OPPOSE THE KU KLUX KLAN

Chicago, Jan. 26.—An "all nations rally" to form the basis of a national organization to oppose the Ku Klux Klan and kindred organizations will be held at the Coliseum here beginning February 26 and continuing for one week, Patrick H. Following the meetings here Mr. O'Donnell declared that similar meetings would be held in other principal cities of the country.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
21 Church Street Telephone 1988

Several residents of the town of Windham and this city were arraigned in police court Friday morning and charged with non-payment of personal taxes, on the list of 1921. Judge Frank H. Foss was on the bench and disposed of five cases.

Joseph and Genevieve Meikle, produced receipts signed by Collector Eden Cooke, showing that their taxes had been paid on February, 1922. It was found that the enumerator of the Third ward had enumerated Mr. and Mrs. Meikle under the name of Nichols. The abstract book of the collector did not show the name of Meikle but it did show that of Nichols of No. 128 Natchaug street R. F. D. Because of an oversight the name of Nichols was not changed to that of Meikle. Orders were given by the prosecuting attorney to have the correction made on the list.

William P. Lavin, aged 58, of No. 127 Union street, produced a notification from the personal tax collector showing that he owed on the list of 1921 due and collectable February 2, 1922. Natchaug Lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias, have been talking the matter for some time and it was recently decided to start things rolling and a meeting will be held in order to discuss the buying of a suitable site or purchasing a building which could be transformed into a home. The local lodge was instituted 52 years ago and at the present time has a membership of 350. Since December 1916, Natchaug lodge has been holding its meetings in Odd Fellows' hall.

During the early fall of the year 1922, an organization was perfected known as the Community Entertainment Association of Willimantic, having in view the promotion of high grade musical entertainments, for the cultivation of taste for a better class of music in the community. Any resident of Willimantic or vicinity is eligible to membership in the organization by the purchasing of one season ticket. There is no financial profit to any individual as the entire proceeds from the sale of tickets are used to defray the expenses incurred.

The body was placed in the receiving vault of the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Edward Ellsworth, W. A. Dawson, [illegible] Fenton and Charles [illegible] Lincoln Company [illegible] of the arrangements.

John Skinner died Friday morning in St. Joseph's hospital. He was 73 years old and born in Hampton where he resided. He leaves his wife, one brother Frank Skinner of Plainfield, and a son, Ernest Skinner.

The structure is of wood, one story high with pitched roof and has a frontage of 40 feet and 60 feet. There is a stage in the rear and two dressin grooms on either side of the entrance. The interior walls are finished in enamel. Electricity is used for lighting and a furnace has been installed.

The work of harvesting the city ice is now completed, according to a statement made Friday by Louis W. Ives, who has the contract of harvesting and selling the ice. Over 7,000 tons of ice were cut which added to what was left from last year's amount makes a total of 10,000 tons on hand. The ice which averages fifteen inches in thickness, is of fine quality.

Foreman Thomas Wakeley of the Jewett City Fire company received a call at 4 o'clock Friday morning from Preston City, stating that the postoffice and store was afire, and not a thing available to fight it. Foreman Wakeley secured an automobile from Adam Rojeski, aroused a number of firemen, loaded in several big service chemical tanks and started. The attempt to reach Preston City was made by the old road. This way is nearer and in summer many people use it. Down in the last stretch of country road such great quantities of snow were encountered that after repeated trials to get through the firemen were obliged to give it up.

It used to be the custom a few years ago for the local firemen to enjoy an outing on Labor day. As a rule a party of a dozen or more would go to New York, visit Coney Island, and look 'em over generally in other parts of the big city. On one occasion a party of ten went into one of the big theatre lobbies, looking over the bills and trying to decide which show to go and see that evening. Opinions differed, and finally all the party went out to the street except one. Inspecting an especially attractive picture, he tarried longer than the others, then, discovering that his party had gone, he hurried to the pavement. The Broadway theatre district was jammed with the afternoon crowds, with not a familiar face in sight. Joe rushed up to a busy traffic cop as if he were answering a third alarm fire. "Hey," said he, "have you seen anything of that Jewett City bunch around here lately?" Curtain!

JEWETT CITY "HOOKS" HOLD 25TH ANNUAL BALL

Jewett City, Jan. 26.—The 25th annual concert and ball of the A. A. Young, Jr., Hose and Ladder Co., No. 1, was given in the Finn opera house Friday evening. These merry playtimes of the firemen figure prominently among the social events of the town. Friday evening's attendance was thought to be the record for the quarter century during which the popular firemen's ball has never failed to please.

Sullivan's singing orchestra of Milford was here again. Their concert preceding the grand march was at unusual high standard. The dancers declared the selections for the floor could not have been better. The slapstick comedian sketches, lasting all through the dance card, gave a fine entertainment for those who looked on from the balcony.

The grand march of 52 couples moved at a little after 9, with Foreman Thomas Wakeley and Miss Grace McElligot in the lead. The carefully planned figures were executed in perfect harmony, much of beauty being added by the handsome gowns of the ladies.

The fine concert by the orchestra consisted of the following attractive numbers:

March, Voba; orchestra selection, Russian Rose; solo, Joseph F. Sullivan, Lonesome, That's All; One Night in June, by Zatsman; comedy song, selected, E. J. Sullivan; orchestra selection, One Night in June; tambo solo and recitation, E. J. Sullivan.

The committees, who spared no pains to maintain the usual high standard of excellence always apparent at the firemen's ball, were:

Master of ceremonies, Thomas Wakeley; floor director, Moses Loranger; aides, Joseph McCarthy, Joseph Couture, Charles Maynard, Jerry Morey, Dorey Jarvis; reception committee, Dennis Griffin, Eugene Carroll, William Grenier, Peter Bryant, Adam Rojeski, Matthew Geary; committee of arrangements, James Morey, Moses Loranger, Vicente Osga, Thomas Wakeley, Austin Haris, Matthew Exley.

In accordance with his usual custom, A. A. Young presented the company with carnations, which were offered for sale by Theodore Morey and George Ritchie. The dance programs were distributed by Thomas Wakeley, Jr., and Florence Morey and the concert programs by Ernest Loranger.

The Jewett City firemen's ball is by no means a purely local affair, as was evidenced by the many visitors from Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Plainfield, Wauregan, Moosup, Providence, Danielson and Putnam.

Great Edison in Pictures at M. C. A. Sunday

At the Sunday afternoon hour at the local L. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock, a pictorial biography of Edison, the great benefactor, will be shown in moving pictures. The pictures will show the many interesting incidents of the inventor's experimental and inventive genius from a very young age. You will see him as a newsboy, experimenter, telegraph operator and manufacturer of electrical goods at 22 years of age. You will see how that after working continuously for four days and nights, he took a few hours' rest and awoke to find the first incandescent light still burning. Later he invented the multiple system, thus rendering to mankind his greatest service that by which Liberty lights the world.

This picture teaches a great lesson, namely, what possibilities there are in one man when he gives, and it is a real inspiration for young men, and a cause for gratitude that men such as Edison have proved such a blessing to the world.

In addition to the pictures, tomorrow, Swahn's orchestra will furnish pleasing music.

Admission is free to men and older boys.

Stirring Feature at the Broadway Sunday Night

That the making of a big motion picture production is a hazardous and expensive undertaking and often results in the injuring of scores of players was made known by Sam Warner, director, of the Warner Brothers wild animal feature, "A Dangerous Adventure."

"We used over 1500 wild animals in the making of "A Dangerous Adventure," said Mr. Warner. "While all accidents are covered by insurance, an average of one claim a day was paid. Grace Dammond, during one of the jungle storm scenes, fell from the howdah atop an elephant and was seriously injured, narrowly escaping death. A woman wild animal trainer was attaced by a leopard and bitten in the neck and leg more than once.

"An artist insisted on shaking hands with a lion, and almost lost his hand. Another trainer got in the way of a tiger, and he was laid up in a hospital, nursing about 22 wounds. A negro tried to put out a flaming torch in some gasoline thinking it water, and almost burned the studio down. Others have been burned, received monkey bites, and many a ranger has been lost.

The story of "A Dangerous Adventure" is laid in Africa and it will be shown at the Broadway Sunday nights only.

In addition to this seven act sensation, there will be a Hall Room Boys comedy called "Still Going Strong."

"Back Home and Broke," New Meighan Picture Real Comedy—At the Strand Monday.

More than one record was broken in the photoplay "Back Home and Broke," which George Ade wrote for Thomas Meighan, and which comes to the Strand theatre Monday. The picture is said to have more laughs to the reel than any film ever made by Paramount. It also has more well known small town characters crammed into it in true Ade style than most pictures of a more or less rural type.

And it has a banquet, not the Broadway variety with professional dancers and cigarette-smoking women, but a small town banquet to celebrate the hero's homecoming to Bradford, Tom Redding, having proved himself a success in spite of the gloomy predictions of his townsmen, has invited all his friends and enemies to feast, so that he may repay each according to his deserts. The assemblage includes the newly appointed chief of police, the town bankers, the leading merchant, the friendly newsboy, the editor of the paper, the unofficial newsgatherer, Aggie Twaddle, the pickle sweetheart and her new "crush," the factory foreman, and Tom's faithful sweetheart Mary Thorne.

His guests are comfortable or uneasy according to their treatment of Tom before he became a millionaire, but when the food is served by the colored waiters brought in for the occasion, all apprehension is forgotten in the pleasure of eating and having a wholesome, small town good time. Lila Lee is leading woman.

Breed Theatre

Picture fans have come to expect a bountiful measure in their screen entertainment these days, but the many excellent features incorporated in the production "The Man from Home," which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, must surely satisfy the most exacting. A famous novel by a nationally-known author, translated to the screen by one of the foremost producers of the day and interpreted by a cast of popular and talented players, surely that is a banquet of entertainment even in these days. Booth Tarkington wrote his novel of and in Italy which meant that it was to be done justice in its transference to the screen it should be filmed in that country. And then the cast, James Kirkwood most capably heads it and he has the support of such favorites as Anna Q. Nilsson and Norman Kerry.

FRAZEE MAKES KEARNS OFFER FOR BOUT BETWEEN DEMPSEY AND WILLS

New York, Jan. 26.—Harry Frazee, owner of the Boston Red Sox, today made a definite bid to stage a heavyweight championship match next summer between Jack Dempsey and the negro challenger, Harry Wills.

Neither Frazee nor Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, would discuss its terms, but it was said the baseball magnate's offer included a bonus of 100,000 for Kearns' signature to a contract. Frazee said his proposition was confined to a Wills bout alone.

Aside from Frazee's entrance as the third bidder for Dempsey's services next summer, negotiations were at a standstill following the six-day option obtained yesterday by Tex Rickard, barring the titleholder from accepting any terms for a six-day period ending February 3.

Rickard made no further announcement while Tom O'Rourke, Polo grounds matchmaker, declined, until the expiration of Rickard's option, to reveal details of his offer, reported to involve a guarantee to Dempsey of 1,000,000 for his appearance in two or three fights at the Giants' ball park.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The Pas, Manitoba, dog derby of 200 miles will occur February 22.

Harvard's varsity track team will make its debut in the Millrose games at New York, Jan. 31.

Anyway, Battling Siki is following in the footsteps of all great fighters by going into the movies.

Montreal promoters are staging a series of boxing shows in connection with the winter sports carnival.

Senor Jose Lopez, the wealthy Cuban horseman, is the trainer as well as owner of a large string of runners.

Kid Lee, a colored lightweight of Denver, and who is said to be a clever boxer, will try his hand at the game in the east.

Piloting a tail-end team means that Frank Chance, the Red Sox manager will have to start at the bottom and again work his way to the top.

Both the Bricklayers and the Thistles, of Chicago, have come to the front as contenders for the national soccer championship.

Comparatively few star ball players have made good as big league umpires. "Big Ed" Walsh is the latest to try the job and fail.

A few days after he had lost a decision to Willie Doyle, Johnny Dundee came back strong and trimmed "Pepper" Martin handily.

The Eastern international dog-sled derby in Quebec next month will comprise a series of three 50-mile heats, one heat to be run off each day.

It is said that Manager John McGraw intends to stand pat on the 1923 Giants, believing that the world's champions can repeat next season.

Dartmouth's gridders are going to "live high," as the Green's annual football banquet will take place at the Outing club cabin atop of Moose Mountain.

Every fistic champion can point to some certain fighter as his jinx. Usually the fighter is mediocre before, who fails an easy victim to men who are no match for the champion.

The hockey series of the Big Three resembles their gridiron contests last fall. So far Princeton has defeated Harvard and Harvard has beat Yale.

Willie Doyle, the fast New York lightweight, is hot on the trail of Benny Leonard with the hopes of inducing the titleholder to meet him in a bout for the championship.

Since the New York Boxing commission has turned down Tom Gibbons and Jess Willard, the only heavy with a chance to meet Jack Dempsey in Gotham appears to be Harry Wills.

Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion of the world, was recently tendered a benefit shown down south. It appears that Ad who hails from Cadillac, Mich., has not been enjoying prosperity.

The signing of Jocko Conlon, the diminutive Harvard star, by the Braves has inspired hope among Boston fans that the little fellow will turn to be a second "Rabbit" Maranville.

Luis Firpo may not be such a whale of a fighter, but he is not second rater when it comes to coaxing the shekels. He put over a clever deal on his fellow Argentinians recently that netted him just $25,000.

Dave Shade, who many fistic experts figure to relieve Mickey Walker of the welterweight crown, has fought practically every good man at his weight, proved his superiority, yet is still without a title.

Psychology plays an important part in sports. And, at the moment, psychology points to Jess Willard's task in regaining the heavyweight championship from Jack Dempsey as almost impossible.

Pal Moran will have to doff his gloves for about a month. The New Orleans lightweight injured his left hand so badly last Friday in his bout with Lew Tendler that the enforced vacation from the padded mitts is necessary.

Earl Eby of the Chicago A. C., won the 600 yard Waldron Memorial run last night at Newark, N. J., the principal event of the third annual athletic games under the director of the St. Joseph's Club. His time was 1:16 1-2.

The St. Louis Cardinals have arranged to play a series of games with the Braves during the training season, the Mitchell outfit evidently feeling that they do not meet the Bostonians often enough during the regular season.

To obtain the necessary supply of grass seed for golf links the total production is combed by seed men, who select about 20 per cent. of the total amount or the best stock. This seed sells for about 50 cents a pound, the annual outlay for the 2,500 links in the country is about $1,000,000.

Claude Jonnard of the Giants is the only one-eyed pitcher in the big leagues. Despite the handicap, Jonnard has risen to heights and is expected to prove a sensation with the New York club during the 1923 season. Among his pitching assets is said to be an "up curve," a weird delivery.

Roy Mercer, Swarthmore mentor, "Red" Gennett, Princeton freshman coach, and several western conference coaches are under consideration by the athletic authorities of Columbia, who are seeking a successor to Coach "Buck" O'Neil, who resigned last season.

COLD WEATHER AFFECTS STORRS LAYING CONTEST

The birds in the egg laying contest at Storrs are showing the effect that the cold weather has had upon them during the past two weeks. This is the first time in the twelve weeks of the present contest that the birds have failed to produce more eggs than for the same week in any previous contest. The total production for the week was 2409 eggs or a yield of more than 34 per cent. There was an increase of 78 eggs over last week's production but 228 eggs less than last year for the same week. During the twelfth week, however, the 100 pens produced 236 eggs more than the average for the last eight years. For the third consecutive week a pen of White Wyandottes owned by Lady Anderson of Harrold, England, was an easy first with a production of 42 eggs. Frank P. Matteson's pen of White Wyandottes from Davisville, R. I., was second with 40 eggs to its credit. A pen of White Rocks owned by Harold F. Barber, Dover, Mass.; William E. Moran's White Wyandottes from Bethany, Conn.; a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Fernside Farms, Foxboro, Mass., and Elmoor Farms' White Leghorns from Lebanon, Pa., were all tied for third place with a yield of 38 eggs each. A pen of Barred Rocks owned by Jasper E. Guptill of Berwick, Maine, tied for fourth place with Ernest H. Scott's White Leghorns from Farmington, Conn., with a score of 37 eggs each.

The four leading pens in each of the principle breeds are as follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE MEETING WILL TAKE UP MATTER OF FREAK HOMERS

Chicago, Jan. 26.—The spring schedule meeting of the American League will be held in Philadelphia, February 19, President Johnson announced tonight.

The decision to hold the meeting in Philadelphia instead of here was reached because the annual banquet of the Philadelphia baseball writers will be held on that date and President Johnson, together with Ty Cobb and George Sisler, will be the guests of honor. More than 1,000 will attend.

The principal question to be considered at the meeting will be the adoption or rejection of the plan to lessen freakish home runs. Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, brought the suggestion to the attention of the club owners at their December meeting and was rewarded with sentiment favorable to the proposition. The National league, however, opposed it and Commissioner Landis has since stated that he does not favor it, and that it will not be adopted by both major league.

It is possible, however, that the American league will act independently. The plan is to restrict home run territory to anything beyond 315 feet from the home plate.

NOT GUILTY OF USING OF $75,000 OF BANK'S FUNDS

Boston, Jan. 26.—A jury in the United States district court tonight returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Edward R. Grosvenor and Joseph Adams, charged with misapplication of $75,669 of the funds of the Winchester National Bank. Grosvenor was former cashier of the bank.

Edward S. Foster, former president of the bank, was also indicted on the charge of misapplication of funds, but died before the case came to trial. He had entered a plea of not guilty. Adams was his son-in-law.

Charges against the defendants resulted from visits of national bank examiners to the Winchester institution. It was alleged that they found evidences of overdrafts by Adams and that certificates of deposit were issued with no money behind them. The jury declared the accused not guilty on all 12 counts of the indictment.

BERLIN OPERA COMPANY BOUND FOR NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 26.—As the President Roosevelt, bringing the 108 members of the Berlin Grand Opera company, plowed her way through ice choked water to her pier today, songbirds of the company stood bareheaded on deck, singing lusty paeans of joy as they thought of the salaries of gillions of marks which soon were to replace the starvation wages of their home land.

The company's full chorus of sixty men and women intoned the chorus from Wagner's opera "The Mastersinger" while principals o fthe company crowded, radiant-faced, at the rails feasting their eyes on America.

"Happy" exclaimed one of the prima donnas, "No, I am more than happy. Only a few months ago I sang in a provincial German opera house and received 18,000 marks a month for my work. That was 80 cents in your money and I was the best paid singer in the house. Now I will receive the equivalent of millions of marks a month and the terrible struggle with want and worry will be at an end."

Must Know When to Stop.

"It's all right to laugh at yob troubles up to a certain point," said Uncle Eben; "but if you keeps it up too long, you begins to look foolish."

Cold Storage Leaves.

Eggs and beeves are not the only things that are kept in cold storage. The fresh fern leaves that adorn the luncheon tables of hotels on occasion are probably from some ice chest and are taken out as demanded. They grew, very likely, in some woods near a country village and were shipped by the ton during the summer months. It is said New York city uses 15,000,000 fern fronds every year and some New England woods have been denuded of the plants.

Oldest Man-Made Forest.

The oldest living forest planted by man is said to be that set out by St. Francis and his monks in the city of Florence, Italy. It was started in 1224 and since that time has been under the care of some supervisor interested in forestry. The forest is of silver fir and beech.

Doubtful.

"Pa," said Johnny, looking up from his composition, "is 'waterworks' all one word or do you spell it with a hydrant?"—Boston Transcript.

Mental Laziness.

An old proverb says, "Make your head save your heels." Simple advice, it seems, yet it contains the secret of modern progress. Invention today centers about the great problem of saving human labor by careful thought. To claim a place in present-day civilization, we must accustom ourselves to thinking out the best ways of doing things. The great enemy to progress of this kind, the thing that holds back men with natural ability, is mental laziness.

OCCUPATION OF THE RUHR.

In moving its forces into the Ruhr France was actuated by the belief that Germany needed to be penalized for its willful refusal to meet the reparation obligations. It understood the seizure of that district under the rights given it by the treaty of Versailles in case Germany failed to keep its promise. It hoped that it would be the means of bringing Germany to its knees to the extent that it would agree to live up to the French demands. It had counted on a certain degree of opposition and was prepared for the worst, but it may be too soon to tell accurately just what the opposition is going to amount to.

France hasn't gone into the Ruhr as a bluff. It is prepared to take control in such a way that it will get not less than it was getting before it acted and its hopes are that it will get all that is coming to it. This hasn't been accomplished yet, and in all probability it will not be soon for the mines and factories under French control to accomplish what they were doing under German operations. This far it has obtained only about a quarter of the coal it was getting but it is safe to say that with the resistance it has been encountering it may figure that it is doing well and that settled conditions will make everything satisfactory.

If, however, it is assured that Germany was going to know by its hands and immediately come forth with just the kind of compliance demanded it was mistaken and in fact of the move has been made in both France and Germany, it has gone ahead in an unhurried manner, but with a recognition of the situation as it existed and the importance of a firm but not an arbitrary policy. It has no desire for a resumption of hostilities and a great deal will depend upon the conduct of Germany as to what further developments will take place.

FEDERAL DIVORCE AND MARRIAGE LAW.

Much has been said from time to time in behalf of a uniform divorce and marriage law that would at least apply to certain sections of the country if not to all the states. The demand has been based on the fact of cases where restrictions established in one state are evaded by crossing into an adjoining one, where such obstructions do not prevail, or where it is found that the marriage or divorce is easily accomplished.

The difficulties which have been pictured as likely to be encountered in getting states to [illegible] ideas they have followed [illegible] unsatisfactory. It was [illegible] shown by the result obtained [illegible] Canada, where the provincial divorce laws of that country [illegible] amended failed by a [illegible] state has adopted laws [illegible] these matters which [illegible] by that which differ in [illegible] details. Each apparently [illegible] has dealt most [illegible] and for this very reason it will not be [illegible] that was ever undertaken [illegible] them to yield from their [illegible] whether it happened to be [illegible] poverty or laxness.

This the effort [illegible] launched to have a [illegible] law enacted to [illegible] and to have a [illegible] marriage law [illegible] will apply to the whole country, promises to be a [illegible] undertaking. From [illegible] indications the effort to get [illegible] proval is likely to [illegible] part of it, for after [illegible] given the approval [illegible] lawmakers it must go [illegible] states for ratification.

When that time comes if it ever goes, the views of the various [illegible] concerning strict or [illegible] governing such matters will be opened. Experience has changed the conditions as they now exist, and likewise it has given some idea of what can be expected in the way of enforcement. And yet this may be as good a time as any for endeavoring to correct conditions which have long been deplored.

DOESN'T DESTROY IT.

Some may not have known anything about the petition which was signed by the members of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, as well as hundreds of other citizens, which attacked the patriotism of Senator La Follette during the days of the war when La Follette as well as others were taking a position which could not be otherwise interpreted than giving comfort and encouragement to the enemy. Many have probably forgotten the petition if they ever knew about it, but it is all being brought to light again by the desire of the friends of La Follette to have it taken out and publicly burned.

The reason for this is that the petition went into the historical files of the state and will remain there to be hidden or brought to light as people look for it in the future. Now that the war is over there are those who think that La Follette's attitude should be forgotten and this document destroyed. It is even the belief of the governor of the state that it should be done.

But the idea of burning the petition, is not going to wipe it out and it is not going to whitewash La Follette. It doesn't appear that the Wisconsin senator has changed his views any. What he said that caused the signing of the petition has not been retracted. From all indications he would do the same thing over again under similar circumstances. The fact of the matter is that that petition is attached to La Follette's record in a way that is not going to be overcome by the destruction of the original document, any more than as if the historical files should be accidently destroyed by fire or the petition stolen.

The publicity which is being given to this new move is directing attention anew to the war record of La Follette far more noticeably than as if no move had been instigated to remove this from the historical documents of the state.

BRINGING THE BOYS HOME.

The hauling down of the United States flag on the Rhine didn't mean defeat. It simply indicated that the American soldiers who have been stationed at that point have been called home, and the last of those who were sent from this country as the result of the war in Europe are now on the way back to their country. It means getting out of Europe in order that our mere presence at a point near where clashes between troops or civilians may not be responsible for leading us into the very vortex of European complications which we have always studiously avoided.

The [illegible] home of the last of [illegible] will be welcomed by the nation. It was a step that has been [illegible] repeatedly. There are [illegible] would have brought them [illegible] of these two years or more [illegible] others would have kept them there more. Opinions may differ but there can be no doubt but what the administration is acting for the best interests of the country and under [illegible] and conditions wherein it has [illegible] and information.

The American soldiers have made an excellent impression in Europe [illegible] been common to be marked [illegible] courtesies and on many occasions [illegible] to regret that the time has come for them to depart. There [illegible] those among the American [illegible] who had their [illegible]

New Method Of Reducing Fat

A news item from abroad informs us that the American method of producing a slim, trim figure is meeting with astonishing success. This system, which has made such a wonderful impression over there, must be the Marmola Prescription Tablet method of reducing fat. It is safe to say that we have nothing better for this purpose in this country. Anything that will reduce the excess flesh steadily and easily without injury to the stomach, the causing of wrinkles, the help of exercising or dieting, or interference with one's meals, is a mighty important and useful addition to civilization's necessities. Just such a catalogue of good results follow the use of these pleasant, harmless and economical little fat reducers. We say economical because Marmola Prescription Tablets (made in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) can be obtained of any druggist the world over or from the Marmola Company, 1672 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., for one dollar a case, which is a decidedly economical price, considering the number of tablets each case contains. They are harmless

"I feel it my duty to write to thank you for the wonderful benefit I have received from Fruit-a-tives. I suffered for 20 years with Rheumatism. I had taken a number of different remedies but they did not do me any good.

One day last fall, I saw your advertisement in our paper so I bought a box, trial box. They helped me, so I bought two more boxes and I can hardly realize that I ever had Rheumatism. I can get in and out of my bed without the least trouble. If the Rheumatism ever does come back, I know just what to take to drive it away.

Your wonderful fruit medicine, "Fruit-a-tives," brought me relief when everything else had failed."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The superintendency of the lighting companies doing business in this and surrounding towns is to be taken over on February 1, by Ralph E. Thurston of Putnam. Mr. Thurston, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and for a long period of years in charge of the lighting company's business in the Putnam territory, will succeed J. Howard Burdick, who has resigned his position here to take one with the interests with which he has been identified for so many years. Mr. Burdick to be engaged in the Webster and Southbridge field.

Mr. Thurston is thoroughly experienced in that branch of public service pertaining to light and power. He already has made one visitation to Danielson and will come here again before the opening of the present month, that he may get in touch in a general way with the operations in this field and with other features of the business.

It is understood that it is the intention of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, which recently took over the local lighting companies and which some time since acquired the Putnam company, to give what is known as the Danielson territory, the best possible service. What the company's plans are, if any have been evolved, relative to improvements have not been given out. It is known however, that the company will increase the number of consumers of electricity by inaugurating an intensive campaign among property owners whose homes or other buildings are not electrically lighted to have them adopt that service.

Supt. Thurston will continue to make his headquarters in Putnam, making trips into this territory as business requires. It is understood that the lighting companies' office and salesroom here will be maintained as heretofore.

The following are the newly elected officers and the personnel of committees of the Methodist Episcopal church for the ensuing year:

Financial publications of Friday reviewed at length the excellent showing of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, incident to a statement just issued showing that the concern is about to retire upwards of $9,000,000 of its outstanding prior preference stock. All of the press comment is highly laudatory of the wonderful comeback that has been made by the practically new staff of executives that came into being upon the reorganization of the giant concern about two years ago, and it is now evident that Goodyear is well on the road to a full and complete recovery of its former powerful financial position.

It is of special interest that Assistant Treasurer Herman M. Coulter in charge of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town, a subsidiary of the Akron concern, is one of the very few officials of executive capacity retained from the old organization. Mr. Coulter has been an exceptionally valuable official for Goodyear and did remarkable work for the concern during the reorganization and readjustment period and has been uniformly successful his official position since coming to this town. He has been with Goodyear since entering business, serving for several years at Akron before coming to Danielson.

PUTNAM

Ralph E. Thurston, superintendent for the Eastern Connecticut Power company in its Putnam territory, is also to be superintendent for the concern in the territory served by the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company and the People's Light and Power company, recently taken over by the Eastern Connecticut Power company for purchase. These companies have had their headquarters in Danielson and have served the communities of the town of Killingly and also Brooklyn, Pomfret, Plainfield, Griswold and Voluntown. Taken with the towns of Putnam, Thompson, Pomfret and Woodstock, now served by the E. C. Power company in what formerly was the field of the Putnam Light and Power company, Mr. Thurston will have supervision of the concern's business in a territory covering approximately 346 square miles.

Mr. Thurston will take on the superintendency in the new field February 1. He will continue to make his headquarters in this city, as heretofore, but going into his new field to familiarize himself with it and to acquaint himself with the condition of the plant and other features.

It already is evident that the Eastern Connecticut Power company is intent upon giving a high grade, up-to-date service to its consumers in the territory under Mr. Thurston's superintendency.

It also has plans for expanding its service so as to attract more patrons in all the towns in this part of eastern Windham county, weher it sells electricity not only to individuals and business and other concerns, but also to manufacturing companies for power purposes.

Mr. Thurston already has been in the Danielson territory to get in touch with conditions and will be in that territory again during the coming week.

The practice of clearing state highways in Connecticut as carried on by the state highway department and approved by the scores of thousands of motorists seem destined to have far reaching effect on road clearing [illegible] towns hereabouts [illegible] season.

Already in Thompson farmers and others who live off the stat highways are circulating a petition asking the selectmen to call a special town meeting to take action on a proposal that the town clear the country highways. This petition and proposal is brought about because of the fact that persons living off the main trunk lines find htat they must use sleighs or sleds of some sort to get out to the state highways and then cannot travel on them with runners at times because they are entirely free from snow as the result of being scraped almost clean before a thaw sets in and removes the snow entirely.

It has been suggested in Thompson that the country roads be broken out with tractors hauling snow plows instead of using the old-time horse-drawn plows, which will no longer serve for clearing the highways in manner required to meet modern travel requirements.

Consideration must be given in discussion of this question to the fact that a heavy percentage of farmers and others living in the country districts now own automobiles and that the machines are of little use to these people in winters like the present one. The cars are standing idle in garages and barns and their home stations because they cannot be gotten out onto state highways. This is inconvenient and expensive to such owners and they want the town of Thompson to do something to remedy the condition.

Announcement is made of the marriage on December 22 of Miss Anna Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Arnold of this city, and Henry Boas of Bolton Landing, N. J. Both have been students at the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, Mr. Boas graduating in the class of 1922, and at the present time being proprietor of the Alma farm at Bolton Landing, where the couple are to make their home.

Mr. Boas received the degree of B. S. from Storrs, where he was a member of the football team and of the Cosmo club. He also is a graduate of the Ethical School of Science.

He is a son of Professor Frentz Boas of the faculty of Columbia university. Two of his brothers are physicians, one of his sisters a teacher, the other a musician.

Senator Clarence H. Child of Woodstock, representing the 28th senatorial district, of which Putnam is a part, has this week introduced a number of bills in the legislature, these chiefly having to do with subjects pertaining to the probation of wills. Another bill introduced by Senator Child provides for the exemption of gifts to religious bodies and to hospitals from taxation. Senator Child is a senate member of the committee on education in the present assembly.

The Grosvenordales are going to have something of special interest next month and old-time observance of Mardi Gras. This affair is being arranged by members of the American legion and its auxiliary in the communities mentioned, and details of the affair are now being worked out. A masquerade is to be included in the program for the evening.

Checker players were discussing on Friday the things that impressed them in watching the play on Thursday evening of Victor Townsend, champion of greater Boston who gave an exhibition at the American legion rooms in this city. Mr. Townsend played 24 games simultaneously, and one feature of his exhibition, walking around inside a hollow square from board to board where two dozen opponents were engaged as individuals in trying to best him. Of the 24 games Mr. Townsend won 21, drew two and lost one. He also was victor in games which he played blindfolded against opponent who subjected themselves to no such handicap. It was said Friday of Mr. Townsend that he knows 5,000 playing combinations. He appears to be able to size up a game instantly and accurately by one glance at a board. This was evidenced Thursday evening as he walked about making his moves so rapidly that they would appear to be careless, but were far from that, as those who played against him know.

In the Italian garden at the Ambassador hotel in New York on February 8, G. Lawrence Perkins of this city and Pomfret is to give a supper dance for William H. WESTMINSTER

A terrific rainstorm Saturday night, falling on the deep snow, produced rivers of water and deep slush on Sunday, and no one ventured out unless necessity compelled. Therefore, the field day for Near East relief had to be postponed to the coming Sunday, when it is hoped both road and weather conditions may be favorable.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, ever worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

OLD DOC BRANEY.

I remember old Doc Braney and in fancy see him yet.
His lifetime won affection and his absence brings regret,
As I recall the way he smiled at every boyhood ill
And always cured it promptly with a poultice or a pill.

But now when my hygienic state is troubled with a twinge,
Friend Doctor tells me I must go and see a specialist.
No matter where the bother in my mechanism lies,
The oculist will say it's due to my defective eyes.
The dentist says the ailment that foretells a harp and wreath
Is evidently caused by the condition of my teeth.
The man who sprays my throat declares to me, beyond a doubt,
I'll never be quite well until he takes my tonsils out;
While the chiropodist avers that all my present woes
Are due to certain kinks in the formation of my toes.
Each one of them will trace the source of pain into some spot
Which seems remarkable because it's where the pain is not.

And that is why in quest of health I go from door to door,
A scientific wilderness I patiently explore,
And I long for old Doc Braney, with his unpretentious skill,
Who gently smiled and cured me with a poultice or a pill.

SAUSAGE.

You may brag about your breakfast foods you eat at break of day,
Your crisp, delightful shavings and your shocs of last year's hay,
Your toasted flakes of rye and corn that fairly swim in cream,
Or rave about a sawdust mash, an epicurean dream,
But none of these appeals to me, though all of them I've tried—
The breakfast that I liked the best was sausages mother fried.

Old country sausage was its name: the kind, of course, you know,
The little links that seemed to be almost as white as snow,
But turned into a ruddy brown, while sizzling in the pan;
Oh, they were made both to appease and charm the inner man.
All of these new-fangled dishes make me blush and turn aside
When I think about the sausage that for breakfast mother fried.

When they roused me from my slumbers and I left to do the chores,
It wasn't long before I breathed a fragrance out of doors
That seemed to stop my spirit and to thrill my body through,
For the spice of humor tingled, and I knew that I plainly knew
That the condition of my stomach would be quickly satisfied
By a plate of savory sausage that my dear old mother fried.

There upon the kitchen table, with its cloth of checkered red,
Was a platter heaped with sausage, and a plate of home-made bread,
And a cup of coffee waiting—not a pale, colorless taste
That can scarcely be called mouthful, but a cup of greater class;
And I fell to, nobody driving, for I could not be denied
Oh, Pa, there's none would relish the sausage mother fried.

Times have changed and so have I—breakfast is each morning where
A dish of cereal something or of flakes I scorn to me,
All my taste is back to boyhood, as it was in days long ago,
When the simple meal meant something more than vain and idle show.
Ah, I hunger, oh I hunger, in a way I cannot hide
For a platter heaped with sausage like the kind my mother fried.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

Ada Tuttle's name has been added to the list of Corner sisters.

Calla Lily: Many thanks. It is always handy to have.

POSSIBILITIES IN SMALL QUANTITIES.

Dear Social Corner: It is often a great [illegible] to continue serving a leftover [illegible] as well as the taste [illegible] by it. This may [illegible] cold meat that has [illegible] through continuous [illegible] eaten has had [illegible] or it may be [illegible] and covered with [illegible]. A little stale apple [illegible] appearance until [illegible] seems to be likely to cause some member of the family to "sour" on the whole affair for years to come. Fresh apple should always be made into a dessert to be [illegible] and finished on the same day. It may not become tainted [illegible] that day, but it will develop a [illegible] odor that is apt to result in turning the family against this valuable food.

The [illegible] endless regarding the use of [illegible] food, but perhaps the most [illegible] reason to such practice is that it reduces the variety of foods on [illegible] and serve and be sure of a [illegible] There are endless ways of [illegible] and meat. Leftover [illegible] chopped [illegible] or made into a scallop. Dry [illegible] eaten too heavily of meat [illegible] made from meat and vegetables combined have an advantage [illegible] using the leftovers. Dried [illegible] made into a "bread" pudding with very little labor, and with a bit of inventiveness a new dessert is the result. Add that cup of stale apple sauce to your meat or fish stuffing and then "taste and see." Pick your cold fish into bits and reheat in the egg sauce as, lacking the egg, use it in a cracker and milk escallop on fishcakes. If the family seem to be slighting the fishcakes, next time try adding a little chopped boiled beet, as this makes it into a new dish.

Bits of dried cheese should be soaked in a little cream, then beaten into a paste flavored with salt, paprika and a pinch of mustard, or it may be softened with mayonnaise. Serve on toasted crackers or fill the grooves of tender stalks of celery.

All cold [illegible] make into delicious salads by adding French dressing, boiled dressing or mayonnaise. Serve with hot buttered white bread or brown bread toast.

One cup of canned corn stirred into the breakfast omelet changes the routine. Before folding the omelet, try spreading it with reheated mashed potato and see how the family likes it.

Use cold cocoa in place of milk in gingerbread for a change.

A neglected dish of dried peach sauce can be turned into a delicious fruit butter with the addition of tart apple and a handful of raisins. Add water and brown sugar.

Use the remnant of a can of pineapple, berries or other soft fruits in a pudding sauce. Flavor with butter and lemon.

I hope Anastasia will see this and then write and let us know where she is keeping herself.

SUGGESTION ABOUT BIRTHDAY DATES.

Dear Cornerites: I have said every week for four months I was going to write and fully intended to after my shower of postcards on my birthday Nov. 25, so please all accept thanks for cards, flowers and gifts. It was like a Christmas to me. I want to thank the members of Club No. 2 for their gift of money in gold to me. It surely did surprise me up to the last word and I want to tell you what I did with it. I put that and some birthday and Christmas money together and bought a lovely electric table lamp. I call it my community lamp. I do thank you all for your kind thoughts and appreciation of me and trust I shall work and be as faithful in the future as I've tried to be in the past in my work for Club No. 2's monthly gatherings.

To a Social Corner Member: I thank you for my calendar, also for continuing me on your calendar gift list. I have one of the first that I interested Reader sent out as long as he lived each year and every one put away perfect. These I keep also, and again I thank you for it.

To the shut-ins I wish to say that when the spring weather comes I hope you will all be able to come out and meet with us.

To all those who have lost dear ones my sympathy is with you one and all.

Grandma H's Family: Won't you try and come in with us. It will do you good and I'm sure it will do us good also. Our car is up for the winter or you would have seen us for a breezy call.

Kitty Lou: I have my thread receiver on my sewing machine. I find it handy. Thanks for it.

Crimson Rambler: I knew it was getting towards sprouting time and you would blossom out. Glad to see a letter from you. Hope more of our No. 2 members will write as well as the other club and new members.

Aunty No. 3: I'll bring that sample Feb. 7. Bring along a ball of No. 10 or 15 to copy it. It is easy and pretty.

Sorry I. J. B.'s bubby is in poor health.

Well, I'll ring off and give space to others by reminding all of the monthly meeting at Buckingham Memorial of Club No. 2 on the first Wednesday in February, the 7th. Don't forget to bring to the hostess all you promised to make the dinner a success. Wishing you all a healthy, happy and prosperous new year.

CALLA LILY (Nov. 25).

P. S.—How would it be for each to sign the date of the month our birthday comes beside our pen name when writing? So many ask for them.

SAVING FOR SEED.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank the Social Corner member who sent me the beautiful calendar. I am never tired of looking at it, for it is a picture of the place I love the best—the country. Thank you must know of my liking. I am going to have it framed. The seed catalogues are coming in now, and I am spending all my spare time looking them over. They are very enticing and if I ordered all I would like to I would need about ten acres of land to plant. As I was reading one of them this year it reminded me of an instance in my girlhood. I was always pestering my father for a garden, so he let me have a small piece of ground with the understanding that I was to take all the care of it and do it well. So I dug it up and raked it, and spent every minute I could on it. Then I did not know where my seed were to come from. As it happened one of our neighbors wasn't very well and I used to wash her dishes for her, and she gave me ten cents. I showed it to my father and he said save it for seed. Well, my head being so full of garden I thought that was the kind of seed he meant, so I more than hustled to earn more money. In the meantime a seed catalogue came and I studied it and picked out all I could for one dollar. Then I had both vegetables and flower seed, mostly inexpensive packages. Well, when my list was complete I showed it to my father and he asked me how I was going to pay for them. Why, I said, I've earned a dollar. You told me to save the ten cents for seed and I have. Now it is a dollaar, and that will pay for the seed. He then explained what he meant by saving for seed, but I've never forgotten the terrible disappointment it was to me. He gave me seed enough for my little garden, but it was not the same, and it always seems to me when I order seed that I am always trying to make up for a small girl's disappointment.

I wish to thank Kitty Lou for her remembering me with a New Year card and for the kind thought on it.

SCARCITY OF CALENDARS.

Dear Social Corner Editor: I wish to express my hearty thanks for the calendar as a pleasant Social Corner reminder for another year. Calendars are growing scarce since they are used less as a means of advertising. We used to look around at New Year's time for the fine pictures we often saved after the calendar pad was gone by. Now we never find an insurance company putting out calendars to any extent, and less and less the business men. I expect it is because the daily paper and other periodicals enter the average home more than they used to. I can look back to the time of the daily being a great luxury seldom seen except when brought by a visiting relative from the city. Now in our little neighborhood of people with moderate means the daily is in nearly every home. And we get our advertising now in our daily papers.

I always depend upon the calendar that comes with The Bulletin of Jan. 1st for reference on my kitchen wall. As there are no sheets to be torn off I mark the dates we wish to remember later on in the year. Usually I put a note on the margin to classify the date. It takes the place of a diary record.

As I like to pass on, when I write, the things that have helped me since the last letter, I want to mention two sandwich fillings a friend taught me to make for an afternoon tea I was serving for a club at my home. As we are poultry keepers I planned to use egg and chicken. In the egg that I mashed with a fork and seasoned with salt, pepper, cream and a bit of mustard. I put chopped stuffed olives and in the chicken that was ground in a food chopper and seasoned with salt, pepper, sage and cream I put celery that was also put through the food chopper. When we came to pass cake the president said "We don't want cake; we want more sandwiches."

I was most interested in North Dakota's letter. Wish we had some of that grain.

With all best wishes to you all.

FEEDING THE BIRDS.

Dear Social Corner: At the risk of taking more space than I should, I must speak for the birds. How many of you are feeding them this hard winter? Or are you willing to let the Boy Scouts and the state do it all?

Just to satisfy my own curiosity this morning I measured the crumbs from my table and the bread board. There was one-third of a cup. Most people throw them in the stove or the garbage. That is a small amount, isn't it? But multiply that by five thousand families and 365 days and think of the birds you could feed. If you are not willing to give a little time and effort to help either animals or people in distress you are just as much a miser as if you hoarded your money; and this winter is one of real distress for the wild animals and birds. When crows will come right to the door to pick up crumbs you may be sure the birds are hungry.

Those of you who have children throw away lots of little pieces of bread and other things that the birds would love to get. If you haven't any good place to throw these things put them in a paper bag and the next time you go anywhere near a park or where there is any possible chance of birds being and take them along. Most of you have one or more friends who live in the country too, who would be glad to give your dry stuff to the little animals. I started in feeding one blue jay. Now I am feeding four blue jays, two crows, two chipmunks, a gray squirrel and a flock of small that I know of and I don't know how many others I may be feeding, and you may be sure I am getting lots of enjoyment out of it. In the morning as soon as I get my family started to school and work I feed my wild animals. If for any reason I am late with my donation the jays alight on the tree near the porch and scold me vigorously. I was curious to know how they managed the pieces of bread I threw out but until this morning I didn't get a chance to see as they have taken a piece and flown away; but this morning one was too hungry so stayed on the tree near the porch and put the piece of bread on the limb and held it there with his claw and tore it to pieces with many acrobatic contortions. It was great fun watching him.

Last fall hickory nuts were very plentiful the children gathered a bushel, leaving at least several bushel on the ground for the squirrels. Now the snow is so deep they are getting more fun throwing them over to the chipmunks and squirrels than they would to eat them. The children have plenty of milk and eggs so do not need the nuts.

I suppose some of you think that the crows will reward me this summer by eating my corn. But they will not for when I plant corn I shall dip it in a solution of pyrox and they will not touch it. Crows know a lot. The pyrox is easier and cleaner to use than tar and the corn can be planted with a planter.

While talking about birds I must tell you of a cat I had. I had watched her closely and never knew her to catch a bird until six years old. Then one day she brought a little fledgeling in to her kittens. I took it away from her and whipped her for the first time in her life. She seemed very much surprised. I laid the bird on the floor and every time she tried to get it I whipped her. I loved the cat dearly but made up my mind I must not let her catch birds. Finally she went out and in ten minutes she was back with another one. I felt so badly I cried but I whipped her again. I found out afterwards she got them from a nest which had fallen to the ground. The second time she was rather disgusted at me so went out again and in five minutes she came in and laid a little green snake at my feet. I forgot to mention that everything she caught she always brought to me to pet and praise her for. I was so worked up over the birds that I laughed and cried together at the snake; not from fear, for my son was always bringing them home in his pocket; and once we tried to make one of them drink some milk, but it was too afraid. I kept the cat three years more before she died and she never brought another bird. Now don't try to tell me she probably ate them for though she knew more than any cat I ever saw I don't believe she would bring everything else to me and eat the birds away from the house. She used to lie on the porch in the summer and let the chickens run all over her. When they got too fresh she would spit and growl at them and get up and walk away, sometimes slapping them with her paw.

To break a cat of catching chickens, feed them well, giving plenty of meat and milk and when you have a real ugly hen with chickens shut the cat in the coop with her. I have cured many cats this way so know it will work. I love cats but will not allow them to catch chickens or birds.

Someone gave my little girl a bantam chicken this winter. As all our small coops are buried under ice and snow we keep it in the kitchen in a box. For some time now it has been singing as if it were getting ready to lay so we have been feeding it scraps of meat and other egg food to help it along. The other morning he (she) got up and crowed vigorously and has done so several times since, but he looks like a hen so we have named him Peter Jane and are now waiting patiently for him (her) to either lay or lie.

THE WRITING BOOKS AND ARITHMETIC OF YEARS AGO

Dear Editor, Sisters and Friends of the Social Corner: This is the first letter I have written to the Corner this year. But you are not forgotten. First I wish to thank Kitty Lou for her kindness in sending me a New Year's card, also the Social Corner member who sent me that pretty calendar. It is indeed a lovely one and I have it in my room.

I was interested in reading Grandma Gray's letter when she wrote about the writing books in school years ago when we were girls. Those writing books were made at home and carried to school. The teacher wrote the copy and we followed the best we could. But I can say with truthfulness that my writing didn't look much like the copy.

I have a Daboll's arithmetic that my grandfather studied when he went to school over one hundred years ago. There is one example in it that always was a favorite with me. It is:

"Just sixteen yards of German serge
For ninety dimes had I,
How many yards of this same cloth
Will fourteen eagles buy."

I suppose it is because it was in rhyme that it took my fancy more than it would if it had been prose.

It used to be so interesting to hear my grandfather tell of his schooldays both as a scholar and teacher.

Best wishes and a happy New Year to all.

COVE LEDGE THE "GHOST HOUSE OF WEQUETEQUOCK

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: About three miles from Westerly on the Stonington road stands a cluster of ancient dwellings, bearing the musical old Indian name of Wequetequock, one of those homesteads through local events once known as the "Ghost House," but now as "Cove Ledge."

Each of these old places, according to local history, enjoys its peculiar traditions, which, notwithstanding their obscure origin, lends to them an atmosphere of interest and importance. The prosaic foundation of the story of the "Ghost House" was that of the owner himself, who, clad in ghostly raiment routed the nightly visitors that came from the neighboring village and frequented the lonely terraced steps leading to his house.

But no more beautiful location along the shore could be found than that of "Cove Ledge." An ideal New England homestead built by a sea rover, Captain James Palmer, in the early days of New England, when the way from Stonington to Westerly was marked by the usual winding country road.

The tides of Wequetequock cove ebbed and flowed then, as now, a few feet from its doors, and across the waters the dip lines of the sandy peninsula, extending northward from the Watch Hill mainland, stayed the ocean line.

The writer oftimes wonders from whence the musical names which the Indians gave to these inlets originated and their deep, specific meaning. Was it the spirit of the elements, the winds, the waters, the clouds or natural orientation that suggested to these supposed savages, the true people of our country, the names so well befitting these haunting, sheres?

This lover of the sea built his home on an eminence overlooking Wequetequock cove, so that he might ever look far out over the sound, and fill it with the treasures of the deep and curiosities gathered from foreign lands. From the sun-parlors, extending from either side of the house like wings, may be seen the long breaking tides of the ocean, and above the irregular indentations of Wequetequock cove. Within speaking distance oyster beds, clams, crabs, lobsters and blue fish may be obtained in sufficient quantity to at any time furnish the individual ingredients of an old-fashioned shore dinner. "Cove Ledge" today offers the same genuine hospitality to its visitors, and the writer will long remember the feast of crab in last late October, fresh from the waters of Wequetequock cove.

But the sweet old time romances have left their misty imprint on the imagination of the stranger, even when the hard practical every day life has obliterated from the mind the memory of the traditions that were so real and serious to those who lived in those early days, and so the idealist the phantom shadow of the ghost may be seen floating down the street in the twilight, waving its hands in grotesque imagery, and beyond, across the waters of Wequetequock cove, the moonlight breaking.

Today the ghostly vision might walk unnoticed along the whitened roadside, and its floating raiment might vie with the silvery glitter of the ice-locked cove, but yonder twinkling lights from the various lighthouses and lightships dance on the waters in fantastic shapes, and the fairy tale is again repeated of the "Ghost House" on Wequetequock cove.

THE LITTLE SPINSTER.

FUN TIEING QUILTS.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: While I have been silent for some time I will again take up my pen, and before I forget it will say I sang 50 years ago the song, Be Kind to the Loved Ones at Home, sent in by Salome, and I still remember some of the verses. And I also had a dime silver bracelet and it is still in existence.

One of our sisters mentioned piecing bed quilts. Now they are not in style, but well I remember the fun I had when I lived in Jewett City 40 years ago. Friends used to exchange pieces of calico and gingham for quilts or comfortables. A number of my friends got up a surprise on your sister L. After dinner they tied off two quilts. Oh, such fun! Another time, as I had a large family—five boys and two girls—there were always garments to be made. So one of my dearest friends was Dr. Soule, suggested to Mrs. Bishop an ever-ready worker, that a few of my friends help me do some sewing. Nine ladies came, some were basting, others cutting and two machines were running. I knew they were coming, so had a baked bean supper, home-made mince pie, crullers, coffee and tea. I will give you the names of some of my quilt patterns: The Drunkard's Path; The Broken Plate; Log Cabin; Bear's Foot; Wedding Ring; Mrs. Cleveland's Choice; Road to California; The Album; The Double T; Steps to the Court House; Broken Tumbler; An Umbrella.

I wish to thank Social Corner Member for my lovely calendar.

Wishing our editor and his staff, also the Corner sisters a happy and prosperous New Year.

I am yours for good luck,

POCAHONTAS.

CARE OF FOOD.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: A great saving is made by the proper care and use of cooked and uncooked food. The first and great consideration is perfect cleanliness. The ice chest and cellar should be cleansed once a week; the jars in which bread is kept must be washed, scalded and dried thoroughly at least once a week. When cooked food is placed in the ice chest or cellar it should be perfectly cool; if not, it will absorb an unpleasant flavor from the atmosphere of either place. That I learned from experience. Meat should not be put directly on ice, as the water draws out the juices. Always place it in a pan and then set the pan on the ice.

The habit which many people have of putting steaks and chops, etc., in the wrapping paper on ice, is a very bad one. When purchasing meat I always have the trimmings sent home, as they help to make soups and sauces. Every scrap of meat and bone left from roasts and broils should be saved for the soup pot. Trimmings from ham, tongue, corned beef, etc., should all be saved for the many relishes they will make. Cold fish can be used in salads and warmed up in many palatable ways. In fact, nothing that comes on the table is enjoyed more than the dishes an artistic cook will make from the odds and ends left from a former meal. By artistic cook I mean not a professional, but a woman who believes in cleanliness and hot dishes, and there is something in the appearance as well as the taste of the food.

I always keep a number of plates for cold food, that each kind may be kept by itself. The fat trimmings from beef, pork, veal, chickens and fowl should be tried out while fresh, and then strained. The fowl and chicken fat should be kept in a pot by itself for shortening. I think it as good as butter.

The skimming from soups, boiled beef and fowl I clarify. I cook them very slowly until the sediment falls to the bottom and there's not a shadow of a bubble. It can then be strained in the jar with the other fat; but if strained while bubbles remain there's water in it and it will spoil quickly. The fat from sausages can be saved. That is nice to season corn bread, or to fry potatoes. Brown bread warmed up in sausage fat is fine. It is nice to have a pot to keep the fat in which articles of food have been fried. When you have finished frying, set the kettle in a cool place for about 20 minutes, then pour the fat into the pot through a strainer (fine), being careful to keep back the sediment, which I scrape into the soap grease. In this way you can try in the same fat a dozen times, while if you're not careful to strain it each time the crumbs will burn and blacken the fat.

Occasionally when I have finished frying, I cut up a potato or so and put in the boiling fat. Set it on the back of the stove for about fifteen minutes and that clarifies the fat. Many people use lard fat for cooking purposes; and if there is no objection to the flavor, it is nice to fry potatoes, eggs, etc., but I think it should always be mixed with other kinds of fat.

The fat from mutton, lamb, geese turkeys or ducks, will give an unpleasant flavor to anything with which it is used. I think the best place for these is with the soap grease. Every particle of soup and gravy should be saved, as a small quantity of either adds a great deal to many, many little dishes. The quicker food cools the longer it keeps. This should be particularly remembered with soups and bread.

KITTY LOU.

ENJOYS ALL THE LETTERS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As I am a member of the Corner and wish to do my duty I will write a few lines. I enjoy the letters very much and always find so many nice points in them all for us—good recipes, messages of good cheer, kindness and thankfulness.

What a wonderful old fashioned winter we are having! We quite often see a sleigh go by and hear the merry jingle of the sleigh bells. I can remember when I was a little girl I used to walk along the side of the road going to school, on high mounds of snow much higher than I was. We lived in a beautiful old fashioned farmhouse and my dear dad (who has since passed on) took care of the farm and all the livestock. He was very fond of cows and horses.

Do any of the sisters have a hard job to get coals? We do and are very thankful to have one ton at a time. We have always had before this winter at least one ton in the bin but now when we have a bag we think we have a lot. It does seem too bad to be bothered so with coal and it makes it so dreadful hard for poor people.

Does it ever bother any of the sisters what to have to eat? I was trying to think what we would have one day lately and my dear mother (who lives with me) made me a meal pie. Oh! my! wasn't it dandy! Wish you could have seen me eat. It was lovely and tasted so much as things did when I was a girl. I tell her it tastes just like ma.

Well, another year has begun and nearly one month gone by. How fast time flies by! I wish to put out a hand of comfort and cheer to those who have passed through sorrow because of dear ones taken from them.

I wish to thank the Social Corner sister for the nice calendar. I have it in my room and it makes me think of the Corner every time I see it. It is just as sweet as it can be. Wish I knew who sent it.

I will send in a little poem that has helped me many times when I have been blue entitled Strength Sufficient:

Oh, ask thou not how shall I bear the burden of tomorrow; Sufficient for the day its evils and its sorrows.
God surplanteth by the way.
Strength sufficient for today.

Best wishes for the Corner.

GREETINGS FROM RED ROSE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I don't feel just like writing this morning but think I ought to help fill up the page so will send greetings.

I want to thank the Social Corner member for the pretty calendar I received last week. And yellow, too.

Red Clover: How are you? I hear you have been a grandmother. If so, I think you are old enough to join the Ladies' Aid.

Student: Wish I had known you were on the car that day. We would have had a little visit. I didn't have the yellow handkerchief with me but will try and have it with me the next time I see you. Oh, but it is pretty and the first colored one I had. The peppermints are still doing good business and they are passed out one at a time. Hope you won't be too busy but what you can be at the next meeting.

Cady: You should have been to the last whist. There was a cake. Saw the quilt. Some colors! Hope it will be so I can go to the next one. Have you learned to play yet? Won't have to next time as you will be so busy setting down my score.

Calla Lily: Missed you at the last meeting. Hope that cold is better.

Scottie: Of course I can make salad.

Robin: Hope it will be so you can come to some of the meetings this year.

Joan: Have you a sled? You might slide right to my home. Hope you are feeling better.

RED ROSE.

OLD HYMNS ARE LIKE OLD

Dear Sister: It is a long time since I ave written to the Corner, but for a long time was unable to write at all on account of a sprained shoulder and bruised arm caused by a tumble down the cellar stairs and even now my writing is none too good. I spent the month of November with my right arm in a sling and had some doubts as to ever being able to write again. There seemed to be a run of similar accidents about that time, for I read several instances of people falling down stairs and of broken, dislocated and wrained shoulders from various causes.

"Misery loves company," and in a way it is some comfort to feel you are not the only one in trouble.

Jim's letter about the old hymns touched a responsive chord in my heart. They are all like old friends to me, for I was brought up with them so to speak. My mother sang soprano, or treble as they used to call it then in the choir of the church in dear old Westminister during my childhood days. She could also sing a good alto on occasions and taught me at a tender age to sing soprano to her alto and on Sunday afternoons as the day waned and merged into twilight we usually sang many of those old hymns. And the old aunts who lived in the other part of the house and who had been good singers in their day would often come and join us, or some of the neighbors. In later years, when I played the church organ I still kept up my friendship with them and certain ones seem to belong to certain places and times and are always associated with them. "O Day of Rest and Gladness," and "Safety Another Week," are sacred to the saintly memory of Rev. S. H. Carter, who requested them for opening hymns at the morning service at least half the time. "America," always belonged to Thanksgiving day and I always feel like singing it on that day whether I go to church or not; for it always used to be sung then. "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," belonged to the missionary meetings and in the prayer meetings if there happened to be plenty of good singers. "Sweet Hour of Prayer," swept upward till it seemed as if it must reach the throne of grace and who could forget the majestic sweep of "Nearer, My God to Thee," when sung by a large congregation, the tender beauty of "Abide With Me," "Fast Falls the Eventide," or "Lead Kindly Light," especially if there is a good tenor voice singing which some are as scarce as angels' visits?

Then came the Gospel hymns, but although I know and love them all there is none which will last through the years like the old favorite hymns.

On Easter Sunday the old Easter anthem was hunted out of an air almost forgotten tune book and usually by the organist and choir were nearly breathless by the time they got through but it made one feel really that "Christ was risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept," when it ended with a grand triumphant "Hallelujah." Or still earlier date was a quaint old hymn sometimes sung by the old people:

"Come my beloved haste away,
Cut short the hours of thy delay.
Fly like a youthful hart or roe,
Over the hills where spices grow."

Some of the sisters must have attended the singing schools that used to be held in country places years ago where a singing teacher used to come to the school house, or a hall as might be, once a week or two in the winter and teach the rising generation to sing by note: do re, mi, fa, sol, la, si, do, and to keep time by so many beats, down, left, right, up. I attended one taught by Professor W. O. Turner, whom no doubt some of you knew, and living to be a very old man, only passed on to the better country within the last two years or so.

With best wishes to all.

IGLA.

MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR.

Dear Social Cornerites: How lovely to have the sun showing its face after so many stormy days. But how much we have to be thankful for in this land of ours, with comforts of food and clothing and warm homes, when so many are suffering the want of them. God gives us strength and grace to help those needing our care, and help from day to day. This has been my prayer from my heart as I have advanced in years, and so often saddened with the sorrow of friends, and it's hard sometimes to say God's will be done.

I wish to thank the Social Corner member who so kindly sent me the pin to assist out "Aspasia Anne" and well sweep carried me back to my younger days when I drew water from the depths of a well with the well sweep. I also saw the well which gave rise to the song of the "Old Oaken Bucket." It is situated in Marshfield, Mass. It was the home of Daniel Webster, too.

Although personally thanked for the prize awarded me, I wish to acknowledge also by way of a letter to the Corner the receipt of the yellow ship, our letters are thought worthwhile Sort of nice so to speak to feel that our letters are thought worthy a prize, though far from our thought at the time of jotting down our lines, coaxing as they do so often from memories of long ago.

I was interested in the letter written by Ethelyn in regard to smocking as I think it a handsome way of doing a dress. I had at the time of my marriage a brown silk made that way. It was something new at that time and I remember the dressmaker had quite a time getting it smocked so as to come right. I had Persian trimming on the sleeves and waist. I am glad the style is coming in again. However, I think it hard to do it by mere written directions.

May the year 1923 keep the rest of our Corner sisters well and happy. So many have passed on.

TROTTIE.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I am copying this story from The Maine Farmer. I thought it pretty good, so am sending it in, and trust to see it on the Social Corner page:

Many speeches have been given from time to time on why John leaves the old home farm. Perhaps some of these addresses have hit the mark, to a certain extent. But no one can tell the story as well as the boy himself. Three years ago a calf club was organized in Winnebago county, Wisconsin. During the week of organization many meetings were held in the schoolhouses, and at such meetings the young people often conducted the programs.

One evening during a very interesting meeting a boy of 12 years was asked to recite, and this is the story they heard:

Johnny bought himself a pig
With money he had earned.
He named her Nell and fed her well,
And lots of tricks she learned;
But Nellie grew to be a hog,
And finer there were few;
Then father up and sold that hog—
And kept the money, too!

Next, Johnny got a little calf.
In pay for hoeing corn:
He loved that calf, the calf loved him
As sure as you are born:
But callie grew to be a cow,
As all good callies do;
Then father up and sold that cow—
And kept the money, too!

Now, Johnny loved his little colt,
But father loved the colt.
So Johnny left the old home farm
And struck out for himself.
Said Johnny's pa one summer's day:
"I often wonder why
These kids don't seem to like the farm,
The city is their cry.

"It always will be strange to me,"
"If only goes to show, though,
How ungrateful those kids are."
When Johnny heard what pa had said
He gave a bitter laugh,
And thought of those empty childhood days,
And of the pig and calf.

A great applause greeted the youngster when he had finished.

I enjoyed reading over those hymns mentioned by Jim, for they were sung by my grandparents, and I quite often play and sing them at twilight. I like your choice very much, Jim.

I see by The Courier you have plenty of snow. So have we—four feet on the level. As the winds from the north sweep down the lake, it fills the road up as fast as the town team opens it for about one-fourth of a mile. The black ducks which winter at Back bay, in Portland, are starving to death, as the water is all frozen up and they cannot get anything to eat.

BALSAM FIR.

CULTIVATE THE CORDIAL GREETING.

Dear Social Corner Pals: It is a beautiful day of sunshine and promise this morning. Who knows what opportunities may be unfolded to us before twilight and darkness creep in and bring it to a close.

There have not been any "drives" for a few weeks, but let us not be unprepared when they come. The church canvass may be the next one in order. If our neighbors or friends whose duty it becomes to call could be greeted with cheerful, cordial manner, it wouldn't matter so much if the pledge or gift were small or great. What you give does not mean what you think of the church so much as it does the estimate you place upon yourself. Emphasize the "good" morning or "good" afternoon and omit the usual "hard luck" or "so much to do for our own folks" stories. The one on the canvass has his or hers, and gives his "bit" beside. It would leave such a pleasant taste in one's mouth and place you so far above the ordinary plane. What we say to others in a complaining way reflects more upon ourselves, to our detriment, than anyone else. So let us be cheerful, talk cheerful, and thus make ourselves co-operatives in every good and worthy cause. The church and other worth while institutions could get along without us, but much better with us. Then isn't it a privilege to be a cogency in the community?

If those who pine would whistle,
If those who sigh would laugh,
The rose would outgrow the thistle,
The wheat would outrun the chaff.

—R. B.

I wish to acknowledge with thanks the calendar sent me last week by a Social Corner Member. Why the concealed identity? Shall be glad to know who you are when you see fit to tell me.

Just a word to the young mothers. Yours is a wonderful opportunity. May you have health with your wealth, to just live and love, and give.

Best wishes to all members and editor.

HOPE COBWEB.

WHY DON'T SOME OF THE OLD WRITERS WRITE?

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I want to apologize to the good editor for being so snappy when a letter appeared signed Black Eyed Susan by mistake.

Yellow Daisy: I am not red-headed although ode would think so, wouldn't they, by the way I fared up? Never mind, accidents will happen in the best regulated families, so we will forget it.

I took that pen name because my dear mother always called my little one Black Eyed Susie. So you see the name is dear to me for that reason.

Now I wish to thank a Social Corner sister for the very lovely little calendar I received last week. It's lovely and I wish I knew who in who.

To Kitty Lou: I say thank you. It is very cute and useful and I thank you for remembering me.

Perhaps sometime I will meet all the good sisters.

I often wonder why some of the old writers don't write. But of course not knowing any of them they perhaps have gone over.

Well some winter we have had, with snow, snow and more snow. To all those that like the old fashioned winter I wish them the joy of this one, but if I had my say, I'd have called a halt to it long ago.

They say it is never too late for good wishes, so I'll wish the editor and all a happy and prosperous year, and still be

BLACK EYED SUSIE.

A SURE CURE FOR CHILBLAINS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: The Cheerful Cherub says, "Here we stand, each one alone, upon the threshold of a year, adventuring in mystery, without the slightest trace or fear. And yet it seems as if we are always afraid of something, afraid our preserves will mold or our meat won't keep or the coast will see May into consumption. Well an ounce of preventive is worth a pound of cure. For chilblains cure use one ounce sal ammoniac dissolved in one cup of vinegar and bath with a soft cloth or gauze. It gives immediate relief and cures.

A good cough remedy is two cups of good flaxseed and boiled two hours until thick and white, but strain it. Take the juice and one stick of licorice, 2 cups sugar, and 2 lemons and boil until the licorice is all dissolved and put in a jar. It thickens as it gets cold. Take it as often as you think of it.

When putting citron in cake place it lengthwise of the pan and it will cut much nicer.

Pour boiling water on oranges and apples let them stand five minutes. This will cause the white lining of the orange and the apple peeling to come off very easily.

Clothespins boiled a few minutes and quickly dried once or twice a months become more durable.

If the snap comes off your glove, sew on a hook and eye.

A spoonful of white sugar in a batch of tea biscuits also in pie crust will give the crust a delicate brown.

The more you sift flour the lighter your pastry.

Soda and cream tartar are better for cake than baking powder as the latter dries the cake.

When frying doughnuts in deep fat drop a pared potato in the boiling grease. It will prevent grease from burning.

When you have finished rubbing the polish onto the brass pipes in your kitchen, instead of rubbing them with a cloth, take one of your old morning Bulletins and rub the pipes hard. The pipes look much brighter and it is a great saving on you hands.

If you have no regular poacher try muffin rings.

If you have a lot of recipes you wish to keep try fastening them together with a spring clothes pin.

ANOTHER CALL FOR TARDY WRITERS

Social Corner Editor and Friends: I am indeed glad to see old writers coming back again. Some of you have been silent as long as I. But I must thank a Social Corner member for the sweetest little calendar. I have seen. Please give me a clue as to who you are. I am practically a shut in this winter if I do go out I know what it costs.

Any one else who has bronchial asthma knows what it costs.

But the days fly by quickly with what I have to do and my "window chums" and Brain to keep me company. Spring will soon be here, and I will be better and hope to meet with you again. Now there are more old writers to hear from. I have lots to say, but will wait till next time. Wishing you all a prosperous new year

CANTERBURY BELL.

HOW TO WASH WOOLEN STOCKINGS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: I want to thank the Social Corner Sister for the sweet little calendar which I received. I found it on my desk, and of course was not only surprised by pleased. It has been placed in my home. It is not only ornamental, but useful, and is called The Rose Arbor. As I am a great lover of flowers it struck me just right.

I think all enjoyed the Christmas gathering at Franklin hall on the 17th. There was some laughter on opening the packages. After a fine dinner most all joined in a march which ended with a dance. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves, although the day was very disagreeable and stormy. More than 50 attended.

I had four pair of woolen stockings made, and found they were a pretty snug fit. I made up my mind that after washing they would shrink. My son asked me why I did not do as the boys were told to do in the army. Not to wring them. So on washing them I put up a short line over the kitchen range placing a pan on the back of the range to catch the water dripping from them and found they dried soft and did not shrink at all. We washed them at night, so in the morning they were dry, and so did not interfere with the use of the stove in the day time.

I wish all a very happy New Year.

Hope to see Olga, Lonesome Pine and Bachelor Maid at our next meeting.

Best wishes for all Social Corner sisters.

LAVENDER.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS

Dear Social Corner: Good morning one and all! Did any one say where is Neighbor Everready, who shouted for everyone to write, about this time last year?

Well here I am and just a line to wish you a prosperous and healthy new year.

Health being one of our greatest blessings if not the greatest I believe with that we can get out and hustle and be happy. I have been real busy ever since last September, so much so that I have only looked after my own Social Corner, and when I write four or five letters daily, why I guess the Corner hasn't had much from my pen.

My work is just doing little things for those about me who are ill. It was a delightful pleasure to be at Franklin hall the month.

Next month I hope as many as possible will be there with their very best heart as sisters, it's going to be St. Valentine's day. Hurrah for the fun, and I just hope I'll be there.

Keep in mind my line of work so I can fill your Easter orders, and right here let me thank all the sisters for their patronage at Christmas.

I'll hike over to the office now and mail this and take my daily amount of ozone.

GALES FERRY

The regular business meeting of the Village Improvement association Monday evening, Jan. 22, at 8 o'clock, at the Country club house, was called to order by Walter M. Buckingham, acting for the president, D. R. Povey, and adjourned at once, to listen to Mrs. Ellis from Connecticut Agricultural college. Mrs. Ellis gave a talk illustrated with stereopticon slides on practical improvements for small house grounds which she made interesting. Speaking first of landscape gardening as the art of making a picture, the first rule is to keep large open spaces on moderate sized lawns, plant shrubbery or low evergreens close to the house, screen unsightly buildings with trees or shrubs. Have the flower garden in the rear or at the side of the house, not directly in front.

Miss Edith Mansur clothing specialist, also from the State Agricultural college, gave the second and last lesson for this appointment in dressmaking at the home of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, chairman educational department, Village Improvement association, on Tuesday, Jan. 23. It was an all-day session.

The Gales Ferry Pinochle club and the Neighborhood Pinochle club have each furnished players to make the required number (14) to play a series of games with the Entre Nous Pinochle club of Uncasville. The first meeting was at the Country club house Tuesday evening, the 23d, the Uncasville team coming by automobile. The score was 29 to 19 in favor of the Gales Ferry clubs. The next meeting will be held at the clubhouse here on the evening of Jan. 30. The individual scores follow: Povey and Jennings 6-1, Avery Main and Mrs. Main 6-6, Mrs. Austin and M. Austin 4-3, Bennett and Lester 4-2, Miss Sargent and J. B. Satterlee 4-3, Mrs. Lester and Mrs. Jennings 4-3.

POETRY

SKYLARK.

How the blithe lark runs up the golden stair
That leans through cloudy gates from Heaven to Earth,
And all alone in the empyrean air
Fills it with jocund sweet tongue of mirth;
How far he seems, how far
With the light-upon-his wings,
Is it a bird, or star
That shines, and sings?

What matter if the day be dark and frore,
The sunbeam tells of other days to be,
And singing in the light that floods him o'er
In joy he overtakes Futurity;
Under the cloud-arches vast
He peeps, and sees behind
Great summer coming fast
Adown the wind.

And now he dives into a rainbow's rivers,
In streams of gold and purple he is drowned;
Shrilly the arrows of his song he shivers
As tho' the stormy drops were turned to sound.
And now he leaves thro',
He scales a cloudy tower;
Faintly, like falling dew,
His last notes shower.

Let every wind be hushed, that I may hear
The wondrous things he tells the world below,
Things that we dream of, he is watching near?
Hopes that we never dream he would bestow.
Alas! the storm hath roll'd
Back the gold gates again
Or surely he had told
All Heaven to men!

So the victorious poet sings alone,
And fills with light his solitary home
And thro' that glory sees new worlds foreshown,
And hears high songs, and triumphs yet to come;
He knows the use of Time,
With wealth of golden clouds
And makes the world to chime
On linked words.

What if his hair be gray, his eyes be dim,
If wealth forsake him and if friends be cold,
Wonder unbars her thousand gates to him;
Truth never fails, nor Beauty waxes old.
More than he tells his eyes
Behold his spirit hears
Of grief and joy and sigh-
ing for joy and tears.

Blest is the man who with the sound of song
Can charm away the heartache and its sting,
The frost of Penury and the stings of Wrong,
And drown the fatal whispers of Time.
Darker are the shades
Of Night tho' this be poor,
While Wonder, like the gods
Pass through his door.

Singing thou scalest Heaven upon thy wings,
Thou bearest a glad heart unto the skies,
We marvel how thy sunrise wells so
And sings the dusty earth to Paradise
I see thee wail along
Marge the sunny streams,
Upseen. I hear his song,
I see his dreams.
—Frederick Langbridge

LIFE.

I made a posy while the day ran by;
Here will I smell my remnant out, and tie
My life within this band.
But Time did beckon to the flowers and they
By noon most cunningly did steal away,
And withered in my hand.

My hand was next to them, and then my heart;
I took, like those, not marking, in good part;
Time gave commandment:
Who doth thy heart adorn,
Shall find no smell nor savor
Soon after my return.

Farewell, dear flowers! sweetly your time ye spent,
Fit while ye lived for smell or ornament,
And after death for cures.
I follow straight, without complaining or grief,
Since if my scent be good, I care not if it be as short as yours.

The cathedral of Metz will possess the famous chimes of sixty porcelain bells, of which so much has been said. It is said that the tone of these bells leaves nothing to be desired. As to their solidity, they seem to be of the first order. Until now no such use has been made of porcelain, a fact which will make of the chimes of Metz an unequalled curiosity. It is recalled, however, that at Meissen where the manufacture of the so-called "Dresden" china was carried on from 1710 to 1863, there is a house constructed of that material.

The house of representatives today emphatically, by viva voce vote, tabled a resolution ratifying the national prohibition amendment. The house leader spoke against the resolution and said it was useless to endeavor to inject this matter into the present general assembly and he, for one, was not going to be a party to any such asinine proceeding. Mr. Buckley pointed out that the resolution was dealt with two years ago and now lies in the office of the secretary of state. The resolution acted on today was introduced by Representative Vinton of Coventry.

A bill which would apparently legislate out of office Dr. Albert B. Meredit, state commissioner of education, was introduced in the state senate today by Senator John N. Brooks of Torrington.

The measure would take from the state board of education the power to appoint the secretary of the board and vest the power of appointment in the

MARKET WAS DULL

New York, Jan. 26—Unfavorable news developments abroad continued to curtail trading in today's stock market in which a number of industrials were pushed up on reports of large current earnings while others yielded to week-end profit taking, giving the market a somewhat spotty appearance at the close. Movements in the market are still dominated by domestic business conditions, activity centering largely shares or companies likely to resume or increase dividends.

The European financial community's reaction to the latest developments in the Ruhr was reflected in lower foreign exchange rates, demand sterling dropping from $4.65 3-8 to $4.64 1-2, French francs from 6.48 1-2 cents to 6.38 and Belgian francs from 5.86 1-2 to 5.76 1-2. German marks were quoted at only a very small fraction above the extreme low record which was 0.043 cents.

Consolidated gas was again the most active stock on the "big board", touching 69 3-8, or nearly a point above yesterday's best price, and then reacting to 67 3-4 for a net loss of 3-4. Studebaker, which was the next most active stock, was unchanged while Baldwin closed 1-2 higher at 134.

Independent steels were strong during the early part of the session but early gains were cancelled or materially reduced later. Bethlehem and Republic closed at fractional losses and Crucible and Gulf States moved to slightly higher ground while U. S. Steel Common was unchanged.

Kresge was the individual feature, establishing a new high record at 203 1-4, a net gain of 9 1-2 points. This advance discounted the 1922 earnings report, made public after the market closed, which showed net earnings of $6,616,417, equivalent to $35.52 a share on $18,236,200 common stock outstanding, as against net earnings of $3,462,033 in 1921. Equivalent to $20.35 a share on $16,101,200 shares of common stock outstanding.

Fisher body jumped 11 points to 186 on publication of an offer of W. C. Durant, automobile manufacturer, to buy the entire outstanding stock at $240 a share, despite the financial community's belief that the offer would not be accepted. The stock closed at 184. At the close of the market Mr. Durant, who has been selling Fisher Body stock on a partial payment plan, announced that he was ready to cancel the contracts of frightened investors, paying them $43 a unit or the equivalent of $215 a share, as against the purchasing price of $40 a unit.

Western Union was pushed up 4 1-2 points on reports of highly improved earnings while gains of 2 points or more also were recorded by Conley Tin Foil, Beechnut, Stewart Warner Speedometer, White Motor, Postum Cereal, Brooklyn Edison, Van Raalte Silk, Bethlehem Steel A, American Cotton Oil and Chicago Pneumatic Tool.

Pierce Arrow issues slumped on the announcement of new financing, the common dropping 1 3-8 points and the preferred, 3. Realizing sales caused recessions of 2 1-2 in Woolworth and 1 1-4 in United Fruit.

Rail shares were inclined to ease, Baltimore & Ohio was in good demand, closing nearly a point higher on speculative expectation of a good December earnings report. Southern Railway also was active, closing at 30, a net decline of 1-2. Gains of 1 to 3 points were registered by Frisco preferred, Lackawanna, Delaware & Hudson and Reading first preferred Jersey Central droped 4 1-2 points.

Call money held at 4 1-2 per cent. throughout the day. There was a lessening of activity in the time money market, brokers bidding 4 1-2 per cent. for all dates but being obliged to pay 4 3-4 for the longer maturities. Little business was transacted in the shorter maturities. Commercial paper is owing in fair volume, the bulk of prime names commanding 4 1-2 per cent. for 4 and 6 months maturities.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 26—Over subscription of the $25,000,000 issue of 5 1-2 per cent. consolidated mortgage bonds of the Bethlehem Steel company and $10,000,000 refunding and general mortgage bonds of the Republic Iron and Steel company; new low records in some of the French bonds and irregularity in the general list were the chief developments in today's bond market.

Selling of French 7 1-2s, which dropped 1 point to 88 3-4; a new low, and French 8s, which duplicated their previous low at 92, was predicated on the latest developments in the Ruhr, including the publishing of estimates of the cost of French occupation. These bonds suffered from lack of buying power rather than from pressure of liquidation. Paris-Lyons-Mediterranian 6s established a new low at 66 1-4 and Szecho-Slovakian 8s at 83 while Bordeau 6s and Marseilles 6s each sold at 70 1-2, their previous low. Prague 7 1-2s and Framerican 7 1-2s moved up a point each and Jurgen 6s, 1 3-4.

Liens of copper companies were strong on reports of an advance in the price of the red metal to 14 7-8 cents a pound. At [illegible] smelting 5s and 7s, while copper 7s gained 1 and 1 5-8 points, respectively. [illegible] bonds of independent steel companies reacted on the announcement of new financing. Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s and purchase money 5s dropping 1 3-4 and 1 1-2 ints, respectively.

Speculative railroad mortgages were firm, gains of a point or more being recorded by St. Paul convertibles 4 1-2, Chicago and Great Western 4s, and international and Great Northern adjustment certificate 6s. Brooklyn Rapid Transit Issues, particularly the 5s, were strong. U. S. government issues were irregular, moving within a radius of 4 cents on $100.

Total sales (par value) were $19,697,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 26—To a large extent the course of the wheat market today reflected developments touching German's ability to obtain funds for the importation of foodstuffs. Prices were weak most of the time, but were rallying at the last. The close was unsettled at 1.4c net decline to a like advance with May 1.17 1-8 to 1.17 1-4 and July 1.11 5-8 to 111 3-4. Corn ended 1-8 to 1-4; oats finished a shade off to 1-4c. Up and provisions unchanged to 13c lower.

Downturns in the price of wheat began at the opening, with sellers taking advantage of a statement from Secretary Hoover suggesting that French occupation of the Ruhr was likely to diminish the purchasing power of Germany and to bring about curtailment of wheat exports from the United States. Rainy weather in the domestic winter wheat belt, especially Kansas and Oklahoma tended further to make values decline, and so, likewise, did word of heavy exports from competing countries indicating that world shipments this week would total as much as 15,000,000 bushels.

On the other hand, subsequent gossip that German was feeling out American food stuffs gave the bull side of the wheat market some renewal of cours during the final hour of trading. Closing out of spreads between Chicago and Winnipeg with the buying being done here counted also as a price uplifting factor in Chicago as the day drew to a finish.

Corn and oats rallied with wheat and as a result of news that contrary to earlier dispatches the Argentine corn crop outlook was still adverse, no moisture having been supplied except light showers.

Packers selling weakened the provision market despite highed quotations on hogs.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The freshet which struck the city last week passed on during the week leaving behind it, broken dams, torn up road beds and damaged or destroyed bridges. Items of interest for the week 1873 are taken from the Bulletin of that year as follows:

Monday, January 20, 1873—The freshet which struck the city Saturday continued over Sunday and for a time there was great danger that the dam at Greeneville would be swept away. The water was eight feet deep on the dam and the water swept over it in a clear unbroken wave. But fifty feet below it where the breakwater is first felt the water swirled and tossed huge cakes of ice and logs being hurled into the air by the force of the water. The water however had fallen four feet Sunday and the danger removed somewhat. The damage to the Norwich Water Power company alone however will reach $4,000. The trains on the Vermont Central road are still held up because of undermined tracks but the workmen are busy and it will not be long before traffic will again be normal. The ice is still grounded on the middle ground in the Thames but otherwise the river is clear.

An accident to a freight train on the Northern road delayed the boat train due here at 9 o'clock Saturday night so that it did not arrive until about 11 o'clock Sunday morning.

The City of Norwich reached her dock here yesterday being the first boat to make the trip up the river since December 22nd.

Tuesday, January 271, 1873—Breed hall was never so crowded as it was last evening, nor has it ever held a better audience. Mrs. Scott-Siddon's name was sufficient to attract wide attention and her readings were on the same high plane of those she had given here on her first visit.

The Greeneville Burns club will celebrate the one hundred and fourteenth anniversary day of the birth of Scotland's poet, at Owaneco Hall, Greeneville, next Saturday evening.

Captain Whaley has taken the prize for the biggest and best string of pickerel brought in by local fishermen this winter.

Jewett & Company were given the contract for printing the Norwich Memorial volume on the Civil war.

Wednesday, January 22, 1873—At the annual meeting of the New London Mutual Fire Insurance company the following officers were elected, president, E. F. Parker; secretary, John L. Devotion; directors, E. F. Parker, C. H. Osgood, L. F. S. Foster, John L. Devotion, Henry H. Tracy, John A. Morgan, D. P. Coon, Benjamin Durfey, F. St. M. Andrews, William L. Brewer and H. Hobart Roath.

At the annual meeting of the State Temperance Union held Tuesday at New Britain Norwich people were elected to office as follows: President, William A. Buckingham. It is reported that over 14,000 belong to Temperance societies in Connecticut.

The Rev. B. F. Joy has resigned the pastorate of the Preston Baptist church to take effect immediately.

Thursday, January 23, 1873—The largest dancing party of the season was given last evening when the Hook and Ladder boys gave a masquerade. Eight hundred tickets were sold and the hall was crowded to suffocation. Forty sets were formed for the first quadrille and as the evening passed the crowd seemed to increase rather than decrease and the galleries were filled. The boys did things up in their usual style.

The Town street district reports but an increase of 17 children over last year's figures. In all there are 312 children between the ages of four and sixteen.

Daniel Jackson of Colchester, horse thief and desperado was brought to this city yesterday by Constable L. A. Loring of Colchester. Jackson has been stealing horses in many places other than Norwich and his arrest gratifies many people who have been in daily fear of losing their stock. He only recently completed a six year prison sentence, and besides stealing horses has threatened to kill Frank Harris of Salem.

The barn of George Sanger in Canterbury was burned to the ground yesterday together with twelve tons of hay, four cows and an ox. The loss is $1500, insurance $400 The fire was of incendiary origin, and it is suspected that it was in revenge for certain prosecutions of liquor dealers.

Friday, January 24, 1873—A new ropewalk is nearly completed on the side of that owned by A. W. Prentice and Co., recently destroyed by fire. The new ropewalk will be larger and more up to date than the old one.

Work has been resumed on the foundation of the old building torn down at the corner of Water and Market street, for the widening of the street.

The freshet which struck Norwich Saturday is now over. The Thames is now entirely free from ice and boats are making the usual runs up the river. The damage to the dam at the Falls and at Greeneville is being repaired and workmen in the employ of the Vermont Central road have filled in the roadbed near the Richmond Stove Co., torn out by the flood and trains are again making their trips over the road.

Saturday, Jan. 25, 1873—The two Canterbury men charged with burning the barn of George Sanger a few nights ago causing a loss of $2,000 were brought before Justice Palmer in Canterbury yesterday. Each of them was bound over to the next term of the superior court under $4,000 bonds, and failing to give bail were committed to jail. It is alleged that the men fired the barn for revenge.

The bridge over the Willimantic river near Merrow Station and the Natchaug bridge were carried away by a freshet last week.

At the meeting of the court of common council held last evening the street committee reported on the enlargement of Market street. It was reported that the cost of the improvements was estimated at $13,000 and on motion of Councilman Gould $10,000 of this was ordered assessed. Alderman Brewer presented plans for barns for the city horses, the cost of which, built of brick was $5,000 A petition from the Delanoy Steam fire engine company for the privilege to increase the number of members from 25 to 40 was referred to the fire department committee.

government. It fixes the salary of the secretary at $6,000 a year and provides for the appointment of an assistant secretary at a salary of $5,000. The bill was referred to the committee on education. It is as follows:

"Section 3 of chapter 344 of the publice acts of 1919 is amended to read as follows:

"Section 3. On or before the first day of April, 1923, and every, two years thereafter the governor with the consent of the senate shall appoint a secretary who shall not be a member of the board of education whose salary shall be six thousand dollars per annum. Said secretary shall have been a resident and citizen of the sate for at least six years previous to his appointment.

The secretary and the assistant secretary shall record all acts of the board and certify the same to all concerned and shall be the custodian of the records and papers of said board, shall prepare such routine business for presentation to said board as may be necessary or advisable, shall complete and publish under the direction of said board all regulations and acts which may be required and board of education may prescribe." shall perform such duties as the

Dr. Meredith came to Connecticut from New Jersey about three years ago.

The action a democratic member from Brooklyn in asking today that a resolution electing a county commissioners in Windham county be tabled until it was determined what action the house was going to take on bills reducing the number of county commissioners resulted in the house, on motion of Leader Buckley, making the county commissioner elections the order of the day Tuesday at 11.30. This includes the Litchfield county commissioners who were elected by the senate. Minority Leader Fenton demurred to Mr. Darbie's motion to concur in adoption of the resolution and asked if Mr. Buckley's motion was confined to the Windham county commissionerships. Mr. Fenton said Mr. Hyde had introduced a bill reducing the commission to one member, and he, Mr. Fenton, had introduced a bill abolishing the county commissioners. Mr. Buckley made a motion to include Litchfield in the order of the day for Tuesday. It was passed.

The question of whether or not the offices of county commissioners should be abolished, again came before the Connecticut house of representatives in a bill presented by Mr. Dunham of Wethersfield providing for a special committee of one senator and one representative from each county shall be appointed by the president of the senate and speaker of the house to investigate the organization and present scope of business of the office of county commissioner and the advisability of abolishing that office. The committee is to report not later than April 1, 1923. The bill went to the judiciary committee.

A bill presented by Mr. Schatz of Hartford would amend the general statutes by calling for the appointment by the governor of one county commissioner in each county for the two years. This also went to the judiciary committee.

The judiciary committee have announced that all of the uncontested city and town judgeships will be taken up next week and reported without delay.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SMALL FRUITS IN THE HOME GARDEN

Nowadays, practically every farm has its own fruit garden and none is complete without its portion of small fruits, such as strawberries, red and black raspberries, blackberries, currants, gooseberries and grapes

Only a few plants are needed to insure a constant supply of fruit from strawberries in the early spring until grapes in the late fall. Where can be found better fruit for table use than fine, ripe strawberries, raspberries and blackberries, fresh from the field? Strawberries and cream, or a good, old-fashioned shortcake are always right at hand. Every housewife likes to see a wide variety of fruits on her shelves for winter. The assurance of plenty of good, fresh fruit all summer and a plentiful supply for winter is a boon to a housewife not to be easily overlooked. The cost of enough plants to supply the family with plenty for canning during the summer is small. The price usually paid for a single apple, cherry or pear tree will buy from fifty to one hundred and fifty first-class plants of any of the small fruits.

Contrary to the belief of many, the small fruits are easily grown on any rich, fertile soil and are hardy in the colder sections of the country. The small fruits are cultivated crops and ordinary care in cultivation brings good crops of berries.

The amount of ground necessary to provide a sufficient supply of fruit for family use is small. A row fifty feet long will set forty to fifty strawberry plants and from fifteen to twenty-five raspberry or blackberry plants.

Gooseberry and currant bushes grow best in a cool, moist location and can be planted in a fruit tree row to good advantage.—O. A. D. Baldwin in farm Life.

MAKING THE FARM WOOD LOT PAY

Farmers who are without a woods of any kind will find it worth while to set aside some part of their land and start one at once. Hilly land that is being gullied by washing can be put to no better use than propagating trees. Seedlings for such planting often can be obtained from the state nurseries (if the state of residence has a reserve) and some of the national reserves supply seedlings to growers in certain regions. Stratifying seeds for planting is a process that can be carried out by any farmer and no special facilities nor technical knowledge are required. The planting is as simple as planting any farm crop.

With the public awakened to the new importance of the tree, much beneficial legislation has recently been passed by the states to encourage forestry. This legislation is taking various forms. Some states have virtually made land maintained exclusively for forest preservation, taxfree. This, it is believed, will greatly stimulate timber growth and influence the farmer to give more attention to the wood crop.

Without some such concessions he often has not felt justified in surrendering heavily assessed land for purposes which yield a limited and infrequent revenue. But the help of favorable legislation and the educational work of the professional forester is bound to arouse popular interest, and the business eye of the progressive farm manager is looking at the wood crop proposition.—Farm Life.

CROWS AND ROBINS NATURAL ENEMIES OF WHITE GRUBS

Crows and robins have been found very useful, says the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, in the extermination of white grubs, which are the larvae of May beetles, or June bugs. These grubs cause extensive damage to lawns and grain crops if the birds do not find them. On cranberry bogs they are also very destructive, as they remain in the sail for several years and are difficult to control. A case is cited where every plant on portions of a cranberry bog in Massachusetts was killed. All the roots were destroyed. New vines were planted, and almost immediately numbers of robins were seen at work there. They dug into the sand with their beaks and pulled out the grubs. Some of the roots of the vines were cut off by the grubs, and these vines the robins pulled up and discarded and dug out the grubs. The robins worked so diligently that practically no grubs escaped and nearly all the vines survived.

COLOR IN EGG YOLKS DETERMINED BY FEED

Why the golden yellow of the egg yolk, and why is it sometimes faded to a pale lemon and sometimes almost to a white?

This question has worried poultrymen for a long time, especially those making a fancy grade of eggs because the consumer has always associated a deep yellow in the yolk with good quality in the egg. Many people will argue that eggs with a deep colored yolk will taste better than those with a pale colored yolk.

Be that as it may, the poultryman wants to meet the demands of his customers and is more interested in this than in any academic discussion of the matter.

Careful experiments have shown that the color of the yolk of an egg is determined largely by the particular kind of feed the bird is receiving. Fowls will make dark colored yolks when they are receiving an abundance of green food.

On the other hand, poultrymen who wish to make the yolk fade out a pale lemon color can do so by taking away the green food from their diet or gradually reducing the amount. Keep receive and feeding the birds a certain ration consisting of such grains as oats and barley. By the careful practice of such methods for a period of several months yolks that could be called white have been produced.

The same condition is found in the milk of dairy cows. Cows produce cream and butter which is much more deeply colored in summer when eating green feeds than in winter. Also, cows like Guernseys and Jerseys usually produce a yellower product than other breeds because they have the ability to take more of the coloring matter out of the feeds and put it in the milk.

Many experiments have been conducted to discover just what it is that makes the yellow color in the egg yolk and in butterfat. It has been found that this color is due to a substance called carotin, so named because it is the coloring matter found in carrots.

This compound, carotin, is commonly found in the leaves and stems of plants along with the green chlorophyll, which masks its color. It has been proved that poultry given feeds poor in this carotin material for long periods invariably produce whitish and washed out colored yolks, regardless of the breed, and the same applies to the color of the milk of dairy cattle.

Green feeds in general are found to be rich in carotin, as well as hay of a dark green color and new corn silage.

Carrots and other yellow roots also contain a large amount of this coloring matter.

Green feeds that have been aged for some time seem to lose this material carotin. Hay that has been bleached out dry, dried corn fodder or fodder straw, old corn silage in which the carotin has been destroyed by fermentation, corn both yellow and white and all common concentrate by product feeds, such as wheat bran, linseed oil meal, gluten and hominy feed, were found to be poor in carotin.

The color of yellow corn is due to a coloring other than carotin which does not have as strong an influence on the yolk of the egg or on milk.

While yellow is a very desirable color in the yolk of an egg, green is just the reverse, and a green tinge may be given to the white and sometimes to the yolk if an extra large quantity of rape is fed to chickens.

The green coloring matter of chlorophyll in rape seems to have the quality of getting into the interior of the egg and staining the white a green. For this reason, rape should be fed sparingly to chickens.

EX-CONGRESSMAN HIGGINS GIVES AID FOR DEEPER CHANNEL IN THAMES

Letters to Senator Frank B. Brandegee, to Congressman Dupre, who is ranking democratic member of the rivers and harbors committee, and to Congressman R. P. Freeman have been some of the measures adopted by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce toward securing a deeper channel for the Thames river.

The counsel of former Congressman Edwin W. Higgins was sought and he not only gave his counsel but rendered his personal services in this effort to secure the river and harbor improvement. What Mr. Higgins has done has proved valuable and has merited the appreciation of the entire membership of the chamber.

To Senator Brandegee.

The following personal letter from Mr. Higgins to Senator Brandegee was sent:

January 23, 1923.

Hon Frank B. Brandegee,
The Senate, Washington, D. C.

Dear Frank: Norwich people and those located about Norwich both in northern New London county and in certain sections of Windham county are very much interested in securing a modest appropriation for an increased depth of the Thames river particularly from Allyn's Point to Norwich. This will require an enlargement or extension of the present Thames river project which only provided for a 14 feet channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich. From New London to Allyn's Point the maintained depth is 20 feet. Norwich shippers and manufacturers in this section of the state generally are interested to secure this improvement for the navigation of the Thames. A much larger tonnage would be shipped by way of the river if the channel was somewhat enlarged. It is asking for very little compared to what other sections of the country get for river and harbor improvement. The outside cost would probably not exceed $200,000 and the benefit to the river and the shippers generally would be very considerable. Already the New Haven railroad have made some concessions in freight rates in an attempt to meet the competition of the existing water rate from New York to Norwich. I wish that you might secure a senate amendment to the House River and Harbor Bill, possibly have it adopted as a committee amendment and passed by the senate, providing for this appropriation. I think Mr. O'Rourke, the secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce is intending writing you soon along this line. The board of directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce have voted to send a committee to Washington to urge and interest the Connecticut delegation in this project. It hardly seems to me that this is necessary now in view of the statistical information that has been sent you and Mr. Freeman. Congressman Freeman's position on the conference committee ought to enable him to secure this project but as I understand it the River and Harbor bill has already passed the house. I am going to write Congressman Dupre of Louisiana who is the ranking democratic house member and will, probably be one of the conferees. Lieutenant Leroy, who is now the president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce is very much interested in this proposition and I feel myself a personal interest in it outside of the advantage that I believe will accrue to this whole section of the state if the increased depth can be secured. If the conferees would allow this item to remain I am sure its worthiness can be amply justified. The Thames has had very little spent on it except for maintainence for upwards of 25 years. As you know the type of vessels in the carrying trade has changed very much in that time. I am not going into any analysis of the reasons why this should be done and if just now the senate will adopt this amendment all that can be accomplished perhaps will have been done. Mr. Freeman is fully advised as I am told and has been asked to co-operate with you and I think will fully.

With kind regards, I am,
Sincerely yours,
EDWIN W. HIGGINS.

To Congresman Dupre.

To Congressman Dupre, Mr. Higgins wrote as follows:

January 23, 1923.

Hon. N. Garland Dupre,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Dupre: In connection with your being probably one of the conferees on the present Rivers & Harbor Bill I just want to call to your attention to one more item that I hope the senate will add as an amendment to your bill as it passed the house. It is a very modest sum, $100,000. It is for the deepening of the Thames river from Allyn's Point to Norwich. The present depth maintained for over 30 years is 14 feet. We need 16 feet. Our people here are very much interested in it and our local Chamber of Commerce have appointed a committee to go to Washington to get it. Congressman Freeman knows all about it. The river is in his district. A very much larger amount of tonnage would be carried on the river if the channel was deepened two feet. The river and harbor of engineers have not completed their preliminary investigation yet but I hope that Senator Brandegee will ask the senate to pass this amendment. The manufacturers and shippers in this part of the state have already secured some concessions from the New Haven railroad in their rates by reason of the present water competition from New York here. It is an entirely meritorious proposition and if you can see your way clear to help out with the other matters I am sure you are interested in I would be personally very grateful and I know the folks in this part of Connecticut would also.

Sincerely yours,
E. W. HIGGINS.

Congressman Dupre's Answer.

Congressman Dupre's answer was given as follows:

Hon. Edwin W. Higgins,
Norwich, Conn.

My Dear "Ed Higgins": I note your interest in the Thames river from Allyn's Point to Norwich, but it seems to me that you are premature in wanting an appreciation. The way that rivers and harbors items are handled these days is as follows: First, the congress must authorize a survey by the office of the chief of engineers; if that survey is favorable, then the next move is for the congress to pass a legislative act, recognizing and adopting the project favorably recommended, and then comes the actual getting of the money to do the work. As I understand the project you write about, it is yet in the first degree. The Rivers and Harbor act of September, 1922, contained a provision authorizing a survey of the Thames river between the points mentioned, with a view of securing an additional depth. I understand that the district engineer is now conducting hearings on this subject, and has not, as yet, made his report to the chief of engineers, and the latter is unable to report the result of his investigation to congress, and the congress, accordingly, has not acted one way or another in the matter of actually adopting the project which last act is, as I have explained, a condition precedent to getting any money so I do not think that Senator Brandegee can do anything in the senate in connection with the item now pending in that body in the military appropriation bill, setting aside some $36,000,000 for rivers and harbors. Should that amount be appropriated, or a larger or smaller amount be ultimately written into the law, all that child be allotted to you, under existing laws, is a sum sufficient for the maintainance of your present project.

I understand that Congressman Freeman, whom I know and like very well, is advising your Chamber of Commerce along these lines. Neither he nor anybody else can, at this juncture, change the status as I have outlined it above, or get any appropriation for the additional depth which you and your some time constituents desire. If the report of the chief engineers on the survey which Congressman Freeman had inserted in the act of September, 1922, is favorable, I shall be only too glad to assist him and you in having that project incorporated in or adopted in the next legislative rivers and harbors bill, but I fear that the present congress will have expired (on March 4th next) before any such result is at all parliamentarily and legislatively feasible.

Sincerely yours,
H GARLAND DUPRE.

Telegram to Cong. Freeman.

The following night telegram was sent to Congressman Freeman which was duly acknowledged and answered:

Hon. R. P. Freeman,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Manufacturers and shippers in this locality covering not only Norwich but in general eastern Connecticut are concerned lest the failure of the current river and harbor bill as it passed the house to carry any appropriation at all for the Thames river for maintenance will seriously affect the shipping they now do on the Thames and that which they propose to do. Complaints are already made that boats, barges and vessels cannot come up the river now without lightering the cargo. It would therefore seem that some work on the Thames was needed during the next fiscal year. It is our understanding that there are now no specific funds available during the year beginning July first next. We note that the senate committee has unanimously approved an appropriation of $56,500,000 for rivers and harbor work. We have asked Senator Brandegee to secure an amendment in the senate to the river and harbor bill when reported providing for an appropriation of $100,000, to secure a 16 feet channel, 200 feet wide from Allyn's Point to Norwich. This seems to us very modest and very necessary. In fact we have been advised publicly by a high authority on rivers and harbors that we should ask for a 20 feet channel. As you will in all probability be one of the conferees on the part of the house on the disagreeing action of the two bodies of congress on this bill will you please bear this matter in mind and use every effort to secure this much needed improvement for our people here. We earnestly hope that you will be able to get this appropriation into the bill and trust that your commanding influence on this matter may accomplish it. It has been upwards of thirty years since the depth of the Thames at the point in question has been changed with only trifling sums spent for maintainence. This section of the state needs this improvement and we rely in confidence upon you to get it for us.

NORWICH CHAMBER COMMERCE.

Answer From Congressman.

Congressman Freeman sent the following answer:

Norwich Chamber of Commerce,
Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sirs: Your day letter of January 23rd, regarding the appropriation in the pending army appropriation bill, for rivers and harbors, and requesting information regarding the Thames river, is at hand.

The budget director recommended that $37,000,000 be appropriated for improvement of rivers and harbors in 1923 and 1924. The board of engineers estimated that $56,700,000 could be economically and advantageously expended for this purpose. The committee on rivers and harbors supported the amount submitted by the board of engineers, and an amendment was sustained by the house by a vote of nearly two to one, authorizing this amount, and this appropriation is now pending in the senate. The amended appropriation was in the form of a lump sum, to be expended at the discretion of the board of engineers wherever necessary on projects already authorized, and I have been assured by the engineers that whatever amount is necessary for the maintenance of the Thames river, under the present authorized project, will be expended. Apprehension arises because in the itemized statement of the board of engineers, asking for an appropriation of $56,700,000 Thames river was not mentioned, but this omission signifies nothing, and all that is necessary for the maintenance of the old project on the Thames river will be expended by the engineers.

Now as to the contemplated new project. I am thoroughly convinced that the channel of the Thames river from Allyn's Point to Norwich, should in the interests of commerce, be deepened and widened, and for that purpose I had inserted in the rivers and harbors bill of 1922, a provision calling for an examination and survey of the Thames river. This is the necessary first step before an appropriation can be made, and this provision was adopted. The examination and survey have been made by Major Peterson, the district engineer, and interested parties in Norwich and vicinity have submitted evidence in support of the contemplated project. The district engineer has not yet made his report to the board of engineers. If this report is unfavorable, immediate notice, as I wrote President Leroy several days ago, will be given you and also will be given to me, and an opportunity will be given interested parties to present again their claims before the board of engineers at Washington.

No appropriation can be made, either in the house or senate, for any project that has not received a favorable report from the board of engineers and chief of engineers, nor can the engineers expend any money on a proposed new project until said project has been approved and authorized by congress. The proposed new project for the Thames river must await first the approval of the engineers, and afterwards adoption and authorization by congress.

There will be at this session of congress no legislative rivers and harbors bill, and therefore no opportunity for the adoption of the new project, even if the report of the engineers is favorable.

I trust that I have made plain to you the exact present situation, but if there is any point that is not altogether clear, kindly let me know.

Yours very truly,
RICHARD P. FREEMAN.

No Improvement This Year.

As matters now stand it is apparent that no improvement of the Thames river relative to the deepening of the channel can be obtained this year. Nevertheless the Chamber of Commerce did everything that was possible to obtain this development. It was through the efforts of the chamber that Congressman Freeman secured the preliminary survey, the result of which is not yet known. The officials of the chamber propose to keep active in this matter until every effort has been exhausted to secure the deeper channel. This is a matter that vitally concerns the welfare of Norwich and needs the united support of the entire community to bring it to a successful issue. It is a fact that the competition of water transportation with railroad transportation has kept the freight rates at a minimum. It is also true, and is proven by recent embargoes because of congested conditions on the railroad, that water transportation is a most valuable asset. This project should appeal to the entire community as one well worthy of support and encouragement. It means much for the future welfare and growth of our community.

UNITED MISSIONARY DEPT. HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

The Missionary Department of the Guild of the United Congregational church met Friday afternoon at the Community House, President Mrs. Fred W. Lester, presiding. Routine business was transacted following which the secretary read a letter of appreciation from Rev. Mr. Bell of Brantley, Ala., thanking the members for the box sent him. A similar letter from Ellis Island was read into the records, a Christmas box having been sent to Ellis Island in December.

The address of the afternoon was by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the church, who spoke on "Missionary Activities and Service." Rev. Mr. Abbott urged the members to raise their quota this year and to fill their sunshine bags, but hoped they would do it in the spirit of love and not from a spirit of raising the money simply because a definite goal had been set. He spoke of the work of missionaries abroad and compared this type of work with the work of those who labored at home. All, he said, are equal in the work of the kingdom and deserve praise for their sacrifices.

Following the the talk a rising vote of thanks was extended to Rev. Mr. Abbott and tea was served by the social committee, Mrs. William H. Oat and Mrs. Arthur Thompson.

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Hugh Campbell and Mrs. Frederick Schunck and the reception committee, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins and Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard.

A large supply of clothing was also brought in to be sent to the Chandler Normal school, Lexington, Ky., where F. J. Werking is principal.

The clothing will be packed and sent to Kentucky by a committee comprising Mrs. James L. Case, Mrs. Herbert Gallup and Mrs. William H. Oat.

SMUGGLING OF LIQUOR IS APPROXIMATING A DELUGE

Representative Rogers of Massachusetts States That Liquor is Being Smuggled Into the United States From the Bahama Islands at the Rate of 1,200,000 Gallons a Year—5,000,000 Gallons Have Been Brought Into This Country—Illicit Trade Has Been Fully Organized—Bahaman Government is Deriving Enormous Revenues From the Traffic.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Liquor is now being smuggled into the United States from the Bahama Islands at the rate of 1,200,000 gallons annually, while the government and population of the British colony, existing "creatively on income, public attention was focused on the Jersey coast line were carried out under cover of darkness during a snow storm.

Not all the runners were able to elude the attention of the prohibition enforcement marine force, however. Two of the boats came to grief when they were sighted by vessels of the "dry" navy which chased them close to shore. The rum runners eluded capture by jettisoning their cargoes of whiskey.

The rum runners were asserted by river front residents to have utilized their two weeks' of enforced idleness to make necessary repairs on their craft. Until the arrival of the dry forces, it was said, bootlegging was so brisk and competition so strong that the rum runners did not have the opportunity to overhaul their boats many of which were becoming unseaworthy due to constant use under heavy lading in rough seas. The lull in the rum business, it was stated, allowed the boats' owners to overhaul engines and patch up hulls.

As a result, it was said, the boats which last night ran the blockade were in excellent condition and were able to develop higher speed than the vessels which tried to capture them.

It was learned today that detectives from the prosecutor's office have been in town for several days trying to find United States government automatic revolvers said to have been stolen from Camp Vail and supplied to bootleggers here at $5 each. It was stated several hundreds of dollars worth were stolen.

CHAPLIN AND POLA NEGRI ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT

Del Monte, Calif., Jan. 28.—Charles Chaplin, and Pola Negri, motion picture stars, announced their engagement at Pebble Beach lodge near here today. They refused to say when they would be married.

Chaplin came from Hollywood on a morning train to visit Miss Negri. He returned home tonight. The actor's train was an hour and a half late. When it arrived, Chaplin did not get off at Del Monte. As a result a rumor spread that he had come in disguise. It developed he had taken an automobile at a nearby point and motored to Pebble Beach. Later, to assembled newspapermen, Mr. Chaplin said:

"Yes, we are engaged."

Miss Negri said so too, and that ended the interview. The actress will remain at Pebble Beach several days longer and then return to Hollywood.

HOSPITAL ATTENDANTS SHOT BY DEMENTED MAN

Concord, N. H., Jan. 28.—Addy L. Smith, supervisor at the New Hampshire State hospital, and George Nadeau, of Philadelphia, an attendant, who were shot and severely wounded late yesterday by John Bolton, Jr., at the latter's home in Canterbury, when they attempted to seize him for re-commitment as an insane person, will probably recover, physicians said today.

The shooting occurred after the two men went to the Bolton home in response to a telephone plea from Mrs. Bolton who siad that her husband was acting in a demented manner and had threatened to kill her. Bolton later surrendered and permitted himself to be taken to the hospital. He said he shot both men because they invaded his home without a warrant.

DRUG STORES OWNED BY FORMER SALOON KEEPERS

New York, Jan. 28.—More new drug stores have been opened in New York state since the advent of prohibition than during ten years previous, Jacob Diner, president of the New York State Pharmaceutical Association, today declared in an address before the New York Retail Druggists Association. He said 600 drug stores were opened during the last two years.

Many of these new shops, Dr. Diner asserted, were owned by former saloon keepers and others who, interested only in the druggist's legal privilege to dispense alcoholic beverages, sold dangerous and "doctored" whiskey and drugs of doubtful quality.

Intends to Continue to Preach His Conception of a "Humanistic" Religion—If Not in Church, Then From a Soapbox.

New York, Jan. 28.—(By the A. P.)—The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant—under fire for alleged heretical utterances—charged in his sermon at the Protestant Episcopal Church on the Ascension today that the fight against him was inspired by capitalistic interests working "under the surface," rather than by an true religious zeal to purge the church of apostates.

Still awaiting the next move of Bishop William T. Manning, whose demand for a recanting of Dr. Grant's previously avowed stand on the deity of Christ, or the resignation, the rector answered with a letter restating his views and making no gesture toward resigning. Dr. Grant referred to his theological views today only to say they were the same views he had been expounding, unmolested, for 40 years.

He indicated broadly he intended to continue preaching his conception of a "humanistic" religion, even if he had to exchange the marbled halls of his church for a street corner soap box.

While he voiced his plea for a church that could "talk to mankind everywhere," before a congregation that packed his church as it has seldom been packed before, an "army" of nine unemployed sandwich men, marshalled by Urban Ledoux—the Mr. Zero of the 1923 unemployment crisis—paraded in a driving snowstorm before the edifice with placards about their necks, calling on the church to espouse the cause of the unfortunate.

"Bishop and rector," read one, "Why gamble about the garment? Both untrunk and give up the seamless truth."

Dr. Grant incorporated the picket in his sermon, referring to them as "those latter minds that have come to walk before this church, from no one knows where."

"Dr. Copeland (United States senator elect) told a gathering of bankers the other day," he continued, "that there was a great deal of unrest beneath the surface of American life today.

"It wouldn't be hard to collect a

POLICE OF PROVIDENCE PREVENT LARKIN ADDRESS

Providence, R. I., Jan. 28.—James Larkin, Irish agitator, pardoned by Governor Smith of New York, on January 17 after he had served two years of a five-year sentence for criminal anarchy, was prevented by the police from giving an address at Eagles' Auditorium here this afternoon. Larkin's coming to Providence was heralded in small hand bills circulated throughout the city and his subject was to have been "America and Human Liberty."

Those who came to hear Larkin and the speaker himself were greeted from entering Eagles' auditorium, both by the police and President William Beach, of the Eagle Building Corporation, who declared emphatically that "Jim Larkin nor any of his ilk will speak in Eagles' auditorium today or any other day."

21.6 INCHES OF SNOW IN NEW YORK IN 28 DAYS

New York, Jan. 28.—A heavy snowstorm which began early in the morning and continued almost throughout the day forced city departments to the limit tonight in an effort to clear the bridges and thoroughfares in the city before morning.

Ten thousand men worked in the streets tonight, 5,500 of them regular and emergency employes of the street cleaning department and 4,500 extra laborers. Four hundred snow plows made traffic possible on surface lines, and little delay in local transportation was reported.

The weather bureau announced tonight that all records for January snowfall had been broken at the end of the storm today. In 28 days a fall of 21.6 inches has been recorded—1.3 inches greater than the previous record for January, 1893.

IRISH REBELS CONTINUE THEIR RUTHLESS TACTICS

Berlin, Jan. 28.—(By The A. P.)—The rebel campaign of murder and destruction continues unabated, and, although these activities are mostly in the provinces, Dublin itself is not exempt. At 1 o'clock last night Governor Healy's residence, the old Viceregal Lodge in Phoenix Park, was attacked by men concealed in the shrubberies, who maintained a heavy revolver fire, which the guards around the building vigorously returned. It was nearly half an hour before the attacking party retired.

About the same time the Marlborough barracks was similarly attacked. Incendiary and other attacks on the railways and stations are of daily occurrence, and the whole railway service has become precarious.

The young man with sixteen others was initiated into the fraternity, and a few minutes after the ceremonies ended, he dropped dead according to authorities.

The medical examination made of Kersh's body showed no signs of violence, the physicians testified. The doctors stated death probably was due to a weak heart.

British Views on Debt Refunding

Public Had Been Led to Believe That a Satisfactory Adjustment of the Matter Would Not be Very Difficult.

London, Jan. 28.—(By the A. P.)—The frank and plain-spoken exposition made by Stanley Baldwin, chancellor of the exchequer, of what he considers the reason for the failure of his mission to Washington in an endeavor to arrange for the funding of Great Britain's debt to the United States, comes as an unpleasant surprise to the British public.

The public had been led by semi-official utterances to believe a satisfactory adjustment of the matter would not be difficult; hence the question again is to the forefront of public attention and is considered to present to the new government of Andrew Bonar Law, which was elected on a policy of economy and retrenchment, a very awkward problem.

Acceptance of the American terms, and as Mr. Baldwin puts the case, there is no alternative to acceptance, will mean, it is said, a yearly burden of more than £ 30,000,000 on the British exchequer for the next sixty years. The government is confronted with demands from the well-to-do classes for a reduction in the income tax, and from the laboring classes for a reduction in the duty on beer How to meet these demands while paying 30,000,000 pounds sterling annually to the United States is the government's dilemma.

It is clearly evident from statements published here during the week end that the British government had anticipated being able to fund the debt on an interest basis nearer two per cent than three per cent—or 60,000,000 pounds sterling annually. According to these statements an informal proposal was made by twop rominent American diplomats at a luncheon party given at No. 10 Downing street, the British prime minister's official residence, last summer, that the funding would be carried out on that basis. It is asserted that Mr. Bonar Law was present at this luncheon.

The American diplomats are not named, but they are said to have been of "the highest standing." There is no suggestion that the British government regarded these informal promises as in any wise binding. It is admitted that any such hopes as advanced by the American diplomats were shattered immediately Mr. Baldwin reached Washington, but there evidently is great disappointment that better terms than Mr. Baldwin was offered were not obtainable.

The cabinet is said to be divided on the subject. Some of the ministers, and it is reported these include the prime minister, favor accepting the American terms, but others incline to delay in acquiescence to them and the press also is similarly divided.

URGES ACCEPTANCE OF AMERICAN OFFER

London, Jan. 28.—The Times in an editorial, declaring that no better terms are obtainable, strongly urges prompt and grateful acceptance of the American offer for funding the British debt. It argues it is not worth while to incur for the first time in British history the stigma of partial default for the sake of four or five million pounds a year, the difference between the British and American ideas of an equitable settlement of the debt.

The Times thinks a supreme effort should be made to settle the matter this week. It says that although it cannot regard the American terms with enthusiasm, yet it is clear that although the British were weak in negotiating, the Washington authorities have shown "a friendly and accommodating spirit that we are prepared to recognize, in offering to accept twenty millions less annually than they are entitled to claim."

The newspaper considers it out of the question to allow matters to drift, with an obligation to pay five per cent interest in the meantime.

BROTHERHOOD PRESIDENT HEADS $10,000,000 CORPORATION

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 28.—William G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced tonight that he has accepted the presidency of the Steigelmyer Manufacturing Company, a $10,000,000 corporation of Seymour, Ind., and probably will resign as head of the trainmen. For the present he will serve in his new position without pay.

The corporation will manufacture automatic train control devices which will mechanically stop a train when anything goes wrong. The devices are operated with air and are attached to both the engine and the rail. Erection of manufacturing plant will start within ninety days.

"My only reason for taking the position is the service I believe I can render railroad employes and the traveling public in a real safety first movement," Mr. Lee said.

GERMAN RAILWAYS TAKEN OVER BY FRENCH ENGINEERS

Able to Operate the Roads for Military Purposes, but Not for Civilians—At Duesseldorf the Telegraph and Telephone Central Stations Are on Strike—Berlin Reports the Situation at Essen Quiet Sunday—Germany is to Deny Wilful Default of Reparations.

Coblenz, Jan. 28 (By the A. P.)—Two battalions of French engineers have taken over the railways; one through train to Paris was sent out tonight. The French state they will be able to operate the railways for military purposes, but not for civilians. The tracks, bridges, switches and depots are heavily guarded.

The railroad workers declared tonight that they would not return to work until the French troops have left the Coulenz and other stations. Their leader, Frederick Kalt, denied that it was an official strike, notwithstanding the fact that the men knocked off five minutes after Major General Allen handed over command of the zone to the French.

Strike as Protest.

Duesseldorf, Jan. 28.—The telegraph and telephone central stations went on strike at 7 o'clock this evening. They took this action in protest against the presence of French soldiers.

Quiet at Essen.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—The situation at Essen was quiet today, according to reports reaching government quarters, although there was no possible intervention by the French in the railway, postal and telegraph services.

The government claims to be in possession of copies of printed placards which are being distributed throughout the Rhineland containing the proclamation of a Rhineland republic for Feb. 1.

FRENCH ENCOUNTERING TROUBLE IN COBLENZ

Duesseldorf, Jan. 28 (By the A. P.).—"De Profundis" was the prayer that went forth from millions of persons assembled in the Catholic churches of the Rhineland and the Ruhr today in compliance with a pastoral letter from Cardinal Schulte.

The cardinal himself officiated in the Cologne cathedral, where the service was most impressive. Many persons from surrounding towns along the Rhine who went to Cologne to attend the service afterwards proceeded to the railway station, where they found the railway strike so effective that they were unable to leave the city and as a result hundreds were stranded at the station as night came on.

In Coblenz the railroad strike also is complete. Likewise at Bonn not a wheel is turning. There was a huge demonstration by the students at Bonn this afternoon, but no clashes of a serious nature took place. The train service is paralyzed between Duesseldorf, Duisburg and Essen. There was only one train run today between Mayence and Duesseldorf. No mail has arrived from Paris or Berlin in two days.

The French are having trouble with the Coblenz population. Quiet and orderly during American occupation of this area, the population has become most unruly.

The strike of the railroad men in the Ruhr is growing proportionately with the taking over of the stations by the French. As soon as the French arrive, the railroad men quit their posts.

Dortmund alone remains the open door into the interior of Germany. When the French close this gateway, complete isolation of the Ruhr is only a uestion of a few hours, as the railroad men are expected to quit their jobs, put the signal boxes out of commission and jam the switches.

GERMANY TO DENY WILFUL DEFAULT OF REPARATIONS

Berlin, Jan. 28 (By the A. P.).—Commenting on the reparations commission's notification to the German government that the London plan for payments of reparations automatically again becomes operative, an official of the foreign office today expressed the belief that neither the French, Belgian nor Italian members of the commission seriously believe that the schedule adopted in May, 1921, could be given even cursory consideration as affording an adaptable basis for future reparations.

According to the German views that plan has not only been summarily rejected as wholly unfeasible by English financial authoritirs and the bankers' conference at Paris but has also been discarded by the committee of neutral experts who recently submitted an exhaustive brief on the question of German currency stabilization and a moratorium.

A more recent and emphatic disavowal of the London plan of two years ago is contributed, in the opinion of the Germans, by the various reparations plans submitted by the entente premiers at Paris early in January, each of which conceded the need of a respite for gold payments as well as a reduction in the total reparations.

Reference was made in the course of an official statement tonight to the question of appraising the value by the reparations commission, section 3, annex 2 paragraph 13, providing that "abstention from voting is to be treated as a vote against the proposal under discussion."

The German official reply to the reparations note will deny the allegation of wilful default in deliveries to France and Belgium and will declare that their interruption was the logical outcome of the illegal invasion of unoccupied Germany by these two powers.

AMOUNT OF COAL HANDLED BY THE NEW HAVEN ROAD

New Haven, Jan. 28.—In a statement closely following on the heels of Governor Templeton's order to the state police yesterday to investigate the coal shortage in this state, with especial reference to transportation facilities, the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad tonight denied that freight transportation has broken down and declared that the road has handled more coal since the ending of the coal strike than in a similar period in the year before.

"Since Oct. 1, 1922, to and including the first 27 days of January this year," declared the statement, "the New Haven road has handled a total of 30,429 cars of anthracite coal as compared to 23,460 cars in substantially the same period last year, or an increase of 6,969 cars. Upon the basis of current movements, this total should be increased 1,000 cars in the four remaining days of the month."

"During the period from Sept. 1, 1922, until Jan. 27, 1923," the statement declared, "the New Haven road handled 38,342 cars of bituminous coal as compared to 32,819 cars for the five complete months last year, or an increase of 5,523 cars."

Going back to December, 1917, the road declared, there were 1,037 cars per day moved east from the Harlem river, while 1,212 cars were moved for the same month in 1922. In January, 1918, 957 cars were moved per day, while 1,091 were moved per day for the first 27 days of this year.

In concluding, the statement said: "As the months of December, 1917, and January, 1918, with respect to temperature and snowfall, compare more favorably with last December and January, so far, this comparison is used and should set at rest the general feeling that freight transportation has broken down, as these records show that there have been more cars moved from the western gateways during this period than during the period of the war, and that the movement of both anthracite and bituminous coal since the ending of the coal strike has been very much in excess of the shipments of the preceding year."

GRAND LARCENY CHARGE AGAINST MISSING MAN

New York, Jan. 28.—Mortimer E. Lautman, general merchandise manager of the Kaufman department store, Pittsburgh, who was reported to have disappeared mysteriously Thursday after cashing a check for $25,600 at a bank here, is being sought by the police for grand larceny, Acting Inspector John C. Coughlin of the detective division announced tonight. Telegrams have been despatched to various points along the coast ordering his arrest, the inspector said.

The complainant against Lautman, M. Michaels, manufacturer of this city, charged that he gave Lautman $20,000 for investment purposes and that a proper accounting has not been made.

Counsel for Mr. Michaels alleged that Lautman had informed the manufacturer several months ago that stock in the Kaufman store was due to increase greatly in value before Feb. 1, and that the $20,000 was given Lautman to purchase stock in the store. Mr. Michaels alleged that the stock was never bought.

Because of Lautman's past trips to the Orient as a buyer, the police have asked officials of Pacific seaports to apprehend him should he be discovered.

BANDITS GOT ONLY $2 AND SOME SMALL CHANGE

Meriden, Conn., Jan. 28.—Three bandits who held up and robbed Joseph Skinner, proprietor of a grocery and meat market at 104 Willow street, Saturday night, made a haul of $2 and a small amount of change when they rifled the cash drawer after the storekeeper had been shot and slightly wounded by one of the trio.

When Skinner reached for a butcher knife on being ordered to throw up his hands, one of the robbers fired at him, the bullet grazing his ear. A second member of the trio emptied the money till, from which the proprietor had taken most of the cash a few minutes previously.

The bandits had nearly an hour's start on the police, whom the storekeeper neglected to notify, and made a successful get-away.

The Tampa picked up the Dollar liner last night about 400 miles southeast of here. The message said the vessels would arrive here probably Tuesday.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
81 Church Street Telephone 1023

The quiet of Sunday afternoon's snow storm was broken up on Main street by a runaway horse which plunged up the street and nearly collided with two automobiles. The horse which belongs to John H. McCarthy of Scotland, was drawing a small sleigh in which rode two of Mr. McCarthy's sons, and when approaching the Main street railroad crossing, the gates were being lowered. The sound of the clanging bell frightened the animal which started up the street at break neck speed.

The horse traveled up the left hand side of the street and opposite the Jordan block it came face to face with an automobile. The driver of the car drove on to the sidewalk to avoid a collision and the horse swerved sharply to the right, breaking away from the sleigh, throwing the two occupants out, but luckily without injury. The runaway which was a large horse then continued in its flight and just missed a ord roadster which came out of North street. The animal trotted up the street and into the driveway of Double-Day stables, where it had previously been. The damage consisted of the front of the sleigh being stove in and a broken harness.

The lobby of the local Y. M. C. A. on Main street was the scene of a very unusual incident about 8.30 o'clock Saturday morning when it was visited by a fairly grown deer which broke through the glass panels of the double front doors and after wrecking up the lobby room, dove out of a window and fled down an alley. The morning caller was a doe which had been wandering around Meadow Lane and back street in search of food and had been seen about 8 o'clock by residents of Summit street.

Just before its wild flight the animal had been eating from a garbage can in the rear of the Johnson House when it was spotted by a dog belonging to a family on Meadow Lane. The dog gave chase and the frightened doe leaped across Main street and plunged blindly into the three-eighths thick glass panel of the outside door of the Y. M. C. A. and through the second door of the vestibule into the reading room, where it was met by Rev. D. B. Overton, pastor of the colored people's church.

Rev. Mr. Overton was startled but attempted to drive the deer out. The doe circled around a pool table and knocked over furniture, after which it went through the open door of the reception room from where it dove out of the window to the ground, 12 feet below. The animal got to its feet and fled down the alleyway between the Y. M. C. A. building and the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company building. It scrambled down the steep bank to the railroad tracks, swam the Willimantic river and disappeared into the wooded river bank in the rear of the Moose home on Pleasant street.

There was every evidence that the animal had been injured as it left clots of blood in the lobby and a trail down the alleyway. About an hour later word was received from Village Hill residents who stated that the deer had been seen and was bleeding profusely from a jagged wound in its side.

Judge Frank H. Foss presided over a session of the local police court Saturday at which the cases of six personal tax delinquents were heard. All manner of hard luck stories and excuses were heard by the court who stated that although it did look as if all those present were broke the court had no alternative but to have them raise money in some way to pay costs, at least.

The tender spots in the hearts of two court spectators were affected by the tales of woe of three of the accused and they paid for the costs. The court gave the remaining three one week to furnish the required amount.

August Roy and his wife, Ethel Roy, were first called. Mrs. Roy was not present. Mr. Roy said that he knew that the tax should have been paid, but he did not have the money. He settled for his wife's assessment of $7.15 and made arrangements to pay his own next week.

Solomon Haddad said that he had much sickness in his family. He said that on receiving a final warning from the personal tax collector he had paid $2 to the collector for 1922 and not the 1921 tax. A spectator paid the amount of his cost of $7.15.

Mary Pellerin did not understand English and through her little daughter told the court that she had $2 which she proceeded to pay to Tax Collector Cook. Tears came into her eyes when she was informed that she must pay the costs of $5.15 and she was given until next week to settle.

Walter L. Wilson of Bricktop said that he overlooked the matter and had never received a warning from the tax collector. Collector Cook said that he had mailed a notification to Wilson last March at No. 233 South street. Wilson said that he had not resided there since that time.

A friend paid his total assessment of $9.15.

Louis French appeared for his wife and told the court that she had been ill for a long time and was soon to undergo an operation and due to the expense he had no money. The costs in the case were paid by a friend.

The court gave notice that it would be well for all those who have not paid their personal tax to settle at once.

Another group of delinquents will be brought before the court this week.

The dedication of the new hall erected by the White Eagle Polish American band on Brook street took place Saturday evening with appropriate ceremonies, attended by a large number of friends of the band. The speakers of the evening were Mayor Charles A. Gates who highly commended the band on their success, Rev. Otho S. Beaumeister, a Polish priest from New Britain, and Charles N. C. Wheeler who has instructed the band members since its organization in September, 1919.

The hall was built through the efforts of the members who raised the necessary funds by canvassing and entertainments, to which the public gave generous response. The White Eagle band was organized through the efforts of William C. Smith, messenger at the American Thread company employment office in the fall of 1919.

Much praise is due Mr. Smith for his good work in the interest of the Polish people.

At the time the band was organized the services of Bandmaster C. N. C. Wheeler were secured as instructor. There were forty young Polish men of very few knew anything about either music or instruments. However they practiced and attended all rehearsals and within a remarkably short space of time they had acquired considerable efficiency and proved fine scholars. They made their first public appearance on the evening of June 24, 1920 when they rendered a much enjoyed concert on Lincoln square. On July 4th of last year they successfully played a big parade of the Polish societies of this city, with the band leading. At present there are 27 members and the organization is prospering. A great deal of the new hall which was dedicated Saturday evening, was built by the members during their spare hours and it is a credit to their ingenuity and workmanship.

Edgar M. Warner of Putnam, clerk of the Windham county superior court was at the superior court chambers in the local town building Saturday afternoon issuing first and second citizenship papers to applicants, who passed the requirements. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

Punch up another hole in the snowstorm record. Sunday brought what the careful counters assert is the 23rd fall of this winter period. Noon brought the beginning of the storm.

A perfectly safe proposition, is writing that no one that the writer has heard of cared anything about having any more snow.

Among others who were not particularly elated over the Sunday snow storm are the workers in this territory for the state highway department and the road forces of the town. They have been digging all winter long to keep highways open, and the job is getting to be more or less irksome—not that they do not appreciate an opportunity to work, but because one individual winter is trying to break a lot of records that no one in particular is interested in seeing broken.

The only consolation that the average person is getting out of the present weather situation is that March 1 will arrive four weeks from next Thursday and that, in some cases, their friends are spending this rough period in southern climes, where alligators and bathing suits are now among the preferred favorites instead of fur coats and overshoes.

Close upon the declaration of a dividend announcement by the Connecticut Mills comes another announcing that the Canadian Connecticut Mills, Ltd., and affiliated concern with splendid modern plants at Sherbrooke, P. Q., also has declared dividends—this being supporting evidence that the big concern is making a strong recovery and that all holders of the securities of the companies may anticipate with confidence a complete recovery of strength in due time.

A notice received by Danielson holders of the Canadian company stock reads as follows:

To the holders of the 8 per cent. cumulative paraticipating preferred stock of the Canadian Connecticut Cotton Mills, Ltd.. The board of directors of your company has today declared the quarterly dividend of two per cent. on the 8 per cent. cumulative stock, regularly payable on January 1, 1923, to shareholders of record of this date. The board also has declared the regular quarterly dividend of two per cent payable on April 2 1923, to shareholders of record on March 15, 1923.

Checks in payment of these dividends will be forwarded to shareholders of record on payment dates specified.

There are numerous holders of the Canadian Connecticut Mills, Ltd., stock in this territory. The dividends they are to receive are the first in two years, as in the case of the first preferred stockholders of the Connecticut Mills company, Inc., of Danielson, these stockholders to receive a dividend on February 1.

Nehemiah Wood, all his life a resident in this territory with the exception of a few years spent in Philadelphia, where he was engaged as a bookbinder, died at 1 o'clock Sunday morning at his home in South Killingly. He had been in poor health for a number of years.

The present generation of Killingly citizens knew little of Nehemiah Wood, yet he was one of the finest men that this historic town has produced. For 35 years he gave of his time and talents to teach the children of the towns of Killingly, Plainfield, Sterling and Foster, and it has been said of him many times by those who have grown to adult years that he was an exceptional teacher, and was otherwise peculiarly well fitted for the teaching service to which he gave so many years of his life.

Mr. Wood was born in Foster 85 years ago, a son of William P. and Henny (Nickerson) Wood. Towns in this section of Windham county and across the adjoining Rhode Island border towns held him during all of his long life, to the advantage and benefit of all of those who studied under him during the three and a half decades that he was engaged as a school teacher and of all of those who came to know him and drank of his philosophy of life, for him stretched well beyond the Biblical three score years and ten.

Mr. Wood was first married to Mary McComber, who died many years ago. She was a Spiritualist and a medium who attracted much interest throughout the countryside. Mr. Wood's second wife was Miss Emma Young, who survives him. Mr. Wood also leaves one son, W. DeLoss Wood of Danielson.

Mr. Wood was of the Wood family procenated in the Connecticut-Rhode Island border section by three Wood brothers who came into this territory from the Cape Cod section of Massachusetts nearly 200 years ago, settling, respectively, in Foster, Howard Hill and East Killingly. General Leonard Wood, a national figure, is one of the descendants of these brothers.

Cassius Tourtelotte, 78, died unexpectedly Saturday morning at his home on Riverview. He had been ill and in a dangerous condition of health for a number of weeks, being in such condition at the time of the death of his mother. Mrs. Emeline Tourtelotte, at the age of 99, at Christmas time that he was unable to go to Pascoag for her burial services.

Mr. Tourtelotte was born in Pascoag, R. I., on February 9, 78 years ago the coming month. He lived for many years in California, where he was married. He is survived by his wife and by three children—two sons and a daughter, and a grandchild, all resident in California. For years during his life Mr. Tourtelotte was engaged as a railroad conductor. He has not been actively engaged for a number of years.

Two score willing workers were engaged at Quinebaug lake during Sunday, as for two days past, in the arduous work of filling the four houses of the Quinebaug Lake Ice company. The work was practically two-thirds completed when the workers quit for the day on Sunday. They had been engaged in packing 11-inch ice in the houses, and ice of very good quality. If good weather comes today, and there did not seem to be any guarantee of that on Sunday, the houses will be filled by tonight. It is intended that the harvest at the lake will result in housing between 3500 and 4,000 tons of ice—assuring Danielson against any ice famine during the warm weather period that one may hope will come along on schedule, January and all of its machinations notwithstanding.

A back bow of the top on a big touring car owned by George Torrey of Central Village was smashed on Saturday forenoon on Dark Lantern Schoolhouse hill by a big truck and was negotiating the heights with a load of telephone or telegraph poles. The top was practically ruined in the accident and will have to be replaced. Neither Mr. Torrey nor any of the members of his party were injured in the accident.

The bearers were William Brown of Brooklyn and Frank Brown of Providence, Sherwood Potter and Dyer Potter. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Howard C. Willetts of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Mrs. J. C. Witter is confined to her home on Cottage street by illness.

At her home in Brooklyn Rev. Albert Jepson conducted funeral services for Mrs. Joseph B. Stetson. Burial was in Witter cemetery. The bearers were Henry M. Evans, Oscar F. Atwood, N. G. Williams, A. E. Williams, S. L. Frink, Fernand Doyen, L. Eff Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. James' church, Rev. John Roux was celebrant of a funeral mass for Mrs. Mena Riding. The body was placed in the vault of Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Paul Bernier, Charles Barbeau, George Clouchier, Henry Hurard, Joseph St. Germaine, Joseph Bazillion. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

PUTNAM

Searles, Russell & Bradford, counsel for Margaret O'Leary, et al., have served notice on Torrey & Geissler, attorneys for Remi Delage, captain of the Putnam police force, that on the 17th day of February at the town of Thurles, County of Tipperary, Free state of Island, depositions of the plaintiff, Margaret O'Leary, formerly of New York, will be taken before and at the office of Lawrence J. Ryan, Cathedral street. As it is a long long way to Tipperary no members of either of the Putnam law firms will attend. The case is one which involves the transfer and sale of the O'Leary block, so called, just south of the Congregational church. Following the purchase of the block by Captain Delage, heirs of Mrs. O'Leary, the former owner, appeared and had a conservator appointed over her. An attempt was made to have the sale set aside by overtures to the vendee. As the request was denied an action was brought and in injunction issued restraining Delage from selling the property. The case has been pending for over a year in the superior corupt and shortly after it was brought Mrs. O'Leary left for her home in Ireland. Mrs. O'Leary is an elderly lady, widow of the late Patrick O'Leary, who, during his lifetime was a prominent citizen of Putnam. He was a veteran of the Civil war and had been postmaster of Putnam and also city clerk. He died some years ago and not long after his death Mrs. O'Leary went to Ireland where she has spent most of the time since.

Old grads of Yale listened in at a Yale dinner at the Hotel Plaza, New York, Friday night. The music and talking came over the radio so clearly that knives and forks could be heard clicking but no sound of popping cork could be made out. The dinner was followed from oysters to cafe noir and it was a delightful evening for those in Putnam although they had to forego the delectable food that they could imagine and almost smell the aroma from as it was brought on in courses.

Before a crowd that taxed the capacity of the P. H. S. gym the local school team took the count before the quintet from Killingly High, Friday evening. When the final whistle blew Killingly was in the lead of a 20 to 21 score. Once more local prognosticators in the basketball world were in error for Putnam was picked as a sure winner.

Just before the clock in the steeple of the Congregational church struck nine Saturday morning an alarm of fire was sounded from box 41 in the business center of the city. The fire was in a wooden block known as the White Front and was caused by a hit chimney or pipe setting woodwork on fire. All of the fire apparatus responded to the alarm and a large crowd gathered but there was nothing spectacular in the fire and it was put out with the chemical on Hose Wagon No. 1, without much damage being done. This is the second time that there has been a small fire in the building in less than a year.

The Knights of Columbus carnival held in Union hall came to a successful close Saturday evening with a record breaking attendance. The hall was tatefully decorated and on all sides were booths where various articles of merchandise were sold. Each evening beginning at ten o'clock there was dancing. A number of useful and beautiful presents were given away before the carnival closed.

Because of ill health, Dr. Alvan T. Tenney, assistant professor in the department of sociology at Columbia university, is to be on sabbatical leave during the second semester of the present academic year. All but one of his courses are to be dropped, but this one class, a seminar attended by all candidates for the degree of master of arts, is to be continued during his absence and will be in charge of two departmental fellows. One of these is Malcolm M. Willey, of Putnam. Mr. Willey will conduct the class for seven weeks, and in addition will consult with students who are now preparing their master's essays. Mr. Willey is now finishing his third year of graduate work in sociology department of Columbia, from which university he received his master's degree in 1921. He is a graduate of the Putnam high school and of Clark university, Worcester.

Not in many years has there been as many important real estate transactions in Putnam as there has during the past six months. The most recent was the sale of the St. Onge block on Main street to the Putnam Savings bank. The announcement has now been made that in the settlement of the Victor Peloquin estate it has been decided to sell the real estate holdings. This throws on the market the Victory theatre block, the so-called White Front block and the land with buildings at the corner of Bullock and Main streets.

Mrs. John Daigle, River road, the mother of twelve children, is dead following an operation for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital. At the operation it was discovered that she was suffering from an acute attack and little hope was given for her recovery. Mrs. Daigle was 41 years old and was born in Grosvenordale. She had always lived in this vicinity.

In the near future a new Putnam product will be sent out from a local mill. The H. K. H. Silk Company has received a sizeable order for silk fish line. This is the first order of the kind ever received at the mill and the first time that fish line has ever been manufactured in Putnam.

Booze which started agruments which resulted in rows furnished business for the city court Saturday morning. Joe Cordier and Pero Gervasio were charged with intoxication and breach of the peace for getting into a mixup at the home of Joe's brother. It was stated that they went there to take some fruit juice with their anatomies which was the root of the trouble which followed. Cordier was sentenced to six months and costs of $15.54 and Gervasio to 60 days and costs of $14.54. In each case the jail sentence was suspended. Robert Tattoon made a disturbance at a dance on Pomfret street and was sentenced to 30 days in jail. He is the colored man who was before the court two weeks ago for fighting and was still paying up a fine for his last setto.

Saturday afternoon Captain Remie Delarge was trying to locate a family in Putnam by the name of Bourek. A call came in from the Woonsocket police department that a boy giving the name of John Bourek, age 15, had been picked up wandering about the streets of the city. Upon being questioned he said that his home was in Putnam. No report of a boy missing has been received in local police circles.

To overcome public objection to the so-called 50 cent meter charge the Putnam Light & Power Company removed this 50 cent addition to all montly gas bills the first of the year. As the rate now stands the small consumer is paying less for gas than the large consumer. Now there is heard by the large consumer, in some instances, objection to paying more for his consumption than does the householder. To larger user of gas feels that he is entitled to as good a rate, if not a better rate, than the householder using less gas per month.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG
It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.
Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

DEAN BRIGGS WANTS BETTER ATHLETIC CONDITIONS AMONG "BIG THREE"

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 28.—(By the A. P.)—The athletic agreement now in effect among Princeton, Harvard and Yale involves an inquisition into the financial status of athletes that strikes at the foundation of sportsmanship, Dean Lebaron R. Briggs asserts in his annual report as chairman of the Harvard athletic committee, which was made public today. Though the athletic situation obtaining when the agreement was made seemed to make the inquisition necessary, the dean said he looked for the time when Harvard, Yale and Princeton should say to one another "I need know nothing more about the legitimacy of your players than is implied by your willingness that they shall represent you." Only then, he added, would those involved be sportsmen.

Dean Briggs introduced his criticism of the agreement with a reference to the conditions out of which it grew.

"The evils of subsidizing athletes were illustrated last year," he said, "by discoveries which led the authorities at Princeton to disqualify several of their best known and most skillful players. The disqualification, already determined at Princeton by Princeton alone, was promptly reported to the committee of the three chairmen. Like every other act of the kind, it was assailed as unjust by those who did not know the circumstances and it gave rise, naturally enough to new suspicions regarding the athletes of Yale and Harvard. Every athlete named by anybody to the Harvard committee as suspected of receiving illegitimate aid was looked up as carefully as circumstances permitted. Brief reports of the financial resources of prominent athletes at Yale and Harvard were submitted by the Yale and Harvard chairmen respectively to the committee of the three chairmen and, being amicably discussed, it is too much to suppose that all suspicions were allayed, but no case calling for disqualification was discovered.

"At about the same time the presidents of Princeton, Yale and Harvard held meetings with a view to the purification of athletics, and to this end appointed a special committee of three from each university. The three chairmen also, to clear certain misunderstandings, had informal conferences at New Haven with other representatives of the three universities and accepted certain principles as the treatment of policies. The fruit of all these negotiations as seen in the published resolutions of the three presidents.

"How far proselyting has gone among college athletes may be inferred from the attention paid in recent discussions to students who have moved from one college to another and who are designated by the question-begging name of 'tramp athletes.' Off-hand a reasonable man might believe a tramp athlete the figment of a morbid imagination. He who hires a university athlete to come from another college must pay the way of that athlete for one year before he is eligible for intercollegiate athletics of any sort; and he must do this on the chance that at the end of this pampered year the athlete clearly not a man of ethical responsibility, will have a sufficient record in his studies and will show a sufficient skill in the game to be both elected and chosen as a university player. Already this player has counted off another college one of his three years of eligibility. When (and if) he becomes eligible in his new university, his patron must continue to support him, incidentally running the risk of discovery throughout the entire period of his benefactions. The accepted evidence that athletes are hired under these conditions bears fresh witness to human folly.

"At Harvard the proportion of athletes among transferred students is said to be less than the proportion among students who come straight from schools to the freshman class. It is in schools rather than in colleges that the chief danger of illegitimate propaganda lies, and nothing can check this propaganda but right-mindedness among undergraduates and alumni. Speaking always with the knowledge that something scandalous may be unearthed at any moment, I nevertheless, know that this rightmindedness has been greatly increased in the last thirty-five years. Indeed, there is serious danger of discrimination against the athlete. The questions that we ask him would be insolently personal if it were possible, as a schoolmaster once said, 'to treat an athlete like an ordinary decent citizen.' Now is the athlete permitted, unchallenged, to receive such aid as a non-athletic youth, who may not have half his intelligence or strength of character, might go on receiving undisturbed for years. At Harvard the danger of proselyting in schools is now slight. The true danger is eagerness to help an athlete already in college.

"Though the athletic situation last year seemed to force on the committees at Princeton, Yale and Harvard the financial inquisition of which I am writing and in the responsibility of which I share, such a method cannot be permanent, and indeed cannot be used at all, without danger to the very foundation of sportsmanship. Ultimately the information received by the committee depends in most cases on the player's word. There is no questionnaire that a dishonest man cannot circumvent. Eventually the questionnaire based on universal distrust will defeat its own end. If the college office should treat every student as a suspect, it would stimulate in the student generally a desire to circumvent it, and would destroy that frank and friendly intercourse on which its efficiency depends.

Although Dean Briggs' report was for the 1921-22 academic year he said he could not end it without reference to the Yale-Harvard football game of 1922, of which he said: "Nothing finer in athletics can be asked than the spirit of this game on both sides. To those who remember the contests at Springfield the change was scarcely believable."

Not more than 160 rowers could be candidates for the crews, but the money spent on rowing by the committees gave opportunities for exercise to between 500 and 600 other students of all sorts, the dean said, the expense being met with money derived chiefly from the sale of tickets for football.

"Rowing," he added, "is a good illustration of a fact often overlooked, that the receipts of the Harvard Athletic association are used not only for developing a professional skill in a few students who are already strong, but for exercising great numbers of students, many of whom are constitutionally unfit for intercollegiate competition. In one or two sports the university squad alone contains men enough to make a small college.

"Most people who are acquainted with college athletics believe, as President Roosevelt did, both in encouraging athletics for all and in developing chosen teams of the best. They believe that these teams, far from hindering athletics for all, further it by constantly stimulating the love of manly sport. They admit that intercollegiate competition has led to misjudgment of relative values, to exaggeration and to abuse; but they would not give it up, or are they afraid to admit that intercollegiate athletic competition has trained leaders of men."

Among the exaggerations that he had in mind, Dean Briggs said, was that in competition for managerships. "The findings of a faculty committee which had talked informally and freely with representative students confirmed everybody's suspicion that candidates for managerships often damaged themselves by unintelligent use of their time; damaged players by servile attentions, and damaged sport by such shirking of their college duties as gave it a bad name. For an athlete to drop his clothes on the floor and expect a manager to pick them up and put them in the locker is not good either for him or for the manager."

FOUR NEW FACES AMONG MAJOR MANAGERS

Four new faces will be seen among the various big league managers over those of a year ago, when the 16 major league clubs start their annual invasion into southern climes within the next six weeks.

Art Fletcher, Phillies, and Bill McKechnie, Pittsburgh, or the National loop, and Frank Chance, Boston, and Owen Bush, Washington, of the American, are the quartet referred to.

Of the other dozen, Connie Mack is the pioneer, having led the Athletics on 22 previous campaigns, or ever since Philadelphia came into the Johnsonian circuit back in 1901. McGraw of the Giants is right behind with 20 seasons to his credit, while the rest have been piloting their respective clubs at least two campaigns.

And of the 16, five have acted in a similar capacity for other major league outfits, with Huggins of the Yankees, Chance of Bos . . and Rickey, Cardinals having led teams in both circuits during their careers. Most of the present-day pilots have long since laid aside their playing uniforms, bing content to give their orders from the bench. In fact, Cobb, Speaker and Fletcher, are the only regular player-managers, though Bush may decide to get into some of his team's games this season.

One odd feature in regard to the men who guide the destines of the major league clubs concerns Connie Mack. In all the years that the elongated manager has piloted the Athletics he has never appeared on the bench in a uniform. Mack comes to the ball park in his regular citizen's regalia, and reposes in the dugout in the same outfit.

HARTFORD MAY GET JUNIOR TRACK MEET

Hartford, Jan. 28.—Connecticut has been offered the national junior track and field championships by the awarding committee of the amateur athletic union and the staging of the event, one of the annual big athletic meets of the year, has been put squarely up to Hartford.

It is the first time that a New England city has been offered the title meet. The offer was made to the head of the Connecticut branch of the amateur athletic union in New Haven but, as there is no suitable sail available in the Elm City, it was passed on to T. H. Noonen, commissioner for Hartford.

Mr. Noonen is endeavoring now to locate some club to put on the event, which must be staged in the State Armory because that structure is the only suitable spot in Connecticut for such a meet.

If he is successful, it will mean that the best of the junior athletes in the country, including the present array of crack college track and field performers, will be seen in action here and the meet, if staged, would eclipse even the famous Naval Militia meet that put Hartford in the front rank of the athletic world not so many years ago.

HAGEN WINS TEXAS OPEN GOLF TITLE

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 28.—Walter Hagen, American holder of the British open championship, won the Texas open gold championship here today when Bill Mehlhorn, Shreveport, La., who tied him yesterday for the title with 279 for the 72 holes medal play, took a six on the eighteen hole, losing by one stroke.

Mehlhorn had the title and the $1,500 first place purse won both yesterday and today in the play-off until the final hole when he cracked under the strain and lost both contests.

More than 10,000 persons were in the gallery following the players over the municipal links in the play-off here today.

Hagen shot a 72 today for the 18 holes with Mehlhorn shooting a 73.

The cards follow:

Hagen out—444 265 353—36.
Hagen in—346 345 344—36——72.
Mehlhorn out—444 354 353—35.
Mehlhorn in—436 444 526—38——73.

CONNECTICUT AGGIES MAY JOIN PROPOSED NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE

Boston, Jan. 28.—The athletic directors of five New England colleges met here today following a meeting of the presidents of the same institutions yesterday and furthered existing plans looking toward the formation of a New England State college conference.

The colleges represented were the Connecticut Agricultural college, Massachusetts Agricultural college, University of Maine, New Hampshire State college and Rhode Island State college.

Professor E. T. Huddlestone, of New Hampshire State, an official of a tentative organization formed on November 26 said tonight that the results of the conferences of yesterday and today would be made public probably tomorrow.

Following the November meeting it was reported that the proposed conference organization had been completed along the lines of the western conference but it was said today that this report was premature.

"BABE" RUTH FAVORS FIGHT TO GET MORE MONEY

Boston, Jan. 28—Babe Ruth declared that he was with fellow baseball players in any fight to get more pay and assailed attempts to suppress Sunday baseball in a talk before the St. Alphonsus association here today.

The home-run idol declared that last season 3,320,000 admissions were paid to one New York club and that the cry of "holdup" and "robbers" were unjustified when hard working players asked for an "increase in pay of $1,000 or so." He asserted that he was cautioned by the owners of the New York Yankees to keep his salary a secret but that it had leaked out and then other players demanded more money.

AMERICANS WIN CANADIAN RACQUETS TITLE AGAIN

Montreal, Jan. 28—Americans again hold the racquet championships of Canada, Jay Gould, of New York, who represented the Philadelphia Racquet Club, winning the singles, and paired with L. Dupont Irving, of New York, winning the doubles in the international tournament which closed Saturday night. In the final matches Gould defeated A. S. Cassils, of Montreal, three games to one, and Gould and Irving defeated G. R. Fearing and Shaw McKean, both of Boston, three matches to none.

The singles championship was held by Clarence Pell, of New York and the doubles title by Pell and Stainley G. Mortimer of New York, who did not defend them.

SARAZEN AND HUTCHINSON ARE AGAIN VICTORS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 28.—Gene Sarazen national open and professional golf champion, and Jock Hutchinson, former British open champion, defeated Jack Neville, of San Francisco, California amateur champion and Fred J. Wright, Jr., of Los Angeles, leading amateur in the recent Southern California open tournament, seven and six, in a 36 hole match at the Flint Ridge country club today.

Wanderers Win at Stonington

The Baltic Wanderers played in Stonington Friday night and came home with the bacon. Stonington who has a small surface to play on gave the Wanderer forward line a chance to show the fans how the team performs on their own floor. Charron, who scored the first basket started the fire works, the first half ending 24 to 11 in favor of the Wanderers. In the second half the Wanderers let loose and had the Stonington fans cheering for the visitors who played the home team off their feet. When the whistle blew the Wanderers had made the score 64 while the home team had the sum of 17. The Wanderers were well treated by the fans in Stonington. Charron made a hit with the crowd with his fast work and scoring 14 baskets.

This Wednesday the Wanderers play the Fort Wright team in Baltic and on Saturday the club plays in Westerly.

GERMANS ARE CANCELLING ORDERS FOR FRENCH MUSIC

Paris, Jan. 28 (By the A. P.)—Germans who buy quantities of French music have written French music dealers politely cancelling orders placed with them and expressing regret that politics should interfere with their business. It is suggested that the French will miss German orders for music and that French dealers might profitably bring pressure upon the French government regarding the Ruhr situation.

French hotel keepers have announced that they are ready to bar Germans from their hostelries, but that they prefer to wait until they are quite certain of the accuracy of the news that Germans are boycotting Frenchmen and Belgians. Meanwhile they are going through their lists of employes and weeding out those who are considered undesirable foreigners.

The intransigeant today prints the copy of a notice served on French customers by a leading hotel at Garmish, one of the principal Bavarian resorts. A translation of it reads: "You are begged to leave immediately, as we cannot longer take responsibility for the safety of your person. Salutations."

million men any time to give expression to it. Is this a time to give up the church's great commission of life for discussions of theology?

"These fellows outside say 'We asked for bread and you gave us nothing.' Are we likely to give them more by shutting up the church and silencing voices that are directed beyond the churches?"

Dr. Grant began his sermon with the assertion that it seemed worth while to call attention to "other sides of the present interesting discussion that those one sees in the newspapers or gets from ecclesiastical persons.

"One or two of the clergymen who are writing for the press have said that my interest is publicity. It happens that while these sweet-minded persons were saying this, newspapers were calling me up and complaining that they could not get any news from me. The newspaper pigeonholes are not filled with stuff I asked them to print."

Mentioning for the first time publicity his twice-divorced fiancee, Mrs. Philip Lydig, whom Bishop Manning warned him he could not marry without violating church canon, Dr. Grant said:

"Another point of view taken by some of my critics is that my position is affected by a certain personal relationship. That is absurd, for I have been saying the same thing for forty years."

A laugh swept the congregation as he added:

"Fortunately for the other person involved, the matter has not been for forty years standing."

Mrs. Lydig, who usually occupies a seat near the rear before the sermon began.

"We've got to live more by the laws of reality," Dr. Grant said. "We've got to get at the truth. We can't go one camouflaging."

"Take the matter of marriage and divorce," Dr. Grant added. "There is a play on Broadway dealing with that subject. It keeps the audience laughing because of the absurdities of the subject. Will the church be able to withstand that laughter indefinitely?

"Women are rising, demanding a change in the marriage laws. They would broaden and unify the divorce laws. And they are the ones interested, for two-third of the divorces are granted at the request of women today.

"You can't stop the stage from saying what it thinks. You can't stop these two millions or more of educated women. Why stop the voices in the church that are simply pointing out that we are living in a humanistic age—that we are trying to prepare for life—and that we want to find out how to live before we die?"

"There is no danger that science will overthrow religion.

"As William James said, 'Religion is indestructible.' You can't get away from it."

Dr. Grant declared that since the controversy over him had risen, he could not walk a block on the street "without having people come up and say pleasant things."

"They say, 'we want spiritual and intellectual emancipation,'" he declared. "There are millions of such.

"This is a time of wonderful liberation. I don't regard myself as only a Protestant Episcopal minister. I can say all I want to say on a street corner.

"I said to Bishop Manning the other day that I have treated my congregation as if they were member of the century club—and that is a pretty highbrow club. I never 'preach down' to them. I preach no kindergarten stuff. I take myself seriously as a teacher.

"The church is not a little club. It is a great and inclusive organization, with little stations into which it can bid and call the multitude. And that's the only kind of a church we want today. So far as I can see, it is the only kind that has any excuse for being. Unless you lead your spiritual life with vigor, the spirit within you withers.

"Let us take the true gospel of love from Jesus Christ and try to make of this as Abraham Lincoln's America—an America that loves the people."

Dr. Grant's attitude was touched upon in sermons in many of the churches of the city today.

Rev. Dr. Gustav Arnold Carstensen of Holyrood Episcopal church attacked Dr. Grant, characterizing him as an "usurper, if Christianity means a belief in Christian truth."

Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Baptist church, assailed Dr. Grant's sermon, declaring that "unbelievers" among ministers were "blind leaders of the blind."

Rev. J. Howard Melish of the Protestant Episcopal church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, who came to the defense of Dr. Grant during the controversy, did not allude to him during his sermon on "The Dignity of Man" today.

LOOK TO OUR OWN CHANCES.

At the time when Vermont is declared to be against it, there comes from Canada a statement to the effect that the dominion government is not prepared at this time to negotiate a treaty with this country concerning the proposed St. Lawrence waterway.

It has been evident for a long time that nothing could be done without a treaty governing such a proposition, and until Canada is ready and willing to undertake that it makes any serious move impossible.

The reason given by the Canadian government is the same one advanced in this country to a considerable extent, and that is that it involves the expenditure of too much money at a time when conditions do not warrant it.

Canada doesn't close the door to the idea. In fact when it says that it is not ready at this time, it leaves the proposition open for the future and perhaps it will be possible to produce more convincing argument as to the need and advisability of the project anon.

In the meantime with the clearly established need of improved facilities and with the discussion of a waterway bringing to greater attention the opportunities for the development of facilities which are already available in this country, but not fully developed, it is to be expected that greater efforts will be turned to these channels of meeting the requirements of the middle west in the way of further improvement and utilization of our own transportation facilities.

Canada doesn't tell us that that is the best thing to do, but when it tells us that it is not ready to go ahead with the part it would be expected to play in the St. Lawrence development, it is time for us to look to the situation this side of the line and make it unnecessary in the future to think of placing any dependence upon an outlet for our goods through the waterway to ports of another country, or of putting such a large sum into a project that would be available only part of the year.

A VICE PRESIDENT'S RESIDENCE.

The lack of what is believed to be the proper equipment has from time to time resulted in gifts to the government. It was not long ago that the United States was given property in London for the use of the American ambassador to that country, and it is in keeping therewith that the widow of the late Senator Henderson of Missouri offers to the government a half million dollar residence in Washington for use as the vice president's home.

Perhaps on first thought the view might be that if someone wants to give the government such a valuable piece of property for such a purpose inasmuch as no such provision is made at the present for the vice president of the country, it ought to be accepted without any great amount of discussion.

And yet it is much like offering to give a valuable automobile to a poor man whose finances are not sufficient to meet his present requirements. The purpose of Mrs. Henderson is excellent, but the acceptance of it would impose obligations upon the vice president which he could not meet unless he happened to be a man of wealth, and even should the government undertake the upkeep of the residence, estimated as high as $50,000 a year, there would be the bill for entertaining in keeping with such a residence which would be far more expensive than the salary of the vice president would warrant.

When it is claimed that opposition to establishing a residence for the vice president would meet opposition in the house unless the speaker of that body was similarly taken care of, it must be regarded as a weak excuse, but it can be appreciated that the poor man who is elected as vice president fully understands that he could assume no such obligations as a home of that character would impose. Thus opposition to the acceptance of the gift can be readily appreciated as being firmly grounded with conditions what they are.

THE BOYDEN MATTER.

Those whose efforts are, in part at least, devoted to the embarrassment of the administration get but little satisfaction out of the manner in which they have dealt with the Boyden incident, and the subsequent foundationless claim that President Harding and Secretary Hughes were at odds, and that the secretary of state and the ambassador to England had clashed.

From the manner in which quick responses were made to these latter claims and the emphatic statements that there was not a scintilla of truth in them it was quickly disclosed what liberties were taken by the manufacturers of these yarns.

Since then Secretary Hughes has written to Senator Lodge concerning the Boyden case, and from the clear and manner in which this is dealt with and in which the service that he has been to the government is set forth, whatever flimsy support the attacks upon the state department may have had because of the Boyden incident, it becomes evident that it was another case of indulging a lot of criticism before finding out what the facts were.

The department of state has taken care to show that what Observer Boyden said did not represent the attitude of this government, and that it was not said to create that impression. It was and still is felt that Mr. Boyden should have realized that a wrong interpretation could be placed upon it, and for that reason his action can be regarded as a blunder, but the situation is one which can be safely left to the department of state.

It was apparently the first instance where the observer had made any such mistake. There is a long list of instances where it was possible to show what a service he had been to this government, and with the attack upon Boyden developing into one upon the administration the clarifying statement by the secretary of state serves to illuminate the bad judgment displayed by certain non cooperating influences.

CRUSHED ROCK FOR COAL.

When the person arrested, charged with delivering crushed stone, dyed black, instead of the coal that was ordered, makes the claim that he acted in good faith as the agent of a company that is now defunct, it becomes evident that either the business was so profitable that it was possible to pull up stakes and get away quick, or else it was a rank failure. Presumably it was the latter, but that doesn't relieve those who invested in such product any more than it does the coal consumer who finds that too large a proportion of his fuel is made up of fireproof coal, rocks that were black, even though not dyed, but which would burn no more than the load of crushed stone.

It is because of such a large amount of unburnable material in the fuel that demands are frequently made for the insistence of better quality coal, coal that will test to a certain amount of heat and that will contain less real estate which not only weighs more than coal but produces no heat.

The New York case is one of deliberate fraud. It would not be possible to carry it on for any length of time. The presence of stone in amongst coal is a different matter. It is there because it is mined with the coal but its removal before it is placed [illegible] for transportation from the mines is what the consumer believes he is entitled to. There is no wonder that he doesn't like the idea of paying for such material and in addition be obliged to stand for its transportation, taxation and handling only to find that it is not burnable and is good for nothing except to fill the ashbarrel.

Those who are responsible for the dyed rocks deserve no leniency when it comes to punishment. Those who produce rocks with coal should be required to deal in material that will measure up nearer to 100 per cent coal.

HASTE THAT KILLS

Within the past few days attention has been directed to several cases where individuals were severely [illegible] burned as the result of pouring kerosene on fires.

This is a practice that is practiced more often than those who indulge in it [illegible] realize. There are [illegible] the result of the heedless use of the contents of cans and there are those who unfortunately have come to pour kerosene on a grate and unresponsive fire and get desired results without [illegible] penalty.

There are those who take such chances and succeed. There are others who undertake to do likewise and realize when it is too late that they made a horrible mistake. Playing with fire is a dangerous thing, but the time of opportunity is before the bad example set by others is emulated.

Nothing is more provoking than the reckless manner of starting a fire, especially if the wood isn't properly dried or the builder is a bit impatient [illegible] exasperating to the fire that fails to kindle as rapidly as desired or the one that has nearly gone out and, like a Fourth of July cracker, it is impossible to tell what it's going to do.

The oil is invariably brought into play to hasten the results. There is no question but what it succeeds, but it is too often the case that it also hastens the end of the person directly concerned or endangers property and the lives of others. Haste that brings death or makes waste is a bad practice.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

If you will dip an old sheet in strong bluing and lay over the linens in your hope chest, they will not be yellowed when you want to use them.

Dates may be stuffed with diced pineapple rolled in sugar.

A damp woolen cloth will pick up small pieces of broken glass.

In each cup of cocoa drop a marshmallow before serving.

Coffee should be ground only moderately fine for the percolator.

Stale slices of bread may be cut into squares and fried with bacon.

Hominy, like rice, should never be stirred.

To brown a pie easily dissolve a lump of sugar in a little milk and brush the result over the piecrust, before placing in the oven.

When you have no suet handy and require a little for puddings, chop a little fresh dripping and use it in place of suet. It will answer just as well.

Brown boots or shoes should be rubbed over with a slice of raw potato before the polish is applied. Then they are easily to clean and take a good polish.

After boiling bacon, keep the water for twenty-four hours, skim off any fat that has settled on the top and use it for boiled puddings or plain cakes. It is as good as dripping.

When cooking rice or macaroni, cook more than the quantity stated in the recipe, as so many quickly made dishes can be concocted by their aid.

Gasoline should be stored in an outhouse away from the main building, and isolated from any other premises.

Shrunken blankets can still be used if a strip of material is sewn on the ends for tucking in.

A tiny piece of butter added to chocolate icing which is inclined to be dull will help to make it shiny.

Add a pinch of salt to the coffee before pouring on the boiling water, and you will find the flavor is greatly improved.

AN ASBESTOS TABLE PAD

Hot dishes cannot damage the dining table if it is protected by an asbestos table pad. The cover is made of white flannelette, in two sections, to fit either a round or square dining table. Each section is divided by rows of stitching which form casing for asbestos boards one foot wide, about one-quarter round or square tables. Extra sections should be made for use when additional boards are placed in the table.

When the cover becomes soiled, the boards are removed from the casing and the cover washed. The asbestos boards are then replaced. The flannelette cover may be embroidered on the edges. When it is removed from the table, the sections fold together, and can be put away in a small space.

ECONOMY IN FURNITURE

Ordinary grades of oak and stained wood furniture that have become shabby can be renovated cheaply and attractively at home. Sandpaper the old pieces of and paint carefully white, ivory, cream or [illegible] shade you desire. Furniture of different designs can be used together successfully by this method.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Now that the weather is cold, be sure to keep a jar of hand lotion or cold cream above the kitchen sink and use it frequently.

Pork and fowls are at their best during the autumn and winter months, while veal is best in spring and summer and lamb in summer and fall.

Hair is dressed very simply just now and if curls are allowed at all they must be sedate and infrequent. The favorite mode is that in which hair is drawn very smoothly back from the face and low and fastened in a loose smooth knot at the nape of the neck.

Pimples or other such small disagreements should be dusted with orrice powder.

Plump shoulders are better than angular ones for the new type of frocks, and the latter need regular massage with a fattening lotion, such as [illegible] in olive oil and oil of sweet almonds. Prominent "salt-cellars" and backs should also receive their share of the massaging, all the sharp angles becoming gradually rounded and filled out.

WELL-SHAPPED LIPS

While a lovely complexion and pretty hair are essentials to beauty neither can compare with a beautiful mouth. It tells so much more than any other feature. Drooping corners denote a poor disposition—a straight, [illegible] mouth generally shows a mean disposition. And the strange part of it all is every woman could have, with a very little trouble, a pretty mouth.

Before retiring at night massage your lips lightly with your favorite cold cream and always use an upward stroke at the corners; the upward stroke turns up the corners, the massage stimulates the blood in the lips, invariably leaving them a vivid coloring without too much [illegible] rouge, and the use of the cold cream keeps the skin from cracking and getting dry, as it is apt to, especially in cold weather. Surely a few minutes spent that way before retiring is well worth trying.

FOR THE SMALL ROOM

The one room of a business girl need not be entirely without "homey" touches. One who knows offers the following excellent suggestions for attaining them:

Well covered trunks and boxes make excellent divans and incidentally afford "chair room" in a small apartment. To insure comfort add a couple yards of sateen or soft chintz to your order and make day covers for as many pillows as your bed may possess. These, laid in artistic confusion on the top of your covered trunk, will give your room just that "homey" touch so many bed-sitting rooms lack.

In an emergency don't forget that marble - covered washstands make splendid writing tables.

Even if it means economy along some other line, don't be without a pretty waste-paper basket. If the shop article is out of the question get some friendly grocer to sell you a round margarine basket. Stain, varnish, and paint or cover this with chintz to match your divan and curtains. The uses of a room waste-paper basket are legion, and the sight of a pretty, useful article, is worth its weight in gold to a tired worker.

For the girl who "meals" in her room, dainty table linen is a big item. Nowadays, however, this linen can be considerably reduced by buying material to make a tablecloth, while half a yard extra will provide serviettes to match.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Hem lines are not so extremely uneven as they were earlier in the season.

Heavy silks in tan and gray tones are being shown for sports models.

Long white glace gloves reappear at opera and theatre.

The bertha, especially for evening wear, has brought forth the large cameo, which adds greatly to the quaint, old-fashioned flavor of many of the evening gowns worn, especially those with an off-the-shoulder decollette.

Red velvet is extremely good for evening wear. It is unusually self-trimmed.

Slanting tiers of pearl-tipped fringes are used on a frock of flesh georgette.

Entire coats of fitch are noted and considerably more fitch by way of trimming is used than is usual.

White caracul evening coats are trimmed with white fox.

A white fur fabric evening cape has made its appearance.

Gardenias as a corsage, and a single gardenia in the hair, seem to be a popular mode of decoration.

An artificial rose pinned to the fur collar of one's evening wrap is a feature frequently repeated.

A dress beaded in white on white crepe had sapphire velvet around one large armhole and a wing effect down one side.

A chin strap, not differing essentially from that on the helmet of a British "bobby," is seen on some of the new hats. The hats which flaunt these adjuncts are small and close fitting and the chin strap, which has a decidedly coquettish air, is called "la directoire."

Moire ribbon, crystal and silver, make up the latest chains. These fall to knee length and in some cases they take the place of embroidery, being the only bit of brightening which a gown requires. The crystal and silver are in thin plaques, strung on the narrow ribbon.

A new color has made its gorgeous appearance. This is cactus red, a yellow red most effective for trimmings on a dark suit or for a belt thereto. Some of the winter sports accessories are made up in cactus red woolen goods combined with ivory or clear white.

VOILE FROCKS.

For the voile, an interesting treatment is a white and dark green combination. The bodice shows insets of green as does the skirt, and the white bands on the skirt are embroidered in green and rose in a pattern like those used on old quilts. Another voile frock is simply a mass of hand drawn work carried out in horizontal lines. It is worn over a crepe slip and with a sport jacket of fine white wool embroidered all over in the most vivid rose, red and green shades.

JABOTS.

Jabots, pleated and plain, circular and straight in cut, adorn the semi-informal types of frocks and give a decided grace and movement to these styles. An almond green crepe model has two wide pleated jabots reaching from under the arm to the hem, sewed in the side seams. Other jabots are used from one shoulder, across the front of a frock to the opposite hem, while massed groups of petals attached at one point flutter on the pleated skirt of a tan georgette crepe frock.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

In these days of expensive linens napkins can be made from the good pieces of the worn tablecloth. Cut out the good squares and either hem them or run around with a simple crochet stitch.

For the nursery there could be nothing nicer than pillows of checked gingham either round or square.

Do not wind artificial silk for knitting into a ball, but over a piece of cardboard shaped like a Maltese cross, and you will not be troubled with tangles.

A large teacloth of natural-colored linen is stamped to be embroidered in a cross-stitch design in red and blue. It is finished with an edging of hand-made linen lace.

When stitching fine material like muslin or crepe de chine on sewing machine a seam is often spoiled by being puckered. This disaster may be averted by placing a piece of paper under the material and then sewing the seam. When it is finished the paper can easily be torn away from the stitching.

PROPER CURTAINS.

The most effective and pleasing results in window hangings for the home are not obtained through mere chance. They conform to very definite rules of art. A knowledge of the simple rules of curtaining, including choice of materials and treatment, enables one to drape windows correctly.

Outlook, exposure, architecture and the type and decorations of the room in which the curtains are to hang should determine whether they should be gay or somber, sheer or heavy, long or short. For example if the curtains are to hang at windows facing a street or road the glass curtains should be the choice. Glass curtains are the sheer kind which hang close to the window pane. They permit plenty of light to enter and also screen the windows. If, however, the windows face a garden or lawn any [illegible] ate material may be hung on rods by means of little brass or tape rings, so that it may easily be pushed or drawn aside to admit the view and sunshine.

DECORATED HANGERS.

Clever women who do things with their hands, and who can combine efficiency with beauty, have discovered that the various garter ribbons on the market, which are woven in such a way that it only requires a piece of elastic to be run through to make a pair of garters, also make very good coverings for hangers. The ribbon comes in various widths, with lace, plain or picot edge, in single and two colors, and it takes but a few minutes to pull this ribbon over a hanger, to catch it at the end and make it secure.

SANITARY MEASURE

It is a wise thing to save all worn white materials; cut them into pieces ten inches square and have a clean pile of them in the line closet, where any member of the family who has a cold may procure them instead of using their regular handkerchiefs. They can be burned when soiled, and in this sanitary manner help the cold from spreading through the family.

LINEN AND REAL LACE.

There is a decided return today to the fashion of pure white lingeries, linen being the favorite rather than silk or crepe de chine. The practical as well as the dainty is demanded the trimming being real valenciennes with a bit of Turkish stitching, all in white.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Modern Japanese girls do not look with favor upon the suggestion of their parents that they marry military men.

Though she is past 71 years of age, Mrs. John Sneeringer of Mechanicsburg, Pa., has secured a fishing license.

Being deaf is no physical barrier to Miss Helen Heckman of Muskogee, Okla., who is a talented singer, pianist and dancer.

The San Francisco National League for Women's Service has purchased property in that city upon which they will erect a $1,000,000 clubhouse.

A questionnaire sent out recently to 7,000 Minnesota farmers' wives brought a response from 480, who object to their daughters becoming farmers' wives.

CIRCLET OF LEAVES.

A circlet of very large silver leaves is affected by young women for the evening coiffure these days. The hair is done low, and the leaves clasp the head just above the ears. The lower edge of the foliage should be on the eyebrow.

HOW TO SWEEP RIGHT.

The correct way to sweep a carpet is sweep in one general direction, with the threads running the long way. Then sweep across.

RECIPES.

Orange Fruit Bar. — Dissolve two tablespoons of gelatin in one-half a cup of cold water, and the juice of one lemon and the juice and grated rind of one orange. Mix one cup of sugar in one-half a cup of cold water and heat. When boiling, add the gelatin mixture. Boil for ten minutes, add one cup of chopped dates and boil for ten minutes longer. Stir constantly. Add one cup of chopped nut meats, take from the fire and pour in a shallow buttered pan. When firm, cut into bars and roll in powdered sugar.

Hamburg With Bread Stuffing. — Grind one pound of beefsteak in a food chopper and season with salt, pepper, onion and one egg. Have ready a bread dressing as for poultry. Grease pan. Add a layer of hamburg, then of dressing, then hamburg. When done, turn out on bread and butter plates and garnish with parsley. These retain their shape and are nice for luncheon.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Feed the Wild Life.

Mr. Editor: The covering of the ground with snow and ice that now and has for several weeks existed makes it imperative for every lover of wild life, to be active in providing feed for it.

It is part of the work of the Norwich Fish and Game Association to protect the game birds and several hundred pounds of grain has been distributed for that purpose.

If any person knows where quail, partridge or pheasants are congregating will communicate with Arthur E. Story at the Merchants National Bank, chairman of our committee on game, arrangements can be made whereby they can be furnished with suitable grain, and instructions given as to the manner of distribution.

It is to be desired that every member of the association consider this his business and not wait "for George to do it."

Dr. Grant and Theology.

Mr. Editor: Notwithstanding the puerility of much that Rev. Percy Stickney Grant affirms as his reason for discrediting the divinity of Jesus, one cannot help being interested in the disclosure, how little stock some clergymen do take in the responsibilities and obligations of their profession.

Other professional men pursue their calling with a sense of deep attachment to the laws that govern it, and expect success in strict adherence thereto, but some clergymen —of whom Mr. Grant is an example—seem to think they can pursue the ministerial profession and discard the fundamental principles for which their denomination and pulpit stand.

The only other example of this avertion to one's occupation is had, perhaps, in a tee-total bartender—or a saloon keeper who is in it for revenue, and yet detests the business.

Speaking of the puerility of some of Mr. Grant's hypotheses, we note his imbecility that Jesus walked on water, because, in all probability he weighed 150 pounds. Aside from this new guess at the weight of the Master, would the miracle be less wonderful if he had only weighed 50 pounds? Mr. Grant thinks he is contending in the interest of "Jesus' perfect humanity, but there is no ground for discussion here. All orthodox Scriptural theologians believe this, but also hold with the Apostle —with whom Mr. Grant thinks himself in unison—that "In Him"—also (Christ) dwelt all the fullness of the Godhead bodily." (Col. 2-9).

Mr. Grant is also a great stickler for the bare record of the three evangelists as compared with the statements of the church or the church fathers—and we are all with him in this too.

Now, all three of the evangelists record the miracle of stilling the tempest." The evangelists believed in Christ's humanity, yet after this miracle the narrators all record their amazement. And wonderingly they said: "What manner of man is this that even the winds and sea obey him?" Has Mr. Grant studied this personage so long and not been led to adopt this same inquiry? As to his statement that the laws of the universe, as we know them, are immutable, who knows that they are immutable? As to defiance of gravitation—what's gravitation? Why is gravitation? Can Mr. Grant explain?

Help Your R. F. D. Mail Carrier.

Mr. Editor: Many of the patrons served by rural routes out of Norwich, and every other town that has rural service, can make the work of the carriers less burdensome, especially during the winter months. If they would do a few things which would not take much of their time. One is to buy a few stamps from the carrier and affix them to first class matter, as required by the regulations.

The department does not require carriers to pick up loose change left by patrons in bottom of boxes. Where boxes are not equipped with coin holders, money should be wrapped in paper or placed in an old envelope.

The main roads are made passable by state highway department plans, and carriers and others using the state roads are much benefited thereby. Do not grumble because there is a heap of snow left in front of your box, but cheerfully shovel it away. According to Sec. 827, Postal Laws and Regulations, patrons shall keep clear the approach to their boxes by prompt removal of snow drifts or other obstructions by which the delivery of mail to them would be rendered impossible or difficult without the carrier leaving his conveyance.

Many patrons neglect the little things that will make life more pleasant for the carrier. In helping the carrier you are helping some other patron near the end of the route to get his mail earlier. Treat your carrier right and he will treat you right.

A FRIEND.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., only son of "the richest man in the world," today enters upon his 50th year. To the general public he is little known. From time to time, mainly because of his activities in Bible class work or in efforts to bring about a better understanding between capital and labor, his name has appeared in public prints, but he has attracted less attention than most men of his prominence. He was educated by private tutors and then was sent to Brown university. Soon after being graduated he entered the offices of the Standard Oil Company in New York, and for years thereafter he worked as hard as any $15 a week clerk. He has been very little identified with public life, but on several occasions he has served on national committees to arbitrate labor disputes or to investigate industrial welfare problems. In 1901 he was married to Abby Greene Aldrich, the daughter of Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island. Frugal, industrious, religious, devoted to his family, Mr. Rockefeller is probably all that his father hoped he would be when he first saw the light of day in Cleveland 48 years ago.
